DOGS VERSUS SHEEP.

Wautauga Farmer Sells Stock and Quits.

Nearly every paper one picks up he finds something about maddogs and persons being bitten by them. Death from hydrophobia is the most horrible form of death one could imagine and the life of one person is worth more to a community than every dog in it. Yet people will persist in keeping the useless animals around, a menace to everybody and everything in the vicinity. They are undoubtedly the most worthless animals we have and the country would be far better off without any of them. Only last week we read in The Wautauga Democrat, where a man sold out his stock of sheep to raise sheep, because the worthless dogs had almost ruined his flock. When one thinks about it, it is strange that civilized people will feed, fondle and keep the worthless brutes around, but they do and will fight for them as quickly as for a child. Kill them out and give the feed they consume to pigs and chickens and let your neighbor raise some sheep.—Lenoir News.

Orphans in Baptist Church.

As the singing class of Oxford Orphan Asylum will be in Greenville Wednesday night, no prayer meeting will be held in Memorial Baptist church that night. There being no public hall in town in which the orphans can give their entertainment, the auditorium of the church has been tendered them. No admission fee will be charged, but a voluntary contribution will be taken to aid the orphans, and all who attend should be prepared to liberally aid this good cause. The program will be excellent, and all who are present will be well entertained.

Register of Deeds W. M. Moore has issued the following licenses since last report:

Another Detective Story.

The experiment of publishing in weekly installments the best detective and mystery stories, which was begun by the New York Sunday World six months ago, has proved a great success. That newspaper now announces that on Sunday, May 1, it will begin publication of "That Mainwaring affair," the exciting realistic romance written by Ralph Henry Barbour.

Christian Church.

No prayer meeting at Christian church on Wednesday evening, April 20th. The Oxford Orphan singing class will give its concert that night in the Baptist church. All members of the congregation are cordially invited to attend the musical concert and help a worthy cause.

D. W. Arnold, Pastor.

Game in Washington.

The base ball team of East Carolina Teachers Training school, and a number of rooters, went to Washington today to play a game with the High School team of that town.

NEGROES HAVE ROW.

One Shot and in Very Serious Condition.

Late Saturday night out at a restaurant run by Thad Barnhill, just beyond the southwestern limits of the town, there was a crowd of negroes and they got into a free-for-all fight. Oscar Corey pulled a gun and began pumping it in the face of George Jones, the latter being hit with two balls and left in a very serious condition. One of the balls struck Jones in the mouth, knocking out several teeth, shattering the jaw bone and lodging somewhere in the back of the head; the other ball striking his nose and also lodging somewhere in the head.

Near Beer is Bad.

Sentiment is rapidly crystallizing against the booze-masquerade, "near beer." The press of the state in almost every instance is unqualified in its denunciation of "near beer." In Raleigh both the News and Observer and Evening Times are waging warfare on the business, and aldermen have just raised the license tax to $500. Another important action taken in Raleigh was the raising of license tax on drug stores handling whiskey prescriptions to $500. The town of Wilson has just increased license tax on near beer to $1,000.

In Altamare, and other towns newspapers are fighting the evil, and it is to be hoped that the next legislature authorizes cities to refuse license to this form of law evasion. The Stanley Enterprise speaks out plainly on the question of law enforcement:

"Prohibition pays when it is enforced. It does not pay when it is backed up by a set of officials with flexible backbones and tickling palates and a long thirst. No fault with prohibition, but with those whose business it is to enforce. Prohibition is proving successful in North Carolina where men of right moral fibre are enforcing the law."—Charlotte News.

Methodist Services.

Protracted services commenced Sunday at the Methodist church. Rev. A. J. Parker, of Louisburg, will preach each afternoon at 3:30 and night at 7:45. Services in the afternoon will last only one hour.

Are you willing to give your Lord one hour and do what you can to lead some one to Christ or are you too busy with the things of this life. Are you responsible to God? If so you will have to answer for your influence.

Everybody is earnestly requested to attend these services.

Orphans Wednesday Night.

The concert given by the singing class from Oxford should have our liberal patronage. The program is indeed attractive. The cause lies near the hearts of the good people of this State. It will be in Greenville Wednesday night, April 20th., in Memorial Baptist church.

Land Sale Near Greenville.

105 acres or more—wood land lying within 100 yards of the corporate limits of the town of Greenville, for sale Monday, April 25, 1910, being known as the lands of the late Frank Johnston, deceased.

F. C. Hering, Commissioner.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUNG MEN

It seems to us that more golden opportunities are offered the young men of today, especially in the South and in North Carolina particularly, to rise in the world than at any previous time in the history of this country. Almost every field of honest endeavor is calling for men. The factories want men as superintendents and managers; banks want officers; the railroads want men in every department of the service; many towns and cities want editors for newspapers; schools and colleges want teachers superintendents and presidents. The list could be extended at great length.

One great drawback to many young men is they are unwilling to begin at the bottom. They have false notions and want to begin at the top. The most successful men of today in industrial pursuits began at the bottom and worked up. There is no reason why a section hand on a railroad cannot become president of the road. It has occurred.

To succeed in the high places one must be trained in the school of experience, must learn to obey before they can learn to command. Order, system, method is essential in every undertaking.

The development of our public school system is offering positions of honor, trust and great responsibility to the young men of North Carolina as well as to the women. The consolidation of schools as well as establishing schools of high grade that require a number of teachers opens opportunities to young men of stability, force of character and training to command. It is no discredit to them to say that women as head of schools are a failure except in rare instances, and we must have men to fill these places. The youth who has been brought up to do as he pleases except he pleases to do right and to obey his superiors can never succeed in these places and it is a crime to allow them to have their own way during the years their character is being formed. They need stern discipline to fit them for the responsibilities of life.—Roanoke Chowan Times.

One Cause of Hard Times.

It has been estimated that 15,000 people are idle in Stokes county five months in the year. If this is so, how can we wonder at the want and need of so many of our people? What a vast pile of corn and wheat this army could produce if turned to productive labor instead of rabbit hunting, sitting around the store, and gadding throughout the neighborhood. These people if put to work at 75 cents a day each, would during their idle time after their crops are finished earn $1,350,000, or one-half of the total wealth of the county. Does any person dare to say there is no work to do? This vast crowd of loafers could build and furnish 45 court houses in the county with their five months of idleness, and still none of them be able to say "I have worked too hard this past twelve months."

If a painter, storekeeper, doctor, lawyer, or any other business or professional man lost so much time out of his work, nobody would wonder that he failed miserably. Can anybody explain with reason that it is strange so many tenant farmers are poverty-stricken?—Danbury Reporter.

Return of the Old Fashion Night Cap.

While The Landmark's worst enemy will not charge that this paper is a fashion sheet, it is nevertheless The Landmark's business is to keep its readers informed of matters of human interest. With this preliminary we make bold to announce that we are informed and believe that night caps are coming into style again. The folks who can hark back 30 or 40 years remember that it was a custom of elderly ladies, on retiring, to don a head covering known as a night cap. The night caps of those days were not built for style and the most attractive woman was not vain of her personal appearance when she had one. But in this day houses were not steam heated nor so closely built as now. Bed rooms were as cold as "all out doors" and the night cap was worn for comfort, somewhat after the manner of the bald headed man who wears a skull cap. In addition to protection from cold the night cap kept the hair from becoming disheveled. The men didn't wear night caps but in days when it was the custom to keep a little of the ardent in the house for sickness, many of the old fellows took a bracer on retiring, this same being called a night cap. But, alas! These are not the night caps that are to come into style again and the male population is not interested. The new night caps, the feminine writers tell us, "are beautiful affairs of laces and silks and all kinds of dainty weaves." The main reason for the return of the night cap, we are told, is to keep the hair in shape. That would seem to be a sensible idea, but the new style, or revival of the old, is more probably just one of the freaks of fashion.—Statesville Landmark.

Wedding Anniversaries.

Ever and anon comes the request for a list of wedding anniversaries. I am now in possession of this little rhyme of Tudor Jenks and I hope every young matron will learn and remember it for future use. It is capable of attaching to the memory like the immortal "Thirty days hath September," etc., of our childhood days:

Gifts of paper, choice, not dear,
Mark the bride and groom's first year.
Five years bring substantial wood—
Type of wedlock strong and good.
Ten years, homely gifts bring in—
Wares of useful, shining tin.
When the years have reached a score,
China will be prized the more.
Silver, if the couple thrive,
Tells the years are twenty-five.
Half a hundred, slowly told,
Bring the wedding day of gold.
So few live to see arrive
The diamond date, at seventy-five
That custom says threescore may be
The diamond anniversary.—Ex.

THE TINWARE TUMBLED.

Then the Prices Tumbled, and Dan Sold Out All His Stock.

Dan MacQuinn, who runs a general merchandise store in a country town, conducts more bargain and special sales than all the other merchants put together. And the seemingly strange part of it is that he makes a big success out of every sale.

Recently he conducted a tinware sale. All kinds of tinware household utensils were displayed on tables and shelves about the storeroom. Directly in the center of the room was an immense standing case with eight or ten shelves, on which was arranged a wide variety of pieces of tinware all marked in bold figures.

About the time the store was packed with bargain seekers there came a terrific crash from the center of the room. A lumbering expressman, had tipped over the case, and the tinware was scattered everywhere, but not damaged to any extent. Dan immediately rushed to the scene of the confusion. So did all the women attending the sale. After giving the drayman a severe calling down Dan, who appeared to be in a terrible rage, announced that rather than pick up one piece of the ware he would sell every piece for 6 cents. The original prices, marked plainly on each piece, were from 10 to 15 cents. Dan sold every piece right from the floor and did it in less than five minutes.

If any one of the bargain seekers had happened around the store after the sale was over they would have been surprised to see Dan handing the expressman a piece of money, apparently very well satisfied with the result of a clever ruse which had brought a big day's receipts.—Modern Methods.

If Tennessee does not put Governor Patterson on the shelf we shall be surprised.

Time is getting short on the poll tax proposition for those who are delinquent. Failure to pay by May first means to lose the right to vote.

If they keep on they will get something the matter with Jeffries, sure enough, before that fight with Johnson comes off. His last trouble was said to be cramps.

They had a lot of grieving at the white house over the death of a pet cow. But as the government foots the pantry bills there need be no fear that rations will fall off.

Surely the Durham Herald must be mistaken in saying the recorder of Charlotte sent a bicycle scorcher to the roads for thirty years. Scorching cannot be a worse crime than murder, and even for the latter thirty years' sentences are seldom heard of.

Now and then the newspapers make some mention of the profit that would come to North Carolina, through sheep raising. What they say is true enough, but the one barrier to this industry is the dog. As long as a people think more of sorry dogs than they do of sheep, as is the case with North Carolina, the sheep will have a poor showing. The State is losing thousands of dollars annually on this one point, and perhaps some day we will have a legislature that is not afraid of the man who keeps a dog.

Pitt county will have a candidate for judge of this district, to succeed Judge O. H. Guion, and that candidate will be Mayor H. W. Whedbee, of Greenville. Pitt county is entitled to recognition in this instance, and if Governor Kitchin does the wise thing Mr. Whedbee will get the appointment. There can be no question of fitness about the man, for in legal ability, good judgment and high character Harry Whedbee is the peer of any man in the district. Nor will any name with a stronger backing and endorsement than his be presented to the governor for this appointment. He has the esteem of every man who knows him, and they want to see him receive this honor.

Two big men met when the Hon. Walter R. Henry called on President Taft the other day. Mr. Henry told the president he could top him in weight, but the president did not agree. Ascertaining Mr. Henry's weight Mr. Taft told him he was not in it, that he was six pounds short. Mr. Henry wants any old job, no matter what. He says he is endorsed by the party from a tizzard and he cannot understand why he does not land. It will be recalled that the Hon. Walter R. called on Mr. Cleveland on one occasion, when something happened. We hope the same thing will not occur again. — Greensboro Record.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst offers to throw his influence to the Democratic party if the party will let him dictate its policies. That's cool. The answer should be that the majority of the Democratic party will dictate its policies. That's the way it has been and that's the way it should be in the future. The troubles of the Unterrified would send, too, if its members would abide by the decision of the majority. The splendid organization and discipline of the Republican party have had more than all other causes combined to do with the repeated successes of that party. — Greensboro Telegram.

When you hear a man sneering at the local paper because it is not big, cheap and newsworthy as the city papers, you can safely bet that he is not under any of his wealth in assisting to make it better and that generally the paper has done more for him than he has for it. The man who cannot see the benefits arising from a local newspaper is about as much value to a town as a delinquent tax list. — Gaffney S. C., Ledger.

Caleb Powers, one of the murderers of Gov. Goebel, is now running for congress, and if he lands the exceptional picture will be presented of a congressman who has been in the penitentiary. Of course, there are some that should be there, perhaps. — Wilmington Dispatch.

Wells Browne Hangs Wall Paper

Resolved: That you might as well poke your money down a rat hole and expect good results, as to give it to some one who doesn't know any more about paper hanging than a rabbit. When your wall paper pops loose and hangs down in festoons, the fact stares you in the face, that you have made a mistake and wasted your money. Next time you contemplate papering your house talk to Wells Browne. He is headquarters in this line. He is reliable, reasonable in his prices, and ready to make good anything that goes wrong with his work. New goods coming in, up-to-date and a season ahead. Paste this in your hat and next time you want anything in his line, come to Browne's play house on Dickerson Ave., below Five Points, and tell your troubles to him. We have 8 makes under grades and classification as follows: highest medium and low. Each grade is characterized by the price we ask for it. Whatever price you are willing to pay for a piano, if bought from us, you will be getting legitimate value, as you won't be deceived in the grade you are getting. We have several self-player Pianos at bargain prices.

AUNT ABBIE'S VISIT.

The Old Lady Managed to Make Things Pretty Lively.

Sawkins says that something always happens when his Aunt Abbie comes to visit. She is eighty-four, and, although she cannot hear and her eyesight is poor, still she is very active, particularly at night, when she frequently gets up to take a sip of milk and nibble a cracker.

The first night of her last visit she got up at 2 o'clock to take her second snack. Feeling around with a lighted match for the gas, she set the curtain on fire.

Sawkins and his wife awoke with a start and heard some one mumbling outside the door. Aunt Abbie had put her teeth away for the night, and her voice sounded strange.

They sprang out of bed and yanked open the door. "Fire!" muttered Aunt Abbie in deep guttural tones. And she pointed upstairs.

Up to the third floor front darted Sawkins, followed by his wife and Aunt Abbie. The carpet and a wicker chair holding Aunt Abbie's undergarments were burning briskly.

The servants came rushing down in bare feet and nightgowns. Sawkins meanwhile attended strictly to business. With water carried from the bathroom the fire was extinguished.

During the excitement Sawkins had forgotten all about his father, but as the old man had not showed up Sawkins thought his father was still asleep downstairs.

It seems not. His father had heard Aunt Abbie say "Fire!" and, very thoughtfully for an old man of seventy-nine, had opened his window and yelled "Fire!" Then he had gone out on the front steps in his nightshirt and yelled until some one heard him and sent in an alarm.

When the firemen came one of them took Sawkins' father, as he was, into the next house. So when Sawkins ran downstairs to tell his father about the fire he met the firemen coming up. They told him the old man was in next door. So soon as the firemen had gone Sawkins went in next door after his father.

Mr. Sawkins, Sr., was sitting in the parlor, surrounded by the neighbor's family, and busily employed in consuming a hot drink. His costume was a nightshirt covered by a swallowtail coat, patent leather pumps and knees draped in a steamer rug.

Sawkins was so struck by his father's genteel appearance that he gravely thanked the neighbors for their kindness in outfitting his father. Then he took his father home in his novel costume to show his wife.

The next morning Aunt Abbie said she was too old to go visiting and wanted to go home. But she couldn't—her underclothing was all burned.—New York Press.

Dr. Johnson's Marvelous Memory.

Dr. Johnson, the Urso Major of English literature, had a prodigious memory and at one period of his life employed it in reporting parliamentary debates. Once Dr. Hawkesworth read to him a poem which he intended to publish and asked his opinion of it. "Why, sir," said Johnson, "I cannot well determine on a first hearing. Read it again." Hawkesworth complied. The next morning, the subject of the poem being resumed, Johnson said he had but one objection to it, that he doubted its originality, and to prove his statement repeated the whole poem, with the exception of a few lines, which so alarmed Hawkesworth that he declared he would never again read anything of his composing to Johnson, who, he said, had a memory which would convict any author of plagiarism.

The Khedive and the Rasbal. Even to the adventurers and downright swindlers who hung about his court at Cairo and afterward pursued his wanderings Ismail extended a good natured, half contemptuous patronage. He liked a rogue far better than a fool. Once, when he had formally forbidden his door to a flagrant offender, the man, who knew his character, got a ladder and climbed into the viceroy's room, remarking, "I have obeyed your highness' commands and have crossed your threshold by the window and not by the door." The humor of the thing at once appealed to Ismail, and the offender was reinstated in his favor.

GAVE ALL HE HAD.

The Romantic Story of an Old California Miner.

"The finest gentleman I ever knew," said Mark Twain once, "was an old California miner who could barely write his own name. He was a forty-sixer, and he and his partner had struck it rich in the early days. The old man had neither chick nor child, and he had worked hard all his life, and when he did get his money he hardly knew what to do with it.

"He did not try to jump into society or to push his way with the 'big fellows' there. He continued to live with the people whom he had associated with all his life, and many an act of kindness was done, many a wandering son and father saved, many a sorrowing woman's burden lightened and her home brightened by an unknown donor, whose identity with the old man was only known to a few.

"It was different with the partner. He had a wife and two daughters with social aspirations, and after a whole lot of pushing and hauling and showing they landed in society. The expense was too much of a drain on the husband's purse, and he speculated, with the inevitable outcome. He lost his entire fortune and then shot himself. Then it was that the true gentleness of the old man showed itself. The widow and her daughters had no one to turn to but him, and he did not disappoint them. He saved their home for them when everything else went under the hammer, and he maintained them in all the regal style to which they were accustomed, although he still lived in his old lodgings. He lived long enough to see both of the girls well married and the mother carefully settled in life. Then he died in a charity hospital in San Francisco. He had spent every penny he owned on the family of his partner."

NO WONDER HE DIED.

The Way Charles II. Was Dosed by His Fourteen Doctors.

Charles II. of England lived less than a week after he was attacked by his fatal illness, and it is wonderful that he lived so long. A monograph on "The Last Days of Charles II." gives some extraordinary details of those last days:

"The royal patient had fourteen doctors in attendance. They bled him to the extent of thirty-four ounces; they shaved his hair and applied blistering agents all over his head; they also applied plasters to the soles of his feet, and they dosed him with orange infusion of the metals, white vitriol dissolved in compound peony water, powder of sacred bitter, sirup of buckthorn, rock salt, emetic wine, two-blen pills, bryony compound, powder of white belladonna roots, powder of cowslip flowers, best manna, cream of tartar, barley and floorice, sweet almond kernels, sal ammoniac, antidotal milk water, mallow root, melon seeds, chicken broth, bark of elm, a julep of black cherry water, flowers of lime, lilies of the valley, peony compound, spirit of lavender, prepared pearls and white sugar candy, senna leaves, flowers of camomile, gentian root, nutmeg, ale made without hops, spirit of human skull (commonly employed in convulsive disorders; the purpose was suggestive—viz. to excite horror, as it was to be the skull of a man who had died a violent death), Peruvian bark, scum of cloves, Raleigh's stronger antidote, Gon stoue, Rhine wine and oriental bezoar stone."

Dr. Raymond Crawford, the author of this odd historical sketch, believes that the king's trouble was not apoplexy, but Bright's disease.

Easy Oysters.

During a discussion on finance in the United States senate one of the speakers traced the history of the various mediums of exchange, their development and changes from the days of barter to the days of gold and silver.

"I call to the attention of the senate," he said in the course of the speech, "that at one time the medium of exchange was oyster shells. Oyster shells were used for money."

"Delightful!" broke in the late Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. "If that system only prevailed now we could order half a dozen oysters on the half shell and pay for them with the shells."—Saturday Evening Post.

Painfully Frank.

The caller didn't look it, but she declared to little Clorinda that she dearly loved children. It may be that she said so because she heard the distant wail of the skirts of Clorinda's mamma; but, whatever the cause, she repeated it urgently. Then, as the small lady with the pet cat made no move to answer her invitation to come and make friends, she asked, "Why is it that you love your kitty better than me, dearie?"

And Clorinda's mamma entered the room with an ill concealed smile as she heard her daughter answer, "Cause she purrs as if she meant it."

Harmony.

"What we want is harmony," said the statesman. "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "it makes me think of a gee club I used to belong to. Every fellow's idea of harmony was to pick his own key and sing so loud nobody else could be noticed."—Washington Star.

Steps to the Presidency.

"Pa," said little George, "I've chopped down your favorite cherry tree." "That's a good start toward the presidency, son," responded wise Mr. Washington. "Now split it into rails."—Pittsburg Post.

TRAINING A TRICK SEAL.

A Simple Task When You Know That He Likes Fish.

"It's all in making an animal do nothing that is not natural," said the old animal trainer, "nothing that the nature of the particular species goes against. You see, it's just like people training themselves for a special thing; doctors not giving pills for just about anything as they used to do when I was young, but each particular doctor doing one thing. That's because the doctor can do that thing well and comparatively easy. It is the same way with breaking animals. The trainer must know, first of all, enough about the habits of his breed to fit tricks to their need. He must not try to make an elephant climb or a lion play the drum.

"Take seals, for example. I don't believe there is an animal act that makes people sit up and take more notice than those acts with seals, the fellows that catch hats and balance big balls. Those wonderful tricks that make the little girls scream with delight and get their mothers all excited are done on one simple principle—seals eat fish. That's all there is to it when you come right down to the truth.

"You begin with one seal, a lot of little pieces of fish and a bit of string. You let the seal sit on his pedestal, which he likes to do by nature. Then you throw him one of the pieces of fish, and he naturally and easily catches it. Next you tie a piece of fish on the end of your string and swing it toward the seal. He catches that, too, and you keep moving away from him and swinging the reward to him from an increasing distance. Now you are ready to begin with the hat or cornucopia. Placing and tying a bit of the fish up in the tip of it, you toss it to the seal. He is dexterous by nature, and his nose, detecting the fish up in the cone, quickly seeks it. He bites it out and tosses the cone aside. Before long he comes to associate that cone with his loved fish, and he will catch any number of similar ones and toss them aside when he fails to find what he wants. That's all there is to the trick, you see.

"Balancing the big rubber ball is based on the same principle. The ball is soaked in fishy brine and thrown to the seal. He gets the odor and tries his best to get into the ball and find what he's after. This results in his balancing the ball on his nose, a feat for which his quickness, his supple, muscular neck and his natural feeding habits are all adapted, and then he gets his piece of fish as a prize.

"The man working with seals thinks to himself, 'What else do seals do naturally?' And the answer comes, 'They like to slap and beat around with their front flippers.' Here is the basis for a good and effective trick. Down on the side of the pedestal on which the seal is placed an automobile horn is fastened or a little drum or a tin pan. The seal in the excitement of being fed slaps with his flipper for all he's worth, and you can see that with a few simple adaptations, such as tying a cymbal to the flipper, for instance, a seal band is assembled and sets the audience wild by its comic and clever performance. It's all so simple, you know—when you are on the 'inside.'—New York Post.

An Afterthought.

Mrs. Blank prided herself on her ability to train her servants, and she had just been bragging about the treasure she had in her new colored cook when the following dialogue occurred: "Now, Amaranth, I'll come out and fry the chicken, but I want you to have it all ready for me. Dress it carefully and be sure to singe off every hair." "Yes'm." "Then cut it up just as I showed you the other day. Do you remember?" "Yes'm." "Wash and drain it well. You understand?" "Yes'm." Then, as an afterthought, "Shall I kill it?"—Cirele.

What She Should Have Said.

Two colored women were standing on a downtown corner yesterday afternoon talking. "Miss Williams have come home," said one. "The other laughed. 'Ma goodness,' she said. 'Why don't yo' leahy yoh grammah?'" "What did I say that was grammahless?" asked the other. "You said 'have come.'"

The First Speaker was Provoked.

"Well, yo' knows so much about grammah, now tell me what should I a' said?" she demanded. "Yo' should a' said, 'Miss Williams has come home,'" replied the other.—Denver Post.

A DUTCH PAWNSHOP.

Sunday Clothes a Favorite Collateral in Holland.

The Dutch pawnshop of Amsterdam, known as Bank van Leening, is under the control of the municipality. Up to 1916 the business was leased by the city to a private company, but as it refused to reduce its interest on pawned articles the city took over the business and has managed it ever since. The first shop was established in the Enge Lombardsteeg, and business is still done in the original building. As the business increased, branch offices were opened, and there are now fifteen such branches throughout the city.

Each article pawned costs about 6 cents for administration, and about $25,000 per annum is lost on articles pawned which do not pay more than 4 per cent interest.

It appears to be the custom of some people in Holland to pawn their best clothes on Monday morning, redeem them on the Saturday night following and repay them on the following Monday, securing their use for the Sunday outing. Over 40 per cent of the business of the pawnshop consists of this class of pledges.

The revenue is derived from interest on pledges, to 10 cents charged on each loan for administering expenses, amounts received from the sale of pledges and rent of parts of the building owned by the pawnshop.

The minimum advanced on any article is 16 cents and the maximum $201. The interest paid runs from 6 per cent to 13 per cent. The amount of interest collected is regulated every three years, so that the bank will not receive at any time more than 3 per cent on the capital invested.—Consular Reports.

The Arabs of Syria.

Among the Arabs of Syria a man changes his name after the birth of his eldest son, assuming the name which has been bestowed upon the heir, with the prefix Abu, meaning "father of." Thus, if the son is called Fudle Allah, "God's bounty," the father will be henceforth known as Abu Fudle Allah, "father of God's bounty." In like manner the mother would become known as Em Fudle Allah, "mother of God's bounty." This custom is not merely one of common speech, but extends to all occasions and even to legal documents. Still more strangely, even when a man though married has no son the courtesy of oriental society demands that he should be addressed as Abu Saïm or Abu Mahmoud, after an imaginary son whom politeness confers upon him.

Cashed Her Bouquets.

A young woman walked into a well known florist's and, motioning one of the men aside, said a few words in a low voice. They stepped back to the desk, and he gave her some money. Some time after she had left he said to one of the other men: "Did you notice that girl? Mr. B left a standing order to send her a box of flowers every Saturday. He's away just now, and when she sees something that she had rather have than her weekly bouquet she comes in here and cashes her flowers, so to speak. She's not the only one either."—New York Sun.

Nature's Spirit Level.
Nature forestalled the invention of the spirit level. We use nature's spirit level to retain our balance. This device consists of semicircular canals or channels hollowed out in connection with the ear and bones of the head and filled with a fluid lymph. This fluid flows and ebbs in these channels and by so doing informs the brain of the position of the body. If we move the head on one side the fluid flows that way and notifies the brain we are far beyond the perpendicular. If it were not for this remarkable spirit level we should never know until we had fallen that the body was tilted to a dangerous angle, or that we were losing our balance.

The general postoffice at Paris once received a letter addressed "To Monsieur, My Son, Rue —," etc. They were going to send it to what in France corresponds to our dead letter office, but a clerk objected. "There must be two fools in that family," he said. "We shall find out to whom it belongs."

Sure enough, in a few days a stupid looking youth entered and said to the clerk:

"I'd like to find out if you haven't kept here a letter for me from my father."

"Yes, sir," replied the clerk. "Here it is."
