ANOTHER LETTER FROM COUNT LORENZO DE VISCONTI

MORE ABOUT THE BEAUTIFUL AND FERTILE COUNTRY

Takes Trip up the Picturesque Panuco River—Describes Resources

Delfina, March 12, 1910.
Editor Reflector:

In my last I had promised the readers a trip up the picturesque and charming Panuco river, to take a view of the valley.

It is 6 o'clock in the evening; the signal of the steamboat for departure is given. In a short time we pass the mouth of the Tamesi river. It is a clear starlit night. In the far off horizon we can see a sea of fire, now whirling up high, now sinking again at intervals. It is the burning oil well near Ozulerama, about 75 miles distant. The proprietors are not able to control the fire; a battalion of the army engineer-corps is en route to extinguish the fire. They estimate the oil that is escaping every day to be 70,000 barrels.

The next morning we land at a little town of about 2,000 inhabitants, named after the river "Panuco." As the boat has to unload a good deal of freight, which to do would take about an hour, we undertake a stroll up to, and through the town. Every Mexican town no matter how little can boast of a beautiful public square ornamented with shady trees, flowers and flowering shrubs, and a beautiful church, pavillion in the middle of the square; a lover of nature is always amply repaid when he takes a look at them. The boat is ready to start on its trip up the river. On both sides you see most fertile lands, heavy wooded tracts; now and then your eye views clearings of thousands of acres covered with guinea or paragrass; banana plantations are started by American capitalists.

It is evening, our boat is landing in order to unload freight for the Ganahl sugar plantation. Here the famous Huasaca Valley begins, much renowned for its most fertile lands, which cannot be surpassed by Egypt's soil. Here also begins the real river commerce; a few steamboats and numberless smaller boats all plying up and down.

We are now 100 miles from Tampico, about 60 miles air-line. At the "Ganahl Plantation" there are 800 acres planted with ribbon cane, which is worked into alcohol, it being by far more profitable, 150 miles farther up is the "El Higo Plantation," one of the largest in Mexico, worked by French capital.

The production of sugar is 3500 tons annually besides great quantities of alcohol.

Between Ganahl and El Higo, on the river lies the La Bolsa Colony, my destination for this time. After I had landed I immediately went in search of the administrator of the colony and after an exquisite dinner I held according to the usage in all Latin countries siesta, i. e., I gave myself to the sweet afternoon nap, and nothing was done that afternoon.

La Bolsa Colony is owned by Americans, contains 23,000 acres of land, situated on the Panuco river. One half of the land is subdivided into 10, 50 and 100 tracts which can be bought at ten dollars per acre. The other half is sold in larger tracts at from six to eight dollars per acre. The land is very fertile, soil from 16 to 40 feet deep. There are already a few American and German set-

FIRE AT GRIMESLAND.

Two Buildings Destroyed Saturday Night.

About 9.30 o'clock Saturday night fire at Grimesland destroyed the store of the Grimesland Supply Co. and the office and drug store of Dr. C. M. Jones. The fire originated from some unknown cause in a feedroom adjoining the store, and had made such headway when discovered that it could not be checked before the two buildings were in great danger but were saved by good work.

The Grimesland Supply Co. had $1,000 insurance on building and $4,000 on stock, with loss of about $7,500.

Dr. C. M. Jones loss on building and stock was about $600, and he had $300 insurance.

Roberson & Hardson, who carried on a small business in one room of the store, lost about $250 worth of stock with no insurance.

Millinery Opening.

Our opening display of spring millinery will be on Tuesday, March 22nd, and the ladies of Greenville and community are cordially invited. Our stock has been carefully selected and embraces the very latest shapes and styles. Mrs. I. F. Lee & Co. 316 1/2 d 1w ters here, and 10 miles from La Bolsa a German Mennonite colony has settled down on a tract of land of about 8000 acres.

During the few days I was at La Bolsa I had rambled about a good deal, partly on horseback, partly on foot in order to convince myself of the fertility of the land. For pasture they sow guinea and paragrass the growth of which is enormous. I next crossed a field in which the grass 3 to 4 feet tall. Four days later after a rain the grass was 5 to 6 feet tall. Natives say that one acre supports 4 head of cattle. Corn planted according to Mexican method with a stick between stumps and roots yields 40 bushels per acre. The price for it is 75 cents per bushel in gold and can be sold right on the place for cash. In cleared land planted and worked according to American method the yield per acre would be easily 100 bushels.

All the tropical fruits as oranges, lemons, bananas, pineapples, mangos, etc., could be raised with success, some of the above named fruits are growing wild in the woods.

In the wooded tracts are growing precious woods as mahogany, rosewood, etc. for which a high price is paid; sarsaparilla-roots for medicinal purposes; palms 40 feet high are used for manufacturing paper. No better lands could be found anywhere for the culture of cotton for which in Mexico a much higher price is paid than in the United States; besides they replant cotton but every seventh or eighth year.

Game of all kinds is found in abundance. On our table we have everyday deer meat, turkey, pheasant or flesh of some other animals.

Tigers (Mex. Jaguars) will be almost as large as Bengal tigers. Tigers are often killed for their fur, as I have seen myself. A good tiger fur is often paid for with $50.

Cattle prosper here all the year around; they are heavy, fat and tall and bring high prices.

Lorenzo De Visconti.

HOW TO FEED HOGS IN THE SOUTH

Grain Feed too Expensive, Forage Crops be Made at 3 or 4 Cents a Pound.

We should grow hogs on green rape, rye, barley and oats and a little dry corn in January and February, on green crimson clover, bur clover, vetch, cats, etc., and a little dry corn, in March; on clovers and rape and a little dry corn in April and May; on green clovers and ripe oats in June; on green clover, peas, soy beans and a little dry corn in July and August, and fatten them during September, October, November and December in about the following way: If on September 1st, a pig weighing 100 pounds be put on soy beans or cowpeas, or both, and fed about one fourth of a full ration of corn, he weighs from 125 to 135 pounds by October 1st. If during October he is put on soy beans or peas and fed about one-fourth of a ration of corn, he should grow 40 pounds, or reach a weight of from 165 to 175 pounds by November 1st. During November, on peanuts and a one-fourth ration of corn, he will reach from 200 to 215 pounds, and then if during December he be fed a one-fourth ration cottonseed meal and the other three-fourths corn, or if he be allowed a one-fourth ration of peanuts and a three-fourths ration of corn until the cool weather of Christmas time, and is then slaughtered he will weigh from 225 to 240 pounds and will have been produced at from 3 to 4 cents a pound, and the profit will be such that we need give no other reason why we should grow more hogs.—Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

Former Pitt Countian Dead.

Miss Alice Moore received a telegram this morning from Galena, Kas., announcing the death of her uncle, Mr. Bithel S. Moore, which occurred Sunday afternoon. Mr. Moore was about 66 years of age. He left Pitt county for the West some thirty years ago, and by his industry accumulated a large fortune, being a factor in building up the city and section where he located. There are many people now living in Pitt county, on the north side of the river, who remember Mr. Moore well. He leaves a wife and four children.

Answers the Question.

On the top half of third page of this paper you will find an advertisement that fully answers the question of Easter wear so far as men are concerned. This advertisement shows the spirit of the Frank Wilson store, always having in mind what is best for his customers. His stock is selected with that idea—quality, style and appearance never being sacrificed to price, but what will give the customer best value and satisfaction for his money. The man who is Frank Wilson dressed can rest assured that he is dressed right.

The days and nights are just now about equal in length.

The ladies will have their inning at the millinery opening tomorrow.

The vernal equinox is about due and it will likely bring some rain with it.

Short Session of Court.

The March civil term of Pitt Superior court convened this morning in the clerk's office, in the Proctor building, with Judge R. B. Peebles presiding, and was of short duration. The blotter docket having been destroyed in the recent burning of the court house, the work of the court was confined mainly to the judge and lawyers in getting cases reinstated, and there were no trials. The work of the term was completed in time for Judge Peebles to leave this afternoon.

Pastorate Closed.

Rev. J. B. Cook, who for fifteen months has been pastor of Memorial Baptist church here, closed his pastorate Sunday. He left this morning to conduct a meeting at Hobgood, and from there will go to his new charge in Virginia.

The Easter hat and Easter suit are both on the way.

They are certainly giving Speaker Cannon a run for his money.

Peary has even lost his pull as a lecturer and as a result has had to cancel many dates. Just as well 'fess up now that he never reached the North Pole.

"A quiet and orderly Arkansas mob hung two negroes," is the way an exchange heads a press dispatch. The mob may have been quiet, but hanging two men does not look very orderly.

The Western doctor who is advertising to pay half the funeral expense in cases where he does not prove successful, must not be proceeding in accordance with the ethics of the profession, though he may be getting more business.

In speaking of the next meeting of the North Carolina Press Association, the Durham Sun says "On to Wrightsville, boys, with your bathing suits in an envelope, under your arm." We are at a loss to know whether Jim means to intimate that envelopes are large, or bathing suits small, but we think it the latter.

Whiskey, as a Medicine.

"Dr. I. W. Faison, of Charlotte, one of the leading physicians of the state, in his address yesterday morning before the State Anti-Tuberculosis Association contributed substantially to the practical solution of the liquor problem when he said that liquor was predisposing to consumption and that he had so little use for it in his practice that last year he gave only six prescriptions for liquor and this year he hadn't given a single one! We have before commented on the fact that some of the busiest physicians in Greensboro prescribe very little whiskey.—Greensboro Telegram.

Last year one of the greatest gatherings of world noted medical scientists ever assembled met in Washington City. Representatives were present from all the principal nations of the earth, and the greatest authorities of America were in attendance.

The almost unanimous conclusion of this body was that liquor has no medicinal properties, and that instead of being a medicine, it is a poison, the manufacture and sale of which should be regulated as such. The old idea that whiskey had curative qualities in cases of consumption, and other diseases, where it has been freely used in years past, was exploded, and statistics were cited showing that it was decidedly injurious rather than beneficial.

Other statistics were submitted showing that in many countries where beer and wines are used without restraint, the effects on the people as a race are wholly detrimental.

The popular idea that whiskey is beneficial in treatment of "bad colds," "consumption," "pneumonia," etc., is fast being relegated, and about the only use it is now put to is, in certain cases, as a stimulant. And even as such, there are so many substitutes which offer better results that it is rapidly being discarded by leading physicians of all countries.

One of the most eminent physicians of New York once stated that he had found absolutely no use for whiskey in any form during the past 16 years of his practice.

The Telegram is correct; the busiest physicians in most communities are gradually coming to discard alcoholics in every form.

And the abuses which have arisen under prohibition laws, are usually traceable to a very few men who take advantage of a privilege accorded their profession to violate the spirit of the law. There are a few doctors, it may be said, who conscientiously believe whiskey has healing properties in certain cases, but gradually they are becoming disillusioned.—Charlotte News.

THIS IS CERTAIN

The Proof That Greenville Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.
Home endorsement should prove undoubted the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.
Mrs. T. S. Norman, 911 Evans St., Greenville, N. C., says: "I gladly give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement, as they have proven of greater benefit to me than any other remedy I have ever used. I suffered severely from a dull ache through the small of my back. There was also a soreness across my kidneys and I was hardly able to get on and on account of sharp, darting pains through my loins. Upon arising in the morning, I felt tired and languid and had but little ambition or energy. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wooten's Drug Store, the backaches and pains have disappeared. I no longer suffer from backaches and that tired, languid feeling has been removed."

Salvage Fire Extinguisher

Fire Department statistics show that some eighty per cent. of all fires are extinguished by chemical apparatus.

Nearly all fires are discovered at the start and are readily put out if means are at once available.

A stream is thrown to a distance of about fifty feet, carrying a large amount of carbonic acid gas, which excludes the oxygen and prevents combustion.

A fire cannot live if a small per cent. of carbonic acid gas is in the air.

It is forty times as efficient as water and will extinguish fires of oil, naphtha, gasoline, etc., which water only spreads.

INTUITION.

Instances of the Way It is Exercised in Everyday Life.

A surface motorman awakened a train of thought not long ago when he stopped his car shortly at a crossing. There was apparently no one there waiting to get on. A woman was standing on the curb, not even looking toward the moving car, yet when the car came to this corner the motorman brought it to a standstill, and, sure enough, the woman hurried out of the crowd and clambered aboard.

"How'd you know that woman wanted to get on?" he was asked as the controller was thrown on again and the car started with a jerk.

"Just felt it," he laughed; "didn't know it. A fellow's affected that way in this business. How many people nowadays signal the motorman when they want him to stop? It's some sort of power, I guess, that tells me. I can't explain just what it is."

This patient knight of the motor voiced one of the most bewildering psychological truths found in the entire downtown propaganda, where about every nip and tuck of the human habit, custom or peculiarity finds a shining place. Taking metropolitan humanity as a whole, there are few who do not use intuition in the course of the average workday.

A certain teller in a large Chicago bank recognizes intuition as a faithful and valuable ally, one that can be put to good uses, though one that is not infallible. A "J. Rufus Wallingford" may stroll into this man's bank, toss a thousand dollar check over the counter in a blase manner, and something may "tell" the teller that the check isn't any good.

"I just feel it," he explains this strange power of intuition.

And the check may be turned down, or, on the other hand, something may "tell" the cashier that the man is good—he just feels it. Scoffers are referred to the average policeman.

Does the city detective always know a crook when he plucks him out of a downtown crowd, when the man's back perhaps is turned to the officer of the law?

He feels that the shoulders and neck ahead of him—the head crowned with a battered derby—is wanted. Often he does not know the crook's name and could not tell why he arrests him until the man is hustled back to the station and his photo is found gracing the limelight in the rogues' gallery some months or years back, the intuition in a case of this sort being extremely strong, as records prove amply.

Policemen and detectives are supposed to study the photograph, the terse history and "story" of each crook as they are placed on the city's police records. We know that the mind of mortal man cannot carry all of this data in his mind, which is a good indication of the wonderful power of intuition which will draw the detective to the crook like a magnet from among a crowd of a thousand people.—Chicago Tribune.

Wigs in Colonial Days.

The first colonists wore often their own natural hair. The cavaliers had long and perfumed love-locks, and though the Puritans had been called "Roundheads" their hair waved also over the band or collar and often hung over the shoulder. The Quakers also wore long locks, as the portrait of William Penn shows, but by 1675 wigs had become common enough to be denounced by the Massachusetts government and to be preached against by many ministers. The care of these wigs was a great item, often £10 a year for a single wig, and some gentlemen owned eight or ten wigs. Little children wore them. The Massachusetts Gazette in 1754 chronicles the fact of a runaway negro slave who wore a curl of hair tied around his head with a string to imitate a wig.

To Frost a Window.

A frosted window is often a convenience. It admits light, but not sunshine, and it is, of course, impossible to see through the glass from the outside. Any window may be frosted by making a strong solution of epsom salts in hot water and applying to the inside of the glass with a brush. Care should be taken to cover the glass completely and not to allow the liquid to run. When cool the salts will be deposited on the glass in crystalline form, giving a beautiful frosted effect.

Over the Mark.

"Does he aim at realism in the stories he writes?"
"He may aim at it, but he doesn't hit within a million miles of it."
"How's that?"
"The hero of his last story is a 'wealthy Scotchman.'"—Houston
