WITH PROF. W. H. RAGSDALE.

Entertains Faculties of the Training School and the Graded School.

On Thursday evening, at his residence on Sutton Lane, Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, who is county superintendent of education and a member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers' Training School, was at home to the faculties of this school and of the Greenville graded school.

While Greenville is noted for brilliant social entertainments, and has had many that were truly delightful, it is no disparagement to say that in plan and uniqueness this surpassed any that has occurred here. The guests being mainly those connected with our educational interests, every feature of the entertainment was in keeping with this idea and carried out most impressively.

The beautiful and well arranged decorations of the home, even to the flowers, portrayed the colors of the schools—royal purple and old gold of the training school, and blue and white of the graded school. In some instances the colors of each school were prominent to themselves, and in others were mingled together with harmonious effect. The flowers were white carnations, daffodils, violets and Spanish iris, with a variety of pot plants and ferns, the festoons and draperies being malene and crepe.

All the rooms were very attractive with these artistic decorations, but the dining room was especially beautiful. On the table was a centre piece of purple with lace cover, on which was a cut glass bowl of violets and carnations. At each end were silver candelabra with yellow lights, and extending from the electric chandelier to the corners of the table were draperies of white malene with bunches of violets and simlax.

The guests began arriving a little after 9 o'clock and were received at the front door by Prof. Ragsdale with his daughter, Miss Hennie Ragsdale. Those who assisted in receiving the guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Whichard in the parlor, and Rev. B. F. Huske with Miss Eula Cox in the library. In the hall California fruit punch was served by Misses Janie Brown and Hennie Whichard.

After some time had been spent in pleasant mingling together and listening to delightful songs by Miss Olive Gaston and Prof. H. E. Austin, a magazine contest was introduced by the host. The arrangement for this was in full keeping with the marked features of the entertainment. The contest was on a folder, the first page bearing an embossed monogram of E. C. T. T. S. underneath which was printed the quotation from Lord Bacon "Some books are to be tasted, others swallowed, and some few to be digested." On the corner of the inside page having the blanks to be filled out were beautiful hand painted forget-me-nots in the colors of the schools. The contest supplying the names of magazines was very interesting. The first prize, a copy of Lowell's poems, was won by Mr. C. M. Jones and presented by Prof. R. H. Wright. The consolation, a toast book, went to Miss Lillie Bennett and was presented by Prof. H. B. Smith.

The guests were then invited to the dining room where refreshments were served by Misses Willie Ragsdale and Essie Whichard. Even here the fea-

DISTRICT CONVENTION.

Odd Fellows Have Enjoyable Meeting in Greenville.

The second district convention of Odd Fellows met with Covenant Lodge No. 17, April 7, 1910. Quite a large delegation attended the meeting. Ten of the fourteen lodges were represented. The encouraging reports coming in from the different lodges, showing progress and growth, made every Odd Fellow feel glad.

The program of the convention was well gotten up and splendidly carried out. The night session was especially interesting, as we had the pleasure of listening to quite a number of splendid speakers.

The address of welcome by Brother Julius Brown, one of Greenville's promising young attorneys, was quite a welcome indeed, and was felt by every visitor. This was ably responded to in behalf of the visitors by Brother N. L. Simmons, of Phalanx Lodge No. 17, one of Washington's chosen sons, who in his easy and graceful manner thoroughly voiced the sentiment of the visitors. All were charmed by his eloquence.

The following special subjects were ably discussed: "What Constitutes a Good Odd Fellow?" "What Does Odd Fellowship Teach?" "Are District Meetings Beneficial?" by Brother F. C. Harding, C. G. Morris, D. L. James, W. F. Evans, Scott Frizell, Stephen Wooten, E. A. Moye and Brother Shelby.

Brother D. W. Arnold made a splendid address for the good of the order, and we suggest that he send same to the N. C. Odd Fellow for publication.

Ayden was selected for next place of meeting.

The following officers were elected for ensuing term: Scott Frizell, of Phalanx, president; Brother Harris, of Bay View, vice president; E. E. Griffin, of Covenant, secretary; J. F. Thomas, of Phalanx, treasurer.

A vote of thanks was extended to Tar River Lodge K. of P. for their kindness in tendering the use of their hall to the convention. Also a vote of thanks to Covenant Lodge for their hospitality and royal entertainment.

After adjournment refreshments were served in the city hall followed with hearty hand shakes, and promises to meet next August in Ayden.

D. G. Berry, Pres.
E. E. Griffin, Secty.

Aldermen Adjourned Meeting.

The meeting of the Board of Aldermen that was to have been held last night, was adjourned until Tuesday night of next week.

tures were in equal keeping with the occasion, for everything seemed to be successive steps of surprises for the guests. On each plate were individual white cakes and the ice cream was in the shape of open books, the cover of chocolate and leaves of vanilla, with purple and yellow mints and salted English walnuts. Following the refreshments each guest received as a souvenir a miniature book with embossed title, which was filled with crystalized violets, much merriment being afforded by each reading the title of the book received.

It was near midnight when the delightful occasion ended, the guests upon taking their departure expressing great pleasure at the unique appropriateness of the entertainment.

When the time came they confessed that they had made the announcement merely to draw a crowd. He maintains that not only was the prize fight idea not in keeping with a church, but that the fact that the announcement was a fake was not honest.

Teach The Children How to do Things.

Knowing how to do anything is the secret of success. There are so many tired mothers in the homes today dreaming of the time when their daughters and sons will be grown up and help them, not realizing that now is the time to be teaching the children how to work, and giving them every opportunity to learn—encouraging them in the belief that that they are essential to the happiness of the home while they are little instead of making them feel that they are in the way and can do nothing.

It requires patience and much precious time to teach the children anything, but it is the only source to independence. The introduction of domestic science and agriculture in our public schools will do much, but the foundation must be laid in the homes. Children always take naturally to all kinds of work if we begin to teach them early enough. The trouble has been that the mother in waiting for them to get "big enough" to begin has lost the most precious time that can ever come in the lives of her children. Meantime they have learned much that was objectional and formed habits they would never have known, had she led them gently and wisely into lives of service.—Mrs. Sue V. Hollowell, in Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

FRIDAY, APR. 8, 1910.

The New Bern Sun intimates that the next pardon will be Tom Dewey.

From the way the commission form of municipal government is being discussed all towns of consequence will come to that plan sooner or later.

The Washington Post talks like the government investigation of bucket shops means the finish of those gambling institutions. Then if the cotton, grain and stock exchanges are taken in hand and closed, it will be an other step in the right direction.

In Chicago one man killed another as the outcome of an argument over the payment for a ten cent meal. We did not know that living was anything like that cheap in the "Windy City," but this murder over so small a matter shows that life out there is even cheaper.

Wireless telegraphy has again proven its great value. A steamer passing the English channel took fire, a distress message was picked up by another steamer which hurried to the scene and transferred the nine hundred passengers from the burning steamer without a single mishap to one of them.

The visitors who were here attending the Odd Fellows district convention, found out in reality that this was "Our Greenville, yours if you come." In the matter of entertaining her guests, Greenville leaves nothing undone for their pleasure and comfort, and this characteristic trait of our people was fully shown on this occasion.

April 9th is the forty-ninth anniversary of the surrender at Appomattox, which marked the close of the war between the North and South. Notwithstanding nearly half a century has passed since that conflict ended, it is remarkable that the Northern pension role growing out of it contains more names than there were soldiers on that side.

Nearly four years after it occurred, the military court of inquiry that has been investigating the shooting up of Brownsville, Tex., by the negro soldiers stationed there in 1906 upheld the charges preferred against the soldiers. This has been a much discussed matter through the four years, with repeated efforts to get the discharged soldiers reinstated, but as the finding of the court is final the matter is probably ended.

The Raleigh Evening Times must certainly have been suffering from political brainstorm when it put forward the story that, in order to prevent the judgeship fight between Justice Manning and Judge Allen, there was a trade whereby Justice Walker would be made Chief Justice and the two rival candidates both put on the bench. Justice Walker would first have had to be persuaded he could beat Chief Justice Clark, because persuasion in the latter quarter has not availed as yet, to any extent, so to speak.—Wilmington Star

A rattlesnake is a gentleman and a scholar, and an honorable citizen, compared with the coward who makes an attack—designed to injure—from ambush. That kind of warfare is never indulged in by men; it is the favorite dodge only of conceited individuals who think they are men. Manly courage and the idea of a square deal never runs to the cover of such a subterfuge.—Greensboro News.

Fly Travelers.
Among the things that furnish occupation for the eyes and minds of transatlantic voyagers are the housewives that accompany the great steamships from one side of the ocean to the other. In fine sunny weather the flies buzz cheerfully about sheltered places on the decks, and when the wind blows high they take refuge in cabins and saloons. Flies often remain with the ship while in port and return with her on her next trip, thus crossing the ocean several times in succession and perhaps spending the entire season at sea.

It expels all poisons, stimulates the internal organs, cleanses the system and purifies the blood. Such is Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, the most effective preventative and cure of bad blood, constipation and sluggish liver. J. B. L. Wooten.

"Fain would I write a poem on the delights of fishing," sighed the poet, "but woe is me. I can't find a word to rhyme with anglerworm."

"But why use that word at the end of a line?" queried the friend.

"Because," hissed the poet between his set teeth, "an anglerworm is always at the end of a line."

And for an hour the silence was so still that one could have heard a pin drop.—Chicago News.
