Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Hickory, May 5.—Mr. Clarence Seaboch, a 20-year old youth, was burned to death last night in a second story room of his father's house. Mr. George Seaboch, the father is an aged Confederate veteran, and as he had no insurance on his little home he is almost penniless and subscriptions are being taken for him. The boy went home at 11 o'clock and at 12:10 the alarm was turned in. The old man went to the window and cried to his son, who was screaming for help to jump. It was only about fourteen feet to the ground, but the young man seemed to be dazed. He went back into the room and not long after his agonized parent saw him fall to his knees and the flames blotted out any further vision. A man climbed on an improvised scaffold to the window a little later, but was too late.

Fayetteville, May 6.—While arresting a burglar who had entered the grocery store of W. G. Clark last night, Chief of Police J. McD. McNaghan, of this city, was shot through the arm and painfully wounded. The burglar was Will McMillan, a negro telegraph linesman.

John W. Hinsdale, of Raleigh June 29th, morning session, address by Hon. N. A. MacLean, of Lumberton, evening session, address by James Byrne, of New York City, June 30th, morning, entertainment by Wilmington Bar; evening, address by W. H. Pace, Esq., of Raleigh.

Raleigh, May 6.—A complete classified list of the registered automobiles in the State by counties is being made up in the office of the secretary of state, where the registrations are made and will be completed before many days now. One of the counties already completed is Guilford, which has 120 machines. There are 1,420 in the State today. This includes all except those in New Hanover county, which has a registration law of its own and was exempted from the general state law by the last legislature.

Raleigh, May 6.—It is an interesting fact that the young man, Ernest Haynes, who was one of the star football players for A. & M. last season and died yesterday at Rex hospital here after a long illness, was a grandson of one of the Siamese twins, famous in this country as citizens of Western Carolina many years ago, his mother having been a Miss Runker. The funeral was held this afternoon at 5 o'clock, the A. & M. battalion attending in a body and marching to the cemetery and according military honors for the interment.

Ann George, a notorious negro woman, who has served several terms in the workhouse, is in a fair way to get back. Last night a young man reported to the police that a negro woman had picked his pocket of $21, and his description fit Ann to a "T." The woman was soon in custody and a thorough search of her clothing failed to reveal anything, but Sergeant Pearce noticed a peculiar lump in her mouth and upon prizing it open, found the money, all in bills, wadded and chewed together.—Greensboro News.

The Exhibit at the Colored School Friday Afternoon.

The teachers at the colored graded school held a most interesting exhibit in the school Friday afternoon. It consisted of a display in one room of the work done in the grades. Specimens of written work in all the grades were neatly displayed, and to a large number of people who attended, it was a surprise to see how well it was done. Their work was neat, readable, and appeared to be directed by very competent teachers.

In an adjoining room was the exhibit of the work in sewing and cooking. This was the first thing of its kind our people here had the opportunity of seeing, and those who attended were greatly pleased. Around the walls were hung scores of garments which the girls have made. The sewing was neat, and it was apparent to everyone who saw it that its value and importance to the pupils were very great.

The class in cooking had a large table set, all the linen and dishes in places, and on it were specimens of the work in cooking, such as rolls, tarts, ginger snaps, cakes, etc. The visitors examined the work, and complimented the teachers on the quality of the specimens. The teachers showed the visitors how the work was carried on, explaining the various steps in teaching the cooking and the sewing arts, and what they hope to accomplish as the courses are adopted and developed.

All in all, it was something new, a step in the right direction, and the teachers won the hearty approval of all who saw their exhibit.

PRINCESS CHRYSANTHEMUM.

Operetta to be Presented by Students of E. C. T. S.

On Monday night, in the auditorium of East Carolina Teachers' Training school, the students will present the beautiful Japanese operetta, "Princess Chrysanthemum."

The cast of characters for this entertainment has been well selected by the faculty, and the students have been doing faithful work in the rehearsals. It goes without saying that this operetta is going to be one of the best entertainments Greenville people have had the pleasure of witnessing. It is given complimentary to the people of Greenville and there will be no admission charge.

Comet Seen This Morning.

Halley's comet was visible again this morning between 3 and 4 o'clock, and was seen by a number of Greenville people. Mr. D. B. Johnson, night engineer at the electric light plant, was again on the lookout for the comet, and when he saw it he called the telephone central and the latter rang up several who had a ked to be put on call in case it appeared. The comet was very bright and presented a fine view.

Shirt Waist Sale Postponed.

On account of the entertainments Monday, May 9th, the ladies of the Episcopal church have decided to postpone their shirt waist and kimono sale. They have not decided when they will have it, but due notice will be given through these columns.

GRADED SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

Exercises Will be Held May 15th and 16th.

The annual commencement exercises of the Greenville graded schools will be held on the evenings of May 15th and 16th. On the 16th, in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, a sermon will be preached before the graduating class by Dr. J. C. Caldwell, president of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson. The pastors of the various churches will not have the usual evening services, and the entire community is invited to worship in the Methodist church in a union service.

The school was fortunate in securing Dr. Caldwell, as he is an unusually strong preacher. On the evening of the 16th at 8:30 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Training school, the graduating exercises will be held. The school will have six pupils to complete the high school course, and four to finish the music course this year, as follows:

High school, Misses Estelle Greene, Agnes Spain, Sadie Exum, Nannie Bowling, Hilda Critcher, and Mr. Alfred Schultz, in music, Misses Estelle Greene, Agnes Spain, Hilda Critcher and Lillian Carr.

The programme for the graduating exercises will be made of reading three of the senior essays, several numbers of music by the graduates in music, and of the annual address by Prof. E. C. Brooks, of Trinity College.

It is needless to say that the entire community has a most cordial invitation to attend these concluding exercises. The graded school is the town's school, and it is hoped that our people will make an effort to attend its commencement.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

The fisherman are having great sport.

And quite a number of them saw the comet.

Wonder if the comet is monkeying with the weather.

Go to Sunday school tomorrow and carry somebody with you.

The weather actually feels like it would not much mind snowing.

The May cool spell is "hanging fire" while the folks are waiting for it to "go off."

Don't be afraid it will frighten us if you come in occasionally to pay your subscription.

The Winterville boys came up today and are playing a game this afternoon with the Greenville boys.

W. Hardee is having lumber hauled on his lot, corner of Third and Greene streets, where he is to have a nice residence erected.

The training school pupils on Friday night had a dress rehearsal of the operetta they are to present Monday night. It is going to be something good.

Two colored women were standing on a downtown corner yesterday afternoon talking.

"Miss Williams have come home," said one.

The other laughed. "Ma goodness," she said. "Why don't you leah yoh grammah?"

"What did I say that wah grammahless?" asked the other.

"You said 'have come.'"

The first speaker was provoked. "Well, you knows so much about grammah, now tell me what should I 'a' said?" she demanded.

"You should 'a' said, 'Miss Williams has come home,'" replied the other.—Denver Post.

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1910.

Yes, we seen the comet.
Have you saw it?

Some of these days you are going to see Greenville a town sure enough.

The Durham Herald's paragraph column shows that Editor King has gone fishing again.

Another horrible mine explosion has occurred in Alabama causing the death of upwards of two hundred miners.

Under the reorganization of the Norfolk & Southern railroad arising from the recent sale of the property, the name is changed to Norfolk Southern. The new name went into effect on the 5th inst.

As Halley's comet does not come but once in seventy five years, you better not miss it this time. You might not be here next time to tell your great-grand-children that you saw it in 1910.

Being now out of the hands of receivers, and free from litigation from that source, the reorganized Norfolk Southern can proceed with its plans of improvement and development in Eastern North Carolina.

We heard a man inquiring about an opera house in Greenville like he might have something up his sleeve. It is something the town should have, and the man, or men, who can come forward and build one, would do a great public service.

On Friday Governor Kitchin appointed H. C. Brown as corporation commissioner to succeed the late Commissioner B. F. Aycock. Mr. Brown has been clerk of the commission several years and fully understands the duties of the office.

The whole civilized world mourns with England today over the death of King Edward VII, which occurred just before midnight Friday night. He had been sick only a few days, and his sudden death is a shock to the world. He will be succeeded by his son, the Prince of Wales, whose title will be King George V.

The Poor, Dear Census.

The taking of the census is adding not a little gaiety to the State press, and various are the remarks being made, the majority, naturally, derogatory. Most men need something to grouch about occasionally, and the census is possibly as innocuous a "whipping boy" as the editors could well select.

takes the position that although mistakes will doubtless occur, the result will be approximately just, at any rate. The New Bern Journal, on the contrary, asserts flatly that so far as New Bern is concerned, thus far the enumeration has been a failure, and cites the fact that one New Bern ward had no census taker at all. The Wilson Times thinks that kicking will accomplish small good and sees no reason why the enumerators, by exercising due care should not obtain satisfactory results. The Durham Herald in a good natured dig at Charlotte, believes that enumerators will overlook quite as many names elsewhere as in the capital of Mecklenburg. The Marshville Our Home gives the sage advice: "If your small boy asks lots of foolish questions, just be patient with him. He may some day be a census enumerator."

The taking of a United States census is a tremendous task and that omissions should occur is but in the nature of things. Less will be said about these omissions if attention is turned to the fact that the primary object of the census is scarcely to determine whether Jonesville or Smithtown has the right to the proud title of largest city. The large value of the data furnished by the reports should in some measure compensate for the omission of a citizen here and there.—Charlotte Observer.

The Editor's Paradise.

Frederick C. Brewer, a well known Cleveland editor, told at a press banquet a newspaper story.

"A Medina editor," he said, "and was, of course, directed to ascend to the abode of the just. But during the ascent the editor's journalistic curiosity asserted itself, and said:

"Is it permitted for one to have a look at—er—the other place?"

"Certainly," was the gracious reply, and accordingly a descent to the other was made. Here the editor found much to interest him. He scurried about and was soon lost to view.

"His angelic escort got worried at last, and began a systematic search for his charge. He found him at last seated before a furnace, fanning himself and gazing at the people in the fire. On the door of the furnace was a plate saying, 'Delinquent Subscribers.'

"Come," said the angel to the editor, "we must be going."

"You go on," the editor answered, without lifting his eyes. "I'm not coming. This is heaven enough for me."—Louisville Times.

In Wadesboro there is to be equipped on a vacant lot, a system of public stalls for the convenience of the farmers coming to town. There will be public comfort stations and water works supply. The county of Anson paid one-third the cost and the town of Wadesboro and the merchants of the town paid the balance. The idea is an excellent one and should be copied by all the towns in the State. The "back lot" has disappeared from Charlotte and there is no available location here for such a public utility—more's the pity. But while Charlotte has no ground available for a hitching lot, it has opportunities to furnish much needed conveniences.—Charlotte Chronicle.

THE NEEDY FAR AWAY.

With a Word About the Man Just Around the Corner.

On a certain Sunday last fall I attended the morning service of a village church in an eastern state. At the close of the sermon—a helpful sermon—the pastor reminded his congregation of the barrel of clothing regularly sent at this time to the poor of a city some fifty miles away.

I was just a bit startled, because I have been accustomed to hear city pastors remind their congregations of barrels to be sent to the poor of villages. It had not occurred to me that villages might be concerned about the poor in cities. I knew, of course, that cities whose churches are sending barrels to villages have their own desperately poor always with them, and I was in a position to know that this village whose church was preparing a barrel also had its proportion of sadly reduced families.

The situation struck me somehow as incongruous, illogical, out of gear. Why should good people in the cities distress themselves about suffering in the villages and good people in the villages distress themselves about suffering in the cities and both apparently feel little distress about the suffering right at their very doors—both apparently be more concerned about the distress of a stranger whom they have not seen than they are about the suffering of a neighbor whom they know?

Are warm hearted, helpfully inclined people more distressed by suffering a thousand miles, fifty miles, away than they are by suffering around the corner? I could not seem to get an answer to this query until I turned it on myself. Is it true of me? Am I more distressed, am I more strongly appealed to, by remote suffering?

Well, it's unselfish and good for us to think of others. Yes, but that poor devil right around the corner! Oh, he might not like it! He may be proud, and, besides, he does not seem so badly off. At any rate, he got himself where he is, and he will be stronger and have more self respect to dig his own way out.

True enough! And that other poor devil fifty miles away?

Oh, that's different—terribly pathetic case!

What makes it so different?—Erman J. Ridgway in Delinicator.

AN EARLY PORTIA.

She Pleaded Her Own Case in the High Court of Babylon.

Among the most interesting treasures of the British museum are the clay tablets of ancient Babylonia. These tablets, resembling unglazed tiles, throw quaint lights and shadows on the manners and customs of long ago. Usually the records are fragmentary, but are occasionally fairly complete, as is that of legal proceedings instituted by a "woman of Borsippa," which action is of particular interest as showing that a married woman's property law was in force as early as 550 B. C.

The proceedings, to which the "documents" refer were taken by a woman against her brother-in-law to regain possession of property left by her husband. The evidence showed that a man of Babylon had married the woman from Borsippa, and with the money of her dowry he had bought an estate. After a few years, having no children of their own, they adopted a son, and shortly afterward the husband mortgaged the estate. Later he died, leaving the estate mortgaged, and his brother attempted to claim the property.

The widow took the matter before the court at Borsippa, but it was beyond the jurisdiction of this court and was referred to the high court at Babylon. Here the case was duly heard, and the judges rendered a decision to the effect that as the property had been the husband's the widow could have it upon paying off the mortgage and that the brother had no claim. Eventually the estate would be the property of the adopted son. It is expressly stated, as though a matter of some interest, that the woman pleaded her own case in the high court of Babylon without assistance.—St. Louis Republic.

The Origin of It.

"Senator," said the interviewer, "it is rumored that you intend to retire from politics."

"Well, well," replied the senator "it's queer how rumors start. I suppose this one grew out of the fact that I attended church with my wife last Sunday."—Catholic Standard and Times.

A GAME OF BALL.

How It May Strike a Stranger Who Sees It For the First Time.

Nothing has set America so high in the estimation of foreign nations, says Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, as the adoption of baseball as the national sport. If a foreign spy wanders into America seeking to fathom our real inwardness and sees a game of baseball any feeling of contempt for our newness gives way instantly to awestruck admiration. At his first glance baseball is to him a mystery, and it remains a mystery to him. He sees 30,000 men and women suffering the tortures of the lower regions on hot grand stands. He sees a man pick up a small white ball as hard as a pine knot. Facing him is another man who holds a smooth but deadly club in his hands. Behind this second man is a third man whose face is hidden behind a birdcage. Suddenly the man with the ball raises one foot in the air and shows the man with the bat the sole of his shoe. The man at the bat sees that there are spikes in the sole of the shoe, and it angers him, and he raises his bat to throw it at the man with the ball. But—ah, bal—the man with the ball is too quick for him. He throws the hard, white ball at the man with the bat with all his strength. The man with the bat waves defiance by swinging the bat in the air. The ball proceeds. The batsman never flinches. Will the ball kill the man or will the impact crush the ball? But, see! The ball finds man unflinching; the ball is panic stricken; the ball dodges around the man; the ball is lost, buried in the huge leather chair cushion that covers the hand of the birdcage man behind the batsman! "Strike one!" says the umpire. Thirty thousand cheers! Why?

Grub Street's Pawnshop.

If the Aviant is not the oldest and best known pawnshop in the world it deserves to be. It has been in existence ever since the days of Shakespeare and Ben Jonson. It is in Fleet street—Grub street—and has been the poor writer's uncle for all these centuries and years. It has an old legend something like this: "Old Literary Friends Never Forgotten." There are many souvenirs, sayings and traditions of the greatest men on earth who, going broke, had to patronize it. Outside of its own name it is well known as the Grub street pawnshop.—London Mail.

Unappellable.

The Newfoundland seal folk for some reason not given by the St. John's correspondent of the New York Sun describe their greasy spool as "swolls," and they also say they "spell" an object when they mean to carry it. One can imagine the amazement of the young cleric who on one occasion asked a burly hunter how he spelled "swolls."

"We don't spell 'em; we haul 'em," was the bewildering reply.

A Shady Place.

A hotel keeper near New York city is a Frenchman, and his family know little more about English than he does. His suburban hotel stands in the center of a square filled with large trees. When the proprietor wanted to call attention to this advantage he put on his cards, "The most shady hotel around New York." The reputation of the place is beyond reproach, and the proprietor does not know yet why so many persons smile when they read the line quoted.

THE EVIL EYE.

To Praise a Turkish Baby Is to Terrify Its Mother.

Turkish women, even the most enlightened of them, are very superstitious. To praise a baby to its mother is all our life is worth should the baby happen to fall ill afterward.

The evil eye is the most common belief, and little children, who may be dressed in the height of European fashion otherwise, will wear under the brim of their hats a piece of garlic or other potent charm against the evil eye. Nilsay Hanoum, a woman not only well educated, but possessed of an unusual mind, had four children. They were faultlessly dressed in imported English clothes, but each of them wore some trinket against the evil eye. I teased her about it, and she protested that it was not her doing. "The slaves put them on, and I do not wish to hurt their feelings by taking them off," she said.

I resolved to test her enlightenment, and the next time I saw the baby with her I exclaimed, "What a lovely little creature!"

"You wretch!" she cried. "Spit on that child at once!"

I laughed at her manifest terror, but hastened to add, "I do not think her lovely in the least, for she has red hair and freckles and a pug nose, but I wanted to find out whether it was you or the slaves who put that garlic on your babies."

She shrugged her shoulders. "The slaves did it, but I suppose I do in the bottom of my heart believe in the evil eye. It is in the blood"—Mrs. Kenneth Brown in Metropolitan Magazine.

A Great Work of Art.

It was Apelles who visited the studio of Protogenes in Rome and, finding the artist absent, drew a thin colored line in such a way that the Roman knew that only his Greek brother could have done it. But, not to be outdone, Protogenes drew a thinner line upon that of Apelles, and when this was seen Apelles drew a third line upon that of Protogenes. This panel was then looked upon as the greatest work of art, so says the story, in the palace of the Caesars.

His Punishment.

Colley Cibber, known for some years by the name of Master Colley, made his first appearance on the stage in a very subordinate situation. After waiting impatiently for the prompter's notice he-by good fortune obtained the honor of carrying a message on the stage to one of the principal actors of that day, whom he greatly disconcerted by his awkwardness.

Betterton in anger inquired who it was that had committed such a blunder. Drones, the prompter, replied:

"Master Colley."
"Then fine him," rejoined Betterton.

"Why, sir, he has no salary!"
"No? Then put him down 10 shillings a week and fine him 5."

To this good natured adjustment of rewards and punishments Cibber owed the first money he received from the dramatic treasury.

Florence Nightingale's Real Name.

The family name of Florence Nightingale was not originally Nightingale, but Shore. Her father was a rich Sheffield maker of the name of Shore and connected with an old family which had been in possession of land in the counties of Derby and York since the fifteenth century. Mr. Shore assumed the name of Nightingale long after the birth of his children and because he inherited the fortune and estates of his mother's uncle. There were but two children in the family, both girls. The eldest was named Parthenosse, because she was born in Athens, and this name was supposed to indicate her father's profound admiration for the Parthenon. The younger, Florence, was also named after the city of her birth.

Tantalizing Ownership.

In a French village a citizen had upon his land a part of an old building containing two very beautiful windows. He was in debt and embarrassed and eagerly closed with the offer of a rich archaeologist, who bought them. Thereupon the government inspector, hearing of the bargain, arrived just in time to stop the masons from dislodging the windows. "You cannot," he said to the villager, "sell antiquities, my man." "But, excellency, I have used the money and paid my creditors." The villager was in despair, but the official was untouched. "That's all right," he said. "The money is safe. The windows are no longer yours. But the buyer can't move a stone of them. He can, however, come with a camp stool and sit down and look at his property as much as he likes."
