UNPRECEDENTED RECORD.

Most Successful Year for Beneficiaries of the Mutual Life Insurance Co.

The 67th annual statement of The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, appearing in this paper, is notable, not merely because of the vast sum involved, but for the unprecedented benefits to policyholders reported. The company closed its 67th year with an increased amount of insurance in force $1,441,323,848, and with increased assets amounting to $560,122,367.61; but especially worthy of note is the fact that the company paid to policyholders and their beneficiaries during the year the enormous sum of $54,909,648.86, or practically $55,000,000—a greater amount by some millions than was ever before paid in a single year by any company in the world. Even more surprising is the fact of the vast sum thus paid to policyholders, over $11,000,000 consisted of cash dividends on policies in force. This was an increase in dividends paid of $2,694,659.07 over the previous year, while the extraordinary amount of $12,401,752.11 has been apportioned for dividends in the current year of 1910. These are figures far beyond the largest amounts ever paid in dividends by any other company in the world. For deferred dividends payable in future years on existing policies, and for general contingencies a reserve of $91,498,319.99 has been set aside; while the regular policy reserves amount to over $445,000,000. Attention is called to the fact that the company maintains its pre-eminence in economy of management, with a ratio of expenses to total income, not only less than that of any other company, but less than any other company has been able to show in many years. The relative expenses of the company have been decreased in five years by more than 50 per cent and the net cost of life insurance, by reason of dividends, has been correspondingly decreased.

H. Bently Harris, Manager Greenville District of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, will take pleasure in explaining to you the benefits of a policy in this company.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Feb. 17.—Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity:

Trade conditions continue about as reported last week in some lines irregularity is noted. High prices of many commodities continue a feature especially in the placing of future orders. Produce is quiet, poultry is scarce and high. Shoes and dry goods are moving fairly well. Trunk and bag factories report ordering active. Harness and saddle manufacturers report business good. Fertilizer is moving more satisfactorily. Dealers in seeds report advance orders up to last season. Sales of leaf tobacco continue large and prices are good. Retail trade and collections are fair.

Notice to Cat Owners.

All owners of "dead" cuts at The Reflector office will take notice that on March 1st we will sell all such cuts for old metal if they are unclaimed at that time. We are compelled to do so in order to make room, as we have no place for keeping old and out of date cuts, etc. Please notify us if you want yours sent to you. This does not apply to cuts good for further service.

MARRIED OWN DAUGHTER

Peculiar Case Argued in Supreme Court at Raleigh.

One of the most remarkable cases ever tried in the courts of North Carolina was argued, on appeal, in the Supreme Court yesterday.

The appeal is docketed as the State against Powell, and comes up from Halifax county, and was argued by Attorney General Bickett for the State and Senator E. L. Travis, of Halifax, for defendant.

There was but one exception in the taking of the appeal, and that was whether certain evidence that was admitted by the court below was competent.

The grand jury found the statutory indictment, applicable to the case against Powell upon the charge of having married his own daughter.

The defendant denied the charge and based his defense on the allegation that his present wife is not his child.

The mother (now deceased) of the woman he married had been married before she became Mrs. Powell and the defendant claims that his present wife is the offspring of this former marriage and not his own child, as is alleged.

The main question which called for settlement in the Superior court was "Who was the paternal parent of the existing Mrs. Powell?"

Powell had been married previously, as well as his second wife, the mother (admittedly) of his present (third) wife.

Powell's chief efforts were to prove that his present wife was the child of his second wife by a previous husband.

This he did not succeed in doing to the satisfaction of the jury, which convicted him.

The judge sentenced Powell to 18 months' imprisonment. Pending the appeal (on the one exception noted above) Powell is at home under bond.

The case is a most extraordinary one, to say the least. The "child" is not wise enough to settle the question, because she evidently does not know her own father.—News and Observer.

AYDEN ITEMS.

News Notes From a Hasting Town Briefly Told

Ayden, N. C., Feb. 18.

The clock at J. R. Smith Co's store was uncovered Thursday and stood at 4:14:23. Miss Alice Baker was the winner, her time 4:21:1. You get a ticket with each dollar purchase.

Epenetus Hardy and wife spent Thursday night in town.

Shad are more plentiful and price not quite so high. Pitch Kittle seine is running on full time.

J. R. Smith & Bro., are fitting up a neat up-to-date post office. It will be supplied with combination boxes, and much larger quarters, in the Smith Brothers building on East side of Railroad street.

Jesse T. Hart sold the residue of his cotton crop, 20 bales, Wednesday to J. J. Edward & Son at 15c per pound.

The pews have arrived and have been installed in the new Methodist church.

We learn Sam Hox has opened a fish market in Lee street.

We hear Miss Annie Dudley will return to Ayden and engage in the millinery business this spring.

118 YEARS OLD.

C. L. Wilkinson takes the agency for the North America Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Penn. which is 118 years old and which is not old but strong—with total assets of more than twelve million of dollars.

The Insurance Company of North America has been in business since 1792, and when we recall a few of the remarkable events that have occurred since then the march of improvement and civilization we get some idea of what an existence for such a period signifies.

When "Old North America" was founded in the year 1792 George Washington was president of the United States. Then not a single state west of the Alleghenies had been admitted to the Union—Ohio being the first in 1802, and the great northwest territory was practically a wilderness; Chicago, now the second city in the United States was yet to be heard of when the Insurance Company of North America commenced to write fire insurance in 1792.

Then not a single railroad was in existence in the world, nor a steamboat, and a journey of twelve hours now, then required three weeks.

Then, not one of the great inventions of modern times—the cotton gin, photography, the sewing machine, vulcanized rubber, the telegraph, the telephone, the "Merry Widow" hat and electricity as a motive power and illumination, or the steam engine had been brought into practical use.

The "Old North America" had been in existence over forty years before friction matches, now as indispensable as common, came into use; and over thirty years before gas was used for lighting.

The "Old North America" had been in business over fifty years before a successful daguerreotype had been taken; for sixty years before the laying the first Atlantic cable, for sixty-nine years when our Civil war commenced in 1861, and for twenty-three years at the time of the overthrow of Napoleon at Waterloo.

The "Old North America" has lived to see the population of the United States increase from four millions to over seventy-five millions; and the assets and the business of the company now exceed the combined assets and business of all the insurance companies of the United States at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

The "Old North America" has paid out for losses in one hundred and eighteen years that it has been in business up to January 1st, 1909, one hundred and forty millions, two hundred and seventy four thousand, nine hundred and fifteen dollars and sixty eight cents.

Think of these things, and if you have property to be insured against loss by fire, enroll yourself as a patron of the "North America" of Philadelphia, Penn.

In all these years the "Old North America" has never failed to meet an honest claim. See C. L. Wilkinson, the agent for the North America Insurance Company and get a policy. It don't cost any more to insure in the North America than it does in the smaller companies.

Mr. Insurer, think this over and if you have property call on C. L. Wilkinson, agent, Greenville, North Carolina and let him insure you in the "Old North America" Fire Insurance Co.

THE MUSIC CLUB.

Entertained Thursday Night by Miss Bennett.

The February meeting of the Greenville Musical Club was handsomely entertained Thursday night by Miss Lillie Bennett at the home of Mrs. Charles Skinner.

The club held its business meeting in the sitting room while the guests were being entertained in the parlor.

It being the time for election of officers, the following were chosen:

Mrs. T. E. Hooker, president. Prof. H. E. Austin, vice president.

D. J. Whichard, secretary. Mrs. W. L. Hall, treasurer.

A committee consisting of Charles James, Miss Annie Loe Davis and E. G. Couch was appointed to revise the constitution and by-laws.

The purchase of books and music for use of the club was referred to the program committee.

The club members then joined the guests in the parlor for the musical program. The character study for the evening was Franz Schubert. A sketch of the composer's life was read by Mrs. E. G. Couch, followed by the singing of his famous "Serenade" by Miss Olive Gaston and Charles James. Prof. H. E. Austin sang "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

The hostess then distributed cards containing a "Musical Love Affair" contest, the blanks to be filled with musical terms. Several tied in the score, and in the cut the club prize, a portrait of Schubert, was awarded to D. J. Whichard. The guest prize, a picture of Schubert composing "The Girl at the Mill," was awarded to Mrs. L. C. Skinner. The consolation, a toy clarinet, went to L. H. Pender.

After the contest ice-cream and cake were served, the hostess also presenting tiny musical instruments as souvenirs.

CAROLINA CLUB.

Holds Enthusiastic Meeting Portrait of J. L. Fleming Presented.

It is truly gratifying that since Carolina Club has been revived, such interest is being manifested in it. The club held a most enthusiastic meeting Thursday night with a large number of members present, and six new applications for membership were received.

At this meeting the former officers of the club presented their resignations to permit of reorganization with new officers, but by unanimous vote the resignations were declined, each being requested to continue in office for the regular term. The officers are:

Dr. D. L. James, president.

W. L. Hall, vice-president.

W. S. Atkins, Secretary.

A. J. Moore, treasurer.

R. Williams, O. C. Gregory, S. E. Gates, Jesse Speight, Dr. E. A. Moye and D. N. Clark, board of governors.

The president appointed the following committees:

Entertainment—H. W. Whedbee, D. J. Whichard and J. Benj. Higgs.

Literary—H. B. Smith, Dr. C. O'H. Laughinghouse and R. A. Tyson, Jr.

The visiting day for ladies was changed from Friday to Monday of each week. Men of the town who are not members of the club, will not be accorded the privileges of the club room at any time.

An interesting feature of the meeting Thursday night was presenting to the club a portrait of the late Senator J. L. Fleming, who was its first president and largely instrumental in its organization. The speech of presentation was made by Dr. D. L. James, and the acceptance by Prof. W. H. Ragsdale.

The club rooms are now being newly papered and painted; this work being in charge of Wells Browne, the decorator. When completed the rooms will be very attractive. The reading and game rooms are already open to members.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Evans delightfully entertained several of their friends Thursday night at their home in South Greenville, in honor of their neices, Misses Lillie and Pearl Mingia, of Raleigh. It was also the anniversary of Mr. Evans and Miss Pearl Mingia's birthday.

Games and other amusements were engaged in until 10 o'clock when the guests were invited into the dining room where they enjoyed ice cream and cake.

At a late hour each departed expressing themselves as having spent a most pleasant evening.

Thunder and lightning came along with the rain Thursday night.

Shad are seen more frequently on the street.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

A Public Confession.

The pastor of a country church, a middle aged widower, was credited with having courted every eligible woman in his flock. One Sunday morning the good parson, having occasion to admonish specially the feminine membership, was amazed at the very audible titter that ran through the congregation when, with an inclusive wave of his arm, he exclaimed, "Sisters, I have addressed you in public and in private." "WE ARE FROM HEAVEN"

And The Evening Times' Lady Agents Certainly Look It.

Wilson, Feb. 16.—Misses Tyson and St. Jermaine, of Greenville, two lady hustlers for the Raleigh Evening Times, were in Wilson today, and from the way they brought their pencils and pads in use they did a thriving business. They are hustlers and no mistake; have no time to take up with those whose business it is "just for a chat"; they are out to increase the circulation of the paper they represent. They approached a gentleman who was quaffing a glass of pepsi-cola in a drug store and after booking him for a year the gentleman queried: "Pardon me, but may I ask where you ladies hail from?" Certainly, sir," replied one of the beauties. "We are from heaven." "Bah-jove," returned the new subscriber, "you look it." "Thanks," was the rejoinder, and away went the ladies in quest of others.—Special to Raleigh Times.

FRIDAY, FEB. 18, 1910.

A cold snap is not a soft snap. Raleigh and Greensboro are both active storm centers.

Those looking for the right kind of climate should come to Greenville.

Now other cities will be following Raleigh's example in shutting out "The Girl From Rector's."

In politics many feel called, but few are chosen. A good thing to bear in mind in a campaign year.

Bob Phillips, of the Greensboro News, is a handy man. He writes a while and sings a while, and puts in good work at both.

The press dispatches intimate that the president is worried over the slowness of congress to take hold of some of his pet schemes.

Charlotte, Raleigh, Greensboro, these three, would like to have the conventions of both parties this year. There are others willing.

The Raleigh Evening Times intimates that there are to be some law suits against the city for not letting "The Girl From Rector's" show there.

Wasn't that a disgraceful fuss for the people and mayor of Raleigh to have over an indecent show? The sentiment was against the mayor, is the worst of it.

The Torrens System.

One of the good bills destined to die in the South Carolina legislature is that providing the Torrens system of land titles for that State. "The members of the general assembly," says the Spartanburg Herald, "are lacking in an intelligent understanding of the Torrens system of land title and municipal government by commission, or they are afraid to be monkeying with new propositions unless they are assured that they will be popular." The bill was introduced by Mr. McMahon, a progressive, wide-awake member, but has not even been discussed. "If it should be passed," The Journal argues, "it would interfere with agents and attorneys who examine titles." We hope that no such selfish motives will be invoked when the bill for the Torrens system comes up in the North Carolina legislature and that our legislators will take a more broad minded view of it.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The transfer of land is accomplished in Australia by a certificate as simple as corporation stock is transferred in this country. Many efforts are being made to introduce this system, well known as the Torrens system, into the United States, and the possibilities are that in the next legislature a bill will be introduced for its adoption. A properly formulated bill ought to be passed. The system is now in force in seven different states and by choice in New York State also.—Charlotte Observer.

The bill requiring marriage licenses in South Carolina has passed the Senate and it is believed that the house will enact it into a law. The open door to marriage in South Carolina has been somewhat of a scandal to that State and it is hardly conceivable that in this intelligent age the legislature would decline to pass a law requiring license to marry.—Charlotte Chronicle.

When a bank fails, if a Sunday school superintendent is at fault, the fact is heralded; when a fraud is discovered, if the rascal is a deacon in the church, the fact is emphasized. Would it not be interesting if someone would get up a Whose Who of Sunday school officials and church officers who are still "straight"? The volume would be a large one.—Wilmington Star.

The Name of Stebbins.

The Stebbins family is fairly numerous. It is not now a classic name. Its owners wear it ignorantly—more the shame for them. It is by right a classic name, borne as it was by the first of Christian martyrs—St. Steven, sometimes spelled Stephen. Steven is the Dutch way of spelling it. Spell it in Spanish—Esteban. Drop the initial silent "e," and then you have Steban. Among the ignorant the step to Stebbins is very short. And the honorable name of St. Steven takes on degradation even as the fine old Norman-French name D'Aubaine becomes the homely Dobbins.—London Spectator.

Confidence.

Mr. Golding—So you want to marry my daughter. Do you think that you can support her in the style to which she has been accustomed? Jack Winsome—No, sir, but I can support her in a good deal better style than you lived in the first five years after you were married.—Somerville Journal.

I do not know of any way so sure of making others happy as being so oneself.—Sir Arthur Helps.

Bronchial Tubes All Stuffed Up.

"While a resident of Washington, D. C., I suffered continually and intensely with a bronchial trouble that was simply terrible to endure. I would have spells that I could hardly breathe, I would choke up, fill up in my throat bronchial tubes, and the doctoring that I did and the remedies used were of no benefit to me whatever. I heard about Booth's Hyomei being so beneficial in catarrhal and bronchial affections and procured an outfit. I received relief from the first by its use. I continued with it and received a cure. It is about two years since I have suffered at all from my former trouble.—Mrs. R. L. Pannell, 404 N. Augusta street, Staunton, Va., March 26, 1909.

PIE FOR BREAKFAST.

Once Considered as Much a Virtue as Early Rising.

I am aware that, according to the latest edition of the revised statutes, eating pie at breakfast is now a penitentiary offense, punishable by hard labor on the farm for a period not exceeding eighty-five years. But it once shared with early rising the reputation of a virtuous act. There are people today who are well thought of in the community—who even "dress for dinner," bless your heart—who have, none the less, eaten pie for breakfast and have tipped back on their chairs' hind legs and sat thus with such a smile upon their faces as spoke of peace with all the world, themselves included.

But nowadays merely to talk of so much fried stuff, pork and eggs and potatoes and pancakes and so much sweet stuff, molasses, fruit preserves, coffee cup a puddle of sugar, pie and all that, sends us who hear it to the kitchen cupboard, where the cooking soda is, first aid to the indigestive. To eat such a meal seems hardly less barbarous than wearing feathers in a scalp lock. But remember that we didn't work all day yesterday from before daylight till after dark. We didn't tumble into bed and fall sound asleep ere ever our heads had touched the pillow, so anxious was the night shift of the body's repair gang to get on the job of tearing up old tissues and putting in new. We didn't waken in the morning to find a hurry order for more raw material hanging on the hook, and we didn't put an edge like a broken bottle on that hurry call by stirring around at fifty-seven kinds of temper snarling chores.

We haven't before us a whole long morning with a mall and glut, splitting rails or breaking up new ground with a balky team—a morning so long that it becomes a young eternity about 10:30 o'clock, when the front of the body below the waist begins again to chafe and grind on the backbone in spite of all the fats and sweeps that can be put in between at breakfast to act as fender.—Everybody's Magazine.

FIRST CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

Sheets of Horn Protected the Pages From Soiled Fingers.

The earliest English book for children was "The Babes' Book, or a Lyttl Report of How Young People Should Behave." The horn books existed in Elizabeth's reign. The writing was covered with a sheet of horn in order to protect the lettering from contact with dirty fingers.

The chap book contained most of the familiar nursery rhymes and stories which have appertained to nursery lore for generations. They exhibit very crude woodcuts, often stained with inappropriate color, and the commonest paper as a rule was used. They were hawked about by the chapman or peddler and cost only a few pence apiece.

They served to perpetuate such familiar ditties as "Sing a Song of Sixpence," which dates from the sixteenth century; "Three Blind Mice," in use, with music, in 1000; "The Frog and the Mouse," in existence in 1550, and "Girls and Boys Come Out to Play," which was sung by the villagers in the time of Charles II. "Little Jack Horner," we know, is older than the seventeenth century, and last, but not least, "Lucy Locket" the tune from which originated "Yankee Doodle."

A few of what were called "battledoor books" have been handed down to us. They were three leaved cards which were folded up into oblong pocket shaped volumes. These taught reading and numerals in the dame schools in town and country. The little gilt books, as they were called, adorned on the outside with gilt Dutch paper colored flowers, were much prized gift books of that period. Children were employed coloring such picture books by hand, one child doing all the red in the series of illustrations, another all the blue, and so on. Of course they gained precision by repetition, but we very often find the tints overlapping as if carried out by an inexperienced hand.—London Queen.

Presenting Arms to a Cat.

About the middle of the last century a very high English official died in a fortress at a place that is one of the centers of Brahmanic orthodoxy, and at the moment when the news of his death reached the sepoy guard at the main gate a black cat rushed out of it. The guard presented arms to the cat as a salute to the flying spirit of the powerful Englishman, and the coincidence took so firm a hold of the locality that up to a few years ago neither exhortation or orders could prevent a Hindoo sentry at that gate from presenting arms to any cat that passed out at night.—Bombay Times.

Her Proof.

"Why," asked the judge, "do you think your husband is dead? You say you haven't heard from him for more than a year. Do you consider that reasonable proof that he has passed out of existence?"

"Yes, your honor. If he was still alive he'd be asking me to send him money."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Her Mild Complaint.

Patient Parent—George, what do you think I found in my bed last night? George—What was it, mamma? Patient Parent—A railroad train and a fire engine.—Harper's Bazar.

UNDER AN UMBRELLA.

An Expensive Adventure of a Famous Parisian Wit.

Romieu, the famous Parisian wit, was one day caught in a shower and forced to seek refuge in a doorway of the opera house. It was 6 o'clock already, and he had an engagement in the Cafe de Paris for that very hour. The rain fell in torrents. There was no carriage to be had. He had no umbrella. What was to be done? While he was lamenting his bad luck a gentleman with a large umbrella passed by. Romieu was seized with a sudden inspiration. He rushed out and grasped the stranger by the arm and gravely installed himself under the protecting umbrella.

"I am overjoyed to see you," he immediately began. "I have been looking for you for two weeks. I wanted to tell you about Clementine."

Without giving the stranger time to express his surprise Romieu rattled away with gossip and anecdote until he had led the unknown companion to the door of the Cafe de Paris. Then he glanced at him with a face of well feigned astonishment.

"Pardon, monsieur," he cried. "It seems I am mistaken."

"I believe so," said the stranger.

"Good gracious!" added Romieu. "Be discreet. Don't repeat what I have told you."

"I promise you."

"A thousand pardons!" Romieu hastened within the cafe and amid great laughter told the adventure to his friends. Suddenly one of them said:

"Your cravat is rumpled."

Romieu put his hand to his neck and turned pale. His pin, a valuable sapphire, was gone. On further examination his purse and watch were found to be gone. The man with the umbrella was a pickpocket.—London Tit-Bits.

An Italian Superstition.

There is an Italian superstition that whenever a king belonging to the house of Savoy dies a huge eagle is to be seen crossing the Alps over the valley of Aosta in the direction of Savoy, and the conviction prevails among the inhabitants of Aosta that this eagle guides the soul of the dead sovereign to join those of his ancestors in Savoy. When King Charles Albert died at Lisbon, King Victor Emmanuel died at Rome and King Humbert was assassinated at Monza in 1900 the eagle was seen winging its way across the Alps. All other eagles crossing the Alps don't seem to count for much.

We're All Alike.

"The Chinese worship ancestors." "How queer! By the way, have you heard the latest? Marjorie is engaged to a real live duke."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LIGHT AND THE EYES

We Do Not Always See Things as They Really Are.

COLORS WE CANNOT DISCERN

Normal Vision Is Not Able to Penetrate to the Regions Beyond the Violet—Some Results That Have Been Attained With the Camera.

Those of us who are fortunate enough to possess normal eyes are apt to feel instinctively that we see things as they are. This is a mistake. The appearance of the world at large is merely the result of the circumstance that the human eye perceives only a comparatively small part of the total radiation which comes from the sun or is given out by a lamp.

To make this a little clearer we may consider one of the oldest experiments in optics, the passage of a ray of light through a prism.

When a beam of sunlight passes through a prism of glass such as is often found on old fashioned chandeliers the rays are spread out, forming a spectrum, which we see as a rainbow colored band upon the wall. The colors of the spectrum merge into one another by insensible gradations, though the older physicists were in the habit of recognizing seven—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet.

These colors which the eye perceives are by no means the only ones present in the spectrum. If we perform the experiment in a dark room and place a photographic plate in such a position as to receive the image of the spectrum we find that it extends to a considerable distance beyond the violet.

In other words, there is a region beyond the violet which the eye cannot see, but which the sensitive plate is able to photograph. This region is termed the ultra violet, and the light from virtually all sources contains a greater or less amount of this ultra violet light.

The only difference between this ultra violet light and ordinary visible light is in the length of the wave, which is, in fact, the only difference between the different colors of the visible spectrum. If, instead of using a glass prism for forming our spectrum, we use one cut from a quartz crystal we find that the ultra violet spectrum is very much longer, which shows us that the shortest waves of light are not transmitted even by the clearest glass.

If your eyes were sensitive to this region of the spectrum instead of to the other the appearance of things would appear black, our windows would be as opaque as sheets of iron, and polished silver would resemble anthracite coal. In other words, things appear as they do merely from the circumstance that in the process of evolution our eyes have developed a sensibility to a certain region of the total spectrum of the light which comes to us from the sun.

If we have used an ordinary photographic plate in our experiment we shall find that it has received no impression from the red and yellow parts of the spectrum and very little from the green. The plate therefore suffers from the same defect as our eye. It is sensitive only to a limited region. Recently, however, means have been found of rendering plates sensitive to the entire visible spectrum and to a certain extent to the infra red or the extension beyond the red analogous to the one beyond the violet.

With a photographic plate rendered sensitive to the entire spectrum we could obtain an idea of how things would appear if our eyes were sensitive to regions other than the one adopted by nature by excluding from the lens of the camera all rays other than the ones with which we wish to operate. This is done to a limited extent every day by all photographers who employ color screens in their work, and it is well known that increased contrast can often be obtained in this way.

If, for example, we attempt to photograph white clouds against a blue sky without the use of such a screen we get scarcely any trace of the clouds at all, whereas if we place a yellow glass in front of the lens the clouds come out snow white on a very dark background.

We can see this same effect by viewing the clouds first through a piece of deep blue glass, which is what the photographic plate "sees," and then through the yellow plate.

At my laboratory at East Hampton, N. Y., I have pushed this principle to the extreme and have obtained photographs both by the infra red and the ultra violet invisible rays.—Robert William Wood in Century.

A Mechanical Answer.

The well to do patron of the place had been attentive to the cashier for some time, and now, business being slack for a few moments, he deemed the time propitious to speak.

"If you will be mine," he urged as he leaned over the desk, "every comfort that you may desire will be yours. True, I am no longer young, but I have money, and I can provide for you as few young men could, and surely the material side of the marriage question is worthy of some consideration."

She said nothing, but gently touched the cash register, and the words "No Sale" sprang into view.

With a sigh he left.—Chicago Post.

Self laudation abounds among the unpolished, but nothing can stamp a man more sharply as ill bred.—Buxton.

FOOLED HIS SUPERIOR.

An Astonished Pasha and a Lieutenant Who Won Promotion.

Kassim Pasha when minister of war for Egypt was very particular in regard to the personal appearance of his officers and issued stringent orders that they should never appear unshaven in public. One day he met upon the street a lieutenant who had bearded the pasha and disregarded his orders. "To what regiment do you belong?" demanded the indignant minister. "To the — regiment, at Abasseuh," replied the frightened lieutenant. "Get into my carriage at once so that I can carry you to the encampment and have you publicly punished," was the stern command which followed.

The young man obeyed, and the twain rode along gloomily enough for some time, when the pasha stopped his carriage and entered an office where he would be detained for some time on business. Seizing the opportunity, the culprit sprang from the vehicle, darted into a neighboring barber's stall and regained his post before the return of his jailer minus his beard. For the remainder of the route the officer buried his face in his hands and seemed the picture of apprehension.

Abasseuh was reached at last, and all the officers were assembled to witness the degradation of their comrade, who all the while kept well in the rear of his chief. "Come forward, you son of a dog!" cried the late pasha, when there stepped before him an officer with a face as clean as a baby's and a look of the most supreme innocence. His excellency gave one look of blank astonishment and then, with an appreciative smile breaking over his war worn features, turned to the assembled officers and said, "Here, gentlemen, your old minister is a fool, and your young lieutenant is a captain."

Later Returns.

Mildred—So you are engaged to young Willson, eh? I thought you said your love for him was purely platonic? Helen—And it was before he inherited half a million and asked me to marry him.—Chicago News.

Keeping It Dark.

Miss Klidder—S'ish! Carrie has dyed her hair black. Don't tell anybody. Miss Klidder—Is it a secret? Miss Klidder—Yes. She wants to keep it dark.—Boston Globe.

BLOCKADED

Every Household in Greenville Should Know How to Resist It

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

It's the best proof, for it comes from this vicinity.

Joseph Savage, Church street, Tarboro, N. C., says: "For some time my kidneys were disordered, the passages of the kidney secretions being scanty and at times painful. I had sharp pains in my lions and if I stooped suddenly, sharp twinges caught me across the back, making it hard for me to straighten. After trying a number of remedies without finding relief, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and began their use. They removed the aches and pains and regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the benefit I derived from their use."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Notice to Tax Payers.

Taxes for the State and county are past due, and all persons owing are notified that they must come forward and settle. Costs will soon be added to those who are delinquent, and this cost can be saved by paying promptly. I am forced to collect these taxes, and must do so as the law requires. L. W.
