COTTON DELIVERY SUIT.

Judgment Rendered in Favor of Plaintiff.

Tuesday afternoon a cotton delivery case was tried before Justice H. Harding, the parties being H. A. Gray against Vernon Carson. Gray sued Carson for the difference in price of eight bales of cotton, delivery of which had been agreed upon at 10 cents and the price at which it was worth at the time it should have been delivered, Carson having failed to make delivery.

The two points set out by the defendant were that it was a gambling contract in futures, and that as the contract had not been made in writing it was not valid. Testimony offered by the plaintiff showed that while the contract had not been made in writing there were several competent witnesses to a verbal contract to deliver the cotton.

The judgment of the court was in favor of the plaintiff on the ground that Carson being a farmer engaged in cultivating cotton he evidently intended to make delivery of the cotton at the time of entering into the agreement, hence it was not a gambling contract; and that the evidence clearly showed the existence of a parole contract even though it was not in writing. The defendant took appeal.

Spring Hope, May 24.—Spring Hope was visited again by a fire last night, and this time it was the shook house of the Stevens Box factory. The entire plant of this factory, which was formerly located in town, was burned to the ground just a little more than a year ago. Since that time the plant has been rebuilt just on the outside of the corporate limits of Spring Hope. At about 11 o'clock last night folks who remained up to see the moon in eclipse discovered the shook house on fire. The fire seemed to start in the roof.

There has been no occasion to have fire in the building, and it must have been of incendiary origin.

WRECK ON NORFOLK SOUTHERN.

Twenty People More or Less Injured—None Very Seriously.

Elizabeth City, May 24.—This afternoon a Norfolk Southern through passenger train was wrecked between Edenton and Yeopin, between fifteen and twenty passengers being slightly injured. The train left Edenton at 1:30 and just before reaching Yeopin, going at a speed of 35 or 40 miles, a rail split and the engine jumped the track, pulling a long train with it. The first class coach in the rear ran off the track and turned over. In this coach the passengers were rudely thrown from their seats, glass and iron flying in different directions. Many were cut about the face and body and some sustained severe bruises and sprains. None, however, were thought to be seriously injured.

Mrs. E. R. Conger, of Edenton, was perhaps the most seriously injured. She was thrown through a window and fell on her face, receiving several bad cuts and a terrible jolt. Dr. John B. Griggs, of this city, was the only physician on board and he rendered all aid within his power.

Late this afternoon a train came out from Norfolk and carried through the injured to hospitals in Norfolk. The trains have been tied up all day and no mail from the south has been received since the early train this morning.

Dr. Griggs says the scene of the wreck was an awful sight with passengers suffering cuts and bruises and that it was miraculous that no fatalities resulted.

AN ABOMINABLE SCHEDULE.

The Reflector learns that Wilson and Washington are already up in arms against the proposed taking off of some of the day trains on the Norfolk Southern road, when the new night trains are put on June 5th, and Greenville is urged to unite with these towns in a vigorous protest. Mention has already been made in our local columns of the rumor that some of the day trains would be taken off, and from the neighboring towns the information comes as to the intent of the railroad. It is this: They propose to take off entirely the train between Washington and Raleigh which passes Greenville at 8:10 a. m. going west and 7:45 p. m. going east, this being the most convenient train for people between these points that the road operates.

Under the proposed schedule to begin June 5th there are two daily trains each way between Raleigh and Norfolk, and here is the time those trains will pass Greenville: No. 14 going east at 12:30 a. m. (midnight); No. 15 going west at 8:30 a. m.; No. 2 going east at 9:35 a. m.; No. 1 going west at 4:30 p. m.

We can hardly imagine a more abominable and inconvenient schedule for local travel than this. For passengers going through between Raleigh and Norfolk on sleeping cars it may be suitable, but just think of people here having to take trains at 12:30, midnight and 8:30 a. m. to go in either direction. There is much travel between this section and Raleigh, because many people have business at the State capital. Under the old schedule Greenville people could get breakfast at home, take a train at 8:10 a. m., spend five hours in Raleigh and be back at 7:45 p. m. in time for supper. But under the proposed schedule it will be necessary to leave here at 3:30 a. m. and not get back until the next night after midnight, or else leave here at 4:30 p. m. and get back the next night after midnight or in the morning of the second day at 9:35 a. m., thus requiring two nights and a day to transact any business at the capital.

Certainly Greenville, and every other town along the road between Washington and Raleigh, should enter a vigorous protest against such inconvenient service as the Norfolk Southern is proposing to give this section.

More things keep coming to view for the entertainment of the editors at their meeting at Wrightsville June 8 to 10. The mails bring an invitation to a special favor dance at Lumina on the evening of the 10th. Surely Cowan, of the Wilmington Dispatch, has set his face to "make good" to the boys, but to appear in proper shape at the dance Durham Sun Robinson will have to take along more than his bathing suit in that envelope.

The chamber of commerce, the tobacco board of trade, every organization and every business man in Greenville ought to get busy at once in protesting against the Norfolk Southern railroad taking off the most convenient day train that the road operates through this section.

Too bad, that the flying machine man repudiates his contract and will not fly in Charlotte Saturday. But Charlotte loses out so seldom she can perhaps survive this disappointment.

Just think how these showers are making the crops grow, and forget any present inconvenience.

ATTACKED BY SHARKS

A Whale's Terrific Battle With a School of Thrashers.

AN AWE INSPIRING CONTEST.

The Unequal Fight Was Ended by the Death of the Courageous Mammal, Who Was Torn to Shreds by Her Feroocious Assaultants.

Early one morning while engaged in building new quarters for the light-house keeper at Breaksea Island, near Rottnest, Western Australia, the contractor and his men noticed a ball whale, with a cow and calf, pausing the island some distance off. They watched them with interest for awhile, noting the immense size of the two parents and the methodical regularity with which columns of water rose from their blowholes and then resumed their labors.

An hour or so later—about 9 o'clock, to be exact—the men were startled by an extraordinary noise, apparently coming from the eastern end of the island, a noise unlike anything they had ever heard before. Dropping their tools and starting toward the east, they beheld such a sight as it falls to the lot of few people to witness. There, not 500 yards from the shore, was being waged a battle to the death—a fight between the great cow whale previously seen and a school of thrasher sharks. The calf was swimming about distractedly, but the old bull had disappeared, having basely deserted his family at the first approach of danger.

The sharks, as though acting in accordance with some preconcerted plan, had completely surrounded the two whales and, apparently realizing that nothing was to be feared from the calf, concentrated all their efforts upon the cow. Again and again they charged in upon her, their jaws snapping, tearing at her mighty sides until the sea was red with blood. Meanwhile the cow lashed her tail furiously, hurling up sheets of reddened water and occasionally crashing down with terrific force upon one of her voracious opponents. Maddened with pain and rage, she dashed this way and that, but the sharks hung to her side with a persistency and ferocity that made the fascinated onlookers shudder. Now and again the wildly lashing tail would catch one of the assailants, driving it beneath the waves—no doubt killed or disabled—but the remainder rushed in undismayed, tearing viciously at the mammal's bleeding flanks or butting her with the force of battering rams.

Presently the spellbound spectators realized two facts—first, that the calf had disappeared in the melee and, second, that the tortured whale was undoubtedly becoming weaker. It was obvious that the unequal struggle could have only one ending. Still, however, she fought on doggedly, winning admiration and sympathy by her exhibition of hopeless courage. Altering her tactics, by a supreme effort she hurled her whole great bulk clear of the water for a moment, and the fascinated onlookers beheld the sharks hanging from various parts of her gleaming body by their serrated teeth. Then down she went again with a crash like thunder, and for an instant whale and sharks were buried amid masses of foam, heavily colored with the poor mammal's lifeblood. Rising again, she essayed another change of plan, making for the rocks and desperately striving to rub off the clinging sharks against their edges. But the thrashers were equal to the occasion. While those on the outside maintained their grip, the others dived under their enemy and charged her anew, tearing at the whale's side in an ecstasy of ferocity that was bloodcurdling to witness.

More and more feeble grew the whale's struggles, and at last, to the heartfelt relief of the spectators, for her death fight had been terrible to behold, the great body turned over and sank beneath the red tinted water. The unequal battle was over, having lasted from 9 o'clock until noon, as awe inspiring a contest as man was ever privileged to witness. The men went back to their work greatly impressed by the unique spectacle, and expressions of sympathy for the whale were heard on every side.

Forty-eight hours afterward the whale's body, which had in the meantime become distended with gas, rose to the surface and exploded with a roar like a miniature powder magazine, causing the startled people to rush to the shore to discover what had happened. On examination of the remains it was discovered that every shred of the outer flesh of the whale had been torn off by the sharks, who had doubtless gone off to repeat their tactics upon some other hapless leviathan.—Victor Pitt-Kethley in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

What He Sold.
One of the witnesses in a case in a Dublin court was asked, "Did you sell Major Studdert a horse?" "No, sor."
"Did your father sell Major Studdert a horse?" "No, sor."
"Did your grandfather sell him a horse?" "No, sor."
"Well, then, did any member of your family sell Major Studdert anything?" "Yes, sor." "Who did, then?" "I did, sor." "And what did you sell Major Studdert?" "I sold him a mare, sor." The counsel sat down, and the court roared.

Polliteness is like an air cushion—there's nothing in it, but it eases the joints wonderfully.

THE LEGISLATIVE JOKER.

Easy Way in Which the Intent of a Law May Be Changed.

"A joker in its simplest form consists in a word or a clause which, introduced into proposed legislation, flies away from the public its power to establish such laws as it desires, either by emasculating an enactment or by perverting the essence and purpose of it." So writes Samuel Hopkins Adams in American Magazine, and he cites these instances of how the joker game is worked:

"Sometimes it is in one word, as where the sale of a piece of public property to the lowest bidder was once authorized. Sometimes it may inhere in that elusive character, the comma, as in the case of the tariff clause of an old schedule providing for the free entry of fruit plants, where somebody carelessly allowed a comma to creep in between 'fruit' and 'plants,' thereby admitting millions of oranges and lemons into the country duty free and costing the treasury hundreds of thousands of dollars in loss of imports. Nobody ever found out whether this was a printer's slip or a carefully devised scheme. Certain it is that the framers of the schedule never intended it.

"Again, the entire body of the proviso may constitute the joker by purporting to carry one meaning when in reality carries quite another. Congress still preserves the tradition of the Irish representative from Massachusetts who proposed that March 17 be made a legal holiday in celebration of the 'Boston tea party.' Several New Englanders whose zeal exceeded their erudition warmly supported the measure until some one pointed out that March 17 was much more closely associated with the supposed birth of the proposer's patron saint than with the destruction of the obnoxious tea, which latter, indeed, was a midwinter festival."

SWISS DIVORCE CASES.

The Court Always Tries to Settle Them by Reconciliation.

In one important respect the Swiss surpass other nations in the management of their divorce cases, says an English correspondent.

In every town there is a kind of official paper known as the Feuille d'avis, in which one may read daily the following announcement:

"M. and Mme. X., who are in instance of divorce, are requested to appear privately before the judge, alone or with their lawyers, in order to come to a reconciliation if possible."

Before the beginning of every divorce case in Switzerland this notice is published and sent out to the interested parties, leaving the couple, of course, free to attend before the judge or not, as they wish. Often the couple meet.

Although there are no statistics published on the subject, I am told by a leading lawyer in Geneva whose specialty is divorce cases that at least 80 per cent of divorce cases—"much to my loss unfortunately," the lawyer added, with a smile—are settled by the paternal advice of the judge at these meetings out of court.

In fact, Swiss lawyers will not definitely take up a divorce case until it has passed through the reconciliation process.

If one of the couple does not attend the rendezvous this means that the affair is to be fought out, but in any case Swiss divorces are not expensive.

The average cost in a contested case is $200, often $100, and the lowest when both parties are agreed $10 or $15.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Be a Real Power in the World.

It is a great thing to start out in active life with the resolution that you will not be a mere cipher in your community, but a real constructive force; that you will stand for something more than a real living getter or a dollar gatherer; that you will not be merely one more citizen, but a strong, robust, vigorous force, a power respected, a force that moves things. To be known as a progressive man who stands for everything that is for the betterment of his community, every one should be ambitious to be something as a citizen besides a specialist in his vocation.—Success Magazine.

The Wild Beet.

Beets were first found growing wild in sandy soils near the sea in Europe and western Asia. The wild beet still found there is regarded by authority as the original type. This wild beet is slender rooted and has a taste so different from the beet we know today that one must consider the first man who tasted one and thought it possible to develop had gifts of hope and imagination far beyond ordinary. The beet has been cultivated since 200-300 B. C.

Handicapped.

The second Duke of Wellington was handicapped through life by his father's fame. Bernal Osborne once asked him why with his undoubted talents he made no effort to shine in public affairs. The duke replied: "If you had sat so long as I have under the shadow of a great tree you would be as colorless as I am."

Too Clever.

Hotel Clerk—Let me see. You're the Mr. Barne who acts Romeo, aren't you? I think I've seen you climb down from Juliet's balcony. Barne—I am that famous actor, sir. Hotel Clerk—Cash in advance, please. You climb too well for any other terms.—New York Journal.

The love of beauty is taste: the creation of beauty is art.—Emerson.

Ze Game of Golf.

He had come over from France and had just been asked to give his views on the ancient game of golf. With much gesticulation he did so.

"Ah," he said, "your game of golf! Yes, I know it. You put on ze tunic so red as ze inglesch rosbl underneath done. You strap your sack of sticks on ze back of a boy twice so small as ze bag.

"He scrape a mud pudding to make balance a teetle white ball. He make three bad tries to balance him, then very angry you call aloud, 'Feur!' Then you what you call address ze ball, and, ma foi, your address is sometimes of language to make afraid.

"You strike, and ze ball find himself in ze long grass.

"You call aloud for ze nib lunge stick and beat ze ground till your partner say, 'Ho, chuck it!' You say— But, my friend, I excuse myself to repeat what you say.

"Ah, my friend, you are a great nation, but your golf game gives me what you call ze pip!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Willing to Chance It.

Here the lecturer threw upon the screen the portrait of a man well known in the financial world, says the Chicago Tribune.

"This," he said, "is one of the great captains of finance. I do not need to mention his name. His face is familiar to all of you. Look at his corrugated brow, the furrows in his cheeks, the pouches under his eyes, the deep lines about his mouth. That face, my friends, bears the unmistakable and ineffaceable stamp of care. Anxiety has marked it indelibly. It shows the traces of sleepless nights, weary days and bitterly fought campaigns, with millions of dollars at stake. Success brings such a man no happiness. Look at him! How many of you, my friends, would change places with him? How many of you would be willing to take his wealth if compelled to assume the terrible burden of responsibility that goes with it?"

His hearers rose en masse. "I would!" they shouted in unison.

His Unfortunate Investment.

"It's astonishing," the old settler in the little town was saying, "how real estate has advanced in this town since I came here. The corner lot this building is on, for instance, sold once for $450."

"What is it worth now?" asked the stranger.

"Five thousand."

"Well, you had a chance to get rich by investing in land yourself. I suppose you bought some real estate?"

"Yes; I bought one lot—just one."

"That has increased in value, hasn't it?"

"Yes; over 600 per cent."

"That was a good investment."

"Not so awfully good, mister," said the old settler gloomily. "I paid $10 for it, and it's worth $75 now, but it's in the cemetery. The way I figure it I've lost a heap of money by not dying forty years ago."—Youth's Companion.

The Power of Suggestion. It was the reserve force stored up in the years of conquest and the habit of triumphing in whatever they undertook that gave such power to the Washingtons, the Lincolns, the Gladstones and the Disraelis, says Orison Swift Marden in Success Magazine. It is the reserve power which we feel back of the words and between the lines of a powerful book, not what is actually in the printed words, that impresses us most. We are not so much affected by what an orator like Webster actually says as we are by what he suggests—the latent power, the mighty reserve force, that we feel he might put forth were the emergency great enough.

An Easy Cure. A correspondent for a local paper writes that his sister sent him four fun lines which are guaranteed to cure any case of strenuousness in the family. The lines are to be repeated three times heartily in the face of any domestic difficulty. Here they are:

The dog is in the pantry;
The cat is in the lake;
The cow is in the hammock.
What difference does it make?

The Crows and the Snake. "Strolling in Burma one day," says a writer in the London Field. "I came to a ditch bridge, and about ten yards off there was a mass of black soft mud caused by buffaloes rolling. On the bridge was a small brown snake about two feet in length. This snake is an ordinary jungle inhabitant and is very venomous. Surrounding him were a mob of some dozen crows. Whenever the snake attempted to escape the nearest bird would jump in and jerk it back by the tail. The crows generally kept just out of the snake's reach, but on three separate occasions the birds were struck."

Immediately on being bitten a crow flew over to the wet mud and swallowed three or four mouthfuls without a pause. It then perched up in a tree and took no further part in the fight. The incident ended in the snake escaping between the planks of the bridge. What interests me is why did the stricken birds eat the mud? Was it taken as a kind of antidote or what was the reason?"

The Rainbow. When a ray of sunlight falls on a raindrop it is refracted; then part of the light is reflected from the internal surface and again refracted on leaving the drop. The white sunlight is not only refracted when it enters and leaves the drop, but dispersion also takes place. The eye sees bright circles of light for each kind of light, and since sunlight is made up of different kinds of homogeneous light we get a series of circular arcs showing the spectrum colors, the red being outside and the other colors following in the order of descending wave length. The whole constitutes a primary rainbow. A secondary bow is sometimes seen outside the first. This is formed by the light being twice reflected inside the raindrops. The less refrangible rays are on the inner side. Rainbows due to still more internal reflections are too feeble to be observed. It is possible to get a white rainbow if the sun is clouded or if there is a mixture of raindrops of very different sizes.

The Pearl Hunters' Superstition
The pearl hunters of Borneo and the adjacent islands have a peculiar superstition. When they open shells in search of pearls they take every ninth find, whether it be large or small, and put it into a bottle, which is kept corked with a dead man's finger. The pearls in the vial are known as "seed pearls" or "breeding pearls," and the native Borneo firmly believes that they will reproduce their kind. For every pearl put into the vial two grains of rice are thrown in for the pearls to "feed upon." Some whites in Borneo believe as firmly in the superstition as the natives do, and almost every hut along the coast has its "dead finger" bottle, with from nine to fifty seed pearls and twice that number of rice grains carefully and evenly stowed away among them. That no results follow does not dim the superstition.

The Wonderful Toad Bone.
All early writers attribute wonderful qualities to toads and frogs and the various parts of their bodies. Pliny believed, for instance, that if a toad was brought into the midst of a mob or other large and unruly concourse of people "silence would instantly prevail." A small bone found in the right side of toads "of the proper age" was also believed to have powers over the various elements. "By throwing this bone into a vessel of boiling water," says Pliny, "it will immediately cool it, the water refusing to boil again until the bone has been removed. To find this bone, expose the dead toad on an ant hill. When the ants have eaten her all away except the bones, take each bone separately and drop it into boiling water. Thus may the wondrous toad bone be discovered."

Our Few Real Needs.
As civilization and culture make people more prosperous and more comfortable they are prone to forget how few and simple their real needs are. We need sleep, but not much of it, and most of us are asleep exactly when we ought most of all to be awake. We need food, but it is not necessary that food should be cunningly disguised with a thousand devices to tickle the jaded and surfeited palate, for the main trouble is that we eat too much and not too little. We need clothes to wear, but the one suit of fur that lasts certain animals all their lives is so beautiful that some men spend their whole time in search of it. We need heaven and the sense of a higher power directing our lives and our destinies, but we spend most of our time refuting and denying the possibility of anything bigger or better than we are. We need the love of friends, and therefore it is the more strange that we should spend our time not in improving ourselves, but in decorating our bodies, filling them with food and bustling them about over the earth in search of ever freshening sensations.—Philadelphia Ledger.
