MURDER IN WASHINGTON.

Carl Kelly Shoots Samuel Tayloe Three Times.

Washington, March 31.—A very sensational and fatal shooting affair was perpetrated on the outskirts of this city about nine o'clock tonight, when Mr. Samuel Tayloe, a member of one of this city's most prominent families, was suddenly approached in the suburbs, by Carl Kelly, a young man of rather desperate character, who suddenly, and without warning, drew a pistol at close range and fired three shots in rapid succession into the body of his victim. One shot passed through his liver and the other two into his chest, one of them cutting a large artery, from which the blood spouted in a steady stream, causing almost instant death.

Tayloe was immediately rushed to the Washington hospital, but died on the way. Kelly succeeded in making his escape.

Sheriff Ricks had sworn in a large posse of men who, with bloodhounds, are scouring the suburbs in automobiles, on horseback and on foot in search of the murderer. Causes of the murder cannot be ascertained at present, but it is thought a woman was at the bottom of it. Kelly is a young man of about twenty years of age and of rather desperate character, having served a term on the county chain-gang a few months ago.

He figured several times in the courts for petty criminal offenses. Excitement is now intense and numbers of the citizens are joining in the man-hunt.

Shortly after the tragedy Kelly 'phoned Sheriff Ricks that he was in hiding under a residence on East Second street. Deputies and a posse were sent down immediately and arrested him. He is now lodged in the city jail.

The excitement is subsiding. The sheriff stated that he did not anticipate any trouble, but would place a strong guard around the jail tonight in case of an emergency.

An Observant Child.

Little Adelaide was inclined to be cowardly. Her father found that sympathy only increased this unfortunate tendency, and decided to have a serious talk with his little daughter on the subject of her foolish fears.

"Papa," she ventured, at the close of the lecture, "when you see a cow, aren't you afraid?"

"Why, certainly not, Adelaide. Why should I be?"

"Well, when you see a dog, aren't you afraid then?"

"No, indeed!" with marked emphasis on the "no."

"Aren't you afraid when it thunders, papa?"

"Why, no," and he laughed at the thought and added, "Oh, you silly child."

"Papa," and Adelaide came closer and looked into her parent's eye, "aren't you afraid of nothing in the world but just mamma?"

Base Ball Saturday.

An admission of 15 cents to all will be charged. Go out and see a good game, and at the same time encourage the school boys.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., April 1.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say for Richmond and vicinity:

In some lines trade is active while in others a tendency towards dullness is noted. Indications of an early spring have stimulated ordering for seasonable commodities. Manufacturers of ciders, vinegars, and extracts report active ordering. Produce is quiet. Drugs and chemicals are active. Orders for dry goods are up to an average of last season. Lumber is in good demand. Dealers in paints and oils report favorable conditions. Manufacturers and re-primers of tobacco are busy and an active foreign demand is reported. Retail trade is fair. Collections are irregular.

Escaped Convicts Fight Norfolk Police.

Portsmouth, Va., March 31.—The convicts who escaped from Norfolk county jail yesterday, fought a battle with the police in Norfolk this morning in which deputy sheriff Sikes was killed. One convict was captured, but his companion escaped. The one captured was Elijah Ellis, who is under sentence to die April 25th. The one who escaped is said to be the one who killed Sikes.

STATE NEWS.

Newsp Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

A short time ago Mrs. Wm. M. Moore, of Cape Fear township, set a hen on 16 eggs and some three weeks later the hen came off her nest with 20 young chicks and none of them were "t.wins." Who can beat this?—Pittsboro Record.

Raleigh, March 31.—Orders were made today by United States Judge H. G. Connor and passed on to the United States marshal's office for the seizure of big shipments of corn meal in Goldsboro and Wilson for violation of the pure food law.

That there were more deaths (135) in North Carolina resulting from pneumonia in January than from any other one disease is shown in the February Bulletin of the State Board of Health, which has just been issued. From consumption there were 95 deaths; from brain disease 45; from heart disease 39. The total number of deaths in the State during January was 607. Of this number 368 were white and 239 colored.—Raleigh News and Observer.

OTHER CLUBS CO OPERATING.

All to Help Maintain the Public Library.

It so happened that all the women's clubs in Greenville have held meetings this week. The End of the Century Club, under whose auspices the public library was first established and who are working so arduously to get it started again, used the opportunity of all the clubs meeting so close together by sending a representative asking the cooperation of each of the other clubs in re-establishing and maintaining the library. It is gratifying to know that in each instance the co-operation sought was pledged, and the outlook is that when the public library is re-opened it will be even larger and better than before the fire.

A Funny Clock

The Bellevue Mills of this city has a clock that has been doing business in the office for a number of years, in fact it is a part of the office and part of the business, and has become so identified with the working of the mill, that it is a fact that when the mill closes down at six o'clock it stops. When it starts up in the morning, the clock begins work. Now this may sound a little funny, but it is a fact, and it keeps good time when it is running, but it will not do business after the mill stops, and always begins when the machinery starts. It is supposed that the jar of the machinery has something to do with the working of the clock.—Burlington News.

Dr. Alexander Speaks Tomorrow.

Dr. Alexander, president of the Farmers Union in North Carolina, will speak here tomorrow. A large number of farmers are expected here to hear him. There are already 700 members in Pitt county of the Farmers' Union, and most of these will likely be in attendance, besides many others who have not yet become members. The Star warehouse, where the speaking will take place, has been comfortably arranged for it.

Our Greenville, yours if you like.

THE CIVIC LEAGUE.

Ask Your Co-Operation in Beautifying Greenville.

The Civic League met in regular session Thursday afternoon. We were glad to have Mrs. R. R. Cotten with us. She always adds strength and courage to any gathering.

The usual routine of business was gone through, hearing reports of committees, etc. A very valuable and timely article was read by Mrs. Person, on "The Transmission of Diseases by Flies," which by request, was turned over to the league market committee for further use in their work, the particulars of which we hope to give in full later.

Our president then appointed three committees, called the "Wire Screen and Loose Paper Army." Now, friends, two or more of these ladies will visit you on or about next Tuesday, and they earnestly beg your co-operation in their efforts to make "Our Greenville" the cleanest, sweetest, and most sanitary town in East Carolina.

We know that you are going to meet us with cordial greetings, we know that you are going to say, "Yes, ladies, it is our pleasure to do all we can." And it is this fact that sends us out to do this work, the knowledge of having the chivalry of the Old North State as our co workers. Reporter.

THINK IT OVER—AND ACT.

B. & L. Associations Help You Secure a Home.

The ownership of a home makes of every man a king over a certain domain. In his little kingdom he is more a monarch than is the tired weakling to the throne or principality which came to him through the accident of birth.

The knowledge of ownership fills him with independence and inspires him to further thrift and economy. With his home an assured certainty, he can snap his fingers at panics and sickness; the rent collector is not to him a dreadful spectre; he knows that he cannot be dispossessed.

The ambition to own a home, a kingdom of one's own, is not gratified when the roof over his head is paid for. By the time that goal is reached the habits of thrift and economy are thoroughly instilled and lead to the provision for an income through future years.

If you are not a home owner, think over these advantages; think it over—and act. Thought without action leads to no place.

The axiom regarding the place that is paved with good intentions is too well known to need repeating here.

There are thousands of co-operative loan associations in the United States, within the reach of every man.

Deposited in them, the dollar is worth more than one hundred cents; that and the interest it will earn if manipulated by careful, conscientious men who are as anxious to make it work as the owner can possibly be, and who understands the methods of doing so better than the man who has little time and opportunity to devote his attention to such things.—American Building Association News.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

April.

Fourth month.

Red Men meet tonight.

Did the April fool catch you?

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

The trees are putting out foliage rapidly.

Every afternoon the river bank is lined with fishers.

April starts off several degrees cooler than March ended with.

Cotton stuffed biscuits were in evidence on numerous breakfast tables this morning.

The farmers are very busy taking advantage of the pretty weather to plant their crops.

The paint brush is giving buildings in various parts of the town a brighter appearance.

In a few days delinquent tax lists will be published. It is time you were seeing the collectors.

The office building occupied by Jarvis & Blow and Dr. Fountain, that was damaged in the late fire, is being repaired.

You cannot tell yet what late frosts may do, but it is hoped none will be severe enough to ruin the fruit prospects.

The choir of the Baptist church will meet at the church tonight for practice. All members urged to be present by 7.30.

As the pretty weather makes a time for opening doors and windows, be careful that they are not left that way to tempt thieves.

Even many old stagers who had been seeing April 1st come around regularly all their lives, were caught napping on jokes this morning.

Another Lot Stolen Stamps Discovered

New York, March 31.—With $70,000 of the $85,000 in stamps stolen from the Richmond post-office already recovered, the police declared today that they were on track of the rest of the loot, and would have it in a short time. A fifth trunk belonging to two of the robbers, was searched today and $17,500 worth of stamps recovered. The police found in this trunk evidence showing that the trio had planned a campaign of safe cracking covering the entire south and west.

Wet and Dry Moons.

There is an old superstition which dies hard, and that is that the position of the horns of the new moon tells what the weather will be. If the horns of the crescent are on the same level it will hold water, and hence it is a dry moon, but if tipped up then the water will run out, and it is a wet moon.

One thing has helped keep this belief alive. The moon is "dry" in the part of spring that is usually fair, while it is "wet" during the season of autumn rains.

If this were a sure sign of the weather we could have our prediction published many years in advance, for an astronomer can predict the exact position of the moon any time in the future.

The cause for the different positions of the crescent is simple. The moon is south of the sun in the autumn and north of it in spring. The crescent is found by the light of the sun falling on the moon, and the horns are naturally in a line perpendicular to the direction of the sun. That is all there is to this old superstition.—Boston Herald.

FRIDAY, APR. 1, 1910.

April will bring the showers that make the flowers.

Now we will see if April is to do the blowing that March did not do

Guess Shemwell feels that beginning a five day jail term to day is somewhat of an April fool.

If Hobson could have his way it would take all the money the government could raise to build battleships.

Some counties are already getting in shape to hold their county conventions. Quite early, it seems to us.

You must not regard the first of this month bill collector as an April fool, even though you make him feel like one by putting him off.

The Charlotte Observer says Mecklenburg farmers will this year reduce cotton acreage and increase their corn crop. Pitt farmers should do likewise.

We are afraid that the early date of the Press Convention at Wrightsville will break up Jim Robinson's contemplated fun with his little bathing suit, unless he takes an oil stove along in the same envelope.

If Governor Kitchin wanted to keep Shemwell out of jail, he ought to have got ahead and done so and taken the consequences. As it is the five days in jail was simply playing a farce at imprisonment.

The fellows who stole the stamps from the post office in Richmond got caught. Some others who rob the government manage to escape. And robbers of the people by the aid of the government go scot free.

A Paris furniture dealer who has devised a bed with an alarm clock attachment, which causes the bottom to fall out if the sleeper is not up before the expiration of five minutes after the alarm is sounded, is a great inventor no doubt, but we expect he will have a hard time disposing of his beds.

There has been much agitation in papers throughout the State as to the amount of license tax that should be charged near beer saloons. In some towns the tax is as low as $20 a year and in some it is as high as $1,000. Greenville comes in the low tax class, the price here if we remember correctly, being $25. It is a class of business that ought to be kept out of a town if possible, but if the State law gives permission for such a business to be licensed, then surely the towns in which they operate should make them pay the highest license possible. In the majority of instances near beer saloons are as bad as whiskey saloons.

The Gastonia merchants are running to the all-cash system, The Gazette gives a list of the firms that have adopted this system and says: "The old credit system is expensive, uncertain and works a hardship on those who do pay cash. Let the good work go on. When every retail business in Gastonia is on a strictly cash basis we will have a more prosperous town." Credit has been the ruin of not only many a merchant, but of many a customer. The time is shortly coming when a person will be ashamed to go into a store and ask credit.—Charlotte Chronicle.

These are great times. We throw away ashes and buy soap. We raise dogs and buy hogs. We grow weeds and buy vegetables and brooms. We build schoolhouses and send our children to be educated away from home. And, at last, we send our boys out with a $40 gun and a $19 dog to hunt 15 cent game.—Durham Sun.

A Texas editor refuses to publish obituary notices of people who, while living, failed to subscribe for his paper and gives this pointed reason: "People who do not take their home paper are dead anyway and their passing away has no news value."

Salvage Fire Extinguisher

Fire Department statistics show that some eighty per cent. of all fires are extinguished by chemical apparatus.

Nearly all fires are discovered at the start and are readily put out if means are at once available.

A stream is thrown to a distance of about fifty feet, carrying a large amount of carbonic acid gas, which excludes the oxygen and prevents combustion.

A fire cannot live if a small per cent. of carbonic acid gas is in the air.

It is forty times as efficient as water and will extinguish fires of oil, naphtha, gasoline, etc., which water only spreads.

Protect your home and property before it is too late.

THE KELEK.

A Peculiar Raft Boat Sacred to the River Tigris.

From Diarbekr to Bagdad, as a row might do it, the distance is about 400 miles. As the kelek goes—a contrivance sacred to the river Tigris since the days of Adam and Eve—the distance is nigh upon a thousand miles and the time occupied anywhere between eight and twenty days. In "The Short Cut to India" David Fraser tells of the kelek and of his journey.

The kelek is easily constructed. Take any number of inflated goatskins, from 100 up to 800, and tie them in rows underneath a framework of poplar poles. One or two pairs of great oars complete the ship, and it is ready for crew, cargo and passengers.

When a "globe trotter" ships aboard a kelek some of the cargo is left behind, and upon the space thus left vacant a hut is erected. A light wooden framework is hung round with cotton walls that roll up or let down, according to the desire of the occupant. In addition, the roof has a thick grass mat to keep out the sun.

The traveler enjoys entire privacy as regards the people on his own kelek, for he gives orders that nobody is to come aboard his gable. At the end of his little house and projecting astern of the raft is a tiny bathroom protected from public gaze by cloth walls.

Thus the kelek combines all the advantages of a modern mansion, living room, kitchen, sanitary arrangements, abundant light and air and panoramic scenery that is an eternal feast for the eye.

We sailed one morning at 10 o'clock, with the temperature over a hundred in the shade. But heat may be corrected by a minimum of clothes and a maximum of cold water. The Tigris comes straight from the mountain snows of Kurdistan, and its flood was like ice compared with the fire of the air.

For a man who could not put on his own socks or tie the buttons of his waistcoat and doubled up, moreover, with a chronic lumbago that first plunge overboard was rather a venture. I looked for a long time before I leaped, thinking the while that, although a man may never forget how to sing or dance or pray, he can never forget how to swim, and then I shut my eyes and jumped. For my faith I was magnificently rewarded, and that first swim in the brimming Tigris was absolutely and completely glorious.

There was mild adventure too. Suddenly the water deepened, and I swam frantically after the kelek. Just as I caught up with it the river shallowed again. I tried to jump aboard, but the jagged projecting poles of the framework made throwing oneself forward most difficult. The pace was so great that no sooner had I lifted a foot than the kelek slipped away from it, and with my weak hands I could not help the situation. A deepening of the water resulted in rescue from a ridiculous and uncomfortable position.

A Poisoned Shaft.

Things hadn't turned out too well with their love affair. The fatal word had just been spoken, and he was rejected. The rejected suitor stood respectfully before her, listening to her elaborate explanations of her decision. Below, the smooth waters rested in awesome wonder.

"I trust I have made myself sufficiently plain," she said.

"Well, I would scarcely go so far," he answered as his courage gradually returned. "It's but fair to give nature the credit for that," he added, as he retired in good order.

The Rare Gift of Courtesy.

Courtesy includes not merely social kindness, graces of speech, absence of rudeness, but honorable treatment of all business associates and of all the fellow citizens with whom a man of affairs may have business to transact. It is not American to keep one citizen waiting all day at the door because he is poor and to grant another citizen an interview because it is believed he is rich. Wisdom is not confined in a purse, and frequently much wisdom may be learned from a poor man.—Los Angeles Herald.

A Musical Beat.

A Paris journal relates that a party of men sitting in front of a boulevard cafe were recently approached by a man who had a clarinet in his hand and who said: "Gentlemen, excuse me. I have to make my living, but I suppose you would rather give me a sou not to hear me." They took the hint. He repeated this performance several times till one day one of the men said he felt like hearing a tune and asked him to play. "I am sorry," said the man with the clarinet, "but I cannot play a note."

HIS NAME.

The Answer Was Clear, but It Took Some Time to Understand.

"I wonder," mused the man who was smoking a cigar—"I wonder how there happen to be so many Smiths, Joneses and Browns in the world."

The man with the pipe replied: "I saw in the paper this morning that Aaracho Mechnowitski, a Russian Pole, has applied for permission to have his name changed to the more Englished Aaron Smith. That is one reason for the vast number of Smiths and might also account for the Joneses and Browns. Men with unpronounceable names have them changed for business as well as sensible reasons."

"Well," said the man with the cigar, "my name is not unpronounceable—it is as easy to say as mud or slush or anything—but it gives me a great deal of trouble. It's a monosyllable too."

"That's queer," was the natural remark. "What is it?"

"Guess."

"Oh, I couldn't. Of the eighty odd millions of people in the United States there are undoubtedly no more than an average of eighty to a name, or, to reverse the phrase, no fewer than a million surnames. No; you'll have to tell me. I won't venture it."

"Guess," suggested the other again.

But the man with the pipe shook his head. "I couldn't find a man's name haphazard, especially when, as you say in your case, the name is simple, easy to pronounce and yet causes trouble for you."

"So much trouble that I might think seriously of doing what Aaracho What's-his-name is doing and get it changed."

"It must be rotten. What is it?"

And then for the third time he was told "Guess."

"Not in a million years."

"Every day of my life," said the objectioner.

"What is it?"

"My name."

"But what is it?"

"Guess."

And it was.—New York Times.

One of Rhodes' Ideas.

A well known peer once asked Cecil Rhodes to stand godfather to his son, and he replied that he would on one condition, which was that he might invest at once £100 in the boy's name and give £100 on each succeeding birthday, provided that it should all go on at compound interest until the boy was old enough to begin to spend the interest, and that then he might yearly decide on what to spend it, so long as it was not on himself. "This," said Mr. Rhodes, "will do two things—first, it will teach your boy how to spend money, and, secondly, it will make him unselfish and kind to those in need."

How Ney Faced Death.

Marshal Ney was the son of a hardworking cooper and had risen from the ranks of the army. He was a child of the people, and whatever may have been his vanities he threw them all aside in his last days. When he was led out to death an officer ordered a bandage tied over his eyes.

"Why should you do that?" said Ney. "Haven't I been accustomed for twenty-five years to look bullets and cannon balls in the face?"

He himself ordered the soldiers to fire, standing and facing them. His career summed up in one life the spectacular heroism of the past.

Stone Plants.

In South Africa there is found a plant of the genus mesembryanthemum, growing on stony ground, which so closely resembles a pebble that it is invariably taken by a stranger to be a stone. Another species of the same plant growing on the hills near the Karoo produces two leaves about as large as ducks' eggs, having a surface resembling weathered stone of brownish gray color, tinged with green. These plants look like stones, but for a short time they bear bright yellow flowers. Still another species of the same plant resembles the quartz pebbles among which it grows.

Chinamen's Bones.

All Chinamen who die in America are buried in American cemeteries, but it is the understanding that, some years later, the bones of the dead will be gathered up and sent back home for burial. This understanding with the dead is never betrayed, and there are a score of Chinamen who make a good living as bone collectors and bone shippers. The men travel all over America. Few cemeteries are unknown to them. There is no freight line that has not carried Friscoard on their behalf many parcels of Chinese bones for shipment home.—Exchange.

PATHOS IN COURT.

It Slipped Into the Ridiculous, but Didn't Lose the Suit.

Pathos in the courtroom has wrought for verdicts where irony and cynicism would have availed nothing, and the wise attorney makes effective use of it. But woe be to the pleader before the bar if he chances to slip inadvertently from the pathetic to the ludicrous!

Such an instance occurred in a case where the sister of a man who lately died was suing the administrators in one of our circuit courts for seventeen years' service, during which time she had faithfully attended and cared for her invalid brother and for which she had not been rewarded during his life nor provided for in his will.

When the case was called the courtroom was packed with those who sympathized with the sister. The plaintiff's attorney concluded after the hearing that the better way to obtain justice for his client was to make a pathetic appeal.

"Your honor," he began in his sedate and solemn way, "for seventeen long, toilsome years did my client devote herself to her unfortunate brother. With an affection such as only a sister can feel for an invalid brother did she minister to his every want. Patiently, faithfully, she toiled, never complaining, never unwilling, never murmuring. And never was she rewarded, except in that inward consciousness of having done a noble and self sacrificing deed. Yes, your honor, for seventeen long, weary years she toiled and labored, and during that time she never received enough money to buy her a pair of pantaloons!"

The mistake was so natural, the absolute simplicity of this forgetfulness of his client's sex was so apparent, the flight from the pathetic to the broad ridiculous was so sudden and complete, that the effect upon his honor and the spectators is left to the reader's imagination. It may be added that she won the whole suit.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The First English Lottery.

The first recorded lottery in England was drawn in London in 1569, the proceeds being devoted to public purposes. Four hundred thousand lots were drawn for prizes of cash and silver plate, and for four months little else was thought or talked of. The delight of the winners and the despair of the unfortunates seemed equally exaggerated. An epidemic of lotteries followed, there being no laws upon the subject, and soon there were lottery tailors, lottery tea merchants, lottery barbers—who with each shave at threepence gave a ticket that might draw a ten pound prize—lottery shoeblacks, lottery catin' houses where the sixpence a plate o' meat and the chance of drawing 60 guineas were given, and so on down to a sausage stall in a narrow alley, where it was announced that he who bought a farthing's worth of sausage might obtain a capital sum of 5 shillings.—London Mail.

Wet Indeed!

One rainy evening Nora, the greenhorn, was sent to the corner grocery to procure some article necessary to the preparation of dinner. When she returned her mistress expressed regret that she should have been obliged to send her out on such a bad night.

"You must be awfully wet, I'm afraid, Nora."

"Wet is it?" was the response.

"Sure me stockings is as wet as if I was in me bare feet!"—New York Press.

FRIENDLY ADVICE.

Josh Billings' Parting Shot to a Cheeky Drummer.

About Christmas time once the sometime famous Josh Billings, humorist, was on his way to his old home at Lanesboro, Mass. On the train were three traveling men who wanted a game of whist. One of them pointed to unpretentious and unprepossessing Josh and said:

"Let's ask Rube into the game and comb some of the hayseed out of his hair."

"My venerable friend," he said as he laid his hand on the shoulder of the old man, "will you join us in a game of whist?"

"Ya-as; we will get there in about three hours," replied Josh, putting his hand to his ear.

"You don't seem to understand," said the young fellow in a louder tone. "We want you to take a hand!"

"Ya-as; the stand o' corn has been unusual good this year."

"My friend," the young fellow then yelled, "will you take a hand in a game?"

"Ya-as; I was tellin' Mandy this mornin' how plenty an' how fat the game is this year."

"Oh, you go to the devil!" shouted the young fellow as he took his seat while the other drummers unmercifully pestered him.

When Lanesboro was reached the old fellow got up, handed one of his Josh Billings cards to each one of the trio and then said to his interlocutor:

"Young man, while you are traveling on your cheek don't get any hayseed on your clothes or the other drummers will take you for a Rube and get you into some game and skin you."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What Gathered Her.
"Some women are very selfish," said a woman speaker at a banquet. "They remind me of the woman who visited a fortune teller.
"Lady," said the fortune teller, shuffling the cards, "fate decrees that you will visit foreign lands. You will mingle in the court life of kings as I queens. Conquering all rivals, you will marry the man of your choice, a tall, dark, handsome gent of distinguished ancestry—in fact, a peer of the realm."
"Will he be young?"
"Yes; young and rich."
"The visitor in her excitement clutched the seer's arm.
"But how," she cried eagerly—"how am I to get rid of my present husband?"

Goaded.
Saving became a passion with the man and the woman. No privation was too great if so by it they might add to their accumulations. And they labored jointly. The woman's sacrifice was in every respect equal to that of the man.

But when they had amassed $10.000 the man, because he had the power, took the money and purchased with it not the automobile which he had led his faithful wife to expect, but a home. "Brute!" she cried, and when next a mob of suffragettes came that way she joined them. Who could blame her?—Pack
