COUNT DE VISCONTI WRITES ANOTHER LETTER.

SINGS PRAISES OF NEW MEXICO AND TAMPICO.

Further Describes Advantages, Etc., in the Far South.

Del Rio, Tex., March 31, 1910.
Editor Reflector:

The ground toward the south, west and northwest is gradually rising; you may see the mountains towering up in not a very great distance. Soon the foot hills begin where next to the tropical fruit and sugar plantations the raising of coffee is extensively carried on. The coffee of this region is in great demand on account of its aromatic flavor. Xilitla, quite a picturesque town in the mountains, is the market-place for the coffee of the whole district. For ordinary coffee harvests a rain fall of 60 to 70 inches annually is sufficient, but for sugar and bananas, which require a good deal of moisture, I should recommend irrigation, which would help to produce 30 per cent. or more. The state of health could not be better anywhere. I met farmers who had come here from Texas; a certain Mrs. Husman told me, that, while in Texas, she always had been afflicted with chills and fever, yea she had had inflammation of the lungs several times. Since she came to Mexico, all these sicknesses had disappeared, she never had been troubled any more. Some of the settlers here had had rheumatism in Texas, but it had now entirely disappeared. Good drinking water can be got at a depth of forty to fifty feet.

Lands adapted for every branch of agriculture can be bought in the Huasteca Valley at five to ten dollars per acre, of course from speculators, who are all Americans; I even had to find out that ministers of the gospel keep up a lively land-speculation business. And again I advise never buy from these land-agents, colony-promoters, etc; but buy directly from first hand, the Mexican owners, or from the state or government. In every state there is an abundance of public land to be had.

Tampico is the natural market for all agricultural products and at the same time the best export and import harbor in Mexico. Many thousand head of cattle are shipped from there to all parts, and as I already have mentioned before, the city of Tampico has steamboat-bins to New York, New Orleans, Galveston, in short to all parts of the world. The visitors would be astonished to see the enormous products amassed here waiting for shipment. Therefore the government had built the wharf and that grandest of all custom-houses. Two railroads are already leading into Tampico, the National from San Luis Potosi and the Central from Monterey, while a third one will in a short time run from Mexico City to Tampico through the rich Huasteco valley. From Tampico it will be built to Matamoros on the Rio Grande, there to be connected with the St. Louis, Brownsville Mexican Railroad, thus shortening the distance from St. Louis to Mexico City nearly three hundred miles, which would make Tampico so much more important.

Further, when in five or six years the Panama canal will be completed, Tampico will be one of the nearest export harbors for the Asiatic commerce, and when the planned railroads will run

STATE NEWS.

Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Asheville, N. C., April 4.—A special to the Citizen from Murphy states that Dan Bird, a full blooded Indian, was shot and instantly killed at that city by Ed Sneed, a night watchman at the Murphy Planing Mills. Snee, who surrendered to the authorities, claims that the Indian attacked him with a knife and that he (Snee) shot in self defense.

Wilson, April 4.—December 3, last Wesley Artist and Julius Rowe were bitten by a mad dog near Stantonburg. Both men were sent to Raleigh where they took the Pasteur treatment, being discharged December 27 as cured. Last Friday night Artist was taken violently ill when physicians were sent for and after a thorough examination they diagnosed the case as hydrophobia. Between paroxysms of the most intense suffering the victim begged those about him to kill him and put him out of his misery. He frothed at the mouth and vomited up the green t of green stuff. It took seven men to hold him, who after a while took him to Eureka tied, where he died a few hours afterward in the guardhouse.

Elocution Recital at E. C. T. S.

Miss Sallie Spruill Baker, of Palmyra, will give an elocution recital at the E. C. T. S. Saturday night, April 9, 8:30 o'clock, assisted by Misses Bishop and Davis and Mr. Austin. The public is invited. Admission 25 and 35c.

into the city. What great and glorious future will then Tampico have! As just now each train and also each steam boat takes great numbers of land seekers and land buyers to Tampico, I would warn those that go to Mexico to look out for the sharks, the land agents, for once in their power it is hard to shake them off.

Tampico has three American hotels, the Oklahoma house and the American hotel. As to how much the proprietors are in league with the sharks, I cannot say definitely, but I know that some of the agents have their headquarters there, at least reside there. I would advise the new comers rather to put up in the more commodious, more pleasant Mexican hotels. Tampico has about 2,000 Americans within its limit.

After a stay of about ten days at La Bolsa and the surrounding country and not finding what I wanted, (I am a mountain son and my home was to be made in the mountain valley at a higher altitude) I returned to Tampico, in order to take the next train to take me to El Abra, westward, thence to Vallés. Of this trip I'll write in my next.

I shall be here but a very short time; my return to Mexico being necessary, as my friends will soon be ready to start.

My regards to The Reflector and the readers of the same.

Lorenzo DeVisconti, P. S. In my writings to The Reflector I will not only bring the bright, sunny side of this wonder land before the mind of the readers; I shall also touch the shady side, for every country has certain things which impress the new comer unfavorably. But I will here only state that Mexico and its inhabitants are by newspapers often grossly misrepresented.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C. April 6, 1910. Mrs. Celia Dawson, of Kinston, returned yesterday after spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cox.

Miss Mattie Sutton went to Greenville yesterday.

J. L. Rollins, Miss Kate Chapman and Mrs. H. F. Brinson left yesterday for Wilson to attend the Sunday school convention there.

Misses Edith and Beulah Mumford, of Ayden, spent Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ange.

Miss Hattie Luper, of Ayden, spent Sunday visiting Miss Venia Crawford.

J. R. and R. W. Smith, prominent merchants of Ayden, were in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Forest, of Ayden, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Forest.

What is the trouble? Our Winterville boys failed to go to Ayden Sunday.

R. L. Abbott spent Sunday in Grifton and returned Monday.

B. G. Taylor, of Ayden, was in town yesterday.

H. D. Bateman, a prominent banker of Greenville, was in town yesterday.

W. G. Morris, our efficient reporter, has resigned and accepted a position with L. P. Woodard near Wilson. Mr. Morris is a bright and intelligent young man and we hate to give him up.

There will be a communication of Winterville lodge No. 523, A. F. & A. M next Thursday night, April 7th. Work in 3rd degree. Visiting brethren cordially invited to attend.

John H. Cheek, W. M. B. W. Tucker, Sec.

SCHOOL BOYS DEFEATED.

Score 8 to 3 in Favor of Greenville.

Amid wild cheers from a large crowd of enthusiastic fans, the Training school team went down in defeat Tuesday afternoon at the hands of the town boys. The school teachers started out in the first inning with their usual vim, sending one man across the rubber, but this was checked until the sixth when two more were made. The Greenville boys in the meantime were piling them up until the ninth, the final score being 8 to 3. Lanier pitched brilliant ball. He had his opponents biting at his ins and outs from start to finish, totally bewildering ten of the batsman and allowing only four bingles. Holiday pitched a steady game throughout but errors behind him together with the nine drives off his delivery kept the school boys in the rear.

Score by innings:
R H E
E. C. T. S. 100 002 000 3 4 4
Greenville 011 393 000 8 9 4

Batteries: Holiday and Brown; Lanier and Haskett. Struck out by Holiday, 8; by Lanier, 10. Two-base hits, James, Bowling, Brown and Dodd. Time 1:50. Umpire, Dr. Moyer.

Lodge Gets New Outfit.

Mr. A. B. Ellington called the reporter in to look at the new uniforms and regalia that have just been received by Tar River Lodge, K. of P., to take the place of their paraphernalia that was lost in the late fire. The new equipment is certainly handsome and the lodge has cause to feel proud of it.

The Reflector does job work.

LUNCHEON AT WASHINGTON

Given by Teacher and Class of Domestic Science Department.

It was The Reflector man's good fortune, in company with Prof. R. H. Wright, to run over to our progressive neighbor, Washington, Tuesday evening, and spend the night there. The occasion of the visit was in response to an invitation from Prof. W. C. Newbold, the efficient superintendent of Washington public schools, to attend a luncheon given by the teacher of the domestic science department of the school and one of her classes. This luncheon was served in the basement of the handsome school building and proved an occasion of real delight. The menu was elegantly prepared and consisted of dishes that were indeed most palatable, showing how well the girls in the domestic science department were being trained. It was a spread that would have done credit to the most skilled caterer, and the guests failed not to express their appreciation and praise.

At the conclusion of the delightful repast, a much enjoyed "talking fest" followed. Congressman John H. Small spoke on "Our Public Schools," and then took charge as toast master, appropriately introducing the following speakers to respond to toasts, throwing in such occasional bunches of wit as to make the "bouquet fragrant and refreshing":

"Our High School," C. E. Betts.

"Our Teachers," C. H. Harding.

"Our Manual Training Department," G. B. Howard.

"East Carolina Teacher's Training School," R. H. Wright.

"School Progress," H. B. Craven.

"Ten Years of Progress in Washington," W. K. Jacobson.

"Public Schools in Beaufort County," W. L. Vaughan.

"The Girl of Today, and the Girl of Tomorrow," D. J. Whichard.

"Washington, Our Home City" C. M. Erown.

"Domestic Science in Our Schools," F. C. Kugler.

Following the toasts Superintendent Newbold expressed appreciation to the guests for their attendance, and gave a brief sketch of the organization and work of Washington's public school that was of much interest. When he had concluded C. M. Brown proposed a rising vote of thanks to the teacher and class of domestic science for the elaborate and enjoyable luncheon they had served, this meeting with unanimous response.

The visitors also had the privilege of being shown through the handsome public school building, which is one of the best arranged and equipped in the State. Washington is certainly to be congratulated upon her public school and the interest shown there in education. By the introduction of manual training, domestic science and kindergarten departments in the school and carrying them to such success, the town is taking a lead that others might well follow.

Land Sale Near Greenville.

105 acres or more—wood land lying within 100 yards of the corporate limits of the town of Greenville, for sale Monday, April 25, 1910, being known as the lands of the late Frank Johnston, deceased.

F. C. Harding, Commissioner. 4 24 d & w

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

F. C. Harding went to Wilson today.

D. C. James went to Farmville today.

G. A. Kittrell went to Weldon Sunday.

Prof. R. H. Wright and D. J. Whichard went to Washington Tuesday afternoon and returned this morning.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

There will be prayer meetings in the churches tonight.

The State Sunday school convention is in session in Wilson.

Almost the entire student body of the colored graded school lined up at Dr. Nobles' office, Tuesday afternoon, to be vaccinated.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Christian church will have a general white sale at Evans Studio beginning Monday, April 11th at 2 p. m. Norfolk cream will be served.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Greenville Boy Wins Attractive Wilmington Girl.

Wilmington, April 5.—In the presence of a few close friends, Miss Ella Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Jacobs, announced her engagement to Mr. Thomas J. Moore, of Greenville, N. C., a prominent young man, who has made his home in Wilmington for the past several years. The announcement came as a pleasant surprise to many friends here and hearty felicitations have been extended the young couple. Miss Jacobs invited six of her young lady friends to spend the evening with her. There was a bowl in the center of the dining table in which rested a present for each of the young ladies. When a ribbon was pulled the present was drawn from the bowl. When Miss Jacob's ribbon emerged there was seen attached to the end a handsome engagement ring. The news was "out" and the young people present covered the bride-to-be with hearty congratulations.

Delegation to Washington.

Action being necessary at once on the part of the people of Greenville to secure this town being included for an appropriation in the public building bill now preceding before congress, a delegation of representative business men will leave for Washington City Thursday afternoon to present Greenville's claims to the House committee at a meeting called Friday morning. It is urgent that such a delegation, and a strong one, should be present at the committee meeting. To defray the expenses of the delegation to Washington, all interested in the progress of Greenville, and surely every citizen is interested, should make a contribution, and when called by a solicitor for this purpose the response should be liberal. And if you are not called on by a solicitor make your contribution to J. L. Little, treasurer of Chamber of Commerce.

Will Entertain Faculty Thursday Night

Prof. W. H. Ragsdale will entertain the faculties of East Carolina Teachers' Training school and Greenville graded school at his home on Thursday evening from 9 to 11.

ROCHDALE ITEMS.

Rochdale, April 5—Miss Rosa D. Smith spent a portion of last week at Farmville.

W. F. Walters, of Ayden, came Saturday evening and held the business and communion meeting Saturday night, and preached a very good sermon on Sunday.

We had a very nice rain Sunday night to the delight of the farmers. They have been having good weather for work for two or three weeks, but it was getting too dry for some of the crops.

R. E. Willoughby is getting along very well with his broken shoulder.

R. A. Smith, assistant policeman of Farmville, was in our town Monday.

The warm weather for the last two or three weeks has caused everything to grow so fast that I don't think it will take the leaves until the 10th of May to get grown. Some of the trees have leaves that are very near grown now, and it is only the fifth of April, but when the thermometer registers up in the nineties its warm enough for them to grow.

Smallpox in our neighborhood. Dr. Fountain was called to visit a colored family on Mr. Willoughby's place yesterday, and when he got there found two or three cases. The house is quarantined and vaccination is in order in the neighborhood.

Loses Again by Fire.

Mr. L. C. Moore, of Pactolus township, who a few weeks ago lost three barns and their contents by fire, suffered another loss from the same cause one day last week. In this last fire he lost another barn and all of his fodder. It is unfortunate that such losses have come upon him.

The aldermen of Kinston went after the near-beer dealers right. An ordinance adopted levies a tax of $1,000 on dealers, provides that places where it is sold shall have a full view of the interior from a public street and have no entrance except on a public street, and prohibits such places being open except between sunrise and sunset.

City folks interested in flower or vegetable gardens who have neighbors given to raising chickens in enclosures not properly fenced can appreciate the following from The Wilson Times. "It is an old saying that 'chickens come home to roost.' If they would also stay at home during the day, the neighbors who are trying to make gardens would like it better." It is not the roosting at home of neighbors' chickens that vegetable and flower growers are always so much concerned about as it is their staying at home in the day time, when the scratching flower is upon them.—Charlotte Observer.

The comment of The Observer is very timely and to the point, but the quotation used happened to be the product of some other "think shop" than the contemporary named.

The Real Corn Belt.
The biggest discovery the South has made these last five years is that we are in the corn belt—that we are, in fact, the real corn belt. In point of temperature, sunshine, and rainfall, we have advantages over the West, and every time individual Southern farmers have set out to beat the West in yields they have done it. The Western papers have been advertising the corn farmer of the corn belt last year, and he made only 155 bushels on an acre. One of our Southern readers made 220 bushels on an acre. It only remains now for us to set out to do on a large scale what we have already succeeded so overwhelmingly in doing on a small scale.

We have the advantage of the West in three points—temperature, sunshine, and rainfall. They have the advantage in one point—humus in the soil. We can get this humus. And the best way to get it is by growing nitrogen gathering crops—cow-peas and clover, greatest of all—in addition to maximum quantities of stable manure.—Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

We were afraid that the Easter hat would cause trouble, and it has done so. Where would it be more certainly looked for than in the good old fashioned city of Charleston, where, we are told, the people think the three foot neck ruffle of the Elizabethan age still prevails. The first serious quarrel over the Easter hat comes from that city, as is evinced by the following in The Charleston Post: "Ha! An Easter hat caused a man and a girl to quarrel. The cruel man said that hat looked like a fried wozzletiff, and the girl threw their engagement ring into his countenance. It was awful, but goes to show the evils of Easter hats." The Easter hat has many sins to account for, but we suppose its brim is wide enough to cover, if not to support them all.—Charlotte Observer.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL
Health is Worth Saving and Some Greenville People Know How to Save It
Many Greenville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Pills. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.
Mrs. S. A. Simmons, 501 Heritage St., Kinston, N. C., says: "I found Doan's Kidney Pills to be an effective remedy for kidney trouble and backache. My back pained me for a long time and my kidneys were much disordered. I happened to read about Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a box, I began using them. They benefited me in every way and I am now free from backache and am able to rest well. The kidney secretions are regular in passage and I feel better in every way and I am now free from backache and am able to rest well. I am glad to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Terrible Croup.
My little boy, who is four years old, has suffered a lot with croup. On several occasions we thought he was gone. After trying all the old time remedies and most of the new, I came home one night at midnight, and my wife said, "The boy has the croup again—suppose you get a bottle of Hyomei." "More junk," I said, "but we will circulate our money so they all will get some." I hastened to an all night drug store, bought it home. In five minutes he was breathing easier. In fifteen minutes he was sound asleep. In three hours the croup so quickly it seemed me.
Anyone wishing to cure the croup of a child I hope will give Hyomei a trial. Wishing you the best of success, which you surely deserve, I remain, Jos. E. Clark, 204 6th St. S. E., Washington, D. C. Oct. 7, 1909.
Hyomei is a remarkably effective remedy in case of croup and it should be in every home where there is a croupy child. Full instructions how to cure croup comes with each outfit.
Complete Hyomei outfit including inhaler costs $1.00 at drug-gists everywhere and at Jno. L. Wooten. It is guaranteed to cure croup, cough and colds.

TRUXTON KING

A Story of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'GUTCHEON

SNOPSIS

OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
 Chapter I—Truxton King arrives in Edelweiss, capital of Graustark, and meets the beautiful niece of Spantz, a gunmaker. II—King does a favor for Prince Robin, the young ruler of the country, whose guardian is John Tullis, an American. III—Baron Dangloss, minister of police, interviews King and warns him against Olga, the gunmaker's niece. IV—King invades the royal park, meets the prince and is presented to the lad's fascinating Aunt Loraine. V—The committee of ten, conspirators against the prince, meets in an underground chamber, where the girl Olga is disclosed as one who is to kill Prince Robin with a bomb. VI—John Tullis tells on the beautiful Countess Ingo-mede, who warns him that her hated and notorious old husband, Count Marlanx, is conspiring against the prince. VII, VIII, IX and X—King visits the house of the witch of Ganlook gap and meets the royal household there. He sees an eye, leaning through a crack in a door, and while searching for the person he is overpowered and dragged into a loft. He is confronted by Count Marlanx and then taken to the underground den of the committee of ten. XI—Olga defends King before committee of anarchists who wish to kill him. XII—Loraine is brought to the den and thrown into the same room with King. XIII—King feels a jaller, dons his clothing and, disguised, carries Loraine into a boat at night in which several of the anarchist leaders are about to depart. XIV—King manages to get Loraine, whom he loves, ashore, and they hide in a freight car. XV—Olga waits on a street corner with a bomb to kill Prince Robin as he passes in a parade. King and Loraine are carried off into the country in the car. They start back in an ox cart and warn the prince when almost in front of the girl Olga.

CHAPTER XVI

THE THROWING OF THE BOMB.

HE scene that followed beggars all description. A score of men and horses lay writhing in the street; others crept away screaming with pain; human flesh and that of animals lay in the path of the frenzied, panic-stricken holiday crowd; blood mingled with the soft mud of Regenetz circus, slimy, slippery, ugly!

Olga Platanova—there was nothing left of her! We draw a veil across the picture of Olga Platanova after the bomb left her hand. No one may look upon the quivering, shattered thing that was once a living, beautiful woman.

Down in an alley below the tower a trembling, worn team of oxen stood for a day and night, awaiting the return of a master who was never to come back to them. God rest his simple soul!

Truxton King picked himself up from the street, dazed, bewildered, but unharmed. The revolutionists had begun the assault on the paralyzed minions of the government.

He looked back toward the gory entrance to the circus. There was Marlanx, mounted and swinging a saber on high. Ahead was a mass of carriages, filled with the white-faced, pallid prey from the court of Graustark. From somewhere near the spot where Olga Platanova fell came a harsh, penetrating command:

"Cut them off! Cut them off from the castle!"

It was his cue. He dashed into the street and ran toward the carriages, shouting with all his strength:

"Turn back! It is Marlanx! To the castle!"

royal coach of state, holding out his eager little hands to some one in the thick of the crowd that surged about him. He was calling some one's name, but no one could have heard him.

Truxton's straining eyes caught sight of the figure in gray that struggled forward in response to the cries and the extended hand.

"Aunt Loraine! Aunt Loraine!" He now heard the name the boy cried with all his little heart.

Two officers struck at the uncouth, desperate American as he lifted the girl from the ground and deliberately tossed her into the coach.

"Turn back!" he shouted. A horseman rode him down. He looked up as the plunging animal's hoofs clattered about his head. Vos Engo, with drawn sword, was crowding up to the carriage door, shouting words of rejoicing at sight of the girl he loved.

He caught a glimpse of her, holding the prince in her arms, her white, agonized face turned toward the mob. Distinctly he heard her cry:

"Save him! Save Truxton King!"

From the sidewalks swarmed well armed hordes of desperadoes, firing wildly into the ranks of devoted guardsmen. Truxton fled from the danger zone as fast as his strained ankle would permit him. Bullets were striking all about him.

Some one was shouting his name behind in the scurrying crowd. He turned for a single glance backward. Little Mr. Hobbs, pale as a ghost, his cap gone, his clothing torn, was panting at his elbow.

Soldiers came riding up from behind, turning to fire from their saddles into the throng of cutthroats, led by the grim old man with the bloody saber. In the center of the troop there was a flying carriage. The Duke of Ferse was lying back in the seat, his face like that of a dead man.

"The prince is safe!" shouted King joyously. "They'll make it! Thank God!"

Colonel Quinnox turned in his saddle and searched out the owner of that stirring voice.

"Come!" he called.

Even as King rushed out into the roadway a horseman galloped up from the direction of the castle. He pulled his horse to his haunches almost as he was riding over the dodging American.

"Here!" shouted the newcomer, scowling down upon the young man. "Swing up here! Quick, you fool!"

It was Vos Engo, his face black with fury. Quinnox had seized the hand of Mr. Hobbs on seeing help for King and was pulling him up before him. There was nothing for Truxton to do but to accept the timely help of his rival. An instant later he was up behind him and they were off after the last of the dragoons.

"If you don't mind, count, I'll try my luck," grated the American. Holding on with one arm, he turned and fired repeatedly in the direction of the howling crowd of rascals.

"Ride to the barracks gates, Vos Engo!" commanded Colonel Quinnox. "Be prepared to admit none but the royal reserves, who are under standing orders to report there in time of need."

Over his shoulder Vos Engo hissed to his companion: "It was not idle threats, my friend, nor philanthropy on my part. I was commanded to come and fetch you. She would never have spoken to me again if I had refused."

"She! Ah, yes, I see! She did not forget me!" cried Truxton.

"Understand, it is not for you that I risk my life."

"I understand," murmured Truxton, a wry smile on his pale lips. "You mean, she is going to pay you in some way for picking me up, eh? Well, I'll put an end to that. I'll drop off again. Then you can ride on and tell her—I wouldn't be a party to the game. Do you catch my meaning?"

"You would, eh?" said the count angrily. "I'd like to see you drop off while we're going at this!"

"I've got my pistol in the middle of your back," grated Truxton. "Slow up a bit or I'll scatter your vertebrae all over your system. Pull up!"

"As you like," cried Vos Engo. "I've done my part. Colonel Quinnox will bear witness." He began pulling his horse down. "Now you are quite free to drop off."

Less than a hundred yards behind loomed a riderless horse. The dragon who had sat the saddle was lying far back in the avenue, a bullet in his head. Hobbling to the middle of the road, the American threw up his hands and shouted briskly to the bewildered animal. Five seconds later King was in the saddle and tearing along in the wake of the retreating guard.

"We need such men as King!" KING WAS IN THE CRIED COLONEL QUINNOX AS HE WAITED INSIDE THE GATES FOR THE WILD RIDER.

General Braze, with a few of his men, bloody and heartick, was the last of the little army to reach safety in the castle grounds.

The fortress, with all guns, stores and ammunition, was in the hands of the Iron Count and his cohorts.

Baron Dangloss had been taken prisoner with a whole platoon of fighting constables. This was the last appalling bit of news to reach the horrified, disorganized forces in the castle grounds.

A wise as well as a cruel man was Marlanx. He lost no time in issuing a manifesto to the armed, demoralized citizens of Edelweiss. Scores of criers went through the streets during the long, wretched afternoon, announcing to the populace that Count Marlanx had established himself as dictator and military governor of the principality pending the abdication of the prince and the beginning of a new and substantial regime. All citizens were commended to recognize the authority of the dictator.

Toward evening, after many consultations and countless reports, Marlanx removed his headquarters to the tower. He had fondly hoped to be in the castle long before this.

The cells and dungeons in the great old tower were now occupied by bruised, defeated officers of the law. Baron Jasto Dangloss, crushed in spirit and broken of body, paced the blackest and narrowest cell of them all.

At 9 o'clock on Sunday morning a small group of people gathered in the square. A meeting was soon in progress. A goods box stood over against the very spot on which Olga Platanova died. An old man began haranguing the constantly growing crowd. In the group might have been seen most members of the committee of ten.

In the midst of his harangue the hand of William Spantz was arrested in one of its most emphatic gestures.

Peter Brutus was approaching at the head of a group of aliens, all armed.

"One moment!" called out Peter Brutus, lifting his hand imperatively. The speaker ceased his mouthings. "Count Marlanx desires the immediate presence of the following citizens at his office in the tower. I shall call off the names." He began with William Spantz. The name of each of his associates in the committee of ten followed.

Ten minutes later every member of the committee of ten, except Peter Brutus, was behind lock and bar, together with their shivering associates, all of them dumbly muttering to themselves the awful sentence that Marlanx had passed upon them.

"You are to die at sunset, Graustark still knows how to punish assassins. There is no room in Graustark for anarchy. I shall wipe it out today."

"Sir, your promise!" gasped William Spantz. "We are your friends—the true party of—"

"Enough! Do not speak again! Captain Brutus, you will send criers abroad to notify the citizens that I, Count Marlanx, have ordered the execution of the ringleaders in the plot to dynamite the prince, at sunset in the square. Away with the carrion!"

Then it was, and not till then, that the committee of ten found him out! Then it was that they came to know Peter Brutus!

The unrecognizable corpse of Olga Platanova had been buried in quicklime outside the city walls. There was something distinctly greswome in the fact that half a dozen deep graves were dug alongside hers hours before death came to the wretches who were to occupy them.

At 3 o'clock the Iron Count coolly sent messengers to the homes of the leading merchants and bankers of the city. They, with the priests, the doctors, the municipal officers and the manufacturers, were commanded to appear before him at 4 o'clock for the purpose of discussing the welfare of the city and its people.

Marlanx stated his position clearly. He left no room for doubt in their minds. The strings were in his hands. Without hesitation he informed the leading men of the city that he was to be the Prince of Graustark.

"I will rule Graustark or destroy her. Those of you who do not expect or desire to live under my rule, which I promise you, shall be a wise one, may leave the city for other lands," he said calmly. "Just as soon as my deputies have completed the formal transfer of all your belongings to the crown treasury—all, I say, even to the minutest trifle. Permit me to add in that connection, gentlemen, the transfer will not be a prolonged affair."

They glared back at him and subsided into bitter silence.

"I am well aware that you love little Prince Robin. Now, respecting young master Robin, I have no great desire to kill him."

He waited to see the effect of this brutal announcement. His hearers stiffened, and—yes, they held their breath.

"He has one alternative—he and his lords. I trust that you, as sensible gentlemen, will find the means to convey to him your advice that he seize the opportunity I shall offer him to escape with his life. Let me interrupt myself to call to your attention the fact that I am punishing the anarchists at sunset. To resume, the boy may return to America, where he belongs. I will give him free and safe escort to the United States. If he chooses to accept my kindly terms, all well and good; if not, gentlemen, I shall starve him out or blow the castle down. It may interest you to hear that I expect to establish a new nobility in Graustark. I trust I may now be addressing at least a few of the future noble lords of Graustark. Good day, gentlemen."

At the castle the deepest gloom prevailed. It was like a nightmare to the beleaguered household, a dream from which there seemed to be no awakening. Colonel Quinnox as commander of the royal guard ruled supreme. General Braze tore off his own epauletts and presented himself to Quinnox as a soldier of the file.

Prince Robin, quite recovered from his fright, donned the uniform of a colonel of the royal dragoons, buckled on his jeweled sword and, with boyish zeal, demanded at a council of war Colonel Quinnox's reasons for not going forth to slay the rioters.

"Your highness," said the colonel bitterly, "the real army is outside the walls, not inside. We are a pitiful handful, less than 300 men all told, counting the wounded. Count Marlanx heads an army of several thousand. He"—

"He wants to get in here so's he can kill me. Is that so, Colonel Quinnox?" The prince was very pale, but quite calm.

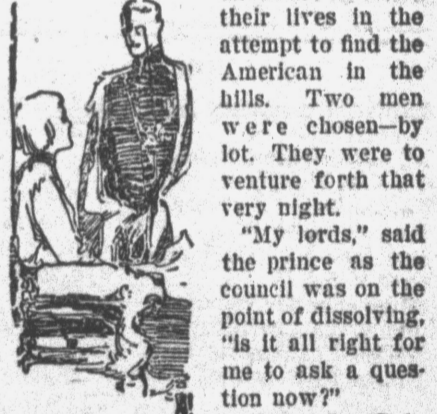

"Oh, I wouldn't put it just that way, your—"

"Oh, I know! You can't fool me! I've always known that he wants to kill me. But how can he? Nobody can. He ought to know that. He must be awful stupid."

"We must get word to Tullis!" cried several in a breath. A dozen men volunteered to risk their lives in the attempt to find the American in the hills. Two men were chosen—by lot. They were to venture forth that very night.

"My lords," said the prince as the council was on the point of dissolving, "is it all right for me to ask a question now?"

"Certainly, Rob—" in," said the prime minister.

$10. Reward.

The Beulah Orphanage, of Clinton, N. C., has no male solicitor in the field. There is a man claiming to be our solicitor, who is an impostor, and we will give $10. reward for information leading to his arrest. He was recently in Greenville and it is expected he is in some near by town working now. Every one is hereby warned against them.
49 E. L. Parker, Clinton N. C.,

TRUXTON KING.

"Well, I'd like to know where Mr. King is."
"He's safe, your highness," said Quinnox.
"Well, you run in and tell Aunt Lorraine this minute that Mr. King sends his love to her and begs her to rest easy. See if it doesn't cheer her up a bit."

At night two attempts were made by Hadden and another subaltern to leave the castle to reach Tullis, but both sortles proved failures. A day later Marlaux sent two men under a flag of truce to offer his infamous ultimatum. His offer of a safe conduct of the prince to America was refused, for the inmates of the castle knew full well the count would doom the lad to instant death if he should get him in his possession.

A single distant volley at sunset had puzzled the men on guard at the castle. They had no means of knowing that the committee of ten and its wretched friends had been shot down like dogs in the public square. Peter Brutus was in charge of the squad of executioners.
