HAPPENINGS WITHIN THE OLD NORTH STATE GATHERED FROM OUR EXCHANGES TODAY

Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Charlotte, N. C., March 2.—As a result of injuries sustained in a fall of forty-five feet from the top of a telephone pole, Robert Shannan, lineman for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, died at 1.35 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Presbyterian hospital, where he was taken for treatment.

Raleigh, March 1.—A remarkable electrocution of a horse took place at the corner of Polk and Pearson streets last evening. A guy wire was attached to a tree on the sidewalk and a live wire became crossed with it, charging the tree and surrounding damp ground. The horse was driven up close by tree and as it approached the animal reared and fell over dead. The Murphy graded school is on that corner and during the forenoon recess a number of the children amused themselves by touching the tree to feel the shock of the electric current. It is presumed that the tree and ground were not so heavily charged at that time.

When the mother, Mrs. H. T. Bolt, picked up a twenty-two flobert rifle yesterday afternoon and pointing it at her sixteen months old son said "I believe I'll shoot you," it was with the usual belief that the gun was not loaded that caused her to pull the trigger. However, the gun was loaded and it fired the ball striking the little fellow in the left eye inflicting a wound that necessitated the removal of the eye this morning.—Rocky Mount Record.

Mrs. Julia Ozlesby, relict of the late Rev. G. A. Ozlesby, died last night at 1.30 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Lilly, with whom she lived. Mrs. Ozlesby had been in declining health for some time and for the past few weeks had been in such condition as to cause grave fears for her recovery. She was sitting up a few hours before her death came.—Concord Tribune.

Raleigh, March 2.—The oldest man in the North Carolina soldiers' home is John Pool, a native of Wake county, who has just celebrated his 88th birthday, and insists that he will live to pass his 100th birthday. He is remarkably hale and hearty for his years, being able to walk from the home to the business section of the city at will, this being a tramp of more than a mile.

Charlotte, N. C., March 2.—Because of the dangerous frequency with which attacks upon women and hold ups of members of the fair sex have occurred during the past ten days, taken in conjunction with many cases of purse snatching by unidentified negroes, the women of Charlotte are looking to firearms for protection. It is stated today that a revolver club will be organized by an energetic young woman of the smart set, and that women will be trained to shoot revolvers and shoot to hit and kill, too.

Mr. G. W. Williamson, of Paw Creek, was telling The News yesterday of the oldest pair of twins in the county, and he thinks of the state. They are Mr. John Beattie and Miss Isabelle Beattie, of Paw Creek. Their age is 74 years. They are

NEWSPAPERS AND MORALS.

Press Today Works With Church for Higher Social Standard.

It was suggested in Pittsburg sometime ago that church people stop reading newspapers during Lent. Immediately there arose a hue and cry whose echoes were carried all over the country. The suggestion fell flat because even the most prominent clergymen ridiculed the idea, and laughed at it as bizarre and fantastic.

There was something decidedly illogical about it, too. The man who proposed the denial evidently overlooked the fact that if a newspaper is not fit to read during Lent it is not fit to read any other time. That with the big majority of papers such is not the case was argued by Rev. Dr. Randall, of New York, in address before the Baptist Ministers' Association, in this city. The doctor went even further and upheld the daily newspaper as an aid to morality in the great cities. Said he:

"The newspapers have given the church the opportunity to get in on the moral uplift. Do not let our narrow denominational lives make us old fogies in this present age. Some preachers fail to keep abreast of the times by neglecting to read newspapers, modern books and magazines."

Both of these statements are indisputed truisms. The better class of newspapers today work hand in glove with the church or moral element that is not directly identified with it, but whose aim and purpose are practically the same—a higher social standard. The paper that ignores principle beckons ruin. The church worker who ignores the columns of the daily press stultifies himself and renders his own efforts less effective.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Messages Can be Telephoned.

Subscribers to the local telephone exchange are notified that when they have telegrams to send they can telephone such messages to the Western Union Telegraph office and prompt attention will be given them. This will save the time required to bring the message to the office or to wait for a messenger boy to call for it. Accounts will be kept with those who telephone their messages to the telegraph office and collections made weekly or monthly as desired. The Western Union telephone is No. 74, and some one is in the office ready to answer calls at any time between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m. 2 both hale and hearty. Their father was Mr. James Beattie, of Paw Creek. The family is one of the most prominent of the Paw Creek section. I'll put them against the state, for age, as twins," said Mr. Williamson.

"Let The News ask if there are any other twins living at the age of 74!"—Charlotte News.

HANDSOME LOVING CUP.

To be Given Members of '79 Class
Having Most Children

Raleigh, March 1.—A handsome silver loving cup, to be presented by the University of North Carolina class of 1879 to the member of the class having the most children is now on exhibition in a jewelry store window here ready for presentation to Dr. Isaac M. Taylor, of Morganton. The cup, with pedestal, is nearly 18 inches high, and is handsomely designed, bearing laurel sprays just above which appear the university monogram and beneath these the name of Dr. Taylor with concise expression as to the purpose of the cup, which was procured by the Hon. Francis D. Winston, as a committee of one from the class.

The 1879 class of the University of North Carolina had eleven members and all are still living. They presented a cup to the classmate having the first child, this having been ex-Judge R. W. Winston, and the child, Horner Winston, who won a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford University a few years ago.

Rink to Open Friday Night.

Messrs. John Hutchings and Oscar Greene will open a skating rink in the Centre Brick Warehouse Friday night, when the skaters of Greenville will have an opportunity to enjoy that fine sport to the fullest. The rink will be open every night after then. Friday night the ladies will be allowed to skate free, and an admission of 10 cents will be charged for men and boys whether they skate or not. Good seats provided for spectators. No admission will be charged at any time for ladies—they only pay when they skate. Remember Friday evening and come out.

Horse Stuck in the Mud.

Wednesday evening a dray horse belonging to J. H. Savage got stuck in the mud on Evans street near Eighth street, and it was with much difficulty that the animal was pulled out. People will have to be careful how they drive over the portion of the street recently worked on until it gets in good condition. Just now the sand-clay is one big mud hole.

Aid Society Meeting.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church will have a called meeting Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. B. E. Parham. Those who have completed shirt waists for the sale soon to be held are asked to carry the waists to this meeting.

Masons Notice!

There will be a special communication of Greenville Lodge No. 284 A. F. & A. M., Monday March 7th, 1910, at 2 p. m., at the Red Men's hall. All members requested to attend. Ways and means for rebuilding the temple will be considered.

L. H. Pender, W. M.
N. W. Jackson, sec.

AVALANCHE BURIES A TRAIN.

Many Sleeping Passengers Lose Their Lives.

Seattle, Wash., March 2.—Sixty persons are dead, injured or missing, as the result of the avalanche, which buried two Great Northern trains near Wellington, in the Cascade Mountains. Twenty-five of the victims are believed to have been passengers who were sleeping in cars of the Spokane express, which has been stalled since Thursday. The other train was entirely mail, carrying no passengers. Twenty bodies have been recovered. The exact number of deaths will probably not be known until the summer sun melts the great masses of snow which cover the train. The avalanche swept down the mountain shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, with no warning to the sleeping passengers.

Looking Pleasant

Why is it that most people, as they walk along the streets or ride in the cars, have such an unpleasant expression? If one will observe even casually the people he meets in a day he will be impressed with the pained and sullen and disagreeable countenances. We live in a rush, and the average person is bent on some errand or business and is absorbed in that; we are all rushing to get something or somewhere. With this absorbing our attention we haven't time to attend to our facial expression. We are not sure, however, that this is a matter of permissible indifference. If one does not believe that his countenance adds to or detracts anything from the lives or expressions of others let him pause for a moment before that now celebrated "Billiken." It is almost impossible to look at the little imp and not smile. The Japanese teach their maids in the hotels, and those also in higher walks of life, the art of smiling. They are compelled to practice before a mirror. One can not stay long in Japan without being inoculated with the disposition to "look pleasant." The "look pleasant, please," of the photographer goes deeper than the photograph plate.

No one wants to associate long with an animated vinegar cruet. A disposition is easily guessed from the angle of the corners of the mouth; a disposition is moulded by compelling those angles to turn up or down. If a merry heart maketh a glad countenance it is also true that a glad countenance maketh a merry heart—in the one who has it and in the one who beholds it. "Iron sharpeneth iron." So a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend—Baptist Commonwealth, Philadelphia, Va.

Follow These Rules and Keep Young.

It is every woman's duty to keep young as possible, but, unfortunately, she does not always know the best way to live up way to live up to the duty.

Avoid hurry, worry and getting flustered.

Learn self-control. Anger is a wrinkle bringer.

Be temperate. Moderation does not only refer to the stomach. Overdoing in any way makes for premature age.

Love the open air. Fresh air is not a fad, it is a necessity if one would keep young.

Get plenty of sleep. Nothing lines the face like nights of wakefulness.

Keep mentally alert. An intellectual back number adds years to her seeming age. Nothing makes for youth like a young mind, save perhaps a young heart.

Don't let yourself get sluggish and indifferent. Here is where the benefit of massage, physical culture and a vital interest in life comes in.

Big Victory for Sprunts.

In the United States Circuit Court, in session at Florence, S. C., Judge Brawley today handed down a decision in favor of the validity of a cotton contract made by a South Carolina firm with Messrs. Alexander Sprunt & Son, of this city. The South Carolina firm failed to deliver cotton according to contract and when sued claimed the contract was invalid on account on being a deal in futures. However, Judge Brawley holds directly opposite. In fact, he declared the case so plain that he would not let it go to the jury.—Wilmington Dispatch.

County Officers Getting in Shape.

Register of Deeds Moore is now occupying his new quarters in the Proctor building. The other county officers will also be in the building in a day or two.

Perfectly Frank.

"I've listened to many divorce cases," said a Louisville judge, "but never have I heard such an all embracing appeal for separation as that Virginia ducky gave before the country justice in Virginia. 'Why, Sally,' said the justice, 'what are you doing here?' 'Well, judge, I want a divorce.' 'You want divorce, Sally! Why, I thought Bill was a good nigger. Ain't he good to you?' 'Oh, ya-as, judge; Bill ain't never hit me a lick in his life.' 'Well, doesn't he support you?' 'Ya-as, sir; he give me 60 cents last Saddy night!' 'Well, what in the world is the matter with you, then?' 'Judge,' said Sally in confidential tones, 'to tell you de truf, I jes' los' my taste fer Bill.'—Louisville Times

PEOPLE PUT PROHIBITION ON THE STATE.

The Chronicle has been content to let the prohibition situation in this State remain as it is. Of course, prohibition was practically forced on the State by the legislature, but the people of the State elected the legislature which did it. As they are responsible for the legislature, so are they responsible for prohibition. The recent meeting in Henderson, at which Mr. Self was the speaker is regarded as the opening of a campaign against prohibition. The Chronicle wants the State to have a brief rest from an agitation of this kind. It believes in the Democratic principle of self-government and is of the opinion that there will be eventually a return to that plan. But an attempt at this time to overthrow prohibition is going to result in defeat, and a bad one, at that.—Charlotte Chronicle.

We are surprised that a paper as well informed as The Chronicle should say that "prohibition was practically forced on the State by the legislature," when it is well known that the people themselves put it upon the State, and put it there to stay. The people elected the legislature, and the people petitioned that body in overwhelming numbers to give them the privilege of holding an election on the question of prohibition. The legislature as the servant of the people only did what the people asked for—gave them the opportunity to vote on the question. Then the people held the election and put prohibition on the State by a majority of more than 40,000. No force about this, as every citizen of the State had the right to vote just as he pleased on the question, and by a large majority they were in favor of prohibition. The Chronicle well adds "an attempt at this time to overthrow prohibition is going to result in defeat." That is just what it will do, as the people have not changed their minds.

The street car strike in Philadelphia may prove a blessing in making people walk, which is beneficial to health.

Politics is Politics.

The passing of Mr. Harry Skinner as United States attorney for Eastern District of North Carolina, means so far as the office goes, the removal of an able official, one who has commanded the respect of all who knew him, and of a gentleman who is removed for purely political reasons. Mr. Skinner will, personally, lose nothing. His conduct of the office he leaves, was dignified, careful and thorough. His friends are not bounded by political ties. There is no bad political odor in the office he leaves. On the side of the power that makes appointments, and displaces those in office, this attorneyship of Eastern North Carolina is wonderfully illustrative of how politics is politics. It is conclusive proof of how little importance an office may be when matched against the politician. It goes to show how helpless the people of a section of a state can be, in even having an official named from among themselves to transact public matters in which the people of the section are most interested. And yet the people of towns, counties, districts and sections have no more voice in the selection of men for certain offices, than if they lived elsewhere, and if some resident is named it will be only a matter of local good luck.

Mr. Skinner's political sin no doubt is that of seeking a political office higher up than the one he has just been taken from. This seeking, quite likely, was personal because his friends justly held that Mr. Skinner was of judgeship build. But the sin was that the political powers had other men to be rewarded, and this interference of Mr. Skinner could not be tolerated. The political vindication comes with Mr. Skinner's passing. It is politics but there is no applause heard, neither is a word of protest offered by those who at heart know injustice has been committed. But political office holders are slaves, and their punishment is certain if criticism be offered to those higher up. Party regularity is governed by the political lash. Office tenure is based upon servility. It looks as if Mr. Skinner had at least preserved his political manhood, though it has cost him an office.—New Bern Journal.

Catarrhal Asthma and Hay Fever.

Tens of thousands of sufferers from hay fever and catarrhal asthma find great comfort and quick relief by breathing Hyomei.

Of course where asthma is not caused by a catarrhal condition, but by nervous contraction of the bronchial tubes, Hyomei is not recommended. But in a case of asthma where there is a discharge of mucous, breathing Hyomei gives most wonderful relief by soothing the irritated and highly inflamed membrane.

WON THE INDIAN.

The Boy Showed the Armed Redskin How to Play Marbles.

One who visits an encampment of Indians is likely to find many of the younger members and some of the older ones practicing games or feats of skill. In the "Chronicles of a Kentucky Settlement" Mr. Watts tells how a boy of eleven years of age showed an Indian how to play marbles.

Joseph had been loitering along behind the teams, "plumping" marbles, a dozen or more of which he had brought with him from Hillsboro, when he was much alarmed on seeing in the road directly in front of him a large, fierce-looking Indian, rifle in hand and otherwise equipped with tomahawk and knife, after the manner of his race.

The lad's first impulse—so he afterward related—was to turn and run for his life. But this he knew, after a moment's consideration, would be unavailing and would, moreover, be not only equivalent to a confession of cowardice, but would increase his danger.

His next thought was to shout aloud for help. But then it struck him that probably he could not make himself heard, and even if he could the doubt thus expressed as to the Indian's peaceable intentions might anger the savage, in which event his deadly work could be accomplished before any one could come to the boy's assistance.

These thoughts ran quickly through the boy's mind, the Indian meanwhile standing like a statue in the road. It then occurred to Joseph that the Indian was closely observing the marbles, and he determined to resort to a little friendly diplomacy.

Picking up the marbles and holding them out in the palm of his hand, he approached the dusky stranger and with as calm a voice as he could command said: "Marbles! Do you want one? May have both. I have more."

The Indian took the marbles and examined one of them so closely that the boy supposed the savage had never before seen such a toy and was trying to determine its use. Upon this he took two other marbles from his pocket, and casting one of them some six or eight feet from him, he properly adjusted the other between his thumb and finger and, showing the position to the Indian, took deliberate aim. He hit the marble that he shot at so plump that it was knocked several yards. The one he had shot spun around in almost the same place from which the other had been driven.

It was a good shot. The Indian, observing the game, uttered something like a grunt of approval and, placing the marbles given him in his pouch, without a word or a gesture stepped from the road and disappeared in the forest.

A Tutor Who Maintained His Dignity.

Dr. Chalmers always had a high sense of personal dignity. When a young man he was engaged as tutor in a private family. His young lady pupils resented his strictness, and the mother foolishly took sides with her daughters. In petty spite when company was invited to the house young Chalmers was shut out from the table, and dinner was sent to his room. He made no protest against the treatment, but when it was attempted again he told the servant he had ordered a dinner at a neighboring town and should need nothing. When this had been done a few times an explosion came. The master of the house called Chalmers to account for insulting his family. Chalmers replied that he had been insulted by banishment from the table. The young teacher conquered and ever after held his place as one of the family at all social gatherings.

She Kept Her Word.

A funny story is told concerning Catherine of Berain, a Welsh woman, who was known as the mother of Wales because she founded so many families. "She was first married to John Salusbury of Llewellyn and became the mother of Sir John Salusbury, who was born with two thumbs to each hand and was noted for his prodigious strength. At the funeral of her husband Sir Richard Clough gave her his arm. Outside the churchyard stood Maurice Wynn of Gwydir awaiting a decent opportunity of proposing to her. As she issued from the gate he did this. "Very sorry," replied Catherine, "but I have just accepted Sir Richard Clough. Should I survive him I will marry you." She was as good as her word and married yet a fourth before she died in 1591."

THE MAN AT THE POLE.

Some of the Peculiar Conditions That Would Confront Him.

If a man could live at the north pole through 100 days he would be 100 years old, for a year at the pole is made up of just one day and one night.

About the 21st day of March the sun peeps above the horizon, but not in the east, for to the man on the pole there is no east or west or north. There is nowhere to go but south. A few days later the sun is apparently rolling around on the horizon for the entire twenty-four hours. Without a timepiece the man at the pole could not distinguish the 29th day of March from the 30th of March. To paraphrase a popular saying, all days in the calendar look alike to him.

After apparently rolling over the horizon for sixty or seventy hours the sun, always in full view, begins a slowly ascending spiral until it reaches an altitude of twenty-three and a half degrees. There are ninety degrees from the horizon to the zenith, and twenty-three and a half are considerably less than a third of ninety degrees. So the man at the pole doesn't have to lean backward to gaze at the midday sun.

After some two or three days at its greatest altitude the sun begins a slowly descending spiral course, and about the middle of September it is again rolling around the horizon, and a few hours later, as the last edge of it disappears below the horizon, night ensues—a night that lasts from Sept. 21 until the following March 21.

The man at the pole sees all the stars in the northern half of the celestial firmament at one time. He does not have to wait for the revolution of the earth on its axis to bring any of them into view. But he can never see many of the stars we see, just as we stay at homes are never able to see the Southern Cross and other constellations of the southern celestial hemisphere. The moon visits the man at the pole and keeps him company for weeks, circling the horizon just as the sun did, but at a lower altitude.

The north star, Polaris, is almost directly overhead. It is a degree and a fraction, you know, out of true north.

At the pole all meridians of longitude meet. So to describe one's position there no longitude is necessary—only latitude 90 degrees.

The north pole of the compass points south at the north pole. So, indeed, does the south pole of the compass, for south is the only direction away from the north pole.

The stars appear brighter, a star of one magnitude less than can be seen in the United States being easily visible in the arctic regions.

No rotation of the earth takes place at the pole. So if Mr. Man was on the equator he would be turning with the earth at the rate of over a thousand miles an hour, while if at the exact pole he would not turn at all—or at most, if he stood stock still for twenty-four hours, he himself would rotate just once.

The pole is the nearest point on the surface of the earth to the center of the earth. Consequently on leaving the pole one would have to be continually marching up hill. For this same reason things weigh more at the pole than anywhere else on the surface of the earth.—St. Louis Republic.

A Unique Home.

In Sweden and Norway there are several homes for spinsters. One of these at least is as attractive as it is unique. It is a monument to the memory of an exceedingly wealthy old man who, dying more than 200 years ago, left the major part of his fortune to the old maids among his descendants. A superb home was built, furnished and managed by salaried trustees. It flourished and has continued. Any unmarried woman who can prove blood relationship to the founder of the institution is entitled to admission to the home. She is given a suit of rooms, a servant, private meals and is subject to no rules save such as ordinary good behavior demands.

One Bank and Its Employees.

The Mendelssohn bank differs from all similar institutions in Germany in the nature of the relations existing between it and its employees. Its attitude toward them is patriarchal, and it has the reputation of never having dismissed one. One or two have retired, but the rest have grown or are growing gray in the service with a view to ultimate retirement on pension. The salaries paid are exceptionally high, and no employee in a place of trust gets less than $1,000 a year. No Christmas presents are given, but all employees share in the prosperity of the bank as reflected in its dividends.—Exchange.

A LAUGH ALL AROUND.

And, as Usual, Those Who Laughed Last Laughed Best.

"Common decency is cheap abroad," said the man who had just returned from his first trip to Europe. "During all the time I was on the continent I was subjected to discourtesy in but one instance, and I think I got away with it then, at that."

"We were crossing one of the Swiss passes by diligence, or coach, and stopped off for luncheon at some little town. It was hot, and I suppose I made rather a comical sight in my shirt sleeves and black glasses, with a handkerchief over my collar, as I stepped out of the vehicle to the road. I suppose, too, that the brand of French in which I tried to ask questions was pretty ragged."

"Anyway, a group of young Frenchmen waiting in a carriage while their team was changed saw in me their long lost original scream, and the way they laughed was convincing, if not flattering. They weren't backward about pointing out the real, racy bits in the picture either, and they only laughed harder when I glared at them mildly. Another American and I trudged off for lunch, and when we came back there was the bunch ready to take up the howl at me again. I looked at my compatriot and he at me. I don't think either of us put the idea in words, but we began."

"We began to laugh. We fell into each other's arms and laughed. We held each other up and laughed. We laughed till the tears rolled down our cheeks. We laughed till we couldn't stand. We rolled into our coach, still laughing, taking inspiration for each outburst from a glance at the Frenchmen."

"Well, sir, that bunch of Frenchmen just wilted. First they closed their mouths; then they lost their grins; then each one began squinting at the other, trying to make out what was wrong. Before we'd been at it two minutes they all discovered they needed a drink and sneaked off to the little hotel. We laughed till we saw the last of them, and then we laughed at the way we had turned the trick."—Chicago Tribune.

MAKING ICE.

The Process is Simple, Though It Puzzled the Negro.

A sailboat in which were a white man and several negroes had just left the wharf near an ice factory at the foot of Main street, Annapolis, and was headed out the mouth of Severn river, toward a point on the Chesapeake.

"Ye-eth, thir," an old time colored man was lisping, "I like to git a job workin' round that air ice plant and see 'em make ice with fire."

"I'll tell you how it is done, if you would like to hear my explanation," said the white man.

"Ye-eth, thir, I like to hear 'bout it." "Well, in the first place, they have a tank of ammonia, to which a small amount of heat is applied. It does not take much heat to convert the ammonia into vapor, and even that heat is used up in causing the liquid to expand into a gas, or become latent, as it is called, so that the temperature is not materially affected."

"Now, suppose the ammonia gas occupies a hundred times as much space as the liquid. It is evident that the liquid contains a certain amount of heat, which is afterward distributed over a hundred times the space first occupied. A cubic foot of water becomes a hundred cubic feet of gas, and it is plain that a cubic foot of gas will contain only one-hundredth part of the heat originally in a cubic foot of liquid; hence the gas is much colder than the liquid."

"Now, this gas or vapor is allowed to flow through pipes covered with salt water, which becomes extremely cold, but does not freeze, owing to the presence of salt. The fresh water desired to be frozen is put into large metal cans and placed in the cold salt water and allowed to freeze."

"There is nothing mysterious about the process. It is, in fact, very simple. Do I make myself clear? Do you understand my explanation?" "Ye-eth, thir, yo' explanation's plain, but I suttainly would like to see 'em make that air ice with fire."

—Washington Star.

His Quaint Suggestion.

A Frenchman who appears to have been of a thrifty turn of mind conceived the idea in 1878 that too much valuable time was being wasted in cleaning sardines when preparing them for the market. He found a way of preparing them without cleaning them, and on this he took out letters patent. Apparently he had some slight misgiving as to whether the public would be perfectly suited with his invention, and so in his claim he makes this parenthetical entry:

"Fish put up by this process may be slightly unpleasant to the customer at first, but he soon gets used to it."

The Appeal to the Record.

Little Tommy returned sore and trembling from the torture room. "Doesn't your papa ever thrash you?" he asked his chum, who is the son of a cabinet minister.

"I should say not!" replied the other loftily. "Every time he threatens to cane me I read him an extract from his great peace at any price speech, in which he said: 'These barbarians are like wayward children, but have we on that account the right to take away their heaven sent privilege to do as they please? Let us treat them as we would our own wayward children—plead with them, beseech them, but never coerce them with either gun or rod.'"

"That's a good deal to remember," remarked Tommy.

"Yes, but now he's got so used to it that he drops the cane as soon as I start."—London Answers.

Love the Greater Wisdom.

Wisdom always betrays the love in it. Love, just another warmer, closer name for wisdom, is selfishness absolute. It is the law and the sweetness of the one organism which the universe is.

The eternal strange forces, love and selfishness, faith and godliness, have been submerged—nay, hidden—from human consciousness in the swish and swash of sentimentalism and hypocrisy. They stand, none the less, eternal, complete, the foundation, the one necessity, of the world, the home and character.

They are the inner fact of man waiting to enshrine him of the chance of completeness.

Where they are not recognized and made at home in the character man finds his life shredded to scraps and rags.—Practical Ideals.

Salvage Fire Extinguisher. Fire Department statistics show that some eighty per cent. of all fires are extinguished by chemical apparatus. Nearly all fires are discovered at the start and are readily put out if means are at once available. A stream is thrown to a distance of about fifty feet, carrying a large amount of carbonic acid gas, which excludes the oxygen and prevents combustion. A fire cannot live if a small per cent. of carbonic acid gas is in the air. It is forty times as efficient as water and will extinguish fires of oil, naphtha, gasoline, etc., which water only spreads. Protect your home and property before it is too late. E. L. Daughtridge, Agent, Greenville, North Carolina.
