ANOTHER FISH STORY.

Brother Harris May as Well Award Us the Medal for Next Year Too.

In a recent editorial The Charlotte Chronicle says, "the founding of the North Carolina Press Association Mendacity Medal is taking a grip on the boys of the press," and declares the editor of this paper the first winner of the honor. The boys in this office are proud of the honor that has been conferred upon our chief and are anxious to have him bedecked with the medal, not only for the high honor it represents and the distinction it would bring to the wearer, but to also give us some idea as to how the Chronicle's three deck Hoe press looks, as it will be worked in the design of the medal. As the medal was won on a fish story and the boys here are growing more and more impatient each day for fear our chief will not receive the prize he has won in competition with such men as compose the press of the State, we produce another fish story in the hope that Col. Harris will hurry and send the medal over.

Clell Hegler, the 5 year-old son of Mr. W. H. Heglar, mail carrier on route 6, set his fishing line night before last in one of the streams near his home. Yesterday his father went to the stream and pulled the line in. There were two fish on the hook, one small cat fish and one large one. The small fish was caught on the hook, while the large one was caught on the small fish.

The small fish was evidently caught on the hook first and the large one came along and probably thinking the small fish was bait took hold. The fins of the small fish caught in the gills of the large one and held him secure until they were both pulled out of the stream yesterday morning. Send the medal along, Col. Harris.—Concord Tribune.

Summer Not to be Extra Hot.

Every fat man in town ought to rise right up and give three whoops. Weather Man says it won't be a hot summer, that is, as far as that 75 year streak of light is concerned. Baseball fans will kindly whistle three times, cross their fingers and hold their breaths, for mark: There will be storms, showers and sprinkles.

Poets can sharpen their wits and their pencils and prepare to dope out some sunrise and sunset bubbles. Every time that the comet nods its head and wags its tail, why, there is going to be some weather. Don't cuss the comet, though, for these charming April showers that the Commonwealth is wading through. It doesn't know anything about them, thinks the weather man. The weather has been abnormal, he confided; seven and one-half inches of rain since the 16th of the month; more than ever, according to the record.

The particle of the comet's tail discharged into space will be favorable for the formation of clouds and rain, he declares. There will probably be all kinds of sunsets and sunrises that the comet will be mixed up in, but he will tell more about that later.—Baltimore Sun.

One Day of Civil Court.

The April term of criminal court ended Saturday evening, and the May civil term opened this morning. There was not much business for the latter and the work was completed in one day, adjournment for the term being had this afternoon.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

For April Term of Pitt Superior Court.

We, the grand jury, submit the following report:

We have inquired into the conduct of the people and have presented all violators of the law that have come to our knowledge.

We have visited and closely inspected the court house and find the several offices in excellent condition considering circumstances.

We have also visited the county home and find everything in good condition except of medical attention.

Also the convict camp in good condition. We would recommend that the shackles be placed on their legs so as not to make sores on them.

Were it not for the efficiency of our able solicitor, Hon. Chas. L. Abernethy, the grand jury could not have made the progress they have under the existing circumstances as above reported. B. F. Manning, Foreman.

Winterville High School.

The Reflector has received an invitation to the commencement exercises of Winterville High school May 18th, 19th and 20th. The annual sermon will be delivered by Rev. R. A. McFarland, of Scotland Neck, at 8 p. m. May 18th; the exercises of the graduating class will take place at 8 p. m. on the 19th; literary address by Hon. T. W. Bickett at 10:30 a. m., on 20th; debate by Vance Literary society at 2:30 p. m. on 20th; concert by Philo-Altan Literary society at 7:30 p. m. on 20th. Such a program as this promises much interest.

Government Cuts Wires.

New York, April 30.—Special agents of the United States government today cut telegraph wires leading to every bucket shop in New York and Jersey City. This, the last and most drastic move, was immediately followed by the arrest of Frank Moyer, who has been furnishing stock quotations service. A raid was also made on the office of T. Morrian and Company, members of stock exchange but who are charged with operating bucket shops.

Her Idea of Drowning.

A little girl in conversing with some of her little friends Sunday, while expressing her views of the horrors of being drowned was overheard to make the remark: "I don't want to be drowned, for the fishes might eat me and then I would have to stay out of Heaven until the fishes were caught and eaten by somebody else and then they were to die and go to Heaven, or if to the other place I would not get there at all."

Annual B. & L. Meeting.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of The Home Building and Loan Association of Greenville, will be held in the mayor's office Tuesday night, May 3rd, at 8:15 o'clock. Every stockholder should be present. The directors are called to hold their last meeting before the annual meeting at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, in the office of the secretary.

STATE NEWS.

Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

After being refused an increase in their wages about 20 of the machinists who were employed at the Norfolk and Southern machine shops in this city laid down their tools Friday afternoon and informed the foreman of the shop that they had decided to quit work until the increase in wages had been forth coming. Up to the present time however there has been no intimation on the part of the officials to grant their request and they are still out.—New Bern Journal.

It was announced from the general offices in this city yesterday that the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company has increased, on an average of about six per cent., the salaries of clerks, agents, and other employees who receive $125 per month or less. This increase is effective May 1st, 1910, and applies to several thousand people.—Wilmington Star.

The Fishing Fever.

I hear the call of the babbling brook, and I look around for a line and hook. I'd cut out labor for half a day, and go and fish in the good old way. But alas! I'm old, and I rather hate, the tiresome matter of digging bait; and the creek is more than two miles away—the creek where the trout and suckers play; and a man must sit in discomfort there, for there's not a sign of an easy chair; and the man who's running the woodland green, forgot to put up a mosquito screen. When I was young it was fun to wend to the fishing place with a schoolboy friend. The world was brighter and fairer then—or so it seems to the grayhaired men; then streamlets gurgled o'er whiter stones; the fish were better, with fewer bones; the logs and bowlders on which we sat were soft as plush—but they've outgrown that. Alas, my friends, for the old, old days, and the winding streams, and the woodland ways, and the journey home when the dusk was gray—old age a million leagues away! And so I sit with my pipe and book, and hear the call of the babbling brook; but my legs are stiff and my feet are sore, and the brook must come to my cottage door.—Walt Mason.

Lightning Blows Out Lamp.

A bolt of lightning, which struck the home of Martin Raber, Jr., near York, Pa., Tuesday, while the family was at supper did a few unappreciated stunts that took the appetite of the diners. Except for fright, no one was injured.

The bolt struck the chimney, tearing off part of the roof. It followed the course of the chimney, leaving well defined marks, and entering the kitchen, put out the light in the centre of the table. When another light had been procured it was found that the family was all there and unhurt.

Textile Industries to Have Big Display.

Cincinnati, O., April 30.—Textile manufacturers of the South are showing a decided interest in the coming Ohio Valley exposition, to be held in this city from August 29 to September 24, and which is designed to exploit the products, resources and industries of the Ohio valley and the entire South. There is a conviction among the textile manufacturers that their goods have not been sufficiently exploited in this section during the past—that the Ohio valley goes much farther and does not fare as well in securing textiles as it might do if it took advantage of the industries lying practically at its doors. For that reason the Southern textile manufacturers are anxious to make an extraordinary display of their products, which, in every way, at least equal those of other sections of the country further removed from the Ohio valley. The display of textiles from the South will be selected by a special committee, representing the various railroads of the South, and made up of experts who will take every opportunity of making this feature one that will be a credit to the textile industry of America in general, and the Southern manufacturers in particular.

MONDAY, MAY 2, 1910.

Yes, it is warm now, but that is what you have been crying for.

If you did not pay your poll tax you are out of it when voting time comes.

The weather is warming up enough to make 'em scratch. A little more of it and off they'll come.

The affair in Raleigh Saturday looks like the end of machine politics is coming. The people themselves certainly have a right to be heard in such matters.

That certainly was a time they had in the mass meeting in Raleigh Saturday. Fore disgraceful conduct on the part of those trying to break up the meeting could hardly be imagined.

Bob Phillips, of the Greensboro News, is going to sing "By the Sad Sea Waves" when the press boys get together at Wrightville. May be the Wilmington Dispatch will pass the hat for Bob, too.

As spring approaches again, we would like for the Greenville Reflector to please inform us how many gurgles it takes to cure snakebite. — Greensboro News.

It depends on the size of the gurgle and the depth of the snakebite.

With the use of both "permit" and "residue" the Greenville Reflector should be able to stay at Wrightville all the summer. — Greensboro News.

The "permit" is sufficient, but as to the "residue" we must wait to hear from the Wilmington Dispatch after Cowan passes the hat.

Railway Wage Advances.

The railway wage advances, already made or to be made before the end of the year, are now estimated at $100,000,000 for the entire country. This is the figure given by President Brown of the New York Central. It includes, of course, many advances the details of which have not yet been settled.

Calculated on the Interstate Commerce Commission statistics as a basis, the wages paid to railway employes, under the new scale, will amount to $1,227,233,000 a year. This is arrived at by estimating the operating expenses of the present fiscal year from the monthly reports now available; applying the percentage of labor cost to total operating expenses in 1908, the latest year for which wage figures have been published; and adding the $100,000,000 estimated advance in wages this year. The $1,227,233,000 which, it is estimated, will be paid out to employes annually under the new scale, compared with $1,072,386,000 in the fiscal year 1907, the year which holds the record for the volume of railway business.

Wages on the railroads were not reduced after the 1907 panic, so that this year's advances are on top of those which were made in 1906 and the early part of 1907. The proportion of labor cost to total operating expenses has increased steadily for several years.

Our Home rises to remark that "if people could just realize what success is they would have no trouble in succeeding. Success is nothing more nor less than sticking to your job. Some folks can't do anything but succeed, because they don't know how to quit trying. Others can't do otherwise than fail, because they don't know how to stick." It cleverly illustrates the force of its remarks with the story of the Irish boxing match. Before entering into the conflict it was agreed upon that the word "sufficiency" uttered by either of the two should serve as evidence that the other had whipped. After a long and bloody tussle one finally muttered out "sufficiency," whereupon the other replied: "Oh, that worried, that worried! It's myself that's been trying to think of it for ten minutes." It can clearly be seen that he had whipped because he couldn't quit. This is something for the quitter to think over. — Charlotte Chronicle.

Out of retaliation for Virginia wanting to place a statue of Lee in the Hall of Fame, Kansas proposes to place a statue of John Brown there. These statues are, of course, supposed to represent the courage and the honor of a State, and if John Brown represents Kansas in that direction, Kansas should have his statue there. — Wilmington Dispatch.

FAIR EXCHANGE

A New Pack for an Old One. How it can be in Greenville

The back aches at times with a dull, indelible feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Greenville residents would do well to profit by the following example: Joseph Savage, Church street, Iarboro, N. C., says: "For some time my kidneys were disordered, the passages of the kidney secretions being scanty and at times painful. I had pains in my loins and if I stooped suddenly, sharp twinges caught me across the back, making it hard for me to sit at home. After trying a number of remedies without finding relief, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and began their use. They removed the aches and pains and regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the benefit I have derived from their use."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Their Movements When Placed in Lime Juice or Vinegar.

HAVE APPEARANCE OF LIFE.

Their Motion Is Caused by Carbonic Acid Gas Evolved by Contact With the Liquid Acid—The Cleansing Process in a Journey Over the Eyeball.

The druggist took a small bottle from a drawer and emptied from it a few tiny objects that looked like flat, round bits of polished bone. He picked up one and handed it over for inspection. One side of it was marked with numerous concentric grooves.

"That is an eyestone," said the druggist. He poured a tablespoonful or so of liquid out of a bottle into a saucer-like dish and diluted it with water. "And this," said he, "is a weak solution of lime juice." The druggist took one of the eyestones and placed it in the solution. Presently it began to move as if it were alive. It made its way slowly about in different directions in the liquid in a mysterious manner.

"That strange movement of the eyestone," said the druggist, "when placed in a weak solution of lime juice or vinegar has given rise among ignorant and superstitious people to the notion that it has life and that it loves vinegar and loves to swim in it above all things. But there is no more life in an eyestone than there is in a paving stone. It is composed of calcareous material and when placed in the solutions named is made to move about by carbonic acid gas, which is evolved by contact with the liquid acid.

"These little stones and all genuine eyestones once were the front doors, so to speak, of the shells of a little molluscous animal that lives along the South American east coasts. The shell of that little creature is a univalve. This calcareous formation is on the tip end of the mollusk, and when it draws itself into its shell to escape danger or go to sleep the end, of course, is the last part that is drawn into the cavity or mouth of the shell, where it fits so closely and is so hard that it affords perfect protection to the animal against its enemies from without.

"The natives collect these little mollusks in large numbers for no other purpose than to secure the eyestones, as we call them, and they hold them in great awe, believing them to possess supernatural attributes. Sailors on the vessels engaged in the fruit trade with those regions obtain the stones from the natives and bring them here for sale to the wholesale druggists, and there was a time when the demand for them generally was quite large.

"There is nothing better to remove foreign substances from the eye than one of these South American eyestones, which use it gives them their name. Many people think that before using them it is necessary to put them in vinegar to give them life, but it is not necessary at all. The stone is inserted at one corner of the eye, with the grooved side next to the lid. The pressure of the eyeball forces it to move about in the eye, and the grooves collect the foreign matter and retain it. After making a thorough effort of the eye the stone will come out at the corner next to the nose. No inconvenience is caused by its presence.

"There are other eyestones. In the head of our common crawfish there are two little bones, just back of and beneath the eyes, which resemble the South American eyestones, about the only difference being that they are smooth all over instead of grooved on one side. These crawfish bones are known as eyestones and are used as such in the west, but they have none of the virtues of the real eyestone. Their proper name is crab stones. In Poland and parts of Russia quite a trade is found in the collecting of these crab stones. The crawfish are taken and buried in deep pits, where they are left to die and rot. The refuse is then washed and the stones are picked out. They are not used in those countries as eyestones, but are taken internally, faith in their beneficent stomachic properties being great."—New York Press.

Easy to Arrange.

The poor but honest young man had bearded the millionaire in his den.

"Well," he said, "I want to marry your daughter."

"Impossible, sir, impossible!" exclaimed the old man. "Why, I would rather give up every pound I have than part with my only daughter."

"Oh, very well," calmly rejoined the diplomatic youth; "if that's the way you feel about it I won't be too heavy on you. Just write me out a check for a hundred thousand and we'll let it go at that."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Fireless Cooker.

"Have you ever tried a fireless cooker?"

"Yes. We've had one for six months. My wife has tried to fire her, and I've told her to go, but she simply ignores our requests and says she'll scratch the eyes out of any other girl we dare to bring into the kitchen."—Chicago Record-Herald.

PHYSICAL EXERCISE.

Do You Take Enough to Keep Your Arteries in Condition?

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in criticizing the different fads of exercise in Outlook, says: "The worst error of exercise, the most dangerous fad of physical culture, is not to take enough of it and to sneer at every form of it that does not bear the dollar mark. By one of those cynical poetic justices of nature the very men who denounce all physical culture and recreation as fads are those who pay the heaviest personal penalty for this delusion. They use the vigor they have gained in early youth in nature's open air school to chain themselves to the desk, to bury themselves in dungeon-like offices or airless workrooms twelve or fourteen hours a day. They 'feel fine' and are sure they are going to live to be a hundred, but one day, to their astonishment, a little artery whose coat has been hardened for twenty years unnoticed becomes so brittle that it snaps suddenly, and down they go with a stroke of paralysis, like a winged duck. It is never safe to jeer at the gods, whether the imaginary ones of Olympus or the real ones of modern science.

"The men who jeer loudest at physical culture and who sarcastically advise college and high school students, ambitious for gymnasia or athletic fields, to 'go and get a hockswag and a cord of wood' or a hoe and a potato patch and develop their muscles 'like I did when I was a boy' are the very ones who die suddenly when they should be in their prime for lack of exercise and open air recreation. It is really an astonishing thing how many giants of industry and transportation, particularly executive railroad men, die or suddenly go to pieces between fifty and sixty years of age. It is a common saying in railroad circles that a big general superintendent or department chief will seldom live beyond forty-eight to fifty-five years of age. Many break down before that."

JAPANESE STREETS.

They Swarm With Slideshows and Playing Children.

A Japanese street is a delightful place to play in, for grownup people in Japan do not seem to mind if the tail of a kite flaps right into their smiling faces and only laugh when they are turned out of their way by some huge pestop which hums like an angry bee around their feet. Wee, dark eyed maidens in butterfly kimonos of brilliant coloring turn their skipping ropes gayly, the tiny black heads of the babies they carry strapped to their backs bobbing up and down like small round balls. Their brothers play at "fags," which is a favorite game of theirs. They divide themselves into two parties, one carrying white flags and the other red ones. At a given signal the "reds" attack the "whites," striving to wrest away their flags, and the side which carries off most of these is proclaimed victor. Wonderful conjurers are to be found at the street corners. They make swarms of birds fly from crystal bowls and flowers spring as if by magic from slender stems of bamboo. Others show marvelous beetles harnessed with wax to paper carts or command the snakes that accompany them everywhere to perform extraordinary tricks.

A little further on you will find an old woman who is making a curious sweetmeat of beans, called "torfu," over an oval brazier, and you can buy a big slab of this wrapped up in a cool leaf for a very small sum or, if you prefer it, a piping hot griddlecake costing no more. Acrobats, too, are as common as conjurers, and surely in no other land than this quaint little Japan do they twist themselves into such strange shapes.—Home Chat.

CHAMOIS TOBoggANERS.

"Chamois toboggan down the steep white sides of the Alps with the skill of Norwegian skiers," said a millionaire. "I know," he went on, "for I have seen them do it. I spent a winter at St. Moritz, and on many a skating trip I saw a chamois lie on his back and go skimming like the wind down a white precipice—a pretty sight. The creature's paws would be folded on his breast. His head, uplifted and frowning, would keep watch. Thus he'd skim down a half mile slope, growing smaller and smaller and finally disappearing in a whirl of snow."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Parsees.

The Parsees are sun worshipers, and it is an interesting sight to see throngs of them on the shore of the bay as the sun rises, apparently from the sea, performing the simple rites of their religion, the fluttering robes showing their fine figures to the best advantage as the day begins. Their religious practices are simple in the extreme, consisting mainly in strict dietary rules and personal cleanliness. The rigid observance of sanitary laws produces the natural result of perfect health among the adults—large families of active, healthy children and immense numbers of old men, gray bearded, white haired, but erect and princely in their gait and attitude despite the naturally enervating character of the tropical climate.

Noble Effort.

"Cholly has brain fever."

"How did he get it?"

"He met a girl who kept saying, 'Just think! And Cholly tried to.'"—Pearson's Weekly.

MEN OF ACTION.

The Story of a Perilous Rescue Expedition in Alaska.

In the rush for Alaskan gold men did not forget to be ready to help the unfortunate. The author of "Trailing and Camping in Alaska," Mr. A. M. Powell, narrates an incident that occurred at Valdes. The place was overcrowded with prospectors and miners, food was scarce, and there was a good deal of sickness. Many had come over the glacier, and others had lost their lives in the attempt.

A dog team galloped up and stopped in front of the only pretense of a hotel at Valdes. The night was dark, as the northern winter nights always are when the moon is not shining. The dogs immediately lay down, almost exhausted from their long trip, and the two men were soon surrounded by inquiring friends. One of the two said:

"What do you think, fellows? Just this side of Sawmill camp we passed a woman who was pulling a sled on which was her sick husband. We remonstrated against the undertaking of crossing the glacier, but she replied that they might as well die up there as anywhere else, as it meant certain death to stop. Our dogs could only pull our outfit and there wasn't grub enough for all, so we were compelled to leave them. They will be at the last timber tonight, and if somebody does not go to their rescue they will be dead by this time tomorrow."

A man stepped out from the crowd and said:

"I'll go for one. Now, who else has a good dog team to splice in with mine?"

"I'm your huckleberry," announced another.

It was 3 o'clock in the morning before they had made their selection of dogs and were ready to start on that hazardous trip.

"There goes the best dog team in Alaska and driven by the best two men on earth!" exclaimed a man as they turned a corner and were gone.

The trail was easily followed, and soon the nine miles of level bench were passed. The speed slackened only when they were ascending the summit, which they reached by 11 that morning.

Down, down the steep descent they plunged, and by 1 o'clock were off the glacier and skipping over level ground. The poor woman had pulled the sled until she was exhausted and had sat down beside her husband. She was bidden to seat herself comfortably, while they fastened the two sleds together. Soon they were bounding away at such a rapid rate of speed that the woman wept for joy. When they recrossed the summit the whole range was "smoking" and the wind was sending the fine snow along the crust.

"Twenty miles to town, and it can never catch us," said the driver. Townsmen anxiously waited and watched the trail. As the team rushed up they were surrounded by eager, helping hands. They were saved by men not of good intentions only, but by men of instant action.

A HENRY CLAY STORY.

Fate of the Resolution Instructing Him How to Vote.

Adlai Stevenson in "Something of Men I Have Known," commenting on Henry Clay, tells this anecdote:

Possibly since the foundation of the government no statesman has been so completely idolized by his friends and party as was Henry Clay. Words are meaningless when the attempt is made to express the idolatry of the Whigs of his own state for their great chief. For a lifetime he knew no rival. His wish was law to his followers. In the realm of party leadership a greater than he hath not appeared. At his last defeat for the presidency strong men wept bitter tears. When his star set it was felt to be the signal for the dissolution of the great party of which he was the founder. In words worthy to be recalled, "when the tidings came like wailing over the state that Harry Percy's spur was cold the chivalrous felt somehow the world had grown commonplace."

The following incident along the line indicated may be considered characteristic. While Mr. Clay was a senator a resolution, in accordance with a some time custom, was introduced into the Kentucky house of representatives instructing the senators from that state to vote in favor of a certain bill then pending in congress. The resolution was in the act of passing without opposition when a hitherto silent member from one of the mountain counties, springing to his feet, exclaimed, "Mr. Speaker, am I to understand that this legislature is undertaking to tell Henry Clay how to vote?" The speaker answered that such was the purport of the resolution. At which the member from the mountains, throwing up his arms, exclaimed, "Great heaven!" and sank into his seat. It is needless to add that the resolution was immediately rejected by unanimous vote.

THE BAZZAZAZ BALK.

Kilroy's Throw to First Base While Looking at Home Plate.

"Pitchers of the present day are prone to scoff at the tales of the prowess of Matty Kilroy, better known as 'Bazzazaz,' a left handed pitcher, who performed marvels," writes Hugh S. Fullerton in the American Magazine. "Most modern pitchers declare that under present conditions Kilroy would have been a failure. The little left hander, after years of triumph, retired because his arm was hopelessly worn out. In spite of that fact Tom Burns, when he assumed charge of the Chicago club in 1898, resurrected Kilroy, whose arm was so weak, according to his own admissions, he 'couldn't break a pane of glass at fifty feet.' Yet for one season and part of another he pitched against the strongest clubs and beat them regularly.

"Kilroy's success was due almost entirely to his 'bazzazaz' balk, which he evolved by persistent training. He was the only pitcher who ever balked without balking, if such a thing is possible. In the first four innings of the first game he pitched against Baltimore after Burns resurrected him nine men reached first base. He caught six of them off the base, and, although two umpires watched every move he made, they declared that under the rules he did not balk.

"Kilroy explained to me after his permanent retirement, his system of training by which he acquired the 'bazzazaz' balk."

"I see the old soup bone was ready for the undertaker," he said, "so I goes to work on the balk. I always had a good balk motion, but wanted a better one. I spent half the winter in the side yard at home with a chalk mark on the wall for first base and another on the fence for the home plate. I practiced morning and afternoon, making from 250 to 400 throws a day with my wrist and forearm trying to hit the first base line while looking at the other one and without moving either my feet or body. By practicing I got so I could shoot the ball faster to first base with wrist and forearm than I could pitch it to the plate with a full swing. That's all there was to it. Just look straight at the plate, pull your hands up against your breast, raise your left one to the level of your ear, then drive the ball to first without looking until after it starts, and you've got him. The umpire can't see whether you look before you throw or not."

"He did get them. Probably he made 20,000 practice throws at the chalk mark, but he perfected the motion that enabled him to pitch two years after his arm was 'dead.'"

Nature's Spirit Level.

Nature forestalled the invention of the spirit level. We use nature's spirit level to retain our balance. This device consists of semicircular canals or channels hollowed out in connection with the ear and bones of the head and filled with a fluid lymph. This fluid flows and ebbs in these channels and by so doing informs the brain of the position of the body. If we move the head on one side the fluid flows that way and notifies us that we are far beyond the perpendicular. If it were not for this remarkable spirit level we should never know until we had fallen that the body was tilted to a dangerous angle or that we were losing our balance.

Identified.

The general postoffice at Paris once received a letter addressed "To Monsieur, My Son, Rue ——" etc. They were going to send it to what in France corresponds to our dead letter office, but a clerk objected.

"There must be two fools in that family," he said. "We shall find out to whom it belongs."

Sure enough, in a few days a stupid looking youth entered and said to the clerk:

"I'd like to find out if you haven't kept here a letter for me from my father."

"Yes, sir," replied the clerk. "Here it is."

Why Savages Turn In Their Toes.

In the first place, the foot naturally takes that position when it has never been confined by boots or the ankle distorted by high heels. Convenience is also on the side of the natural position of the foot in the case of the savage, for he has to do much walking through long grass and undergrowth in forests. Consequently his progress would be much impeded if he turned his toes out to catch these obstacles instead of brushing them aside and outward, as he now does. Lastly, the savage uses his foot much more as a help to his hands than we do, and it is obvious that in doing this he must turn his toes in.

To the Point.

An incident which occurred while Admiral Dewey was commanding the Asiatic squadron and one which illustrates his independence is one known as "the coal incident." It seems that his squadron was in need of coal, but instead of writing to the chief of the bureau of equipment at the navy department he purchased a large amount of coal without consulting the department. The following is the correspondence between the admiral and Captain Bradford, the chief of the bureau of equipment, and is self explanatory: Navy Department, Washington. To Dewey, Manila: Why did you buy so much coal? BRADFORD. Flagship Olympia, Manila. To Bradford, Chief Bureau Equipment, Washington: Dewey. What Accountancy Means. Accountancy is not and never can be a matter of abstract knowledge to be transferred by means of lectures, but is the art of knowing how to apply that knowledge to the requirements of business under very varying conditions. It is essentially something that cannot be taught in lectures or classes, but can only be acquired as a result of careful individual study and a reasonable amount of actual practice.—Book keeping.

The Orang Outang.

It is a most interesting sight to watch an orang outang make its way through the jungle. It walks slowly along the larger branches in a semi-erect attitude, this being apparently caused by the length of its arms and the shortness of its legs. It invariably selects those branches which intermingle with those of a neighboring tree, on approaching which it stretches out its long arms and, grasping the boughs opposite, seems first to shake them as if to test their strength and then deliberately swings itself across to the next branch, which it walks along as before. It does not jump or spring, as monkeys usually do, and never appears to hurry itself unless some real danger is present. Yet in spite of its apparently slow movements it gets along far quicker than a person running through the forest beneath.

The Poppy Bee.

The poppy bee is the artist of the honey makers, though she builds her nest in a hole in the ground, burrowing down about three inches. At the bottom she makes a large hole and lines it gloriously with the scarlet petals of the red poppy. She cuts and fits the gorgeous tapestry perfectly, then partly fills the cell with honey, lays an egg, folds down the red blankets and covers the hole so that it cannot be observed, leaving the baby bee to look after itself in its cosy nest.

Horsepower.

Old James Watt established the term "horsepower" in order that he might have some basis of comparison of the power developed by his engines. He measured the work done by a heavy London draft horse of the Clydesdale or similar variety during short intervals by observing the weight it could lift against gravity, the horse walking on the ground and pulling horizontally on a rope led through pulleys, so that the weight rose vertically. The unit horsepower, so established, was 550 foot pounds of work per second, or 33,000 foot pounds a minute—that is, 33,000 pounds raised one foot in a minute, 330 pounds raised 100 feet or a pound raised 33,000 feet a minute. But whereas few horses could do that amount of work for more than a few seconds together, a one horsepower engine will go on producing that amount of work indefinitely so long as it is supplied with steam.

FILLING CREAM PUFFS.

The Salesman Learns Something of a Long Admired Industry.

"From the time I was a very small boy until I began to sell cream of tartar," said the ex-salesman, "I had an overwhelming curiosity to know how they got the filling inside the two articles of diet which as a youngster I liked best in the world—chocolate eclairs and cream puffs. Now that I know I can't understand why with all the thought I gave to the subject I didn't figure it out for myself. It's so simple.

"Of course you don't have to be a baker to know you can't bake an eclair with the filling in it. It's got to be made separately and put in after you've got the shell all made and baked. When I got selling cream of tartar and used to go behind the scenes of the bakeries I found out how they did it. They use a force pump. The pump has a needle-like spout and is filled with soft custard. You stick the point into the eclair, push down your pump handle and the thing is filled. Easy, isn't it? It's such a little hole that you never see it.

"I never got tired watching them work in the bakeries. There would be a big pile of fresh baked shells of eclairs and cream puffs. A man would seize the little pump and in a minute or two have them all filled. Another man would be shaping pies so fast that it made you dizzy. Along would come another man with a wagon full of fillings and fill the pies as fast as the other shoved them along. It's the same way with everything—so different, you know, from mother's methods.

"As for the baker's oven, if you have never seen one you've got a surprise coming. There's only one oven to a bakery generally, and it's as big as a room. How do they get things in and out? Easy, again. They use long poles with a shovel-like arrangement on the end. They put their cakes, or whatever the batch may be, in this, and if they want to, they can deposit them on the farther side of the oven, fifteen or twenty feet away. In the same way when a thing is done they reach in over whatever else may be baking and shovel it up."—New York Sun.
