Newsy Notes From a Hasting Town Briefly Told Ayden, N. C., Mar. 26. Mr. Alfred Manning, who lives near Ayden, lost his barns and stables, together with his feed for the year, and several tons of fertilizers, Thursday afternoon by fire. Cause of same unknown. He had no insurance. Mrs. J. T. Smith, formerly of Ayden, but now of Middlesex, died at her home Thursday, and will be brought to Ayden today and buried in our cemetery. Cause of death was pneumonia. She had many friends and relatives here, being the mother of our townsman, J. T. Smith, Jr. A large congregation heard Rev. Mr. Clark at the Baptist church Wednesday night. Mrs. J. C. C. Jenkins is very low at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Forest. J. L. McLawhorn and family, of Winterville, spent Friday in Ayden. Exum Dail has a fine son at his home on Lee street. Miss Mabel Craft and Miss Hearne, of Macclesfield, are visiting Mrs. G. W. Dail. Mrs. J. H. Newsome, of Luccama, and Mrs. E. E. Dail, of Renston, are visiting Mrs. Exum Dail. Our artesian well people have given it up for a bad job after going down about 350 feet. Dr. E. J. St. Clare, of Edison, Ga., financial secretary of the F. W. B. T. Seminary, will preach in the Free Will Baptist church here on the night of April 1st. Walter Carman, of Norfolk, came in Tuesday to attend the funeral of his grand-father, Mr. Eddie Carman, Sr. Regular services in the Free Will Baptist church here 4th Sunday by the pastor, Rev. G. C. Vauce. Services also at the Episcopal church by the Pastor Rev. B. F. Huske, of Greenville. Both pastors are young men of ability. Public are cordially invited to come and hear them. Our enterprising friend, Lorenzo McLawhorn, is improving his property on Blount street, and contemplate the erection of a store on West avenue and three residences on College street. Mr. McLawhorn is a large farmer, mill man, contractor and merchant. Such men are worth something to the world. Besides his individual interest here he takes stock in all our organizations that have for their object the upbuilding of the town and community. Joe Ross, manager of Ayden Loan and Insurance company, is a hustler for fire and life business. He makes the company a valuable man. Easter exercises in the Christian church 4th Sunday night by the children, under the management of Mrs. J. R. Tingle. More Equipment. The job printing department of The Reflector has just been increased by the addition of a new fast press and the largest and best lot of new type we have ever purchased at one time. This makes four presses in the office, and with the increased press and type facilities we can turn out work faster and better than ever. There is not a plant in Eastern North Carolina that can turn out a better class of job printing than The Reflector Printing House. If you doubt this claim just try us.	At Jarvis Memorial M. E. Church for Sunday, March 27th. Organ voluntary Miss Gaston Carol, Merritt &amp; the Easter Bells Choir Hymn 161. Apostle's Creed. Prayer. Gloria Patri. Solo, "The Resurrection" (Shelly) Miss Gaston Hymn 158. Benediction. Fight in Tailor Shop. Thursday evening about nine o'clock quite a serious affray occurred in the establishment of the E-Z Tailors, located on the corner of Goldsboro and Tarboro streets. It seems that Mr. L. G. Morrow, manager of the tailors, was at his desk in the office counting the money of the concern and fixing up his accounts for the day when Capt. W. T. Lipscombe and Mr. W. T. Burton, respectively manager and auctioneer of the Liberty warehouse, entered the building and attacked him. In the scuffle Mr. Morrow was struck over the eye, forehead and head and claims he was badly abused by the two, whom he had no idea would attack him when they entered the store. The trial was postponed until tomorrow morning at the request of the defendant's counsel, Messrs. Connor &amp; Connor. The trouble dates back from the severance of relations between Mr. Morrow and Liberty warehouse in Wilson, a branch of the Farmers' Consolidated Company with their headquarters at Greenville. Mr. Morrow and Capt. Lipscombe, the local manager of the warehouse, could not agree, and along in February a fight between these two ensued. Mr. Morrow then sued the company, claiming he was due under his contract for the balance of the season. The case was tried before Mr. E. G. Barnes, who rendered the decision that Mr. Morrow could not recover since he and Capt. Lipscombe were persona non Grata, and therefore the company had a right to let him go. Mr. Morrow then took the matter up with the company by correspondence and the personal criticisms contained in these epistles, so Capt. Lipscombe claims brought on the assault last evening.—Wilson Times, 25th.	Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor. Winterville, N. C. Mar. 26, 1910. R. T. Cox and Henry Langston, of Wake Forest College, came in yesterday to spend a few days at their respective homes. W. H. Whichard, of States, was here Wednesday visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Smith. Alexander Cobb, a colored man, died last Wednesday and was buried Thursday. Rick Dixon, an employee of the A. G. Cox Mfg. Co., was hurt very badly, though not seriously, last Thursday morning. While working at a turning lathe, a cotton planter cylinder which was in the lathe, split open and one piece struck him in the face just below the mouth, loosening three teeth and also scaring the chin somewhat. We are glad that he has not had to lose much time on account of the hurt. We hope him a speedy recovery. The lecture made in Winterville High School auditorium, by Dr. Charles E. Brewer, last night was excellent. He has a good voice and an excellent delivery; and he gave us a fine speech. If you were not there to hear him, you missed one of the best treats of your life. We hope it may be our privilege to hear Dr. Brewer again in the near future. Commencement time is drawing near, and we are looking forward to another good time. We hope to report more about the near future. Notice. To the public: I wish to announce that I am in no way connected with the so-called Taft &amp; Boyd Furniture Co. This is an incorporated concern and is owned by other parties. I do not know why they prefer doing business in my name to theirs, however this seems to be the case. I am in the White building near Five Points and have no connection with any other furniture business in Greenville. I am carrying a full stock of the very best furniture and house furnishings money can buy and will be glad to have the public, as well as my friends and former customers, visit my store and inspect my stock. I promise courteous treatment and a square deal. I am yours truly, 3 26 J. H. Boyd, Jr. Barns Burned. About 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Mr. L. C. Moore, of Pactolus township, lost three barns and most of his corn, hay, peas, peanuts and farm implements by fire. His loss is about $400 with no insurance. How the fire started is not known, as no one had been about the barns since the dinner hour. His loss would have been greater but for the prompt arrival of neighbors who helped to save his stables and dwelling. Dr. Hyatt Coming. Dr. H. O. Hyatt will be in Greenville, at Hotel Bertha, on Friday, April 1st, for the purpose of treating diseases of the eye and fitting glasses. He will also make his regular monthly visit to Greenville on Monday and Tuesday, April 4th and 5th. 3 16 12d 2tw Base Balls. Call to see us for base ball goods, and fishing tackles. 3 28 Carr &amp; Atkins Hdw. ## THE FIRST EASTER.

1. And when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mar the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices that they might come and anoint Him.

2. And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

3. And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

4. And when they looked, they saw the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

5. And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

6. And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: He is risen; He is not here: behold the place where they laid Him.

7. But go your way, tell His disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see Him, as He said unto you.

8. And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.—Mark xvi 1-8.

GOING AHEAD.

In its December anniversary announcement The Reflector stated that it had several improvements in contemplation for this year. Those improvements have begun and it is hoped to keep pushing them until all contemplated is reached. A new fast job press has just been installed, making four presses in all, and a large lot of new type and other equipment added to the job printing department. We began improvements on the job printing department first, because that has to be depended on largely for getting money in the time of the year when subscription and advertising collections are slackest. We hope the improved facilities for job printing will enable us to do so much more work that the newspaper improvements soon to follow can be brought along that much faster. This can be done if the business people help out with their work. They cannot get a better class of work than The Reflector Printing House turns out.

The improvements to the paper are things we shall strive for now. The greatest need at present is a type setting machine with which more reading matter can be given and gotten out quicker. We want and must have one of these machines, and the folks can help us with their patronage to get it. The Re-fecter is here to work for the town and county, and the more you help the paper with patronage and prompt payments the better service it can render.

Of course there should be no graft, and as little opportunity as possible given for graft. At the same time it looks to us like the law which makes it indictable for a man who holds a municipal office to do any business in the way of buying or selling with the municipality, is not wise. It looks like a bid to get men who have no business of their own to form the governing board of a town. Surely a man who is not capable of managing a business and has no business of his own, is hardly fit to help conduct the business affairs of a town. It is not an easy matter in most towns to get men to compose the officials without having some with whom it is almost necessary for the town to do business, and it is no indication that a man is dishonest because he is an alderman or other officer and sells something to the town. The law in question needs some amendment.

The spirit with which the Civic League is working seems to be taking hold of the people of the town, as it is already noticeable that more attention is being given to cleanliness.

When the trees and ground get on their spring suits, their beauty will give the folks a race to keep up.

When you go to church remember that the real intent was an assembly for worship.

Christ is risen indeed, and may this fact bring joy to all hearts.

If you are as cool as the weather you are all right.

MY DOCTOR MIGHTY FINE

Mrs. Hattie Cain of Carrsville Thinks all the More of Her Doctor Since He Advised Her to Take Cardui.

Carrsville, Ky.—"My doctor," writes Mrs. Hattie Cain, "who advised me to take Cardui, for my troubles, is a mighty fine doctor, and I say God bless Cardui and the people who make it.

"Before I took Cardui, I suffered with female troubles for sixteen years. I would have to send for a doctor every three months, and oh how dreadfully I suffered!

"I would cramp and have convulsions and it looked like I would die. At last I took Cardui and oh what a surprise! I found it was the medicine for me!

"From the first bottle, I began to mend and now I am well, can do more work, can walk and go where I please and it don't hurt me, and I owe it all to Cardui."

Cardui helps sick women back to health. It has been doing this for over 50 years. It is not a laxative, or a heart or kidney medicine—it is a woman's medicine.

If you are a woman, try it.

Salvage Fire Extinguisher

Fire Department statistics show that some eighty per cent. of all fires are extinguished by chemical apparatus.

Nearly all fires are discovered at the start and are readily put out if means are at once available.

A stream is thrown to a distance of about fifty feet, carrying a large amount of carbonic acid gas, which excludes the oxygen and prevents combustion.

A fire cannot live if a small per cent. of carbonic acid gas is in the air.

It is forty times as efficient as water and will extinguish fires of oil, naphtha, gasoline, etc., which water only spreads.

Protect your home and property before it is too late.

TRUXTON KING

A Story of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'GUTCHEON

Copyright, 1909, by George Barr McGutcheon
Copyright, 1909, by Dodd, Mead & Company

SNOPSIS

OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
Chapter I—Truxton King arrives in Edelweis, capital of Graustark, and meets the beautiful niece of Spantz, a gunmaker. II—King does a favor for Prince Robin, the young ruler of the country, whose guardian is John Tullis, an American. III—Baron Dangless, minister of police, interposes King and warns him against Olg, the gunmaker's niece. IV—King invades the royal park, meets the prince and is presented to the lad's fascinating Aunt Loraine. V—The committee of ten, conspirators against the prince, meets in an underground chamber, where the girl Olga is disclosed as one who is to kill Prince Robin with a bomb. VI—John Tullis tells the beautiful Countess Ingomede, who warns him that her hated and notorious old husband, Count Marlanx, is conspiring against the prince. VII, VIII, IX and X—King visits the house of the witch of Ga-look gap and meets the royal household there. He sees an eye, leaning through a crack in a door, and while searching for the person he is overpowered and dragged into a loft. He is confronted by Count Marlanx and then taken to the underground den of the committee of ten. XI—Olg defends King before committee of anarchists who wish to kill him. XII—Loraine is brought to the den and thrown into the same room with King.

CHAPTER XIII.

A DIVINITY SHAPES.

It was pitch dark when he awoke. The sound of breathing came to his ears. He sat up. His hands were free. It had not been a dream. She was lying over there asleep. The candle had burnt itself out; that was all. He crept softly across the floor. In the darkness he found her and touched the garments she wore—and drew back enthralled. Afraid to move for fear of disturbing her, he sat quietly for an hour or more. All this time his brain was working like mad in the new found desire to perform miracles for the sake of this lovely, unattainable creature. He was forgetting the prince, the horrors of the 25th; he was thinking only of saving this girl from the fate that Marlanx had in store for her. Vos Engo may have had the promise, but what could it profit him if Marlanx had the girl?

Footsteps in the outer room recalled him to the bitter reality of their position. He awoke her and whispered words of encouragement into her bewildered ears. Then he put on his coat and threw himself on the floor, first wrapping the rope about his wrists to deceive the guard.

A key turned in the padlock. Old man Spantz stood in the doorway.

"It is noon," said the old man triscribly. Then he came in and lighted a candle.

"Noon of the 25th," said Truxton bitterly. "In twenty-four hours it will be all over, eh, Spantz?"

"At noon tomorrow."

Julius Spantz brought in the food for the prisoners, setting it on the floor between them.

"It is usually the duty of our friend Julius to feed me," observed Truxton to his fellow prisoner.

"Julius?" queried the girl from the castle, peering at the man. "Not Julius Spantz of the armory?"

"The same," said Truxton. Julius laughed awkwardly.

"Enough," snarled William Spantz. His manner changed completely, however, when he turned to address the young lady. "I beg to inform you, madam, that your stay is to be brief. Tonight you will be removed to more pleasant quarters than a friend has prepared for you. As for you, my friend," turning to Truxton and smiling ironically, "I deeply deplore the fact that you are to remain. When we next gather in the room beyond a new dispensation will have begun. You may be interested then to hear what we have to say out there."

With a profound bow to the lady and a leer for King he departed, bolting the door behind him. Instantly King was at her side.

"An idea has come to me," he whispered eagerly. "I think I see a way."

"Mr. King, what is it you intend to do? Please tell me. I must know. You heard what he said about taking

Sale.

The sale of the Commercial Knitting Mill property and twenty-one town lots, which was advertised for March 16th, was continued until noon, April 4th, 1910, at which time the property will be sold on the premises at public auction as heretofore advertised. For further information, apply to F. G. James, Receiver.

me to the court's. He meant Marlanx. I will die first."

"No. I will die first. By the way, I may as well tell you that I wasn't thinking altogether of how we are to escape. Why should I save you from Marlanx just to have you hurry off and get married to Vos Engo? It's a mean thought, I know," hastily; "but, just the same, I hate to think of you marrying some one else."

"Some one else?" she questioned, a pucker on her forehead.

"Oh, I know I wouldn't have a ghost of a chance even if there wasn't a Vos Engo. It isn't that," he explained. "I recognize the—difference in our stations and—"

"What has all this got to do with your plan to escape?"

"Nothing at all. The point I'm trying to get at is this: Don't you think it's pretty rough on a hero to save the girl for some other fellow to snap up and marry?"

"I think I begin to see," she said, a touch of pink coming into her cheeks.

"That's encouraging," he said, staring gloomily at the food he had put aside. "You are quite sure you promised Vos Engo that you'd marry him?"

"No. I did not promise him that I'd marry him."

"You said you had promised"—

"You did not allow me time to finish. I meant to say that I had promised to let him know in a day or two. That is all, Mr. King. There was a suspicious tremor in her voice.

"What's that?" he demanded. "You don't mean to say that—Oh, Lord, I wonder—I wonder if I have a chance—just a ghost of a chance!" He leaned very close, incredulous, fascinated. "What is it that you are going to let him know—yes or no?"

"That was the question I was considering when the brigands caught me," she answered.

"Of course he is in your own class," said Truxton glumly.

She hesitated an instant. "Mr. King, has no one told you my name—who I am?" she asked.

"You are the prince's aunt. That's all I know."

"No more his aunt in reality than Jack Tullis is his uncle."

"Who are you, then?"

"I am Jack Tullis' sister, a New Yorker bred and born, and I live not more than two blocks from your"—

He stared at her in speechless amazement. "Then—then you are not a duchess or a"—he began again.

"Not at all—a very plain New Yorker," she said, laughing aloud. "You are not disappointed, are you? Does it spoil your romance to—"

"Spoil it? Disappointed? No! By George, I—I can't believe that any such luck—no, no, I don't mean it just that way! Let me think it out. Let me get it through my head.

THE WHOLE WEIGHT OF TRUXTON KING'S BODY WAS BEHIND THE TERRIFIC BLOW.

"Miss Tullis," he said, a thrill in his voice, "you are a princess just the same. I never was so happy in my life as I am this minute. It isn't so black as it was. I thought I couldn't win you because you—"

"Win me?" she gasped.

"Precisely. Now I'm looking at it differently. I don't mind telling you that I'm in love with you—desperately in love. It's been so with me ever since that day in the park. I loved you as a duchess or a princess and without hope. Now, I—I—well, I'm going to hope. Perhaps Vos Engo has the better of me just now, but I'm in the lists with him—with all of them. If I get you out of this place—and myself as well—I want you to understand that from this very minute I am trying to win you if it lies in the power of any American to win a girl who has suitors among the nobility."

"Are—are you really in earnest?" she murmured.

"I mean every word of it. I do love you."

"I—I cannot talk about it now, Mr. King," she stammered, moving away from him in a sudden panic. Presently he went over to her. She was standing near the candle, staring down at the flame, with a strangely preoccupied expression in her eyes.

"Forgive me," he said. "I was hasty, inconsiderate. I—"

"You quite took my breath away," she panted, looking up at him, with a queer little smile.

"I know," he murmured. Her troubled gaze resumed its sober contemplation of the flame.

"You won't leave me to my fate because you think I'm going to marry—some one else?"

He grew very sober. "Miss Tullis, you and I have one chance in a thousand. You may as well know the truth."

"Oh, I can't bear the thought of that dreadful old man," she cried, abject distress in her eyes.

He gritted his teeth and turned away.

Late in the afternoon Anna Cromer appeared before them, accompanied by two of the men. Crisply she commanded the girl to come forth.

She was in the outer room for the better part of an hour listening to Anna Cromer and Mme. Droyansk, who dinned the praises of the great Count Marlanx into her ears. They bathed the girl's face and freshened her garments. It occurred to her that she was being prepared for a visit of the redoubtable Marlanx himself and put the question plainly.

"No," said Anna Cromer. "He's not coming here. You are going to him. He will not be Count Marlanx after tomorrow, but Citizen Marlanx, one of the people, one of us."

Little did they know Marlanx.

"Julius and Peter will come for you tonight," said Mme. Droyansk, with an evil, suggestive smile.

Truxton was beginning to tremble with the fear that she would not be returned to their room when the door was opened and she came in.

Some time in the tense, suffocating hours of the night they heard the sounds of many footsteps shuffling about the outer room. There were hoarse, guttural, subdued goodbyes and well wishes, the creaking of heavy doors and the dropping of bolts. Eventually King, who had been listening intently, realized that but two of the men remained in the room, Peter Brutus and Julius Spantz.

An hour crept by and another. King was groaning under the suspense. The time was too slowly approaching when he was to attempt the most desperate act in all this sanguinary tragedy.

He had told her of his plan. She knew the part she was to play. And if all went well—ah, then!

Suddenly he started to his feet, his jaws set, his eyes gleaming. The telegraph instrument was clicking in the outer room.

Taking his position near the girl, who was crouching in real dismay, he leaned against the wall, his hands behind him, every muscle strained and taut.

The door opened, and Julius Spantz, bewildered and awkward, entered. He wore a raincoat and storm hat and carried a rope in one of his hands.

"Time you were asleep," he said stupidly, addressing King. He turned to the girl. "Come, madam, I must"—

He did not complete the sentence. The whole weight of Truxton King's body was behind the terrific blow that landed on the man's jaw. Julius Spantz's knees crumpled. He lunged against the wall. The man was stunned beyond all power of immediate action. It was the work of an instant to snatch the revolver from his coat pocket.

"Guard the door!" whispered King to the girl, pressing the revolver into her hand, "and shoot if you have to!"

A handkerchief was stuffed into the unconscious man's mouth. The long coat and boots were jerked from his limp body before his hands and feet were bound with the rope he carried. The bushy whiskers and wig were removed from his head and transferred in a flash to that of the American. Then the boots, coat and hat found a new wearer.

Peter Brutus was standing in the stairway leading to the sewer.

"Hurry up, Julius," he called imperatively. "They are below with the boat."

When a tall, grunting man emerged from the inner room bearing the limp figure of a girl in a frayed raincoat he did not wait to ask questions, but rushed over and locked the cell door. Then he led the way down the narrow stairway. His only reply to King's guttural remark in the Graustark language was:

"Don't speak, you fool! Not a word until we reach the river."

A moment later the girl was being lowered through the hole into rough, eager arms. Brutus and his companion dropped through, the secret block of masonry was closed, and off through the shallow waters of the sewer glided the party riverward in the noiseless boat that had come up to ferry them.

There were three men in the boat, not counting Truxton King.
