THE ROUND TABLE.

A New Social Organization in Greenville.

Reported for Reflecto:

On Friday afternoon the home of Mrs. G. W. Baker was open to a number of invited guests for the purpose of organizing a literary club.

Mrs. T. A. Person, by request, acted as temporary chairman. An election of officers was held resulting as follows:

President, Mrs. Kate Beckwith. Vice president, Mrs. T. A. Person.

Secretary, Mrs. S. J. Everett. Treasurer, Mrs. H. E. Austin. After a free and spirited discussion upon a suitable name the membership unanimously adopted the significant yet popular name, "The Round Table."

It is the purpose of the club to follow a course of study, and to this end various committees are appointed to perfect the organization and report on the subjects of study for the consideration of the Round Table.

The ladies of the Round Table propose to have a circulating library of current fiction in connection with the study course and donate these books to the Greenville Public Library. The meetings will be held semi-monthly.

After the close of the business session, dainty and appetizing refreshments were served. The guests lingered in social intercourse, pronouncing Mrs. Baker an ideal hostess.

The meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Austin on Tuesday, May 2nd.

The spirit and personnel of the meeting is worthy of comment and we bespeak for the organization a future full of promise.

MESSANGER BOY STOLE $20,000

From Carnegie Trust Co., and Eloped With Jersey City Girl.

Tom Brown, a messenger boy in the employ of the Carnegie Trust Company, stole $20,000 of the company's money six weeks ago and eloping with a Jersey City girl went to Los Angeles, Cal., where he was arrested yesterday and brought back to answer the charge of abduction as well as grand larceny.

J. B. Reichmann, president of the Carnegie Trust Company, said yesterday that most of the money taken had been returned, and that as the boy was under bond furnished by The Title Guaranty and Surety Company, of Scranton, Penn., The Carnegie Trust Company would lose nothing.

The Title Guaranty and Surety Company have agencies in all the important towns and cities in the United States, and is the third in size in the United States.

A personal bond, though ample when given, may be worthless soon thereafter, as there is no provision made for it. The security afforded is, therefore, questionable.

C. L. Wilkinson, Agent, Greenville, N. C. Title Guaranty & Security Co., 145 14w of Scranton, Penn.

Greenville Firm Gets Another Contract.

York & Cobb of this town, have been awarded the contract to erect a new building at the A. M. College, Raleigh. There were fifteen bidders for the contract, but the Greenville firm was lower than any other, their bid being $43,476. The next lowest bid was $45,547, and the highest was $58,169. There was quite a range in the bidding.

HENRY GRADY DEBATING SOCIETY

Last Meeting of the Session Held Friday Night.

The boys society of the graded school, the Henry Grady Debating Society, held its final meeting Friday night. Two weeks hence the debate with Washington will be held, and then examinations will be the order of the day. The boys felt that they could not undertake another programme.

The meeting Friday night was given over to declaiming. The following declamations were rendered: "The Gladiator"; David Moore, "Verres Denounced by Cicero"; Adrian Brown, "The Confederate Soldier"; Alfred Schultz, "Riezi to the Romans"; Milton Pugh, "The Dying Soldier"; Chas. Haskett, "The Death of John Adams." Spruill Spain, "Abou Ben Adhem," David Whichard, "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address."

Mercer Tyson, "Curing a Cold," Chandler Zahnizer, "Tribute to North Carolina," Edward Hearne.

The debaters against Washington delivered their speeches on the merchant marine question. The query for the debate. The society was well pleased with the speeches its representatives have prepared.

Friday night's meeting was one of the best the society has had. The boys selected their own speeches and trained themselves, no one having drilled any of them for this meeting. The critic of the society was well pleased to know that such good work could be done without any outside assistance.

FLAG AND MUSKET.

Pennsylvanian Desires to Return War Relics to Their Rightful Owner.

Governor Kitchin yesterday received the following letter from Mr. Benjamin Page, president of the South Side Trust Company, of Pittsburg, Pa.

"I have in my possession a flag and musket which came to me from my father who was paymaster in the War of the Rebellion in 1862 on the U. S. gunboat "Valley City," who obtained possession of the same at Roanoke Island during a reconnoiter of the officers and men of that vessel, where a camp was surprised. The obverse of the flag is, I believe, the regular Confederate flag and the reverse shows the arms of North Carolina and on the inside the figure of an officer on horseback with the inscription, "Perquimans Rangers."

"For some time I have intended to write you, believing that possibly there may be some survivors of the regiment and they would like to have this flag and musket, and in these days of peace and good will I want them to have it if they will,"—News and Observer.

Goes to Greenville.

Mr. R. N. Strayhorn, who has leaped in a single year from knee britches to manhood, left this morning at 2:50 for Greenville where he takes a key for the Western Union Telegraph company.

Mr. Strayhorn has been two and a half years with the Western Union and Postal. He has developed in that time skill enough to take charge of the office.—Durham Herald.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

Clean Up Week.

At the request of the Civic League of the town of Greenville the Board of Aldermen have designated the week beginning April 18th, as clean up week, during which time all the town horses and forces will be used for removing the rubbish and trash from all portions of the town. In order to the more thoroughly accomplish this result the town wagons will remove rubbish and trash from the following portions of the town on the following named days:

First Ward, That is that portion of the town lying north of Third street, on Monday, April 18th.

Second Ward, That is all that portion of the town lying between Third street on the north and Fifth street on the south, on Tuesday, April 19th.

Third Ward, That is all that portion of the town lying in the angle formed by the intersection of Fifth street and Dickinson avenue, on Wednesday, April 20th.

Fourth Ward, That is all that portion of the town lying in the angle formed by the intersection of Dickinson avenue and Evans street on Thursday, April 21st.

Fifth Ward, That is all that portion of the town lying between Evans street and Fifth street on Friday, April 22nd.

All persons having trash to remove in their various wards will place the same upon the streets on these days and it will be removed by the town wagons.

By order of the Board of Aldermen. J. T. Smith, Chief of Police.

Services in Presbyterian Church.

Rev. R. C. Deal, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will conduct services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

Announcement.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newly Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C. April 16, 1910. Miss Norma McLawhorn is spending the week with Miss May Smith in Ayden.

J. R. Smith, a hustling business man of Ayden, was in town Thursday.

Quite a number of our people are attending the Ayden carnival this week.

Miss Lizzie Harrell, a W. H. S. student, left yesterday to spend Saturday and Sunday at her home at Oak City.

Misses Elizabeth Boushall and Vivian Roberson, teachers in the W. H. S., left yesterday to spend Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Munford near Ayden.

R. H. Hunsucker and L. L. Kittrell attended the Masonic banquet at Farmville last Thursday.

The singing class of the Oxford Orphan Asylum will give a concert in the auditorium of Winterville High School on Tuesday night, April 19th. The public is cordially invited.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

Partial List of Those Who are to Work Pitt County.

The Reflector has been able to secure a partial list of the census enumerators for Pitt county as follows:

Beaver Dam township, J. R. Nichols, for whites only.

Belvoir township, W. W. Bullock for whites only.

Bethel township, B. M. Whitehurst, and another man named Whitehurst, initials not learned. Carolina township, D. N. Nobles.

Chicod township, Raymond Tucker.

Contentnea township, Speight and McCotter, initials not learned.

Falkland township, J. H. Smith, whites only.

Greenville, town, Henry T. King.

Swift Creek township, W. R. Purser, whites only.

The following negro appointments, for work exclusively among that race:

Falkland township, a man named Williams sent from Black Jack.

Farmville township, Rev. Joe Mays sent from Greenville.

Greenville, town, C. M. Epps.

Greenville township, north of river, a man named Cherry.

Pactolus township, a man named Dawson sent from Contentnea.

From some of these appointments can be judged the kind of census that will be taken in this county.

Supervisor Meekins, of this district, was to have met the Pitt county enumerators here Friday to start them out on their work, but did not come.

Ask a Blessing For Coming Crops.

Out Mt. Eliam way they keep up a beautiful custom that it does one good to contemplate. In the spring, when preparations are being made for another crop, a day of fasting and prayer is observed and God's blessings are invoked upon the coming crops; and when crops are gathered in the fall a day of thanksgiving is observed—this in addition to the national Thanksgiving day. Regularly, twice each year, "Happy Jack" tells of the observance of these days. Unlike some other customs, it is more honored in the observance than the breach.—Lumberton Robesonian.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

Mayor H. W. Whedbee went to Bethel this morning.

Misses Evelyn Barnhill and Maggie Savage went to Ayden Friday evening.

Mrs. C. C. Thomas, of Durham, came in Friday evening to visit Mrs. G. J. Woodwood.

Misses Bessie Haskett, Bettie Pearl Fleming and Inez Pittman went to Farmville Friday evening.

Misses Mamie Ruth Tunstall, Lucy Outerbridge and Julia Harris went to Ayden Friday evening.

Misses Nancy Coward and Lillian Burck, who are teaching near Washington, came up Friday evening to see the home folk.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Cleaning-up week will begin Monday. Be ready to fall in line and do your part.

Several automobile parties run over to Ayden Friday night to take in the carnival.

It has been warm today, and according to the weather man you can lookout for squalls tomorrow.

On fourth page will be found an advertisement of L. H. Pender, who has had 21 years experience at making tobacco flues. He also does plumbing and tinning.

TO DIE NEXT THURSDAY.

Cobb Withers Will be Electrocuted On That Day.

Cobb Withers, sentenced to the electric chair from Mecklenburg county for murder, will meet his death next Thursday, unless something interferes.

The peculiar feature is that the day of execution is Thursday instead of Friday, as has been the custom. We do not remember that a legal execution has ever been held in this state or any other day than Friday, certainly that has been the usual day. Why the change was made in Withers' case is not known. It is possible that it was a mistake, but the death warrant reads "April 21st," and Warden Sales says he will carry out the instructions unless the governor orders otherwise.—Raleigh Evening Times.

New North Carolina Industries.

For the week ending 13th the Chattanooga Tradesman reports the following new industries established in North Carolina:

Raleigh—$50,000 realty company.

Greensboro—$50,000 lumber company.

Troy—Publishing company.

King—Flour mill.

Coolemeec—$100,000 hosiery mill.

Washington—Pants factory.

Stanley—Cotton mill.

Fayetteville—$50,000 lumber company.

Huntersville—$100,000 telephone company.

Winston-Salem—$125,000 iron working plant.

STATE NEWS.

Newly Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Counterfeit dollars are again in circulation in this section and the public is warned to carefully scrutinize the silver dollars that they receive. The imitation that has been seen is a very poor one and is made of lead, a similar counterfeit to the ones in circulation here last year and for which some Craven county young men were sent to the federal prison at Atlanta.—Kinston Free Press.

Taylorsville, April 15.—Ex-Congressman R. Z. Linney dropped dead here today at 2:30. Mr. Linney had just driven into town from his farm and was apparently quite well and in good spirits. Just as he reached the top of the stairway, ascending to his office, he complained of sudden illness and sank to the floor unconscious, dying within ten minutes without regaining consciousness.

Governor Kitchin announced yesterday afternoon that after careful consideration of the situation in the eleventh district, he had decided to appoint Hon. George P. Pell, judge, to fill the unexpired term of Judge E. B. Jones, resigned.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Asheville, April 14.—J. H. Tucker, vice-president of the Stonewall Jackson Training school, has been appointed an honorary delegate to the national convention of the national laymen's movement, which is held in Chicago beginning May 3. Mr. Tucker will attend the convention.

They are going to try the younger Cooper again, but if he is convicted and sentenced Governor Patterson will do another pardoning stunt.

Some Raleigh Democrats have kicked over the traces and issued a call for a mass meeting in opposition to the voting primary ordered by the county executive committee.

Doesn't this jar you? President Taft addressed a woman's suffrage meeting in Washington and some of the delegates who did not like what he said actually hissed him.

One of former President Roosevelt's close friends has given out the word that he will be a candidate for president again, if the people want him. This may not be the kind of talk the present occupant of that position likes to hear.

A Newspaper is a Business.

Now is the time when the country newspaper men are receiving letters from men they do not know, and possibly never heard of, stating that the writer is a candidate for some State office and any aid the editor can bestow will be greatly appreciated. Yes, no doubt it would. On the other hand, any aid these politicians can bestow on the editor to recompense him for space used in his paper, would be appreciated. If politicians want to advertise their business, why in the dickens don't they include a check as evidence of good faith, for the amount of advertising they desire and send along copy properly signed, for advertising? Talk about business. If there is any business in a newspaper man giving away

It is said the senate investigation of the high cost of living will cost $65,000. And the net result will be a lengthy treatise exonerating the republican protective tariff from all blame in connection with the matter. If we had fewer of such congressional investigations at the people's expense perhaps the high cost of living problem would be a trifle less acute, anyway.—Winston Sentinel.

"Mr. LaFollette knows more about railroad methods than any public man in America," says the News and Observer in aligning itself with the opposition to the Taft bill for railroad control on the faith of LaFollette's attack on it. To hear Mr. LaFollette tell it, this is true, but if he went into railroading he would in all probability exhaust the steam in the boiler through tooting the whistle.—Wilmington Star.

Hangs Wall Paper

Resolved: That you might as well poke your money down a rat hole and expect good results, as to give it to some one who doesn't know any more about paper hanging than a rabbit. When your wall paper pops loose and hangs down in festoons, the fact stares you in the face, that you have made a mistake and wasted your money. Next time you contemplate papering your house talk to Wells Browne. He is headquarters in this line. He is reliable, reasonable in his prices, and ready to make good anything that goes wrong with his work. New goods coming in, up-to-date and a season ahead. Paste this in your hat and next time you want anything in his line, come to Browne's play house on Dickerson Ave., below Five Points, and tell your troubles to him. Don't Buy a Piano Hurriedly

Take Your Time

—plenty of it, and be extremely careful how you spend your piano money.

Terms amount to very little—glittering promises cover a multitude of faults—you can get satisfactory terms anywhere, but a satisfactory piano at a precious few places.

We have 8 makes under grades and classification as follows: highest medium and low. Each grade is characterized by the price we ask for it. What ever price you are willing to pay for a piano, if bought from us, you will be getting legitimate value, as you won't be deceived in the grade you are getting. We have several self-player Pianos at bargain prices.

A Cold Storage In Your Home

You can not be too careful in buying a refrigerator, as much of the illness in some families can be traced directly to using insanitary refrigerators. We have carefully investigated all the many makes of refrigerators, and have selected a line which we can positively guarantee to be the cleanest and most sanitary refrigerators made. No germs are possible with the smooth, seamless surface, and they can be kept spotless and germless for years to come. One of these refrigerators will soon pay for itself in saving of ice bills. Before you buy let us show you our complete line of perfectly constructed refrigerators. They cost no more than the ordinary kind.

SNOPSIS

OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
Chapter I—Truxton King arrives in Edelweiss, capital of Graustark, and meets the beautiful niece of Spantz, a gunmaker. II—King does a favor for Prince Robin, the young ruler of the country, whose guardian is John Tullis, an American. III—Baron Dangless, minister of police, interviews King and warns him against Olga, the gunmaker's niece. IV—King invades the royal park, meets the prince and is presented to the lad's fascinating Aunt Loraine. V—The committee of ten, conspirators against the prince, meets in an underground chamber, where the girl Olga is disclosed as one who is to kill Prince Robin with a bomb. VI—John Tullis calls on the beautiful Countess Ingomede, who warns him that her hated and notorious old husband, Count Marlanx, is conspiring against the prince. VII, VIII, IX and X—King visits the house of the witch of Ganlook and meets the royal household there. He sees an eye, leaning through a crack in a door, and while searching for the person he is overpowered and dragged into a loft. He is confronted by Count Marlanx and then taken to the underground den of the committee of ten. XI—Olga defends King before committee of anarchists who wish to kill him. XII—Loraine is brought to the den and thrown into the same room with King. XIII—King feels a jailer, dons his clothing and, disguised, carries Loraine into a boat at night in which several of the anarchist leaders are about to depart. XIV—King manages to get Loraine, whom he loves, ashore, and they hide in a freight car. XV—Olga waits on a street corner with a bomb to kill Prince Robin as he passes in a parade. King and Loraine are carried off into the country in the car. They start back in an ox cart and warn the prince when almost in front of the girl Olga. XVI—The bomb is thrown, but the prince escapes to the castle. Marlanx is in control of the city. XVII and XVIII—King goes from the castle to notify Tullis of the prince's danger, Tullis being absent in the hills with a force of soldiers. He finds Tullis.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE RETURN.

FROM the highlands below the Monastery Captain Haas and his men were able to study the situation in the city. The impracticability of an assault on any one of the stubborn, well-guarded gates was at once recognized. A force of 700 men, no matter how well trained or how determined, could not be expected to surmount walls that had often withstood the attack of as many thousands. The wisdom of delaying until a few thousand loyal though poorly armed countrymen could be brought into play against the city appeared at once to Prince Dantan and John Tullis.

Squads of men were sent without delay into the hills and valleys to call the panic-stricken, wavering farmers into the fold. John Tullis headed the company that struck off into the well-populated Ganlook district.

Marlanx, as if realizing the nature of the movement in the hills, began a furious assault on the gates leading to the castle. The watchers in the hills could see as well as hear the conflict that raged almost at their feet, so to speak.

The next morning Captain Haas announced to his followers that Marlanx had begun to shell the castle. Big guns in the fortress were hurling great shells over the city, dropping them in the park. On the other hand, Colonel Quinnox during the night had swung three Gatling guns to the top of the wall; they were stationed at intervals along the wall, commanding every point from which an assault might be expected.

That night recruits from the farms and villages began to straggle into the camp. They were armed with rifles, ordinary shotguns and unique blunderbusses, swords, staves and aged lances. All were willing to die in the service of the little prince. By the close of the second day nearly 3,000 men were encamped above the city. Late that night John Tullis rode into camp at the head of a great company from the Ganlook province. He had retaken the town of Ganlook, seized the fortress and recruited the entire fighting strength of the neighborhood. More than that, he had unlimbered and conveyed to the provisional camp two of the big guns that stood above the gates at the fortress.

Marlanx trained two of his big guns on the camp in the hills. From the fortress he threw many futile shells toward their place of shelter. They did no damage; instead of death, they brought only laughter to the scornful camp. Under cover of night the two Ganlook cannons were planted in a position commanding the southeastern city gate. It was the plan of the new besiegers to bombard this gate, tearing it to pieces with shot.

into the castle, but to hit a gate twenty feet wide? Never!

Truxton King was growing haggard from worry and loss of sleep. He could not understand the admirable, criminal procrastination. He was of a race that did things with a dash and on the spur of the moment. His soul sickened day by day. John Tullis, equally unhappy, but more philosophical, often found him seated upon a rock at the top of the ravine, an unlighted pipe in his fingers, his eyes intent upon the hazy castle.

"Cheer up, King. Our time will come," he was wont to say.

Then came the night before the proposed assault on the gates. The guns were in position, and the cannonading was to begin at daybreak. Truxton was full of the bitterness of doubt and misgiving. Was she in love with Vos Engo? Was the count's suit progressing favorably under the fire of the enemy? Was his undoubted bravery having its effect upon the wavering susceptibilities of the distressed Loraine?

The sound of a voice in sharp command attracted his attention. There was a bright moon, and Truxton could see other pickets hurrying to join the first. A few moments later several trespassers were escorted through the lines and taken directly to headquarters—Jman and two women, King observed.

John Tullis was staring hard at the group approaching from the roadway. One woman walked ahead of her companions. Suddenly he sprang forward with a cry of amazement. It was the Countess Ingomede. Her arrival created a sensation. In a moment she was in the center of an amazed circle of men. Tullis, after his first low, eager greeting at the edge of the fire circle, drew her near to the warmth giving flames. Prince Dantan and Captain Haas threw rugs and blankets in a great heap for her to sit upon. Every one was talking at once. The countess was smiling through her fears. "Make room for my maid and her father. They are colder and more fatigued than I," she said, lifting her tired, glorious eyes to John Tullis, who stood beside her. "We have come from Balak. They suffered much that I might enjoy the slender comforts I was so ready to share with them."

"Thank God, you are here!" he said in low, intense tones. She could not mistake the fervor in his voice nor the glow in his eyes.

"I knew you were here, John. I am not going back to Count Marlanx. It is ended."

"I knew it would come, Ingomede. You will let me tell you how glad I am some day."

"Some day, when I am truly, wholly free from him, John. I know what you will say, and I think you know what I shall say in reply." Both understood and were exalted. No other word passed between them touching upon the thing that was uppermost in their minds.

Food was provided for the wayfarers, and Tullis' tent was made ready for the countess and her maid.

The countess' story was soon told, sitting before the great fire, surrounded by eager listeners, she related her experiences.

She had been seized on the night of the ball as she started across her father's garden, and escape had become possible only through the aid of Joseph and the girl's father. Farmers' wives told them of the newly formed army and of its leaders. She determined to make her way to the camp of those who would destroy her husband, eager to give them any assistance that her own knowledge of Marlanx's plans might provide.

One bit of information she gave created no end of consternation among the would-be deliverers of the city. It had the effect of making them all the more resolute; the absolute necessity for immediately regaining control in the city was forced upon them. She told them that Count Marlanx had lately received word that the Grand Duke Paulus was likely to intervene before many days, acting on his own initiative, in the belief that he could force the government of Graustark to grant the railway privileges so much desired by his country. Marlanx realized that he would have to forestall the wily grand duke. If he were in absolute control of the Graustark government when the Russian appeared he, and he alone, would be in a position to deal with the situation.

"The grand duke may send a large force of men across the border at any time," said the countess in conclusion. "Count Marlanx is sure to make a decisive assault as soon as he hears that the movement has begun. He had hopes of starving them out, thus saving the castle from destruction, but as that seems unlikely his shells will soon begin to rain in earnest upon the dear old pile."

Truxton King was listening with wide open ears. As she finished this dreary prediction he silently arose to his feet and, without a word to any one, stalked off in the darkness. Tullis looked after him and shook his head sadly.

"I'll be happy on that fellow's account when daybreak comes and we are really at it," he said to Prince Dantan, who knew something of King's affliction.

But Truxton King was not there at daybreak. When he strode out of the camp that night he left it behind forever. The unfortunate lack of means to communicate with the occupants of the castle had been the source of great distress to Captain Haas. If the defenders could be informed as to the exact hour of the assault from the outside they could do much toward its speedy success by making a fierce sortie from behind their own walls. A messenger from the castle would have to draw Marlanx's attention in that direction, diminishing the force that he would send to check the onslaught at the gates.

Truxton King had all this in mind as he swung off down the mountain road, having stifled past the sentries with comparative ease. The danger from Marlanx's scouts outside the city was not great; they had been scattered and beaten by Haas' recruiting parties. He stood in more danger from the men he would help, they who were the watchful defenders of the castle.

It must have been 2 o'clock when he crossed the king's highway, a mile or more above the northern gates, and struck down into the same thick undergrowth that had protected him and Hobbs on a memorable night not long before.

At 3 o'clock a dripping figure threw up his hands obligingly and laughed with exultation when confronted by a startled guardsman inside the castle walls and not more than fifty yards from the water gate. He shouted a friendly cry as he advanced toward the man, calling out his own name.

Ten minutes later he was standing in the presence of the haggard, nerve-racked Quinnox, pouring into his astonished ears the news of the coming attack. The colonel lost no time in routing out the sleeping guardsmen and reserves and in sending commands to those already on duty at the gates.

When the sun peeped over the lefty hills he saw inside the gates a restless, waiting company of dragoons ready for the command to ride forth.

Meantime King had crossed the grounds with Colonel Quinnox on the way to the castle. He was amazed, almost stupefied, by the devastation that already had been wrought. A dozen or more balls had crashed into the facade. Yawning fissures, gigantic holes, marked the path of the ugly messengers from Marlanx. Nearly all of the windows had been wrecked by riflemen who shot from the roofs of palaces in and about the avenue. Two of the smaller minarets were in ruins. A huge pillar in the lower balcony was gone. The terrace had been plowed up by a single ricocheting shell.

"Great God!" gasped King. "It is frightful!"

"They began bombarding yesterday afternoon. We were asked to surrender at 3 o'clock. Our reply brought the shells, Mr. King. It was terrible. After the first two or three shells we found places of shelter for the prince and his friends. They are in the stone tower beyond the castle. The most glorious courage is shown. Count Vos Engo guards the prince and the ladies of the household. Alas, it was hunger that we feared the most. Today we should have resorted to horse's flesh. There was no other way. We knew that relief would come some day. John Tullis was there. And now it is

CHAPTER XII.—HEALTH.

Sec. 8. It shall be unlawful for any person to locate or maintain a surface privy, within twenty-five feet of any public street or another's dwelling or store house or within fifty feet of any well or spring used for drinking or culinary purposes, or within fifteen feet of any natural drain or ditch in the town. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be fined five dollars for each day that such nuisance continues after he shall have been notified to remove the same, by the chief of Police or other officer of the town.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen of Greenville, April 12th, 1910.

today! This shall be our day, thank God!"

Attention sped to the tower, shouting the battle tidings.

The prince came tumbling down the narrow iron stairs from his room above, shouting joyously to Truxton King. No man was ever so welcome. He was besieged with questions, handshakings and praises. Even the Duke of Perse, hobbling on crutches, had a kindly greeting for him. Tears streamed down the old man's cheeks when King told him of his daughter's safe arrival in the friendly camp.

But just now Truxton was staring at the narrow staircase. Vos Engo and Loraine were descending slowly. The former was white and evidently very weak. He leaned on the girl for support.

Count Halfont offered the explanation. "Vos Engo was shot last week through the shoulder. He is too brave to give up, as you may see. It happened on the terrace. There was an unexpected fusillade from the house-tops. Eric placed himself between the marksman and Miss Tullis. A bullet that might have killed her instantly struck him in the shoulder.

King never forgot the look in Loraine's eyes as she came down the steps. Joy and anguish seemed to combine themselves in that long, intense look.

She gave him her hands. The look in her tired eyes went straight to his heart. Vos Engo drew back, his face set in a frown of displeasure.

"My brother?" she asked, without taking her gaze from his eyes.

"He is well. He will see you today."

"And you, Truxton?" was her next question, low and quivering.

"Unharmful and unchanged, Loraine," he said softly. "Tell me, did Vos Engo stand between you and the fire from the—"

"Yes, Truxton," she said, dropping her eyes as if in deep pain. "And you have not broken your promise to him?"

"No; nor have I broken my promise to you."

"He is a brave man. I can't help saying it," said the American, deep lines suddenly appearing in his face. Swiftly he turned to Vos Engo, extending his hand. "My hand, sir, to a brave man!"

Vos Engo stared at him for a moment and then turned away, ignoring the friendly hand. A hot flush mounted to Loraine's brow. Vos Engo's response was a short, bitter laugh.

A Speedy Cure for Constipation, Bloating, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver Complaints, Tired Feeling, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bad Complexion, Nervousness and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

"Bloodine Liver Pills" act gently, yet thoroughly upon the bowels, liver, stomach and digestive organs. The pills, in old and chronic cases of constipation and indigestion, act at once, without griping, nor do they leave any unpleasant after-effects, nor form a constant habit of purging, produced by other cathartic remedies.

RESTORE THE DERANGED AND TORPID LIVER TO ITS NORMAL CONDITION AND HEALTHFUL ACTION. Remove and prevent constipation by securing a natural and regular operation of the bowels, and relieve those unpleasant symptoms which attend a diseased or torpid condition of the liver, stomach and bowels. Assist in attaining this end, the following suggestions are offered.
REMARKS: Everyone who uses pills for their action on the liver, should know that large doses rarely prove as satisfactory as small ones. Large doses simply purge and pass out of the system, usually leaving the bowels constipated, and seldom removing the cause of the trouble, or improve the general health. On the other hand, small doses develop the alterative effect of the medicine, do not irritate or constipate the bowels, but gently stimulate the liver and prevent the accumulation of bile by directing its flow into the proper channels. Therefore it is advisable to commence by taking not over one or two pills at bedtime and increase dose as necessary.

PORTLAND, Me.
GENTS:—I find your "Bloodine Liver Pills" the most effective pill I ever used. They cause no griping or constipative after-effects as most liver pills do.
