JAMES-LIPSCOMB ANNOUNCEMENT

The Marriage Will Take Place on June the Eighth.

On Wednesday afternoon at her home on Greene street, Mrs. H. A. White informally entertained six of her young lady friends to announce the engagement of her niece, Miss Mary James, to Mr. W. T. Lipscomb, Jr. The young ladies invited had no intimation of what was in store for them, simply being asked to "come around with their sewing" and spend a while, and the suspicions of neither was aroused as they arrived and found others there.

After spending an hour together with their needles and chatting, the hostess asked them to repair to the dining room with her. As they were passing across the hall and heard from the piano a few strains of "Here Comes the Bride" the first intimation came of what was in store, and entering the room the secret was revealed. The room had been beautifully decorated, everything being in pink, the table, flowers, napkins, place cards, cream and cake all being of this color.

Above the table was suspended a huge wedding bell, and at each plate were heart-shaped place cards, one bearing the initials "J. L." and the other "June 8th." There were individual pink cakes on which were two other small heart-shaped cards tied with pink ribbon, one of these bearing the names of the couple and the other the date for the marriage. The napkins also bore the same letters in a heart, these with the cards all being hand painted.

When all had taken their places around the table the hostess offered a toast to the coming bride, each of the guests following with a toast, all of which were appropriately responded to by the bride-elect.

The announcement carries with it much interest, for the young couple are well known. Miss James is a daughter of Col. and Mrs. F. G. James and Mr. Lipscomb is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lipscomb. Both have a host of friends who will extend them many good wishes.

The Orphan Concert.

The singing class of the Oxford Orphanage asylum gave their concert Wednesday night in Memorial Baptist church and rendered an excellent program. The audience was very large, filling the church to standing room. The collection amounted to $72.40, which added to the amount received at the stockholders meeting of the Farmer Consolidated Tobacco Company, made a total of $105. The Oxford asylum is doing a great work and Greenville people are always glad for the singing class to come here on its annual tour.

Land Sale Near Greenville.

105 acres or more—wood land lying within 100 yards of the corporate limits of the town of Greenville, for sale Monday, April 25, 1910, being known as the lands of the late Frank Johnston, deceased.

Meeting in Methodist Church.

The meeting in the Methodist church is growing in interest. Services are held twice each day, at 3:30 and 7:45 p. m. Rev. J. A. Parker is a strong preacher, and his excellent singing is also much enjoyed by the congregations.

STATE NEWS.

Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Raleigh, April 20.—Cobb Withers, murderer of John Leary in Mecklenburg county, will not be electrocuted in the state prison here tomorrow, Governor Kitchin having today announced a reprieve until Wednesday, May 27.

Charlotte, April 20.—Colonel Paul Barringer Means, for forty years one of North Carolina's most prominent attorneys, and a gallant ex-Confederate soldier, a native of Cabarrus county, passed peacefully away this afternoon at one o'clock at the Presbyterian hospital, where he was brought from his home in Concord two weeks ago in the hope that his life might be prolonged in spite of the dangerous malady which had seized upon his aged frame. He was 66 years old.

There has just been equipped at the State prison a library of 447 volumes for the use of prisoners. It is conveniently located and has writing and reading room adjacent. The convicts are allowed certain hours for the library conditioned on good behavior. The central prison now has eighty prisoners in the regular convict department and fifty-four in the criminal insane department. There are about 800 convicts out on contract work and at work on the farms.

Mr. Blow Resigned From Committee.

F. C. Harding, Esq., Chm. Dem. Ex. Com. of Pitt Co. Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir: Having announced myself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of Senator for Pitt county, I do not deem it proper to serve as a member of the committee which fixes the time for holding the primaries and county convention to nominate the candidate, and which determines the manner and method of conducting such primaries and convention. I therefore, hereby tender my resignation as a member of the central executive committee. I deem it not improper to say that I have no suggestions to make as to whether the committee shall order a voting primary or a delegated convention, and I beg that in passing upon these important questions that the committee will have in view only the interest of the party and will adopt that method which, in the judgment of the committee, will give the greater degree of satisfaction to the Democratic voters.

Very respectfully yours,

Alex. L. Blow.

Federal Grand Jury.

The following compose the grand jury at this term of the Federal court: C. S. Carr, Pitt county, foreman; C. E. Bateman, Washington; N. T. Everett, Martin; J. F. Harris, Hyde; V. P. Fleming, Pitt; J. B. Johnston, Pitt; J. J. Carson, Pitt; Charles Respass, Beaufort; Albert Miller, Beaufort; J. L. Wynn, Martin; Thos. Davenport, Washington; W. W. Mason, Beaufort; P. Lee, Martin; Paul Spruill, Washington; George N. Jackson, Washington; George N. Jackson, Washington; Crawford Spruill, Tyrell; R. D. Adams, Beaufort; W. H. Stancill, Beaufort.—Washington News.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

WOODLAND ITEMS.

Woodland, N. C., April 20.—Miss Linie McLawhon is spending a few days with her aunt, Miss Hope Craft, near Renston.

W. A. Nobles and son, Luke, went to help organize a Sunday school at Froglevel, which in future will be known as Glendale. The school will be held at 3 o'clock each Sunday afternoon.

People are having a fine time this week setting out tobacco.

Owing to bad weather our crowd was small at Woodland Sunday school last Sunday.

J. L. Nobles went to Kinston Saturday evening to visit his daughter, Miss Mollie, who was taken to the hospital.

A. W. Barber is very much pleased with his young plow boy.

Mrs. W. R. W. Nobles and daughter, Miss Adelaide, went to Ayden Monday evening to visit her daughter Mrs. G. W. Dail.

Trade Report.

Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity:

The condition of trade this week is generally termed irregular, some lines showing activity, while others are quiet. Collections are reported slow in practically every line. Wholesale dealers in hats, caps and kindred lines have their travelers out with fall samples and report ordering up to expectations. Wholesalers of shoes and rubber goods report good orders for future shipments. Those engaged in all lines of the tobacco industry report activity. Produce is quiet, however shipments of spring vegetables from North Carolina to northern markets are noted. Dry goods are quiet. Dealers in seeds and fertilizers report active ordering. Retail trade is fair.

CROP REPORT.

In some sections frost has injured the fruit crops and cool weather has retarded crop growth this week. Winter wheat is reported in good condition. Corn planting is in progress and farmers are preparing for a fair cotton acreage.

Fishes up a Safe Containing $60,000.

A large steel safe, containing diamonds and money estimated to be worth between $50,000 and $60,000, lost in a hurricane and tidal wave which destroyed the town and seaport of Indianola, in Calhoun, Tex., in 1875, has been recovered from the gulf. Indianola was situated on Powderhorn Peninsula, extending from the gulf. The safe was owned by James Williams, a jeweler, who packed all his valuables and money in the safe, which with his home was swept to sea. He and his daughter lost their lives.

It was said at the time the safe contained $75,000 worth of jewels and money, and for many years a reward of $10,000 was offered for information of the treasure.

Frank Bauer, who has systematically searched for the treasure for many years, located it nearly a mile from the site of the Williams home. It was in about twenty feet of water and buried several feet in the sand. By a magnet the chest was located three weeks ago and divers uncovered it.—Galveston Dispatch, 19th.

The Drum Corps.

The J. Bryan Grimes Drum Corps is practicing again, after being disbanded during the winter months, and it will be in fine trim by May 10th.

THE CENSUS QUESTIONS.

A List of the Questions Census Agents Will Ask at Every House.

For the convenience of the public and to facilitate the work of the census enumerators we publish below a list of the questions which will be asked the head of every household.

If you expect to be away from home when the census enumerator calls, fill out the blank spaces and leave the list at home.

The questions follow:

1. On what street do you live?
2. What is your name?
3. What was your age on your last birthday, preceding April 15, 1910?
4. Are you single, married, widowed, or divorced?
5. How many years have you been married?
6. Where were you born? If in the United States, state the state or territory. If you were born in a foreign land, state the name of such country and mother tongue.
7. Where was your father born? If in the United States, state the state or territory. If born in a foreign land state the name of such country and mother tongue.
8. Where was your mother born. If in the United States, state the state or territory. If born in a foreign land state the name of such country and mother tongue.
9. In what year did you immigrate into the United States?
10. Are you a naturalized citizen, or an alien? What is your trade or profession?
11. Do you speak English? If not, what language do you speak?
12. What is your occupation, and general nature of industry at which you work?
13. Are you an employer, employee, or work on account?
14. Were you at work, or not, on April 15, 1910?
15. How many weeks were you out of work during the year 1909?
16. Are you able to read?
17. Are you able to write?
18. Do you own your home or rent same?
19. Is your home owned free, or mortgaged?
20. Is it a farm, or house?
21. Are you a survivor of the union, or confederate army or navy?
22. Are you blind in both eyes?
23. Are you deaf and dumb?

PACTOLUS ITEMS.

Pactolus, N. C., April 21.—Miss Estelle Tipper, who has just returned from Lynchburg, is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. J. P. Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Washington spent Friday night here visiting friends.

Miss Corrine Ward is in town visiting her sister, Mrs. J. J. Satterthwaite.

There was preaching at the Baptist church Sunday morning. The subject was missions, discussed under three heads, command, faith and need. Elder Vernon spoke in such a way that all who heard him could see the need of missions. He showed us from statistics that all people that belong to any religion were not equal to the number of heathens. Those that cannot go as missionaries should give more liberally.

We hope it will stay cloudy through tonight, or there may be a big frost in the morning.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

J. L. Fountain, of Asheville, was in town today.

W. R. Whichard, of Norfolk, came in Wednesday evening.

Miss Lucille Cobb returned Wednesday evening from Scotland Neck.

Paul Clodfelter, of Winston, came in Wednesday evening to visit Hugh Ragsdale.

Miss Allie Rives went to Robersonville Wednesday afternoon, where she will spend sometime with relatives.

Mrs. Albion Dunn, of Scotland Neck, came in Wednesday evening to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cobb.

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Rumley and children, of Fairfield, came in Wednesday evening to visit Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Haskett.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Knights of Pythias meet to night.

Rumor is booking several weddings for June.

April is giving us some of the cold showers today.

Tomorrow is the last of the cleaning up days for the week.

The April term of Pitt Superior court will begin next Monday.

Old Hotel Macon does not look like its former self since being repaired and newly painted.

The "Embroidery Club" will meet with Misses Sheridan and Knight tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock.

The board of county commissioners held a special meeting today looking after the new court house and jail matters.

If you see a man carrying two umbrellas, possibly one is for sunshine and the other for rain. You can hardly tell which is coming.

Out of Business.

The board of commissioners of the town of Thomasville have made good. They passed an ordinance requiring the beer saloon of the town to close at six o'clock. They had statements from citizens who were willing to make affidavit that the thing was a nuisance after night fall. The saloon man complained that he could not make a living out of the business if the night hours were cut out, and offered to surrender his license if that part of the money he paid for his license not yet expired would be returned to him. This the board promptly agreed to do, and did. So we have no near-beer joint now.

Weaker men would have yielded to the pressure to recede from the position they had taken, but the board stood pat and hence the happy riddance of an evil that was constantly growing more dangerous and deadly. All honor to these guardians of the peoples rights! They have done well, and the good citizens of the town will give them honor instead of rebuke. It matters little what others may do or say.—Charity and Children.

What He Lacked.

"They tell me," said the innocent maid, "that your marriage was the result of love at first sight. Is it true?" "It is," answered the round shouldered man sadly. "And I been gifted with second sight I'd still be in the bachelor class"—Chicago Record-Herald.

There are eleven drops on the arch and they will be lighted tonight. If this test arch comes up to expectation others will be placed on Evans street and Dickinson avenue.

STALKED BY VULTURES.

While a Man Trilled a Buck the Birds Followed the Man.

"I met with a curious and not altogether pleasant experience," writes an Anglo-Indian correspondent who has done a good deal of large and small game shooting in India. "When I was one day stalking a black buck. Between me and my quarry lay a large flat field of black cotton soil bordered by a very low, straggling and thinly growing hedge of small babul trees. My only way to get a shot was to cross this, keeping the bushiest tree between me and the buck, which had not much to browse on and was therefore seldom motionless. I proceeded to do the hundred yards on the flat of my stomach. This on loose, hard baked black cotton soil was no joke. I pushed my rifle on ahead. Then, wriggling past it until the muzzle was near my knee, I would pass it on in front again, and so on.

"Progress was slow, and I was so absorbed that I failed to observe shadows crossing and recrossing my path and circling around until I had gone some fifty yards. Then the whirring of wings attracted my ears, and almost at the same moment a vulture landed on the ground not twenty yards away. I looked up. The air was alive with these repulsive looking birds. Then it flashed across me that I was being stalked! Doubtless these birds were attracted by my extraordinary method of procedure and mistook me for a wounded or dying man making a final effort to reach some shady spot. This was especially possible, as the experience occurred in a famine district where deaths by the wayside were not infrequent. By looking up I had evidently shown myself to the buck, for he was now off at full tilt. I therefore took pot shot at the vulture at twenty yards, but did not allow for the sighting sufficiently and missed him. The thought of being waited for by a flock of vultures while very much alive and well was, to say the least, uncanny."—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Bird's Tail.

In his "Story of the Birds" James Newton Baskett says: To a slight extent in some birds the tail may be used as a rudder, but where the wing is perfected turning is effected with a very scant tail. The use of the tail always has more reference to the up and down movements than to the lateral. It comes into play in alighting (as a brake) or in rising (as a kite-like surface) and is used dexterously by the soaring birds in balancing themselves against gusting currents of air.

THURSDAY, APR. 21, 1910

These frost feeling mornings are giving the fruit crop a scare.

The census man is supposed to let nobody escape, but some may dodge him.

North Carolina lost a good and able man in the death of Col. Paul B. Means, of Concord, which occurred Wednesday.

The first of May is not far away. An unpaid poll tax then means no vote for the delinquent when election day comes.

If the investigation congress has started breaks up speculation in cotton futures, it will be something for which the South will have cause to feel thankful.

The admission of John W. Gates to stay out of politics unless you have a barrel of money, is good advice in these times when candidates are almost "bled to death."

The high cost of living is not as much responsible as the cost of high living.—Greensboro News.

This is certainly putting it good,

They believe in perpetuating the Smith name out in the West. In Spokane, Washington John Smith wed Mary Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Smith. The ushers, groomsmen and bride's maids were all named Smith, and about three thousand Smith's from neighboring States were in attendance. Come to think about it seriously, we expect Pitt county could show about that many Smiths.

At the request of the State board of health next Sunday will be observed as sanitary Sunday in North Carolina, by the ministers of the various denominations preaching a special sermon on sanitation and the prevention of disease. This is an important matter and one upon which the people need instruction. The question of health is one that concerns everybody, and the ministers do well to speak on this matter to their congregations.

Greenville certainly held a gathering of well pleased farmers, Wednesday, who were here to attend the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers' Consolidated Tobacco Company. To receive a cash dividend of 15 percent, making a total of 141 percent the company has paid in seven years, was enough to please them. The Reflector has several times referred to the Farmer's Consolidated Tobacco Company as the best organization the farmers have ever had, and our faith in it grows stronger as each year goes by. It fully demonstrates what the farmers can do when they come together to do business for themselves. Not only have the stockholders of the company made money for themselves, but the company has helped every tobacco farmer in Eastern North Carolina. It is no wonder that the company grows in strength and popularity every year.

Drunkenness no Excuse.

When a man of good standing and peaceable disposition except when intoxicated, and who at times gets on protracted sprees, commits a violent assault, threatening to kill while on one of his debauches, should the fact that he was under the influence of liquor at the time be any excuse before the law for his conduct? The law says drunkenness cannot excuse crime. Why then should the law be appealed to in a case of this kind to let the offending person go unpunished? Would not the friends of such a person do him a greater service by allowing him to be punished for an outrageous offense committed while under the influence of liquor—an offense which he would not stoop to while sober?

The best course to save such a man from himself, as well as to protect the public from his violence when he is drinking would be to inflict such severe punishment on him for infraction of the law as would make him afraid to drink. Knowing what effect intoxicants had on himself and feeling sure that severe punishment would follow a breach of the peace committed when drunk would be more apt to deter such a man from drinking than the leniency of the courts and the moral lecturing of judges.

There would be fewer crimes committed by men while under the influence of liquor if it were thoroughly understood that drunkenness in fact as well as in law was no excuse for crime.—Charlotte Observer.

STOMACH DEAD MAN STILL LIVES
People who suffer from sour stomach, fermentation of food, distress after eating and indigestion, and seek relief in large chunks of artificial digestors are killing their stomachs by inaction just as surely as the victim of morphine is poisoning and injuring beyond repair every nerve in his body.
What the stomach of every sufferer from indigestion needs is a good prescription that will build up his stomach, put strength, energy and elasticity into it, and make it sturdy enough to digest a hearty meal without artificial aid.
The best prescription for indigestion ever written is sold by druggists everywhere and by C. Ward & Wooten, and is rigidly guaranteed to build up the stomach and cure indigestion, or money back.

Terms amount to very little—glittering promises cover a multitude of faults—you can get satisfactory terms anywhere, but a satisfactory piano at a precious few places.

We have 8 makes under grades and classification as follows: highest medium and low. Each grade is characterized by the price we ask for it. Whatever price you are willing to pay for a piano, if bought from us, you will be getting legitimate value, as you won't be deceived in the grade you are getting. We have several self-player Pianos at bargain prices.

A Cold Storage In Your Home
You can not be too careful in buying a refrigerator, as much of the illness in some families can be traced directly to using insanitary refrigerators. We have carefully investigated all the many makes of refrigerators, and have selected a line which we can positively guarantee to be the cleanest and most sanitary refrigerators made. No germs are possible with the smooth, seamless surface, and they can be kept spotless and germless for years to come. One of these refrigerators will soon pay for itself in saving of ice bills. Before you buy let us show you our complete line of perfectly constructed refrigerators. They cost no more than the ordinary kind.

WORD CURIOSITIES.

Some of the Oddities Found in the English Language.

It is perhaps only natural that a language made up of so many heterogeneous elements as is our own should abound in curiosities not to be found in a language whose development was little influenced by outside sources or in a scientifically constructed tongue like Esperanto or Volapuk. Certain it is that a knowledge of these curiosities brings with it something of fascination and serves to endear to us our curious old language.

Noticeable is the fact that words which rhyme perfectly may have altogether different terminations, as the words "gnosis" and "miso," and that words which terminate similarly not infrequently fail to rhyme, as in the case of "brides" and "cantharides."

In "suspicion," "remission" and "contrition" we have three words in which the final "ion" is preceded in each case by a different consonant, but as the "t" and "c" both take the sound of "s" these words all rhyme perfectly. Further investigation reveals the interesting fact that, whereas there is a great variety of words ending in "tion" and "sion" only five bear the termination "cion." These five are "scion," "coercion," "suspicion," "spicination" and "internection." "Epinicion," meaning a song of victory, and "internection," meaning slaughter, are not in common use, but the other three words are familiar to all. It is perhaps worthy of remark that of words bearing the phonetically similar ending "tion" there are over 100 examples.

The termination "dous" is, however, even more exclusive than "cion," as it is borne by just four English words. These are "stupendous," "tremendous," "hazardous" and "horrendous." Curiously, all the words in this latter group are adjectives, while the former group is composed entirely of nouns.

It seems somewhat strange to speak of beheading a word of one syllable and leaving a word of two syllables, but there are several monosyllables that admit of this possibility. If we behead either "aged," "raged" or "waged," used as monosyllables, we have the word "aged," which, when used as an adjective, is pronounced with two syllables. "Staged," twice beheaded, leaves the same result. Better yet, behead "vague" or "Hague" or twice behead "plague," and we have "ague," which admits of only bisyllabic pronunciation. Likewise "shrugged" twice beheaded leaves the different word "rugged."

There are over 1,300 words in our language ending with the long "e" sound, such as "tree," etc. But even this remarkable showing is eclipsed by words ending in "ess," as there are 1,400 of these.

From the citation of these two cases it might be inferred that the poet has a sinecure to select a rhyme for any word he chooses to employ. But such is not always the case. Exclusive of the ordinal numerals, most of which are unrhymable, there are more than sixty words that have no rhyme. Well known examples of these include such words as "gulf," "month," "orange," "scarce," "silver," "window," "warmth," "spoil" and "wasp." — Harold M. Haskell in New York Tribune.

The Orchestra.

Modern "orchestras" never revert to the etymological and historical significance of their name. An "orchestra" was properly a dancing place—the space between the stage and the auditorium, where the ancient Greek chorus went through its evolutions. Then, in Roman times, when the chorus had retired to the stage and finally disappeared, the name meant that part of the house where the senators sat, the front seat, so that Juvenal even speaks of the senate as "the orchestra." And then when the band took up its place before the stage "orchestra" came to mean what it does today. It is not the only word from which the dancing associations have vanished. "Chorus," itself originally meant a dance, and a "ballad" was a dance song, "ballare" meaning in late Latin to dance.

The Difference.

A nobleman against whom insanity was imputed by his relatives was asked during examination by Lord Loughborough, "How many legs has a sheep?" "How many does your lordship mean a live or a dead sheep?" asked the nobleman. "Is it not the same thing?" said the chancellor. "No, my lord; there is much difference. A live sheep has four legs, a dead sheep but two. The others are shoulders!" — London Teller.

HIS SYSTEM.

The Old Married Man Imparted It to His Nephew.

The man who had been married twenty years had the calm expression of one lifted above the ordinary troubles of life as he listened to the plaint of his nephew, John. "She's been home with her folks more'n two weeks now," John complained. "We haven't been married but two years, and this is the third visit she's made. I'm willing to have her go, but I want she should come home at the end of a fortnight. But if I write and beg of her to hurry she'll more'n likely stay a few days longer yet, just to show her independence."

"M'm! Did you ever know your Aunt Mary to stay away longer'n we expected while you lived with us?" asked his uncle.

"No," said John. "She usually came home a day sooner than she'd promised, I remember."

"M'm!" said his uncle. "Just so. Well, that was the result of my system. She's never known it, but I'll tell you, as you seem to be in straits."

"Four or five days before time for her to come home I'd send a kind of a test piece to her. Sometimes 'twould be a remark asking her if she'd heard the news about one or another. Sometimes 'twould be the news column, chopped off right in the most interesting place. Sometimes I'd refer to a letter I'd had and not say what 'twas about. There's a lot of such things coming handy when you look for 'em."

"Well, soon as she could get a return mail to me she'd ask about the thing and tell me to be sure and write more particulars next day. And some way or other next day was always so busy I'd just have time for a note or maybe a postal, saying, 'All well; no news.' And next day I wouldn't have time to write even that much."

"'Twas always the day after that she came home; yes, sir, the morning of the day after."

"Now, there's a chance for variety in my system. You've got to study the subject of the experiment, so to speak, and adapt the system, but you'll find it'll work every time 'less the girl you're got is different from any I ever saw." — Youth's Companion.

Making Them All One.

An elderly minister is fond of telling of a "break" he once made at a double wedding of two sisters. It was arranged that the two couples should be married with one ceremony, the two brides responding at the same time and the two bridegrooms doing the same. There had not been a previous rehearsal, as the minister had come a long distance and had reached the church but a few minutes before the time for the ceremony.

All went well until it came time for the minister to say, "And now I pronounce you man and wife."

It suddenly became obvious to the minister that the usual formula would not do in the case of two men and two wives, and he could not think of any way of making "man" and "wife" plural in the sentence. In his desperation and confusion he lifted his hands and said solemnly:

"And now I pronounce you, one and all, husband and wife!"

Mark Twain's First Earnings.

Mark Twain was once asked by a friend if he remembered the first money he had ever earned.

"Yes," answered Mr. Clemens, puffing meditatively on his cigar. "I have a distinct recollection of it. When I was a youngster I attended school at a place where the use of the birch rod was not an unusual event. It was against the rules to mark the desks in any manner, the penalty being a fine of $5 or public chastisement. Happening to violate the rule on one occasion, I was offered the alternative. I told my father, and, as he seemed to think it would be too bad for me to be publicly punished, he gave me the $5. At that period of my existence $5 was a large sum, while a whipping was of little consequence, and so"—here Mr. Clemens reflectively knocked the ashes from his cigar—"well," he finally added, "that was how I earned my first $5."

The Cat Went Back.

Mr. Penn—They say the streets in Boston are frightfully crooked.

Mr. Hubb—They are. Why, do you know, when I first went there I could hardly find my way around.

"That must be embarrassing?"

"It was. The first week I was there I wanted to get rid of an old cat we had, and my wife got me to take it to the river a mile away."

"And you lost the cat all right?"

"Lost nothing! I never would have found my way home if I hadn't followed the cat!" — Yonkers Statesman.

THE OLD VIOLIN.

A Rapid Change of Base by the Man Who Owned It.

Money talks just as loudly in the realm of music as anywhere else. The despised violin, which merely is an incumbrance when it is thought to be worth not more than $10, becomes the chief ornament of the household when an expert says it is worth not less than $1,000. In Chicago there is a business man who owns a violin. He inherited it from his father, who was a musician. The business man does not play. One of his friends is a lover of violin music. That friend often had told the business man the violin was a good one and that he ought to treasure it. The business man regarded the advice as that of an enthusiast. One day the argument became so warm the friend insisted that the question be settled at once by carrying the instrument to a professor of music who is admittedly an authority on violins.

"Why, I wouldn't carry that violin through the street for anything," the business man said. "My friends would think I had gone music mad in my old age."

"I'll carry it," his friend said quickly. "I'm not ashamed to carry a violin anywhere. Come along."

They went. The professor was at home. The back and the belly, the neck and the bridge, the tail-piece and the sounding post all passed beneath his critical eye. "It looks all right," the professor said. From the case he drew the bow and ran the hair several times across the cake of rosin. Then, striking A on a nearby piano, he proceeded to tune the instrument which for so many years had been held in so light esteem by its owner. After the violin was in tune he tested it, string by string, chord by chord, and harmonic by harmonic, in all positions. Then he began to play. The fullness, the richness and sweetness of the tone appealed even to the matter of fact business man.

"It is a genuine old Italian instrument, and I'll give you $1,000 for it," the professor said. The business man gasped.

"I'll tell you frankly, it is worth more than that, but that is all I can afford to pay," the professor continued.

"I can't think of selling it," the business man replied, with a halt in his speech. "You see, it came to me from my father. It is an heirloom. I thank you, however, for the test you have made and the good opinion you have expressed."

The two men started away from the home of the professor, the business man carrying the violin.

"Let me take it," his musical friend said. "You might meet some one you know."

"I'll carry it," the business man retorted. "I don't care how many friends I meet. And, besides, you might drop it." — Chicago Inter Ocean.

Nelson's Only Defeat.

Nelson, like all the greatest commanders on sea or land, made his mistakes and his failures, but there is only one instance on record of his having been actually defeated in a direct attack. This occurred at Santa Cruz, in the Canary islands, on July 24, 1797. The place was very strongly fortified, and Nelson, in the face of a fire of fifty guns from the batteries, attempted to storm the town by boats. The attempt was frustrated by the strength of the mole and the non-appearance of a land force which should have co-operated. A hundred and fifty men were killed and a hundred wounded on the British side, and Nelson lost his right arm. Two flags were also captured, and these are still kept in the Cathedral of Santa Cruz.

Why Teakwood Is Durable.

The teak, which has passed into proverb as the best material for shipbuilding, is superior to all other woods from the fact that it contains an essential oil which prevents spikes and nails driven into it from rusting. This property is not possessed by any other wood in the world and furnishes an explanation of the fact that ships built of teak are practically indestructible. Some have been known to last for 150 years, and when broken up their beams were as sound as when first put together.

What Weeping Means.

Tears are the result of a nervous storm in the central nervous system, under which there is such a change in the vascular terminals of the tear secreting glands that the excretion of water from the glands is profuse. Some excretion is always in progress in order that the surface of the eye may be laved and cleared of foreign matters which may come in contact with it, but the controlling center is at a distance.

A GHOST AT SEA.

The Phantom That Boarded the Bark Sea Flower.

The following incident is recorded as a true short story by an English publication:

The Sea Flower, a bark of some 450 tons, was in the early hours of the 23d of June, 1864, bound for Bristol, England, under the command of the first mate, her captain, John Ellis, having been left behind at Kingston, Jamaica, suffering from "yellow jack." It was about four bells in the middle watch (or 2 a. m.) when the mate, who was standing near the binnacle giving the helmsman his course, suddenly became aware of a mysterious presence in the waist of the ship. At the same moment his companion clutched him by the arm, and, pointing, shrieked: "D'y'e see him, sir?"

Before he could reply the mate became aware that the dark shadow he had just before observed had so far materialized that it bore the appearance of Captain Ellis. The figure of the captain advanced along the deck and disappeared slowly down the companion.

Recovering himself, the mate left the helmsman and hurried down into the cabin, meeting, just coming out of it, the second mate, who told him he had been awakened with a start after dreaming that the captain had come aboard and was calling him. Both men then made a complete search of the saloon and the other cabins, but it is needless to say, without result.

Later it was found that Captain Ellis had died between 1 and 2 a. m. in the morning of June 23.

The story got about, and the ship obtained a reputation for being haunted; consequently a difficulty was found in obtaining crews, and in the end it was renamed and sold to a foreign firm.

The Jail.

"I am going to visit the jail. There is a man I want to see there." "Is one all? I know about forty whom I should like to see there." — Indianapolis News.

Right.

"Now, then, children," said the teacher, "what is it we want most in this world to make us perfectly happy?"

"The things we ain't got!" shouted the bright boy in the back seat.

ORRIS ROOT.

How It is Grown and Gathered on the Hills Near Florence.

Most people know that orris root is one of the chief ingredients of violet powder; many others are well acquainted with the strangely shaped pieces of white root that seem like dried ginger which give out the delicate and subtle scent of the violet, and perhaps the privileged few know that it is made from the roots of a kind of iris.

"Never have I seen the cultivation of the iris and the preparation of orris root to such perfection as last summer in the Tuscan Apennines, where Vallombrosa lifts its pine covered head," says a writer in the London Queen. "On the sunny side of the mountain lies the whole district of the Val d'Arno, and between Saltino and Pian di Seo the entire neighborhood is given up to the cultivation of vines, olives and iris.

"Indian corn, wheat and millet find a place, but wine, oil and orris root are the three commercial industries. Pergolas of vines stretch along as far as the eye can see—vines with clusters of purple or white grapes, olives laden with green berries and under them and between them little plantations of Iris dalmatica.

"The iris, or giaggolo, as it is called in Italy, is planted thinly and allowed to grow for three years, when the roots are dug up and tied in big bundles. These are then prepared. Nearly the whole of the tuberous root is cut off, leaving only a tiny bit with fibers in order that the plant may grow when replanted, as it is at once for another three years of peace.

"The tubers are then thrown into big basins of water, and the whole family of the contadine, or peasant, sitting on the doorstep of their house or under the pergolas in the shade of the vines, begin the business of peeling them previous to their being dried in the sun for the market. Everybody is busy with the small sickle shaped knives trimming the iris root. In its fresh condition it is sold for about 20 centimes the kilo, about 2 cents a pound. But after a few days' exposure to the brilliant Italian sunshine on large wickerwork trays it loses two-thirds of its weight and is sold to the wholesale merchants at 9 cents a pound."
