Newsp Notes From a Hustling Town Briefly Told

Ayden, N. C., May 24.

Quite a number of the lady teachers of our town and community left today to attend the special summer session given for them at the East Carolina Teachers' Training school at Greenville. It is a pleasure to us to note so much interest being manifested by these worthy and deserving young ladies, in making every effort to better qualify themselves for the responsible position they are occupying, and we hope each one of them may feel materially benefited by their attendance. It is a blessing to us to have such a useful institution of learning located in our grand old county and we cannot doubt that it will be liberally patronized.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobbitt, of Shelmerdine, drove over to our town Sunday afternoon to spend a short while with Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Riddick.

We hear it rumored that at an early date the enterprising firm of J. W. Quinerly & Bro. will begin the erection of two large and commodious brick stores on their vacant lot on the corner of Main and Lee streets. These buildings are not only actual necessities to accommodate the increasing demands for desirable stores but will be a great ornament to that part of our town.

F. G. Buhman, who has been away for several days, is spending a few days home with his family.

Miss Olivia Berry, who has been visiting friends in Beaufort county, returned Sunday evening.

Our good friends Stancill Hodges and Leslie Turnage were on the war path Sunday evening and each seemed delighted with their new avocations in life.

J. T. Smith, the industrious and clever salesman at the store of J. J. Edwards & Son, is confined to his room with fever.

The ice cream supper given on the lawn at the home of Mrs. E. Turnage last night, for the benefit of the Methodist church, was quite a success and greatly enjoyed by all whose pleasure it was to be present.

Miss Bonnie Ormond, the accomplished young daughter of Senator Y. T. Ormond, of Kinston, is visiting Miss Lucy Turnage.

Mr. Jackson, of Virginia, has come to our town and accepted a position as bookkeeper for The Ayden Lumber Co. We are glad to have him and hope he will like his stay among us.

J. J. Hines and sons, Hatton and Robert, spent the day in Washington Sunday visiting relatives.

Commencement exercises of The F. W. B. Seminary will begin Tuesday night with an address by W. F. Evans, a popular young attorney of Greenville. Wednesday night Rev. C. W. Howard, of Kinston, will address the audience. Thursday at 11 o'clock Rev. M. Furman, of New York, will deliver the annual address; at 3 o'clock the Amphy-clan society will hold their debate. Subject: "Is the world growing better." The best speaker on this occasion is to receive a handsome gold medal offered by R. W. Smith. Thursday night the exercises will close with orations by the pupils which is one of the most interesting part of the program. Dr. St. Clare has offered a medal for the best oration. M. R. Allen

FANRAHAN ITEMS.

Good News About Crops and Other Things.

Hanrahan, N. C. May 24.—W. L. McLawhorn went to Greenville Monday and returned that evening. That reads like items, but of what interest is that to the public. He goes somewhere nearly every Monday and is apt to return that same day.

Ed Smith wears a broad smile since the middle of last week, but that is a bi-annual occurrence at his home. So that is news once in two years.

Cotton has since the few warm nights have smiled upon it, taken on a brighter hue. That may be interesting to the bears especially, if the crops throughout the South have improved for the last few days as they have in this immediate section. Tobacco is now so asserting itself that you can almost see it grow. This fact the Dukes might take due notice of and govern themselves accordingly. The wheat and oat crops we never saw more promising. The mill men may prepare to give us lower flour another year. That will bring joy to the hungry man. Corn has turned greener and has grown more for the past three or four days than it has during the preceding days in May. That is significant of more bacon in our smoke houses next fall and less pork from the west. So ever after a storm there is a calm, and sad experience will sometimes teach us valuable lessons. But we southern people are hard to convince that it is best to raise our own supplies and live at home.

This morning we heard a housewife say. The people of Hanrahan never put in the nest egg to make out the dozen. Said she, I have been using eggs from there now for five months and I have yet to find one that was defective in the least. This shows an honest purpose in our people, and that is why Hanrahan is the best egg market in the county. Does that sound too much like advertising? if so send in your bill.

It ever makes our heart rejoice to see North Carolinians come to the front. And when we read that masterful address of welcome by T. N. Ivey we felt sure then that North Carolina would lose him, for such a masterpiece as that could only be a stepping stone to higher things, and we are willing to go down on record as predicting that his election as editor to the Nashville Christian Advocate means that he will be elected bishop at the next general conference; and Prof. Eugene Brooks, our own Gene, will be made president of Trinity college when the choice for that vacancy is made. Prof. Eugene Brooks is easily one of the most popular and deservingly superior educators in our old North State and I might go further and say in the South.

Tell Prof. Ragsdale that our people are expecting him next Sunday.

Wilmington / Won.

The base-ball excursionists say the game at Wilson, Monday afternoon, between that town and Wilmington was a pretty one. The score was 3 to 2 in favor of Wilmington.

will give a medal to the pupil that has made the highest average in his studies. J. R. McCasky is to give a medal to the child for the best behavior during the term.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS

Of the Third Judicial District of North Carolina.

The undersigned members of the Bar at Greenville, North Carolina, knowing the qualifications of Hon. Harry W. Whedbee, of Pitt county, and believing that he would make a most excellent judge of the Superior court, unhesitatingly and with great pleasure present his name to the Democratic Judicial convention of this district for nomination as judge to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. O. H. Guion.

Mr. Whedbee is in the prime of life, and with an experience of 16 years in active practice. He is well equipped in the law, strong in character, patient, firm, sympathetic and of such temperament as should characterize a just and upright judge.

The district would not make a mistake in nominating and electing him as a Judge of the Superior Court, and we believe that he would make a record upon the Bench of which the entire State would be proud.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN SCHEDULES.

Greenville Views Contemplated Changes With Disfavor.

Monday The Reflector printed an extract from the Raleigh News and Observer showing schedules of new trains the Norfolk Southern will put on between Norfolk and Raleigh and Norfolk and New Bern to begin June 5th. From the standpoint of additional trains that announcement looked good. But we since hear it rumored that the putting on of these new trains means taking off some of the present ones. If this is true, it looks anything else but good. The new trains will cover that portion of the road this side of the sound at night, and while this would make no material difference with through passengers, it would greatly inconvenience the towns and local travel on this part of the road to have nothing but night trains. We hope it is not the intention of the Norfolk Southern to take off any of the day trains, for the present schedule of the trains, especially between Washington and Raleigh, is a great convenience. The towns affected should ask the railroad officials not to take off any of the present day trains.

Auction Lot Sale.

The auction sale of lots on the Parham property today attracted much interest and the lots sold well. The block on Dickinson avenue between the People's warehouse and the old stand of the Greenville Supply Co., especially brought good prices. This block was divided into seven lots averaging about 23 feet front and they brought from $600 to $800 each. Other portions of the property brought proportionally good prices. The sale shows the value of real estate in Greenville.

VETERAN OF THE RIVER.

Capt. W. A. Parvin Back on Deck Again.

We were certainly glad to shake hands once more with Capt. W. A. Parvin, of Washington, who spent Monday night here. For the last two months, Capt. Parvin has been commandant of the steamer Shiloh which plies between Washington and Tarboro, and stopped over here Monday night because the water in the river had become so low as to make it unsafe to proceed further up stream after dark. Capt. Parvin is truly a veteran of Tar river. It was back in the sixties in the first days of steam boats on the river that he began the run, and he continued it regularly until a few years ago when the Old Dominion Steamship Co. sold its boats and Tar river business to the Norfolk & Southern railroad which later withdrew the boats from the river. This took Capt. Parvin off the run, but we are glad to see he is back again after an absence of two or three years. A better hearted and more obliging man never commanded a steamer.

At Wilson: Wilmington 3, Wilson 2.

Eclipse of the Moon.

The eclipse of moon Monday night was much more interesting than the comet. The earth's shadow started over the moon a little after 10 o'clock. In the midst of the growing shadow clouds appeared and cut off the view for a while, but these soon disappeared except at intervals, leaving a good view of the moon. When the shadow had covered about three-fourths of the moon a distinct circle formed near it and a star could be seen within this circle. About midnight when the moon was nearly covered by the shadow clouds shut out the view again, but it could be seen occasionally through these. The shadow passed off a little after 2 o'clock.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

Harry Skinner went to Raleigh this morning.

Miss Lela Brown is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. D. Johnston.

Mrs. T. A. Person returned Monday evening from Richmond.

J. C. Hardy, editor of the Scotland Neck Commonwealth, spent Monday night here.

Mrs. Ed Warren and daughter and Miss Mary Stokes returned Monday from Winterville.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Odd Fellows meet tonight.

Another sultry, showery day, the kind that makes crops grow.

Showers tonight and Wednesday, moderate south to southwest winds.

When the moon started in eclipse Monday night the roosters went to crowing.

Odd Fellows meet tonight. Business of importance, every member requested to be present.

Monday night an occasional peep through the clouds could be had at the comet, but it was a very insignificant affair.

Fourteen hundred copies of this issue of The Reflector are sent to the people. That shows where the advertiser is benefited.

The carnival had a damp night for opening Monday night, but notwithstanding this a fairly good crowd was in attendance.

Monday and today were very busy days at the Training school, receiving and registering the large number of teachers who came in for the summer school.

A full attendance is greatly desired at the Wednesday evening prayer service at the Methodist church. I will make an address on "My impressions of the General Conference at Asheville." John H. Shore.

The King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. A. L. Blow tomorrow at 4:30. We hope there will be a large attendance, as we will have a full report of the recent convention held at Rockingham.

Better Streets.

One thing vastly to the credit of the present board of aldermen of Greenville is that they had more permanent street work done than any of their predecessors. The sand-clay streets from Five Points to the Training school, and out Evans street to Tenth street, speak for themselves, and now the good work progresses up Fifth street to the railroad. Gradually the streets all over town will be improved, and it is much better than the old way of keeping them up.

Summer School Fine Opening.

The first summer school for teachers at East Carolina Teachers Training school began today with over two hundred teachers in attendance, and more arriving by every train. The school dormitories are full and several of the teachers have engaged board at private homes in town. The outlook is for a most successful summer school, and the institution is proving its value to Eastern North Carolina.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

Wilmington, May 23.—The Episcopal council decided at today's session to meet next year in Fayetteville. It was decided by the council to recommend additional buildings at the Charlotte orphanage.

H. W. WHEDBEE FOR JUDGE.

In April when Hon. O. H. Guion tendered his resignation as judge of the third judicial district, friends of Hon. H. W. Whedbee, of Greenville, presented his name to Governor Kitchin for appointment to fill the vacancy. On the day that the governor gave the appointment to Hon. D. L. Ward, of New Bern, the Democratic executive committee of Pitt county was in session selecting the date for the county primaries. As soon as the committee heard of the appointment made by the governor, a resolution was presented and unanimously adopted endorsing Mr. Whedbee for the judgeship and presenting him as a candidate for nomination by the coming judicial convention. The Greenville Lar has also unanimously endorsed his candidacy, an article to that effect being published elsewhere in this paper.

At the time Mr. Whedbee's name was presented to the governor for appointment, The Reflector expressed its approval of him, declaring that it was not only a recognition to which Pitt county was entitled, but that Mr. Whedbee was the peer of any man whose name had been or would be presented for the position. And of his candidacy for the nomination we do not hesitate to repeat the assertion that Pitt county is entitled to the judgeship, and that a better man for it than Mr. Whedbee will not be before the convention.

Harry Whedbee has always been a Democrat of the truest type, and at a time when men were sorely tried he stood firm and battled in the thickest of the fight for the success of the party. In addition to that he is an honest, upright man, one who loves right because he is right, and eschews evil because it is evil. Again he is a man in every way qualified for the judgeship and would fill the position with honor to himself and credit to the State. He is an able lawyer with an experience of sixteen years successful practice. He possesses that judicial temperament which weighs matters carefully before reaching conclusions.

Mr. Whedbee will go up to the judicial convention with more votes than any other candidate. He will have the unanimous support of Pitt county, and his reputation is such as has made him friends in every county in the district. The convention can make no mistake in nominating him, and we believe that is going to be the verdict when that body meets.

Hon. Chas. L. Abernethy.

It is extremely gratifying to the many friends of Hon. Chas. L. Abernethy, the present solicitor of the third judicial district, that every indication points to his renomination without opposition. There is no candidate in the field against him and this attests his popularity in the district among the people. He has "made good" in his office. He is justly entitled to a re endorsement and renomination, and from what The Look Out can understand from every section of his district his renomination is assured without opposition. He has "made good" and the people desire to reward him. Beaufort Look Out.

The Look Out well expresses the sentiment in regard to Mr. Abernethy that prevails throughout the district. He has many friends in Pitt county and they will be heard from at the convention.

We are unable to see anything about the comet that so frightens people as to make them fall dead, but several such deaths have been reported in different parts of the country.

Wonder if the people seventy-five years from now will make as much ado over Halley's comet as they did this time, and be as badly disappointed.

A Dead Stomach, of What Use is it?
Thousands of people throughout America are taking the slow death treatment daily. They are murdering their own stomach, the best friend they have, and in their sublime ignorance they think they are putting aside the laws of nature.
This is no sensational statement; it is a startling fact, the truth of which any honorable physician will not deny. These thousands of people are swallowing daily huge quantities of pepsin and other strong digesters, made especially to digest the food in the stomach without any aid at all from the digestive membrane of the stomach. Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in five minutes; they do more. Taken regularly for a few weeks they build up the run down stomach and make it strong enough to digest its own food. Then indigestion, belching, sour stomach and headache will go.
Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by everywhere and by Coward & Wooten, who guarantee them. 50c a box. Booth's Pills cure constipation, 25c.

THE COLORADO DESERT.

Its Stunted Tree Forms and its Petrified Forests.

In places in the Colorado desert are stream beds where perhaps once in several years heavy rains in distant mountains will cause water to flow for a short time. In these dry water courses several varieties of stunted tree forms are often found. The desert willow, which resembles the willow with which we are familiar, though smaller in size; the val verde, or green tree, a tree which is a bright green from trunk to tip of limb in every twig, and the ironwood, so dense in fiber that it turns an ax's edge, are the principal varieties. They are rarely above twenty feet high and, like all desert vegetation, have not a leaf.

They are apparently outcasts from the two great tree divisions, deciduous and citrus, for they have leaves neither to lose nor to keep. These may be called the living dogs of the tree family. We will find here also the dead lions.

Not far from the mountain range we will come upon the remains of what were once extensive forests of gigantic trees, now turned to stone and lying as they fell centuries ago. The great trunks, perfect in grain, knot and bark fiber, cumber the ground in tangled confusion in those places which have been protected from the drifting sand, giving evidence that what is now a desert was once upon a time a tropical wilderness.—Travel Magazine.

RUB THE OTHER EYE.

And Let the One in Which the Bit of Cinder Lodges Alone.

Nine persons out of every ten with a cinder or any other foreign substance in the eye will instantly begin to rub it with one hand while hunting for a handkerchief with the other. This is all wrong. The right way is not to rub the eye with the cinder in it, but to rub the other as vigorously as you like.

A few months ago I was riding on the engine of a fast express. The engineer threw open the front window of the cab, and I caught a cinder in my eye, which gave me intense pain. I began to rub the eye desperately, when the engineer called to me:

"Let that eye alone and rub the other one."

Thinking he was chaffing me, I only rubbed the harder. "I know the doctors think they know it all, but they don't, and if you will let that eye alone and work on the other one you will soon have the cinder out," shouted the engineer.

I did as he directed and soon felt the cinder down near the inner canthus and made ready to take it out.

"Let it alone and keep at the well eye," again shouted the engineer.

I did so for a minute longer, and then, looking into a small glass the engineer handed me, I saw the offender on my cheek. I have tried it many times since, always with success.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Where History Began.

Describing a visit to the tombs of the Egyptian kings, Albert Bigelow Paine in Harper's Weekly writes, of "the splendid tomb of Amenophis II., of the eighteenth dynasty, who lived in the glory of Egypt, 1600 B. C., a warrior who slew seven Syrian chiefs with his own hand. The top of the sarcophagus is removed and is replaced by heavy plate glass. Just over the sleeper's face there is a tiny electric globe, and I believe one could never tire of standing there and looking at that quiet visage, darkened by age, but beautiful in its dignity, unmoved, undisturbed by the storm and stress of the fretful years. How long he has been asleep! The Israelites were still in bondage when he fell into that quiet doze, and for their exodus a century or two later he did not care. Hector and Achilles and Paris and the rest had not yet battled on the plains of Troy."

Moral Suasion and a Strap.

"She seems to have abandoned her moral suasion ideas relative to the training of children."

"She has."

"How did it happen?"

"Well, I was largely instrumental in bringing about the change. You see, she has no children of her own, and I grew weary of her constant preaching and theorizing, so I loaned her our Willie."

"Loaned her your boy?"

"Precisely. She was to have him a week on her solemn promise to confine herself entirely to moral suasion."

"Did she keep her promise?"

"She did, but at the expiration of the week she came to me with tears in her eyes and pleaded for permission to whale him just once."—New York Mail.

Confucius on Kingcraft.

"What is kingcraft?" demanded a disciple.

Confucius replied, "Food enough, troops enough and a trusting people."

"Were there no help for it which could be best spared of the three?"

"Troops," said the master.

"And were there no help for it which could be better spared of the other two?"

"Food," said the master. "From of old all men die, but without trust a people cannot stand."

Got It Mixed.

An amusing blunder was made in the case of a judicial declaration that certain resident magistrates "could no more state a case than they could write a Greek ode."

This was made to read that the magistrates "could no more state a case than they could ride a Greek goat."—London Scraps.

A STORY OF FORREST.

The Actor's Encounter With an Impertinent Critic.

Many years ago Edwin Forrest, the celebrated actor, when in New York, was in the habit of dining at Windust's, a noted restaurant on Park row that was a favorite resort of actors and literary men. It usually happened that Forrest would be joined by friends and that the little group would sit together at one table. On one occasion it chanced that an Englishman with a reputation for conceit and impertinence, who had scraped acquaintance with the tragedian, was one of the group.

Early in the course of the dinner the Englishman began to make criticisms which he considered pleasantries about Forrest's conception of certain roles. Encouraged by his own appreciation, he gave full play to his humor and concluded each of his impertinences with "Pardon my freedom, sir—it's my way."

To the astonishment of all who knew Forrest's irascible disposition he bore the Briton's offensive remarks patiently and seemingly ignored them as far as possible. When, however, the nuts were brought in by the waiter he took several cracked walnuts in his hand, and walking over to the Briton's place, jocularly snapped them successively in the face of that individual, lightly saying after each shot, "Pardon my freedom, sir—it's my way," and snapped him out of the restaurant.

SPEED OF WAVES.

Over Seventy-eight Miles an Hour Has Been Recorded.

Interesting facts about waves were given by Dr. Vaughan Cornish in one of his lectures. In the north Atlantic, he said, waves had been measured, the largest of which was somewhat more than forty feet high, with a length from crest to crest of 560 feet. It was in the southern Indian ocean that waves attained their fullest development, and they had been measured there with a length of 780 feet.

In the Atlantic it had been found that waves attained a speed of thirty-eight miles an hour in a wind of about forty-four miles an hour. Speaking of the swells in the waves that run freely on the surface of the sea after the wind has ceased, Dr. Cornish said that during a storm in December, 1898, he recorded breakers near Bournemouth which moved at sixty-seven miles an hour and had a length from crest to crest of 1,900 feet. In February, 1899, he observed breakers on the same shore which had a speed in deep water of not less than seventy-eight and a half miles an hour.—London Family Herald.

When Kissing Was Costly.

The case of the people against Murline, heard by the governor of New Haven colony in council on May day, 1660, indicates the attitude toward unlicensed kissing in those times. It appeared that Jacob Murline and Sarah Tuttle had been caught kissing each other. Jacob tried to throw the blame on Sarah, saying he thought she had "with intent let fall her gloves." Sarah denied the intent. Jacob then admitted that he "took her by the hand and they both sat down upon a chest, but whether he kissed her or she kissed him he knows not, for he never thought of it since until Mr. Raymond told him that he had not layde it to heart as he ought." The stern governor, after duly lecturing the guilty parties on the enormity of their offense, decreed that "the sentence therefore concerning them is that they shall pay either of them a fine of 20 shillings to the colony."

Khartum.

Khartum owes its existence to an oriental form of treachery. When Khedive Mohammed Ali invaded the Sudan in 1820 he marched triumphantly to Shendi, where his troops were entertained at a banquet by the submissive natives. But while the khedive's high officials were seated at the feast they shared the fate of the viands and were themselves reduced to funeral-baked meats. Full of fury, the army fell on Shendi and demolished it. Marching south, the invaders reached the junction of the Blue Nile and White Nile. With the conqueror's instinct they recognized that the strip of land, with its few fishermen's huts of straw, formed ideal strategical headquarters, so Khartum finally grew into the most sensitive part of the Sudan organism.

Doubling Up.

A boy of eight years was asked by his teacher where the zenith was. He replied, "That spot in the heavens directly over one's head."

To test his knowledge further the teacher asked:

"Can two persons have the same zenith at the same time?"

"They can."

"How?"

"If one stand on the other's head."

THE UMPIRE.

Did You Ever Hear the Fans Cheer Him For His Work?

There is one unique phase connected with the life of the umpire which perhaps has never occurred to most lovers of baseball. You have often been to a theater and seen the hero or heroine—yes, even the villain—win round after round of applause for some excellent bit of acting.

You have been to a football game and heard some ball gladiator cheered to the echo for making a long run that resulted in a touchdown or for a flying tackle that prevented imminent defeat. When some player is injured they convey their sympathy to him by cheering his name.

You have been to a ball game and heard the fans cheer some crack pitcher because in a pinch he fanned some mighty batter. It's just the natural way of the American to show admiration and appreciation.

Rack your brain, think your hardest, recall every game you have ever attended, then see if you can remember a time when the umpire drew applause for his work. Have you ever heard the fans cheer the name of the umpire after he has worked a fifteen inning game which fairly bristled with close and unusual plays and got away without a kick? If you can recall such an incident, just dot it down in your notebook that you were present at a very, very unusual happening.

Do they cheer the umpire's name when he stops a foul tip with his shin or has a swift shoot bounced off his mask? Yes, they do—not. Any injury to the umpire usually gets a round of derisive laughter from the crowd. Generally, if he has been going bad, some leather lunged individual requests that he be killed or chloroformed. Of course there are many people in the stands who sympathize with the umpire. Their sympathy is usually silence. That isn't much balm to his injury or feelings.

Applause would sound so strange to an umpire's ears that he would probably become so thoroughly frightened he would jump the back fence.—Billy Evans in New York Tribune.

THE TELESCOPE.

Galileo's Rude Instrument the First Used in Astronomy.

The first telescope was pointed toward the sky on Jan. 7, 1610, when Galileo first tried his rude instrument and was rewarded by discovering some of the moons of Jupiter. No great magnifying power was needed for this, as at least one of the moons is large enough to be seen by the naked eye did not the nearness of the brilliant planet prevent this. Lenses had been known for a long time and were at that time in common use by near-sighted persons.

The name of the real discoverer of the telescope seems to be unknown, but the accepted story now is that two young sons of a Middelburg optician named Lippersley some time between 1605 and 1608, while playing with some lenses, happened to hold two of them at a distance from each other and were surprised and delighted to find that the weather vane on a neighboring tower seemed to come near them when looked at through the two lenses. In April, 1609, a little telescope made in Holland was offered for sale in Paris.

The next month Galileo, then a professor in the university at Padua, heard-of this instrument and realized at once its importance in the study of astronomy. From the description of the Dutch instrument he had one made at once, and in August he astounded the people of Venice by showing them from the top of the campanile persons entering the doors of the church at Murano. This spyglass was less than two inches in diameter and magnified three times. From this crude instrument of Galileo to the monster telescopes forty inches in diameter of the present day is the development of only three centuries.—Argonaut.

An Interruption.

Among the primary pupils enrolled in a Baltimore school is the son of a prominent business man of that city, says Harper's Magazine. One afternoon at close of school the youngster sought out his father in his office, to whom he said:

"Dad, I'm getting tired of school. I think I'll quit."

"Why," asked the astonished parent, "what's the matter, Tommy? I thought you were fond of going to school."

"So I am, dad," responded the youngster, suppressing a yawn, "but it breaks up the day so."

His Opening Break.

A congressman had returned to his constituency to deliver a carefully prepared address. The day arrived, and, loosening the first button of his Prince Albert, he uttered his carefully prepared preface remarks, and to this day he cannot understand the ripple of laughter which swept over his audience when he uttered his opening sentence, "Before I begin to speak to you I desire to say something." He said it.—Kansas City Star.

On the Way.

"I understand that you owe everything to your wife," said the tactless relative.

"No," answered Mr. Meekton, "but I will if I don't stop playing bridge with her and her mother."

Her Slip.

He—Do you think if I were to kiss you your dog would bite me? She—Well—er—he's never done it to any one before.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Punishment in Persia.

Among the Persians the usual mode of punishment is the bastinado, from which men of the highest rank are not exempt. It is inflicted with very great severity, frequently so as to render the sufferer almost a cripple for life. The victim is thrown upon his face, and each foot is passed through a loop of strong cord attached to a pole, which is raised horizontally by men, who, twisting it round, tighten the ropes and render the feet immovable. Two executioners then strike the sole alternately with switches of the pomegranate tree well steeped in water to render them supple. A store of these switches is generally ready for use in the pond which adjoins the courtyards of the houses of the great. The punishment frequently lasts for an hour or until the unfortunate victim faints from pain.

Heckling Humor.

A parliamentary candidate was bolding a meeting in And Reekle at which the heckler was much in evidence, and the embarrassed candidate failed to give a single answer which was judged to be satisfactory by the audience. Toward the end of the meeting an elector rose and quietly asked, "Sir, would you tell us what might be the name your second initial stands for?" The unfortunate candidate, greatly puzzled at the purport of the question, asked in what way the information could interest the audience. "In this way," explained the interrogator—"we should be able to see if you could answer one question!"—London Tatler.

Failed to Catch the Tune. A professor in an old Pennsylvania college was conducting a review in Latin. Of a sleepy looking youth he asked the question, "What construction is that at the top of page 12?" "I don't know," was the prompt reply.

"Why not?" thundered the professor. "I have been harping on that construction all term."

"I know you have, professor," was the soft reply, "but I haven't caught the tune yet."

Embarrassing Question. Police Justice—Have you any way of making a living? Vagrant—I beg'y'r honor. I kin make brooms. Police Justice—You can? Where did you learn that trade? Vagrant—I decline to answer, your honor.—Home Herald.

The Verdict. The lecture was over, and the gentleman who did the talking strained his ears as he followed the audience out of the hall to gather in, so far as he could, what sort of an impression he had made. As he drew near to the doorway two old gentlemen who were making their way out just ahead of him rendered a verdict. "Well, Bankside," said one of them, "what did you think of it?" "I've heard worse," said Bankside. "Did you think it was at all illuminating?" asked the other. "In an old fashioned way, yes," replied the venerable Bankside. "I don't quite catch your point," said the questioner. "Why, it was illuminating, but it struck me as having more gas than electricity about it," explained the critic.—Judge.

The First Telegraph Line. After the formal opening of the first telegraph line built for commercial purposes between Washington and Baltimore Professor Morse and his associates offered to sell the invention to the United States government for $100,000, but the price was considered too high. The government had appropriated $30,000 toward the construction of the Washington-Baltimore line, but after a short period of operation the postmaster general, to whom President Polk had referred the matter, wrote, "Although the invention is an agent vastly superior to any other devised by the genius of man, yet the operation between Washington and Baltimore has not satisfied me that under any rate of postage that can be adopted its revenues can be made to cover its expenditures."

The Onion. The onion has been so long in cultivation that its original form is not definitely known. There are so called wild onions that grow in the woods. Nobody ever tastes them but once, and there is about the taste no suggestion that cultivation or anything else could ever make them grateful to the human palate. In all probability the onion is a native of western Asia and adjacent parts of Africa, since it is mentioned in old Egyptian writings and the Pentateuch.

An Autobiography. Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, what is an autobiography? Mr. Chugwater—It's the story of a man's life written as he thinks it ought to be. Couldn't you tell that from the word itself?—Chicago Tribune.

A Success. Byker—I attended a successful sleight of hand performance last night. Pyker—Really? Byker—Yes, I lent a conjurer a counterfeit half dollar, and he gave me back a good one.

MEMORY IN FISH.

Striking Results Shown in a Test With Gray Perch.

Even the fishes of the sea have pictures on memory's wall. Experiments have been made with several fishes as to their faculties for remembering, but the most striking results have been obtained with the gray perch, which lives chiefly on small silvery hued sardines. Some of these were taken and colored red and were then put into the tank where the perch was with several silver colored sardines. Of course the normal sardines were at once seized and eaten, but it was not until hungry that the perch made a tentative meal of one of the red colored victims.

On recognizing the sardine flavor, however, he promptly demolished the remainder. Later the perch devoured the sardines irrespective of color, thus showing not only traces of a memory, but also the power to differentiate color.

Subsequently sardines colored red and blue were placed in the tank together with the silver ones. The same scene was repeated, the blue sardines not being attacked until the others were eaten and hunger compelled investigation of the newcomers. After this introduction the perch ate the sardines of all three types without any difficulty.

Some spines of the sea nettle were then fastened to the blue sardines. These were at once avoided by the perch, which promptly got out of the way of the newcomers. This showed traces of memory, as the results of contact with the sea nettle were shown and recognized.—Chicago Tribune.

Tart Repartee. Of Sir William Harcourt, Disraeli once said in his affectedly cynical way, "He has the three essential qualifications of success in politics—a fine person, a loud voice and no principles." To this when it was repeated to him Harcourt rejoined, "Leaving out the first two qualifications, it might as well be applied to 'Dizzy' himself."
