PRICES THAT SHOCK WOMEN.

It is The Shopper Who Discovers That The Cost of Living Has Gone Up

So much has been said about the rise in the cost of living that a few facts about summer prices of women's clothing may be used to illustrate just how high prices have soared. A woman's ready-made suit has cost $3 and upward more this spring than last, for the same quality. She can still buy the suit alluringly marked "$2.49 cut from $5.00," but it has so deteriorated in quality that it has ceased to be a "bargain" at any price. Actually the suit that is marked $25 today is of the quality that sold four years ago for $10. The woman who bought a pattern and made her own spring suit had to pay $1 a yard for common blue serge that she bought last year at 75 cents, or for broadcloth $1.50 a yard for what was formerly $1.25.

Gloves that were a dollar are now $2.25. Stockings that were a while ago 25 cents are now 35. Shoes have just been marked up. The National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers say it's not their fault. It is because the public that found meat too expensive reduce their consumption of that article of food. Therefore there are fewer hides on the market, which has increased the price of leather in the last three years from 17 to 32 cents a pound. Therefore shoes that were formerly $3 a pair are now $3.50. Women's sandal rubbers that were 25 cents a pair a few years ago are now 75 cents, and men's rubbers are $1.25. The manufacturers say one reason for it is the automobile, the tires of a single machine using a supply of rubber that would have made more than a hundred pairs of footwear.

The kitchen broom that once was 25 cents is now 40 cents, and a purchaser who recently objected to the price was cheerfully advised by the dealer: "Better buy now. They're likely to go $1 before the end of the year." Even a kitchen apron cost more than it ever did before with gingham, which many a housewife has purchased for 6 cents a yard, now retailing at 10 cents. Staple cotton cloth once 7 cents is now 12 1/2 cents a yard, and standard sheeting has moved up from 9 cents to 15 cents a yard. The cheapest woolen blankets have gone from $5 to $7 a pair under the operation of a protecting tariff.—Mabel Potter Daggett, in The Delineator for June.

Operetta Tonight.

The people of the town are invited to the operetta "Princess Chrysanthemum" which will be presented tonight in the auditorium of East Carolina Teachers' Training school by the students of the school. The performance will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock, and all who attend should be in their seats by that time. As this entertainment is given complimentary to the people of Greenville, they owe the courtesy to the students of the school to be on time, and not disturb the program by going late.

When a Girl Leads the Band.

During the recent run of the new comic opera "Miss Molly May," at the Hackett Theatre, New York, the song that made the biggest hit was "When a Girl Leads the Band," sung by Grace La Rue. The words and music of this stirring march song will be published in next Sunday's New York World.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Tomorrow will be Memorial day.

Fraternal Mystic Circle meets tonight.

When the sun came out today it was sultry.

The weather is having trouble about settling.

Sunshine and showers chased each other today.

Operatta in the Training school auditorium tonight.

Saturday night and through Sunday there were several hard rains.

Let us hope the old soldiers will have good weather for their reunion tomorrow.

The warmer weather following the rains is going to make crops and grass both hustle.

The rain fall here between midnight Saturday night and this morning was 2.92 inches.

The Sans Souci club will meet with Mrs. G. J. Woodward Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The graded school pupils below the eighth grade will have holiday tomorrow, Memorial day.

Sunday's rains have swollen and muddied the river and again broken up fishing for the time being.

The board of aldermen will meet again tonight to complete the business left over from last Thursday night.

The old soldiers will be here for their annual reunion tomorrow. Everybody should help to make the day pleasant for them.

If you cannot go yourself to the gathering of the Daughters of the Confederacy tomorrow morning, send some flowers to decorate the soldiers' graves.

Hen Will Be Happy.

Let us be up and doing, let us wield the hoe and spade till the task has been accomplished and the garden has been made. Let us toil without relenting; though we perish in our tracks, 'mid the straining of the muscles and the crash of breaking backs. Let us dig the soil and rake it, if the victory we must get, and baptise the infant garden with the rolling drops of sweat. For the day is coming, coming, when the little seeds must sprout, and from the earth's dark, silent bosom tiny plantlets shall peep out, just in time to grace the banquet, not for toiling, struggling men, but to satisfy the craving of our hungry neighbor's hen.—Orange, Va. Observer.

Carolina Club Reception.

The reception that was to have been held tomorrow night has been postponed on account of sickness in the homes of club members.

D. L. James, Pres.
W. S. Atkins, Sec.

Gathering Manufacturing Statistics.

Mr. C. C. Maxwell, special agent of the census department, is here gathering manufacturing statistics. Any aid extended to him by the manufacturers will be appreciated, both by Mr. Maxwell and the department.

Miss Brinkley Entertains.

Miss Jessie Brinkley entertained a number of friends at her home Saturday night. Several interesting games were played after which the hostess served refreshments.

PRESENTED WITH PURSE.

Methodist Baraca Class Shows Appreciation of Rev. J. H. Shore.

Rev. J. H. Shore, teacher of the Baraca class of the Methodist Sunday school, was presented with a check Sunday on behalf of the class by Mr. J. B. James, president, who said in part: "Mr. Shore, I believe you have an appreciative class, a class that recognizes your efforts and is fully conscious of the inestimable benefits received at your hands. Many things are taught by example, but none so much as traits of character, as truth, purity, loyalty and devotion to high ideals. You possess those which in my opinion are the crowning virtues of life. Your example has been faultless, it has meant much to us, your teachings have imparted a germ of goodness and purity. Often an occasion asserts itself, whereby we are enabled to express our appreciation of your service so willingly and faithfully performed; and acknowledgement of the example you have made. You are now on the eve of taking a trip, the pleasure of which you have anticipated some time and anticipated greatly. We wish you much happiness and this little remembrance is from your class and members of your congregation and is given in token of their esteem, their love and their respect, and as a member of your class, as a member of my class, and as a member of our class, it affords me very great pleasure to present this little sum."

Rev. Mr. Shore responded with much feeling. He left this morning for Asheville to attend the general conference of the M. E. church, South, and will be absent about ten days.

Like Some Other Epitaphs.

"I was called in by a close-fisted old merchant the other day," a Boston lawyer remarked smiling: "He wanted me to draw his will, and this I proceeded to do, following his verbal instruction. Presently he said: 'To each and every clerk who has been in my employ for ten years I give $10,000.'"

"This seemed like a considerable sum to me, and I ventured a slight protest, as he had a number of daughters, and his entire fortune was not large.

"Oh, that's all right," he said, with a little crooked smile. "You know people have always said that I was close and hard, and I want them to think well of me when I'm gone."

"I was a little touched, and said something, but he waved it aside, and we continued with the draft. When it was finished and as I was about to leave the office the old fellow miled again his little crooked smile.

"About those $10,000 legacies," he said, "there isn't a clerk in my place who has been with me over two years—but it will look well in the papers."

Hundreds Die in Earthquake.

San Jose, Costa Rica, May 7.—It is estimated that 1,000 persons were killed outright and 1,000 more injured when the town of Cartago was destroyed by an earthquake shock Wednesday night.

The only buildings left standing were two wooden houses.

Four hundred and eighty-five bodies had been taken from the debris yesterday afternoon.

STATE NEWS.

Newly Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Raleigh, N. C., May 7.—Ex-Sheriff M. W. Page, who for fifteen years served as sheriff of Wake county, passed away tonight at his home in Morrisville, this county, aged 79 years. The deceased, since early manhood, had taken a prominent part in politics and was considered one of the strongest men in the Democratic party in this county. In the capacity of sheriff he enjoyed the full confidence of the people and could have held the office as long as he desired, but after fifteen years of service he decided to resign. Besides owning one of the largest and best plantations in the county, Mr. Page was a stockholder in a number of large corporations in Raleigh and was held in high esteem in business as well as political life.

Ten Things to do in May.

1. Replant all lands where the crops have been killed by the cold weather—if not in cotton or corn, in some leguminous crop. Harrow all land thoroughly before replanting.

2. Keep up the cultivation of all growing crops. Work level and shallow and stay ahead of the grass. Use weeders and harrows and cultivators instead of turning plows.

3. Plant cowpeas, soy beans or velvet beans every available seed and every available foot of land.

4. Prepare to fatten hogs cheaply, and to double your pork product this year. Fence in a permanent pasture, if possible, and arrange lots for a rotation of quick-growing pasture crops.

5. Put out plenty of peanuts and sweet potatoes, and keep the garden going. Set out tomatoes, plant corn, beans, etc., for succession. Plenty of fruit, vegetables and watermelons is every Southern farmer's birthright.

6. See that the spraying outfit is kept going. Use Bordeaux and Paris green on the apple trees and Irish potatoes, Bordeaux on the grapes and tomatoes, lime sulphur on the peaches and plums.

7. Begin marketing the early chickens and look closely after the health of the younger ones. Disinfect often and whitewash, if necessary.

8. Fix a place, if you have none, to keep the milk and butter fresh and cool during summer.

9. Drain all swampy places about the house to get rid of malaria-breeding mosquitoes, and keep the stables clean so as to avoid breeding the typhoid-carrying house-fly. Screen the doors and windows.

10. Make a fireless cooker for your wife to use during the hot weather.—Raleigh N. C., Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

To Learn Linotype Machine.

C. F. Pilley, one of The Reflector young men, left this morning for New York. He goes to enter the Mergenthaler linotype factory instruction room to learn how to set up and operate the type setting machine for which The Reflector has placed an order. A letter from the manufacturers advises that the machine will be ready for shipment between the 1st and 10th of June, and if there is no delay in plans our readers may look for some important changes for the better in The Reflector about the 1st of July.

Stumped by James.

"Master James says he doesn't want to go for his walk this mornin', ma'am," said James' nurse.

"No, I don't. I want to stay home and ask you some questions," broke in James, aged five.

"What are the questions, dear?" inquired James' mother.

"Can't you ask them and then go out?"

"But I want you to answer me before I go," James continued, with a look of anxiety upon his face: "Please tell me, mother, which is the front of a pill."

"That will take some reflection," replied the puzzled parent.

"Are there any more like that?"

"I want to know," said James, "if the snake that spoke to Eve talked English?"

"You go for your walk, James," suggested his mother, "and let me have time to think."—New York Press.

People Watch Advertisements.

People read the advertisements in the newspapers more closely in the usual dull season than they do in the busy season, for when money is scarcest they are naturally on the lookout for opportunities to make what they must spend go as far as possible. The wise merchant keeps points like this in mind, and does not neglect his advertising in the dull months.

Change of Dinner Place.

The committee of arrangements has made a change in the place at which dinner will be served tomorrow to the old soldiers attending the reunion. Instead of spreading the dinner in the Centre Brick warehouse, as first announced, it will be in the Gum warehouse. The reason for this change is that tables are already arranged in the Gum warehouse.

MONDAY, MAY 9, 1910.

Don't blame everything on the comet.

Newspapers are catching it again by another sharp advance in the price of print paper.

Whether you know it or not, the good roads sentiment is something that is growing in Pitt county.

If any other counties decide to hold mass meetings they should try to improve over the Wake county specimen.

Candidates for the legislature in Pitt county this year may expect to have to stand on a good roads and no fence platform.

The Reidsville Weekly suggests keeping 'em on until the earth and the comet shake hands and pass on. Not a bad idea.

The New Bern Sun says: "Some people would kick if they had both legs cut off." Wonder how they would fix to do that.

Shooting policemen seems to be most too popular in Fayetteville. First thing that town knows it will find it hard to get police officers.

The appointment by the governor of H. C. Brown as corporation commissioner makes a vacancy in the chief clerkship of the commission. But there are plenty of candidates for that position to keep it from being vacant long.

Raleigh aldermen have changed their minds again in regard to the license charged drug stores for selling whiskey on prescription. A few weeks ago the license was raised to $500, and now it has been lowered to $125.

One way to help Greenville is to encourage home enterprises. When you send your money away for things you can get right here at home, to just as good advantage and often better, you are holding your town back that much. If you depend on home people for patronage in your business, those engaged in other business have the same right to depend on your patronage for their business.

Most Important Thing on the Farm.
All of us who have farmed know that there are times when it is impossible to prevent the grass from getting a start and making much hard work; but such seasons are the exception, not the rule. If a man starts in time and uses the proper implements, he can, in any ordinary season, keep his crops clean, so that it will not be necessary for him to plow out the grass. To do this requires frequent and shallow stirring of the soil, and to be able to stir the soil frequently in our uncertain seasons means that the farmer must have tools that will enable him to get over the land quickly. He can not hope, if the season is showery, to keep his crop clean if he must go four or five times to the row with a single plow; but if he can cover six to twelve feet at a through with a harrow before the crop is planted, take a row at a time with a weeder while it is young, and with a cultivator when it gets older, he can keep his crops clean in a wet season, or save the moisture for the use of his crops in a dry season.

If a man has only one horse, he can use a harrow and a weeder with success, and he can make both of them pay for themselves the first season.

Therefore, let us say it again: Right now is the time to begin the cultivation of all your crops—even of those not planted. Use modern labor saving tools, so you can get over a whole lot of ground in a day. See that the soil is in good condition before you plant, and when the crop is planted, keep right on with the cultivation. It is not necessary to wait for the corn and cotton—and the grass and weeds—to get up and get a start. Get your start first; get the soil in good condition, and keep your cultivation a little ahead of the crop, and your work will be easy and your reward great.—Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

The Salisbury Post calls attention to something that can do no good and might cause trouble—the lugging in of a number of candidates for governor two years hence into this campaign. Let every tub stand on its own bottom. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. A law ought to be passed shooting every man who declares his candidacy more than six months in advance of the election. A year used to be considered ample time away back when not a third of the people read the papers and when means of communication were scarce. Six months now is equal to more than a year ten years ago.—Greensboro Record.

A New Pack for an Old One. How it Can be in Greenville

The back aches at times with a dull, indelible feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the joints are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Greenville residents would do well to profit by the following example: Joseph Savage, Church street, Tarboro, N. C., says: "For some time my kidneys were disordered, the passages of the kidney secretions being scanty and at times painful. I had pains in my loins and if I stooped suddenly, sharp twinges caught me across the back, making it hard for me to straighten. After trying a number of remedies without finding relief, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and began their use. They removed the aches and pains and regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the benefit I have derived from their use."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Bordeaux Mixture

PROPOSALS BY PROXY.

The Advantage a Chinaman Has in Case of a Rejection.

Dr. Isaac T. Headland, a resident of Pekin for many years, throws a new light on the new women of China in the Travel Magazine.

Taking up the relations between the sexes and especially the Chinese method of getting a wife, the writer repeats a conversation with a young Chinaman who had recently become engaged to a Chinese maiden with whom he had never spoken.

"We students have a very great advantage over the old Chinese method of finding a wife and getting engaged," said my Celestial friend.

"What do you mean?" I inquired. "Well, you see by the old Chinese method a man can never see his wife until she is brought to his home unless he can bribe the middleman to allow him to stand on the street corner and see her pass by in a cart."

"And what advantage do you have?"

"We see the girls in church," he answered. "They also can see us. We have sisters in the girls' school, they have brothers in the college, and when we go home during vacation we can learn all about each other."

"This is an advantage,"

"In my judgment," he continued, "we have a better method than even you foreigners have."

"How is that?"

"Well, you see," he continued, "after we have selected the lady we want we can have a middleman go and ask her for us, while you have to go and ask the lady yourself."

"But," I objected, "we can get so much better acquainted by our method."

"Yes, that's true," he admitted, "but doesn't it make you awfully angry if you ask a girl to marry you and she refuses?"

It was necessary to admit that there were advantages in the middleman method which had never occurred to me, and, while I was not ready to acknowledge that his new found method was better than mine, I could still see that the force which brought it about was bringing woman out of her seclusion and placing her on a level with her brother and her future husband.

A Bet and Its Odds.

A notorious gambler who died some time ago once wagered a thousand dollars to one that six would not be thrown with a pair of dice ten times in succession. His offer was taken up by a fellow clubman. The dice were brought, and his opponent actually threw six nine times in succession. The gambler then offered $470 to be free of the bet. The other man declined, had his tenth throw and failed to get another six. Just to show how very little the average man knows about the doctrine of chances, a well known mathematician has pointed out the real odds about this bet. The chances were no less than 60,466,175 to 1 against six being thrown ten times in succession. Therefore the real bet should have been about $600,000 to a cent against such a thing happening.

The Herring Line.

A senator apropos of fame said at a Washington luncheon: "What is fame, after all? Kipling when he lived in Brattleboro took a trip to Montpelier, and the first evening he came down to the hotel dining room he overheard this dialogue between two waiters: 'First Waiter—Do you know who that is, George? 'Second Waiter—No. Who is it? 'First Waiter—That's the celebrated Kipperin. 'Second Waiter—What's he done? 'First Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Third Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Fourth Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Fifth Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Sixth Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Seventh Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Eighth Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Ninth Waiter—Hanged if I know. 'Tenth Waiter—Hanged if I know.'"

Mother's Task.

When mother gets breakfast she must remember that father likes his breakfast food without cream. Johnny wants both cream and sugar, Susie doesn't like breakfast food at all and must have a substitute, Mary has to have grapefruit and the rest of the family want oranges or apples. No two agree on anything, but she must remember what each one wants or the family doubt her devotion. What is it, do you suppose, that keeps the mother of a large family from going crazy?—Acheson Globe.

His Manly Spirit.

A sturdy Scotchman had been having a dispute with his wife, which resulted in his taking refuge under the bed. As she stood on guard with a good sized stick in her hand he called lustily from his retreat: "Ye can lamb me and ye can bato me; but ye canna hit me many a spirit. I'll na come out."

PUNCTUALITY.

It Gets a Jolt From One Who Never Can Be on Time.

So much is said about the virtue of punctuality that people who go in for it to any great extent are exceedingly opprobrious and disagreeable. Punctuality has its bad side, just as everything else has. People should remember this. If they are on time they only serve to throw into embarrassing relief the poor souls who come hurrying in ten minutes late. It is smug to be precisely punctual. It is raising yourself above the rest of mankind, refusing to partake in its frailties. The ideal thing from the point of view of courtesy to others and recent humility about your own attainments is to be always ten minutes late or at least to appear so.

If you are to meet at the package office in the Grand Central station at 4 o'clock sit quietly in the middle of the hall until twelve minutes after 4; then when you have seen the other person dash up, followed by panting porters and fairly dripping with explanations, wait until the arrival has had a second in which to recover self respect and stroll up with a remark on Timbuktu or the best way to cultivate carrots. This will insure your popularity and show you to be a person of kindness and forethought. At any rate, it is better than a pitiless standing at the place where you said you would be, your superiority increasing every minute, and confronting, upbraiding silently, the person who promised to meet you because you appeared a rather likeable sort, but who finds you in your panoply of punctuality the very reverse of likable.

For be it remembered that just as some people cannot be on time others cannot to save their skins be late. So that they deserve not a whit of credit for it and should, in fact, be reprimanded when they do it ostentatiously and in public.—New York Sun.

A Rejected Novel.

Before he had achieved fame the French novelist Xavier de Montepin, on concluding a long and elaborate tale of adventure, took it, full of hope, to a publisher, who promptly declined it on even the most advantageous terms, to the writer's poignant mortification. Twenty years afterward this identical publisher besought at his hands a sensational story, one of those serials which were the delight of grisettes, offering any price within reason. "Well," said De Montepin, "I will oblige you, but my terms must be very heavy. I want 20,000 francs." After many protests it was paid. In telling the story De Montepin used to add, "The best of the business was that it was the very same story which he had previously rejected and which I had in various directions endeavored in vain to dispose of."

Church Encouragement of Sport.

Ecclesiastic recognition has been given the sport of skeeving in Norway in the special short, early services held in all the churches during the season for the convenience of skeevers. These services are called skeeving prayers, and a stranger coming into the sacred edifices on such an occasion might think he had blundered into the barracks of a skee corps. However, the services are much liked and very well attended, and there is no difference of opinion about the wisdom of the church authorities in thus encouraging a sport making so strongly for healthy bodies and therefore going a long way toward making healthy souls.—Outing.

The Compass in China.

It is generally admitted that the Chinese used the compass at a very early period to guide them in their journeys across the vast plains of Tartary. They made little images, the arms of which, moved by a freely suspended magnet, pointed continually toward the north. An apparatus of this kind was presented to ambassadors from Cochin China to guide them on their homeward journey some 1,100 years before the Christian era. The knowledge thus possessed seems gradually to have traveled westward by means of the Arabs, though it was over 2,000 years afterward before it was generally applied among the peoples of western Europe.

A Tongue Twister.

Do you read by sight or sound? Do you skim the sense or pronounce the words as you go—inaudibly, but consciously? There are many readers who read by the ear, and when this writer had written the sentence about Wick (there was an election there), "Wick is rich in Pietish relics," he leaned back and tried to whisper it, thinking of the next. "Wick is rich in Pietish relics." Say it three times quickly.—London Chronicle.

BAGGING A BIG TIGER

The Jungle Monarch Was Trapped Lolling in His Bath.

A FEAT OF MARKSMANSHIP.

Only the Brute's Head Showed Above the Water, and the Well Placed Bullet, Fired From an Elephant, Entered the Nostril and Broke His Neck.

An interesting account of a tiger hunt is given by one who had a wide experience in hunting this most dangerous of beasts. Mounted upon elephants, the writer and his companions had been beating the jungle without making a find until, as they were about to give up the search, a sudden disturbance among the elephants appeared to betoken a tiger near at hand. Giving directions to the others as to the order of marching their elephants, the writer ordered his mahout to turn into the thick feathered foliage to the left in search of a pool of water which he remembered to be there.

There was a slight descent to a long but narrow hollow about fifty or sixty yards wide. This was filled with clear water for an unknown length.

I was just about to make a remark when, instead of speaking, I gently grasped the mahout by the head as I leaned over the howdah and by this signal stopped the elephant.

There was a remarkable sight. About 120 yards distant on my right the head and neck of a large tiger, clean and beautiful, reposed above the surface of the water, while the body was cooling, concealed from view.

Here was, our friend enjoying his quiet bath, while we had been pounding away up and down the jungles which he had left.

"Fire at him," whispered the mahout, "or you will lose him! He will see us and be off."

"Hold your tongue!" I answered. "He can't see us, for the sun is at our back and is shining in his eyes. See how green they are."

At this moment the tiger quietly rose from his bath and sat up on end like a dog. I never saw such a sight. His head was beautiful, and the eyes shone like two green electric lights as the sun's rays reflected from them, but his huge body was dripping with muddy water, as he had been reclining upon the alluvial bottom.

For quite a minute the tiger sat up in the same position. At last, as if satisfied that he was in safety and seclusion, he once more lay down with only the head and neck exposed above the surface.

"Back the elephant gently, but do not turn around," I whispered. Immediately the elephant backed through the feathery tamarisk without the slightest sound, and we found ourselves outside the jungle. We could breathe freely.

"Go on, now, quite gently till I press your head, then turn to the right, descending through the tamarisk till I again touch your turban."

I counted the elephant's paces as she moved softly parallel with the jungle until I felt sure of my distance. A slight pressure upon the mahout's head and the elephant turned to the right. The waving plumes of the dark green tamarisk divided as we gently moved forward, and in another moment we stopped. There was the tiger in the same position, exactly facing me, but now about seventy-five paces distant.

"Keep the elephant quite steady," I whispered, and, sitting down upon the howdah seat, I took a rest with the rifle upon the front bar of the gun rack. A piece of tamarisk kept waving in the wind just in front of the rifle beyond my reach. The mahout leaned forward and gently bent it down. Now all was clear. The tiger's eyes were like green glass. The elephant for a moment stood like stone. I touched the trigger.

There was no response to the loud report of six drams of powder from the "five-seven-seven" rifle, no splash in the unbroken surface of the water. The tiger's head was still there, but in a different attitude, one-half below the surface and only one cheek and one large eye still glittering like an emerald above.

Upon examination it proved that there was no hole whatever in that tiger, the bullet having entered the nostril, broken the neck and run along the body. The animal consequently had never moved.

This tiger when laid out straight, but without being pulled to increase its length, measured exactly nine feet and eight inches from nose to tail.—Youth's Companion.

His Last Request.

Charles Dickens used to relate an anecdote of the last moments of Fauntleroy, the great banker, hanged for forgery in 1824. His elegant dinners had always been followed by some remarkable and matchless curacao, the source of which he kept a deep secret. Three of his boon companions had an interview with him in the condemned cell the day before his execution. They were about to retire when the most impressive of the three stepped back and said: "Fauntleroy, you stand on the verge of the grave. Remember the text, my dear man, that 'we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can take nothing out. Have you any objection, therefore, to tell me now, as a friend, where you got that curacao?'"

Life is fruitful in the ratio in which it is laid out in noble action or patient perseverance.—Liddon.

BABOONS IN BATTLE.

These Creatures Use Method in Fighting Their Enemies.

If we are to credit all testimony on the subject offered by naturalists man is not the only animal who carries on his warfare by means of organized bands and calls in the forces of nature to assist him. There have been witnessed in Africa fights that were conducted in as orderly a manner as if the warriors had been really men instead of only somewhat like them in form—i. e., baboons.

A certain naturalist was once stoned out of a pass in a very few minutes by these creatures, who sprang upon ledges and stones, looked down for a few moments on the valley, growling, snarling and screaming, and then began to roll down stones with so much vigor and adroitness that the intruders took to flight. The baboons evidently knew the value of co-operation, for the naturalist saw two of them combine their efforts in order to set a particularly heavy stone rolling. One monkey, bent on making the most of his missile, was seen to carry a stone up a tree that he might hurl it with greater effect.

Once while some baboons were crossing a valley they were attacked by dogs, and, as is usual during a march, the females and young were in the center, the males heading the column and bringing up the rear. As the dogs rushed upon them the males turned and faced their enemies, growling, beating the ground with their hands and opening their mouths wide, so as to show their glittering teeth. They looked so fierce and malignant that the dogs—Arab greyhounds, accustomed to fight successfully with hyenas and other beasts of prey—shrank back. By the time they had been encouraged to renew the attack the whole herd had made its way, covered by the rear guard, to the rocks, one six-month-old monkey alone excepted.

This little monkey sat on a rock, surrounded by the dogs. But he was not long left in his perilous position. An old baboon stepped from a cliff near by, advanced toward the dogs, keeping them in check by threatening gestures and sounds, picked up the baby monkey and carried it to a place of safety on the cliff, while the whole crowd of baboons watched the act of heroism and shouted their battlecry.—Harper's Weekly.

Solving It.

Patrick, a thrifty tradesman in the neighborhood of the Dublin docks, was, the story goes, a man who never spent a penny more than he needed to spend, but he was nevertheless as good a man at the making of an Irish bull as any who lived between Bantry and Ballycastle. Having one day occasion to send a letter to a place some distance, Patrick called a messenger and asked him his price for going such a distance.

"It'll be a shillin'," said the man. "Twice too much," said Patrick. "Let it be sixpence."

"Nivver," answered the messenger. "The way is that lonely that I'd nivver go it under a shillin'."

"Lonely, is it?" said Patrick, scratching his head. "Faith, an' ye're right. Now, man, I'll tell ye what we'll do. Make it sixpence an' I'll go wid ye to kape ye company."

The Water Wheel.

The water wheel is probably the oldest method of obtaining mechanical force apart from the employment of animal force. This wheel was no doubt at first worked by a flowing river and then by a falling stream, and it would not be a very great advance on this method to dam back the stream so as to obtain a continuous supply of force even in times of drought. Such storing of water at a sufficiently high level is the simplest method of storing force. If carefully arranged the loss by evaporation and leakage is small and may be partly or wholly replaced by rain, so the force is always available, and but little labor is needed to keep such works in repair. The water clock of the Romans was an elaboration of this method of storing force and was for them the only form of "motor."

The Rose.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers, after the battle of Cirrha, refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiæ the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

A GAME OF BALL.

How It May Strike a Stranger Who Sees It For the First Time.

Nothing has set America so high in the estimation of foreign nations, says Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, as the adoption of baseball as the national sport. If a foreign spy wanders into America seeking to fathom our real inwardness and sees a game of baseball any feeling of contempt for our newness gives way instantly to awestruck admiration. At his first glance baseball is to him a mystery, and it remains a mystery to him. He sees 30,000 men and women suffering the tortures of the lower regions on hot grand stands. He sees a man pick up a small white ball as hard as a pine knot. Facing him is another man who holds a smooth but deadly club in his hands. Behind this second man is a third man whose face is hidden behind a birdcage. Suddenly the man with the ball raises one foot in the air and shows the man with the bat the sole of his shoe. The man at the bat sees that there are spikes in the sole of the shoe, and it angers him, and he raises his bat to throw it at the man with the ball. But—ah, ha!—the man with the ball is too quick for him. He throws the hard, white ball at the man with the bat with all his strength. The man with the bat waves defiance by swinging the bat in the air. The ball proceeds. The batsman never flinches: Will the ball kill the man or will the impact crush the ball? But, see! The ball finds man unflinching; the ball is panic stricken; the ball dodges around the man; the ball is lost, buried in the huge leather chair cushion that covers the hand of the birdcage man behind the batsman! "Strike one!" says the umpire. Thirty thousand cheers! Why?

Why Savages Turn In Their Toes.

In the first place, the foot naturally takes that position when it has never been confined by boots or the ankle distorted by high heels. Convenience is also on the side of the natural position of the foot in the case of the savage, for he has to do much walking through long grass and undergrowth in forests. Consequently his progress would be much impeded if he turned his toes out to catch these obstacles instead of brushing them aside and outward, as he now does. Lastly, the savage uses his foot much more as a help to his hands than we do, and it is obvious that in doing this he must turn his toes in.

Unspellable.

The Newfoundland seal folk for some reason not given by the St. John's correspondent of the New York Sun describe their greasy spool as "swolls," and they also say they "spell" an object when they mean to carry it. One can imagine the amazement of the young cleric who on one occasion asked a burly hunter how he spelled "swolls."

"We don't spell 'em; we haul 'em," was the bewitching reply.

Notice is hereby given to the voters of the town of Greenville that the Board of Aldermen, at its regular monthly meeting held on the 5th day of May, 1910, ordered that an election be held (in accordance with the charter of said town, and the various amendments thereto), on Monday, the 6th day of June, 1910, in the various wards of said town, for the purpose of electing one alderman from each of the five wards of said town. The aldermen elected from the second, third and fourth wards shall continue in office for two years, and those from the first and fifth wards for one year from July 1st, 1910.

Notice is also hereby given that the board of aldermen have designated the following named places in said wards of said town for holding and conducting said election, to wit:

First Ward—Court house square.
Second Ward—Winslow's stables.
Third Ward—Dr. Laughinghouse office.

Fourth Ward—Harris' store at Five Points.

Fifth Ward—Jesse Speight's office.

Notice is also hereby given that the registration books of the several wards of said town will be open at the various places designated above, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, June 1st, 2nd and 3rd, from nine o'clock a. m., to 5 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of allowing all persons entitled to register to do so, only these persons who have duly registered will be allowed to vote.

For the information of the voters of the town, I desire to state that the terms of office of the following named gentlemen, now members of the board of aldermen of said town will expire July 1st, 1910, and their successors will be chosen at said election.

First Ward—J. B. White.
Second Ward—W. A. Bowen.
Third Ward—D. W. Hardee.
Fourth Ward—E. A. Moye.
Fifth Ward—W. S. Moye.
This the 6th day of May, 1910.
H. W. Whedbee, Mayor.

Guess This Is So.

Mrs. Benham—How much did you pay the minister when we were married? Benham—I didn't pay him, but don't worry; no man ever had the heart to attach a man's wages for that kind of a debt.—New York Press.

THE POISON CURARI.

Mysterious Mixture Makes Deer Wounded to Death.

Curari, the vegetable poison with which the Indians of the lush Amazon tip their hunting arrows, remains a mystery in its composition after a hundred years of investigation by scientists. The Indians will sell it for its weight in silver, but will not reveal the plants from which it is derived. Not long ago a professor in a German university was sent to the Amazon wilderness for the express purpose of discovering the secret, for curari, or urari, as it is otherwise called, is now thought to be of great value in medicine. The professor lived two years in Indian villages, and while he was permitted to witness the boiling of the "witches' broth," which lasted several days, he could not tell what plants went into the brew. Returning from his baffled quest down the Amazon with a quantity of the poison, the professor was met by another traveler, Dewey Austin Cobb, who had got possession of a native blowgun. The latter tells in the National Geographic Magazine how he put some of the professor's curari on some of his blowgun arrows, which are like toothpicks feathered with cotton, and tried it on a buck deer in the forest.

"After a deliberate aim our hunter fired," says Mr. Cobb, "if I may use such a word for the little puff, scarcely heard by us and entirely inaudible above the rustling corn leaves at the distance of the deer. The animal gave a slight start as it felt the prick of the arrow on its flank and turned partly around, sniffing the air for a scent and looking about as if searching for the insect that had bitten or stung it. Detecting nothing, it stood still and unalarmed. At the end of a minute or a minute and a half at most its head dropped a little, as if it was sleepy.

"We all approached its side, and the hunter laid a hand on its shoulder. It looked up at him, but showed no resentment or fear. Even its breathing seemed easy and natural, which surprised me, as I had heard that death resulted from paralysis of the lungs when caused by urari. At the end of ten minutes, though it opened its eyes when touched, its breath became shorter and slower. Eighteen minutes after it was struck by the arrow it was dead."
