THE LYCEUM COURSE.

Next Attraction on Wednesday Night, Feb. 16th.

Presenting a revival of Irving's dreamy old legend, Rip Van Winkle, Herbert Sprague, known in many cities of the country as a versatile and successful lyceum entertainer, will appear in the opera house on Monday night, 16th, under the auspices of the End of the Century Club.

For some years Mr. Sprague has been a popular figure on the American platform and more recently he has won fresh laurels by exceptionally fine work in the famous classic which many theatre goers had begun to fear would pass from the stage with Jefferson. No more eloquent testimonial to the skill of the new "Rip" could be given than the recognition of him by a number of competent newspapers and other critics as a worthy successor of the great actor. The Nashville American, the Birmingham Ledger and other Southern dailies have declared in so many words that Mr. Sprague now stands unsurpassed in the interpretation of Rip Van Winkle and that he is a striking and pleasant reminder of the elder Jefferson.

The play will be given in four acts showing the village green at Falling Water, Rip's kitchen, the summit of the Catskills and the return of the sleeper to his home after a twenty-year nap. Mrs. Sprague assists her husband, capably filling the roles of Gretchen and Meenie. She is an unusually accomplished and attractive young woman.

DELIGHTFUL DANCE.

Reported for The Reflector.

The pupils of the dancing class, taught by Miss Lottie Blow, gave a delightful bal-poudre Tuesday night in the city hall. In spite of the bad weather quite a number attended. Those present were: Misses Page Shelburn, Lucy Forbes, Margerette Blow, Mary Shelburn, Lucille Cobb, Lillian Carr, Allie Estelle Greene, Lottie Blow, and Arlene Joyner. Messrs Alex Blow, Norman Warren, Edward Hearne, Frank Wilson, Frank Beaton, Dr. Perkins, Cecil Cobb, John Shelburn, Joe Anderson, Ben Joyner, of Farmville, S. E. Gates, C. R. Townsend and L. Freed, of Atlantic City.

Chaperones—Mrs. R. Greene, Mrs. W. O. Shelburn, Mrs. J. W. Ferrall, and E. V. Ferrall, of Farmville.

A Dutchman's Soliloquy to His Dog.

A Dutchman, addressing his dog, said: "You was only a dog, but I vish I vas you. Ven you go mit your bed in you shust turn round drie times and lay down; ven I got mit the bed in I haf to lock up de place and wind up de clock and put de cat out an ondress myself, and my frou vakes up and scolds, den de baby vakes up and cries and I haf valk him mit de house round, den maybe ven I get myself to bed it is time to get up again. Ven you get up, you shust stretch yourself, dig your neck a leetle and you vas up. I haf to light de fire, put on de keedle, scrap some mit my wife already yet, and get myself breakfast. You play round all day and haf plenty of fur; I haf to vork all day and haf plenty of drubble. Ven you die you vas dead; ven I die I haf to go to hell yet.

There were thunder and lightning and rain again last night.

AN EYE TO BUSINESS.

Dr. White Found Cork Screws Galore Among the Gentlemen.

That hunting crowd that went down to a place near Julian, is back. In the crowd was Dr. J. L. White, pastor of the First Baptist church, a specially invited guest. Dr. White may or may not be a great and mighty hunter when it comes to birds, yet he knows how to hunt some things. For instance, one night when all hands had returned to the camp tired, weary and footsore, Dr. White walked into a room where were gathered four gentlemen.

"Have any of you gentleman a cork screw?" he asked. In a jiffy four cork screws came forth from as many pockets.

"Thank you, one will do. I want to get the cork out of this liniment bottle," and he held it up. Even then one of the gentleman was inquisitive, for he insisted on removing the cork, entertaining the idea that perhaps it was not liniment.

And so Dr. White discovered what he was no doubt looking for. But it was real mean that the boys did not offer him "some thing for the stomach's sake." A man—even a preacher—gets fearfully tired tramping in the fields all day.—Greensboro Record.

Civic Patriotism

Civic patriotism is not so pronounced or so common as national patriotism, yet without it no place can prosper. Every citizen should be loyal to his town, and that loyalty should be expressed by acts as well as words. Words are cheap, and are not to be compared with the useful patriotic acts by which a man shows his faith and interest in the community of which he is a part. Such acts build up a town, promote its prosperity and make sure its future. And there is no citizen, however humble or however lowly his occupation, but can contribute something to the common good.

We again congratulate the Civic Club for its great service to Carthage, and we take this opportunity to urge perseverance. But while we do that let the individual citizen take up some patriotism and show it in deeds of usefulness. The merchants might insist more on the clean and decent appearance of the lot in the rear of their stores, and if decent appearance were required in order to secure trade there would be more attention given to conditions. The time is coming and not far distant when there will be more care taken in the appearance and actual decency of every public place, including stores, markets, court houses and similar places, and God speed the day. Average life has been increased several years in modern times. This has come about largely through better and cleaner living, and this average can and will be increased by continued increase in healthful conditions.—Carthage Blade.

REAL ADVERTISING

Is Bringing the Seller and the Buyer Together.

Bringing the two together, the seller and the buyer, is one of the missions of a newspaper. There are daily evidences that The Reflector fills this mission. The people read this paper, and when they see mention of something in line with their wants they are quick to act. It is so in either the matter of buying or selling. If you want something, let your wants be known, and the person who has it will supply the want. If you have something to sell, contemplate the wants of somebody else and let it be known that you have the article needed, and those who have the need will come to you. That is the purpose of advertising, bringing the seller and buyer in touch with each other, and to do this no medium can serve you so well as The Reflector.

RENSTON ITEMS.

Renston, Feb. 9.—Miss Rosalie Dail returned Sunday from an extended visit to relatives near Conetoe.

Wednesday afternoon Jan. 26th, 1910, the home of Mr. Benjamin Smith was the scene of a quiet but pretty marriage, when Mr. W. E. Worthington led to the altar Miss Maggie L. Smith, J. E. Cannon officiating. We wish for them a long happy life.

COXVILLE ITEMS.

Coxville, Feb. 9.—We are having some cold weather now, but work is still progressing.

Miss Annie Dixon, of Ayden, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. M. O. Gardner, returned home Sunday.

We are sorry to hear that J. B. Corey is very sick with la-grippe.

George Kilpatrick, of Centerville, was in our neighborhood Sunday.

Appointment to West Point

Mr. Willie R. Wilson, son Mr. W. B. Wilson, of this city, has received an appointment to the military academy at West Point, N. Y. through Congressman John H. Small. Mr. Wilson is now at Highland Falls, N. Y., where he has entered a special training school for the examination which comes off February 23 at Fort Slocum, N. Y. This is high honor to the young man and his many friends congratulate him.

Honor Roll.

The following is the honor roll of Pine Hill public school for the third month: Della Harrington, Lottie Ellis, Letha Dail, Margaret Worthington, Emma Lottin, Wyatt Tucker, Bobbie Harris, Bryant Carroll, Ryan Ellis. The highest average was made by Stella Harrington, Della Smith, teacher.

WIVES TO HAVE COMMON SENSE.

A Canvass by a Preacher Shows That to be Above Beauty.

Some time ago a well-known minister sent out a number of letters to young men in every station of life, asking them to state in a dignified manner what they most required in a wife, says Helen Corinne Hambidge in The Designer for March.

If you think men do not have settled opinions on what's what in a wife you should have been one of the fortunate number who read these letters. I cannot now quote from any one of them, but I do recall that while one or two of the writers demanded paragons of beauty and virtue, most of the young men seemed to have very modest ideas about what a wife should and should not be. A great majority said that they did not so much wish beauty of face as of heart and character mixed with common sense.

All women are beautiful to the men who love them, so perhaps these same men knew they would get the attractiveness thrown in along with the other virtues. One letter stated in a not at all flippant way that the writer should absolutely demand but one thing from his wife,—a sense of humor. There was a good deal of wisdom shown in setting forth that one requirement, for next to sympathy a scene of humor is the great leaven of married life.

It does not necessarily imply, however, that one must always go about grinning, but no trouble is all serious when one can see a humorous side to it, and few sorrows fail to have their edge of laughter. A sense of humor is a queer little, unexpected ray of light that goes about searching in every dark corner, and it is about the best comrade for a life journey one can imagine.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Reported for Reflector.

It was a jolly crowd of little merry makers that gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Harding, last Saturday evening.

To the older friends, whom she had invited, it was indeed amusing and very interesting to watch the little ones, and listen to their happy laughter and catch the funny and original expressions of some of the little tots. It was a happy and joyful occasion; and to the little hostess, there was but one thing to keep her cup of joy from being full to overflowing; that was the absence of her little cousin, William H. Harding, of Charlotte. They played and romped in the childish glee 'till all were tired. Then they marched to the dining room for refreshments.

Three tables had been arranged around which they all stood. On the table in the centre was the birthday cake, with eight little candles around it.

When all had been served with individual cakes and cream then little Mary cut her cake, and gave to each little friend a slice. Then they went back to the lawn for another romp. Time was flying fast, and soon they had to say goodbye.

When they were all gone, the little hostess found a dear little gift left by each friend. And she went to sleep, saying, it was the happiest day of her life.

A Guest.

SITUATION AT THE ORPHANAGE.

Vaccination Completed and the Situation Now Well in Hand.

Thomasville, Feb. 8.—We have no desire to conceal the fact that we have smallpox at the orphanage; but we wish to avoid any sensational reports that might get into the papers. As we have some reputation for diligence in looking after the sanitary conditions of the institution, a work of explanation is necessary.

Last Wednesday evening we learned to our surprise that we had smallpox in the Fleming nursery, the last place we would have expected it. We know now how it came. Last fall we received some children from the town of Thomasville. During the holidays I granted these children the privilege of a one day's visit to a relative that lived in town. It now transpires that there was a case of smallpox concealed in that house at that time. We were not aware of the fact that there was a case in a hundred miles of us. This family is now under shot gun quarantine, but that does not undo the mischief out here.

The first case was so mild that it was taken for chickenpox, especially so since it was at the nursery, among the smaller children who were not thought of have been exposed; and besides, we have had chickenpox several times within the past few years.

There are now sixteen cases one of them a teacher, Miss Olive; only a few of them decidedly marked cases, but there of can be no doubt about any of them. The bulk of them are in one wing of the Fleming nursery. We did not remove them to the infirmary, as the room had already been infected; and besides, Miss Annie Hal, who has charge of the nursery, had the disease some years ago during a vacation. This is fortunate and looks like a special providence. So she is in charge of a little hospital of her own. These little girls are able to be up and about the room, though they are shut out from the world by red curtains. The other cases are at the regular infirmary.

We are taking every precaution. Dr. Julian is doing heroic work. We have bought disinfectants by the wholesale and are using them every day. Every suspicious garment is cast into a proper solution of bichloride of mercury and rooms fumigated with formaldehyde. Arms are "taking" by hundreds. Those that do not will receive a second application after the proper time has elapsed. Everybody is taking cream of tartar and sulphur in order that the blood may be in the best possible condition. Light diet has been ordered for all hands. After the first outbreak is past, we are hoping that the remaining task will be only a thorough disinfecting of the entire place. This will be no mean undertaking.

None of the cases seems to be dangerous at all, except one, little Lexie Cheek, complicated with inflammatory rheumatism. It looks now that this will be fatal. We wish to express our appreciation of many messages of sympathy already received.

M. L. Kesler, General Manager, Thomasville Baptist Orphanage.

Trade Report.

Trade in some lines is irregular but taken as a whole it is classed as good. High prices of commodities retards the placing of orders for future delivery, but orders for immediate shipment in most lines are well up to last season. Wholesale milliners have commenced shipments of spring goods and report trade satisfactory. Sales of shoes, leather goods and rubbers are in excess of last year. Manufacturers of harness are busy, some factories are working extra time. Chemicals and fertilizers are reported as moving satisfactorily. Favorable weather has prevailed for handling leaf tobacco and sales are large, prices have ranged up to 4 c per pound and the average is good. Practically all of the cotton crop is out of the hands of the planters, however prices continue to range up to 14c per pound with little prospect of a decline. The wheat crop is reported in better condition than was reported earlier in the season. Indications are that a full acreage will be planted in the leading spring crops. Drugs continue active, naval stores are firm. Reports show building operations in excess of a comparative period of last year. Retail trade is fair and collections are fair to good.

Good roads may cost money—anything worth having does—but they are much cheaper than bad ones

If February brings Greenville nothing else but the re-opening of Carolina Club, it will not be a bad month.

If the doctors come around with a vaccination point, the thing to do is stand and be scratched. There is safety in it.

The paper trust has been fined, but we hope the price will not be put up enough to make the boys who print the papers pay the bill.

The ground hog is a creature void of appreciation. If you praise him for giving a day of good weather, he flaps over with the other kind the next day just to make you feel like taking it back.

Chicago, one of the worst cities in the world, must want to do better. It is actually going to have an election on the question of prohibition. We do not expect prohibition will win, but that the city had enough people on the right side to call the election is certainly showing improvement.

People continue to talk about the success of seed corn day in Greenville Tuesday. Occasions that bring the farmers together like on that day with something to exhibit and something to talk about, are worth while. They looked at each other's corn, exchanged ideas about how they developed their seed and cultivated their crops, how much they made per acre, what crops they rotated, and such things that were really interesting. That meeting created an enthusiasm that will have an effect on the next corn crop in Pitt county.

Held Court 50 Weeks Out of 52.

We were in conversation with Judge B. F. Long, of Statesville, a few days ago, and he informed us that out of fifty-two weeks of last year he held court fifty weeks. No judge living or dead in North Carolina has ever equaled this record. We mention this to say that no class of men have more arduous labors than do our judges and the next legislature ought to increase the number of judges to 20 at least.—Newton News.

There is a better way to relieve the strain. Increase the number of recorder's courts to take care of the minor criminal cases. These courts have proved themselves in many counties. Then find a way to compel the judges who shirk to work full time. If every judge on the bench would put in the time he "Climax" in Mid Ocean.

Many a theatrical effort has found itself, either first, or last, at sea, but very few have had the experience the "Climax" has to have.

Chas. Frohman, whose ambition long since touched the other show is not satisfied. He must have a stage between shores, and the palatial Mauretania, of the Cunard Line, has furnished it.

The first deep sea theatrical findings will be recorded Friday, the 11th, when the "Climax" will be presented in mid ocean on the Mauretania, by Miss Marie Doro and a select company of Frohman's players. The liner will be two days out from New York. Wireless reports of the performance will be sent to New York and London. Miss Doro has played Adelina, the principal character, in this country—Charlotte News.

Land Poor Farmers.
A majority of the farmers of North Carolina are "land poor." The modern methods of intensive farming, tend to show that a few acres well tilled are far better than large tracts of land poorly cultivated. It is a mistake for any one to hold large bodies of land, and pay taxes on it, when it is not utilized. The ideal community is one of well tilled small farms. In such a community all the social, educational and religious comforts may be enjoyed, without their cost being burdensome.—Le noir News

Stomach Misery for Over Six Years
Read what Mr. Hoffman, land lord of the Western Hotel, writes:
"I suffered misery and intense pains from stomach trouble for over six years, and all the doctoring that I did or medicine I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of Mi-o-na. The first few days' treatment helped me greatly and upon using it a while I was made entirely free from any stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by Mi-o-na I have regained my weight, I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my entire general health is much better." Max M. Hoffman, Webster, N. Y., Aug. 2, 1909.

SPIDER INSTINCT.
Cutting a Web Thread to Escape From an Intruder.
The instinct of the spider is always an interesting subject for study. Recently a naturalist placed a small spider in the center of a large spider's web some four feet above ground. The large spider soon rushed from its hiding place under a leaf to attack the intruder, which ran up one of the ascending lines by which the web was secured to the ceiling.
The big insect gained rapidly upon the little one, but the fugitive was equal to the emergency, for when barely an inch ahead of the other it cut with one of its rear legs the line behind itself, thus securing its own escape, the ferocious pursuer falling to the ground.
The naturalist says: "It is not the habit of spiders to cut the slender thread below them when they are ascending to avoid some threatened danger unless there is a hole close at hand—and a hole that is known to be unoccupied." From this it would seem that the little creature's action was the result of some sort of reasoning. Instinct led it to run away, but it must have been something more than instinct that led it to sever the line and so cut off the pursuit.
The same naturalist says that spiders are cannibals and that they are naturally pugnacious. But they do not fight for the satisfaction of eating one another. "When two spiders fight there is generally a very good reason for the attack and the vigorous defense that follows."
"It is not generally known that after a certain time spiders become incapable of spinning a web from lack of material. The glutinous excretion from which the slender threads are spun is limited, therefore spiders cannot keep on constructing new snares when the old ones are destroyed. But they can avail themselves of the web producing powers of their younger neighbors, and this they do without scruple. As soon as a spider's web constructing material has become exhausted and its last web destroyed it sets out in search of another home, and unless it should chance to find one that is tenanted by a battle usually ensues, which ends only with the retreat or death of the invader or defender."—New York World.

THACKERAY WAS BORED.
Amusing Incident of the Author's Second Visit to Boston.
During Thackeray's second visit to Boston Mr. James T. Fields, his host, was asked to invite Thackeray to attend an evening meeting of a scientific club, which was to be held at the house of a distinguished member.
I was, said Mr. Fields, very reluctant to ask him to be present, for I knew he was easily bored, and I was fearful that a prosy essay or geological paper might be presented and felt certain that should such be the case he would be exasperated with me, the innocent cause of his affliction.
My worst fears were realized. I dared not look at Thackeray. I felt that his eye was upon me. My distress may be imagined when I saw him rise quite deliberately and make his exit very noiselessly into a small anteroom adjoining. The apartment was dimly lighted, but he knew that I knew he was there.
Then began a series of pantomimic feats impossible to describe. He threw an imaginary person—myself, of course—upon the floor and proceeded to stab him several times with a paper folder, which he caught up for the purpose.
After disposing of his victim in this way he was not satisfied, for the dull lecture still went on in the other room, so he fired an imaginary revolver several times at an imaginary head.
The whole thing was impossibly done. I hoped nobody saw it but myself. Years afterward a ponderous, fat witted young man put the question squarely to me:
"What was the matter with Mr. Thackeray that night the club met at Mr. —'s house?"
Nature of the Goods.

"Why not?"
"Because it is a business in which the goods are always on hand."—Baltimore American.

MAULED BY A LION.

An East African Hunter Who Was Pretty Close to Death.

A story of another addition to the long list of hunters injured by lions comes from British East Africa and is printed in Forest and Stream. The account of the injury to Mr. Harry Williams, the African explorer, is given by the victim as follows:

One day I was out alone, having only my two gun bearers with me, when I saw a lion on the right, about 300 yards away.

I put up my hand as a signal to my head gun bearer to come up with a spare rifle, and together we worked closer and closer to the lion. The beast seemed to have no intention of stopping, so I struck one hand on the back of the other. The lion seemed to decide upon retreat, for he turned and trotted away.

I fired both barrels of my 450 at him. One shot reached him in the flank. It was only a slight flesh wound, but it paralyzed him for the moment, and he sat down on his haunches like a dog. After a few minutes he got up and went into a bit of open bush.

Not knowing what state the brute might be in, I made for a big open patch on my left front, hoping to get a better sight of him. The lion, however, had been watching me and now came straight at me at a terrifying pace.

I thought myself a dead man, but with the courage born of despair I raised my rifle in both hands and struck him across the side of the head. Almost simultaneously he ducked and seized me by the right leg, shaking me from side to side as if I had been a rat.

At that moment my gun bearer came up while the lion was actually mauling me, shoved the rifle he carried down to me and asked me how to turn the safety catch. I had sufficient presence of mind to be able to explain in a second, and the gun bearer fired.

The lion left me and rushed into a bush five yards away, giving me time to put two cartridges in my rifle while I still lay on the ground.

Raising myself to fire, I saw that the lion was in the act of springing. I fired both barrels from my hip at his head, the "boy" firing at the same time, and the brute rolled over dead.

I fell back again and for a few moments half swooned. But as soon as the second gun bearer came up I sent him off to find camp and bring back some men to carry me in. For an hour I lay there, and then half the camp turned up, and I was carried in on a bed. I shall never forget the agony of that journey.

Famous Men Who Remained Bachelors.
Among the illustrious men who passed through life in single blessedness may be mentioned Sir Isaac Newton, Thomas Hobbes, author of "The Leviathan," Adam Smith, the father of political economy; Chamfort, the greatest of French talkers; Gassendi, Galliel, Descartes, Spinoza, Locke, Kant, Bishop Butler, the author of "Analogy"; Bayle, Leibnitz, Hume, Gibbon, Macaulay, Buckle, Pitt, Charles James Fox, Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Michelangelo, Sir Joshua Reynolds, the artist Turner, Handel, Beethoven, Schopenhauer, Rossini, Mendelssohn and Meyerbeer. —Detroit Journal.

Lords and Commons.

An ancient English custom forbids the participation of a peer in the election of a commoner, so that when a general election is actually in progress the lords are oratorically muzzled by a fiction that supposes them to be quite indifferent to the composition of the lower house, but until the candidates have been actually nominated the peers may use all the eloquence with which nature has endowed them for or against the issue involved in the approaching election.

The Change.

"You didn't use to object to your husband playing poker."
"No, but that was before I learned to play bridge. It is a lovely game, but I cannot afford to play it unless he stops playing poker." —Houston Post.

FLIGHT OF BIRDS.

Rapid Wing Movement Does Not Always Imply Speed.

Birds have different modes of flight, just as men have different gaits in walking or running. Rapid wing movement does not always imply speed in flight any more than rapid leg movement implies speed in walking or running. With us it is the length of the stride that tells ultimately. What, apart from wing movement, tells in the bird's flight is not known.

Speaking broadly, long winged birds are strong and swift fliers; short winged birds are feeble in flight. When we consider that a cumbrous, slow moving bird like the heron moves its wings twice per second when in flight it is evident that many birds have a very rapid wing movement. Most small birds have this rapid wing movement with feeble powers of flight. The common wren and the dipper, for instance, have a flight like that of a young bird.

Many of our smaller migrants seem but to flit from bush to bush or from tree to tree. Members of the thrush family are low fliers, the blackbird in particular, with its hasty, hurried flight, often just avoiding fences and no more. Wagtails have a beautiful undulating flight with little apparent use of their wings. They look like greyhounds bounding through the air. Nearly all birds sail or float occasionally without the slightest movement of their wings. Even a large bird like a pheasant will glide in this way for more than two hundred yards.

Grouse have a rapid wing motion without any great speed, but when they sail, coming down with the wind, as they prefer to do, they go very fast. Before alighting they flap their wings several times very rapidly, like the clapping of hands. Most birds after gliding do this. Does it correspond to putting on the brakes or reversing the engine in the case of mechanical locomotion? With little apparent use of its wings the wood pigeon flies very strongly and rapidly. It never seems to "bring up" much before alighting, but crashes into a tree at full speed. When it rises its wings crack like pistol shots.

Kestrels have a beautiful, clean cut, clipping motion of their wings and look like yachts sailing through the air, while their hovering in the air is one of the mysteries of bird life. Peewees, which are so graceful in their motions on the ground, look like enormous bats when in flight. Swallows and in a very marked degree swifts have rapid wing movement with great speed and extraordinary power of flight. —Scotsman.

One Cold Saved.

Logic is logic, whether it touches the affairs of nations or a cold in the head. The conviction, says London Tit-Bits, was forced upon a Liverpool woman whose coachman, although he had been ill for several days, appeared one morning with his hair closely cropped.

"Why, Dennis," said the mistress, "whatever possessed you to have your hair cut while you had such a bad cold?"

"Well, mum," replied the unabashed Dennis, "I do be takin' notice this long while that whiniver I have me hair cut I take a bad cold, so I thought to meself that now, while I had the cold on me, it would be the time of all others to go and get me hair cuttin' done, for by that course I would save meself just one cold. Do you see the power of me reasonin', mum?"

Littlest Father.

The woman who came to clean up was telling how she left her boy to take care of the baby. The boy was two and one-half years old. The baby was six months.

"That's the youngest little father I ever heard of," said the flat dweller she was cleaning up for. "Do you lock them in?"

"Yes," said the cleaning woman. "Poor little fellow!" said the flat dweller. "Locked in to burn in case of fire! Some day when you are cleaning up for me I want to go over and see that little father, who ought to be in the cradle himself, taking care of the six-month-old baby. I want to just sit there and look on awhile. Poor little fellow!" —Chicago Inter Ocean.

HAD LUCK ON THE WAY.

The English Thief That Dropped In to See His Lawyer.

Here is a story of a genuine instance of the kind of business which fell to the lot of a once notorious London "thieves' counsel." One day a thick-set man, with a cropped poll of unmistakably Newgate cut, slunk into this counsel's room, when the following dialogue took place:

"Morning, sir," said the man, touching his forelock.

"Morning," said the counsel. "What do you want?"

"Well, sir, I'm sorry to say, sir, our little Ben, sir, has 'ad a misfortin. Fust offense, sir, only a wipe."

"Well, well!" interrupted the counsel. "Get on!"

"So, sir, we thought as you'd 'ad all the family business we'd like you to defend him, sir."

"All right," said the counsel; "see my clerk!"

"Yes, sir," continued the thief, "but I thought I'd like to make sure you'd attend yourself, sir. We're anxious cos it's little Ben, our youngest kid."

"Well, sir," continued the man, shifting about uncomfortably. "I was going to arst you, sir, to take a little less. You see, sir,—wheedlingly—" "It's little Ben—his first misfortin!"

"No, no!" said the counsel impatiently. "Clear out!"

"But, sir, you've had all our business. Well, sir, if you won't you won't, so I'll pay you now, sir." And as he doled out the guineas, "I may as well tell you, sir, you wouldn't 'a' got the counters if I hadn't had a little bit of luck on the way." —From "The Recollections of a K. C.," by Thomas Edward Crispe.

Funny For Her.

A New England lad was intently watching his aunt in the process of making pies and cake. He seemed very much inclined to start a conversation, an inclination, however, which the aunt in no way encouraged. She continued in silence to assemble the ingredients of a mammoth cake.

"Tell me something funny, auntie," finally ventured the boy.

"Don't bother me, Tommy," said the aunt. "How can I when I am making cake?"

"Oh, you might say, 'Tommy, have a piece of the pie I've just made.' That would be funny for you." —Exchange.

Waited Twenty Years For a Solution.
A bit of pure and harmless mischief at recitation at Yale was the device of a member of the class of '72, who introduced at recitation a turtle covered by a newspaper pasted on the shell. The tutor had too much pride to come down from his perch and solve the mystery of the newspaper movement, but twenty years after, meeting a member of the class, his first and abrupt question was, "Mr. W., what made that paper move?"

A Relief.

"Johnny," said the boy's mother, "I hope you have been a nice, quiet boy at school this afternoon."

"That's what I was," answered Johnny. "I went to sleep right after dinner, and the teacher said she'd whip any boy in the room who waked me up." —Boston Post.

After the Honeymoon.

"Pa, what's the difference between idealism and realism?"
"Idealism, my son, is the contemplation of marriage; realism is being married." —Boston Transcript.

A Loss All Around.

Two Englishmen on a visit to Ireland hired a boat for the purpose of having a sail. One of the Britons, thinking he would have a good joke at Pat's expense, asked him if he knew anything about astrology. "Be jabers, no," said Pat. "Then that's the best part of your life just lost," answered the Englishman.

The second Englishman then asked Pat if he knew anything about theology.

"Be jabers, no," answered Pat. "Well, I just guess that's the very best part of your life lost," said the second Englishman.

A few minutes later the boat capsized, and Pat began to swim. The Britons, however, could not swim, and both called loudly to Pat to help them.

"Do you know anything about swimology?" asked Pat.

"No," answered both Englishmen.

"Well, be jabers," replied Pat, "then both of your lives is lost."

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The program is as follows:

10:30 a. m.—Devotional exercises by Rev. B. F. Huske.

10:45 a. m.—Reading of minutes.

10:50 a. m.—Announcements and distribution of bulletins.

11 a. m.—The preparation of the lesson, by Prof. H. E. Austin. General discussion.

2 p. m.—Drawing, by Miss Kate Lewis.

This will be one of the best meetings we have had. It will be noticed that we have only one subject for the morning. I think I can assure the teachers that this important subject will be so discussed that you will feel that you have been repaid for the sacrifices that I know you have to make to attend these meetings, and I wish also to ask the teachers to make their arrangements to be present at the afternoon session. It is exceedingly gratifying to those who have arranged to give you this work to see now enthusiastically you are entering into it. I feel that I express your sentiment when I say that your absence from either one of these sessions will be your loss. I am looking for a great meeting. Let us come together and make it such. The names of more than thirty boys have come in as contestants in the "Boys' Corn Club." I wish to request all the teachers to explain this contest to their boys between now and this meeting and give to me that day the names of their pupils who will enter. Let us have at least one boy in each school in the county to become a member of this club. W. H. Ragsdale, Co. Supt. Schools.

1910 Brought Many Changes

And among them was a big change in the style of Furniture. I watched this carefully, and I did not buy until I was absolutely sure I was getting the newest and best to be had. Consequently, I am offering the furniture buyers of Greenville and adjacent country ever shown them. You will therefore find it to your best interest to visit my store in the White-building, near Five Points, and examine my stock before buying.
