It is a marvelous exhibition, the woman, after being hypnotized, floating about through the air at the will of the director. The carnival closes tonight. The Maryland Shows have the best class of attractions of any carnival that has been here.

STATE NEWS.

Newly Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Physicians report three new cases of pellagra of varying severity, all of which appear to be somewhat improved.—Durham Herald.

At Tuesday session of the annual meeting of the United States League of Building and Loan Association which is in session at Charlotte this week, Mr. John Dunn of this city was elected third vice president. This city was selected for the next convention which will be held in June 1911.—New Bern Journal.

Wilson, May 27.—The many friends of Hon. F. A. Woodard will rejoice to know that, after several weeks' absence in Philadelphia, where he has been in a sanitarium, undergoing treatment, that he has returned to Wilson greatly improved in health. He and Mrs. Woodard arrived last night to the delight of friends and admirers.

After a short executive session yesterday morning the Republican state committee selected Greensboro as the place and August 10 as the time for holding the state nominating convention. Before this decision the committee, in open session, had listened for two hours to speeches of invitation from representative citizens of Charlotte Asheville and Greensboro, and from the promises it was more a question of deciding upon a logical and central point than one where hospitality would be extended.—Greensboro News.

Raleigh, May 27.—Mrs. Julia Annie Poteat, mother of President W. L. Poteat and Dr. E. M. Poteat, president of Furman University, Wake Forest college, died at the home of her daughter, Miss Ida Poteat, of the Meredith college faculty, today in her 77th year, after a critical illness of several weeks.

Lumberton, N. C., May 27.—While attempting to arrest a demented negro woman near Maxton last night about 8 o'clock, Deputy Sheriff F. C. Barnes, of Lumberton, was shot and painfully but not seriously wounded in the leg just above the knee. Sheriff Barnes and the posse returned the fire with telling effect, wounding the woman in the face and her husband in the arm, neither seriously.

Winston Salem, May 27.—The six-year-old child of Mr. James Smith, of Stokes county died from the effects of a large drink of whiskey. Mr. Smith went to the field to work, carrying along a bottle of whiskey, from which he drank freely, and then lay down and fell asleep. The little child came along some time later, finding his father asleep and by his side the bottle of liquor. The child drank a good deal from the bottle and was immediately taken seriously ill from the violent effects of the intoxicant. After suffering several hours death came to his relief.

Thursday morning seventy-five patients, most of them epileptics, were taken from the Western hospital for the Insane at Morganton and carried to Raleigh, where they were placed in the Central hospital. The State hospital commission authorized the erection of buildings at the Raleigh institution for the insane people from the eastern part of the State, also all the epileptic insane of the State and this was why these people were moved

"Wild Cat Evangelism" Denounced.

"Wildcat evangelism" was denounced Thursday at the closing session of the 50th general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church, at Lewisburg, W. Va. The denunciation was uttered by Dr. Charles R. Nisbet, of Nashville, Tenn., chairman of the assembly's committee on evangelization, when he was called upon to report on that work.

"What is needed," said he, "is a sane evangelism. There is a great deal of evangelism today that is answerable to no church. It is a wildcat evangelism. It is doing more to prejudice this arm of the service than any two things at work in this land."

Before adjourning to meet next spring at Louisville, Ky., a number of reports were acted upon. Motions were offered looking to the discontinuance of the home and school for widows and orphans of missionaries at Fredericksburg, Va. It resulted in almost the opposite effect, that of an increase in the appropriation for the institution.

The attitude of the church toward women came up in the hurry for adjournment. The query was from the LaFayette church of New Orleans, La., as to whether the church still objected to women addressing mixed assemblies of men and women.

"There has been no change in the settled policy of our denomination in this matter," was the reply the assembly made.

Parents to Blame.

Nearly everybody in America knows the spectacular history of "Tennessee Claffin," now Lady Cook, if you please, of London, Eng. She was recently in this country in the interest of the suffragette movement, but it is not that which has caused her to be widely discussed on this side of the water, as well as in her adopted land. No, Lady Cook has entered the "literary business," and has given publication to some real sound thought, original and, in a measure, daring. "Tennessee Claffin," that was, says that half the sin and shame of the world might be avoided if mothers would act sensibly and bring up their daughters in the full wisdom and experience of life. The same applies to fathers, too, who neglect to be frank and open with their sons. Says Lady Cook:

"Parents are deeply to blame for a large portion of the miseries enumerated. If fathers encouraged their sons to be frank and trustful with them as they would be with their youthful friends, their experience and advice would prepare their children to beware of 'the strange woman whose steps lead down to hell'. Vice exposed and robbed of its mystery would disgust rather than charm; they would recognize the scientific truth of St. Paul's teaching that 'our bodies are the temples of the living God' when preserved in purity. And if mothers would only learn to win the confidence of their daughters and teach them all they ought to know of themselves, thus guarding them from dangers and instructing them in sacred duties and responsibilities, how many a girl would have been saved who is now lost through sheer ignorance, and from the foolish and misplaced modesty of the only one who could have properly enlightened her.

There is a world of truth there, but while Lady Cook's theories are highly commendable, later day prudery still stands in the way of that frank education of the young in the home. For why? All mothers, good mothers we mean, shrink from unfolding that knowledge which has ever been surrounded with mystery and secrecy, the two very elements which make sin and misery attractive to the young mind. And who is there with courage enough to break away from misguided tradition; to call a rose a rose and a spade a spade?—Asheville Citizen.

Rabbit Comet.

Most people have been disappointed that Halley's comet did not have a very long flourishing tail. It turns out, however, that it was not that kind of a comet. Comets, so far as tails are concerned, are probably of three kinds. Raccoon comets, possum comets, and rabbit comets, and the best way we can define the tails of these several comets is by quoting from Vest Ormond's celebrated banjo song, "Rolling on the Grounds:"

"De raccoon has a bushy tail,
De possum's tail am bare,
De rabbit have no tail at all,
A little bunch of hair."

SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1910.

Many of them had money to blow in at the carnival, even if none to pay their bills.

And now it is LL. D. Roosevelt, the University of England having done the Dr. act for him.

The Wilmington Dispatch must get busy with the weather man if he expects the boys to use their bathing suits when they go to the press convention.

Interest in good roads is growing rapidly in Pitt county, and the sentiment for a bond issue for this purpose is increasing. The Reflector believes that the next legislature should pass a bill giving the people of the county the opportunity of voting by townships on the question of issuing township bonds to build roads. Taking up the matter by townships will be the quickest way to get a system of roads all over the county.

A matter that Greenville must get interested in, and that quite early, is providing a new cemetery or purchasing more ground adjoining the present one. If the latter can be done, even then the need would be met for only a few years more. There are now no desirable lots for sale in Cherry Hill, and the coming of new families and growing population make a demand for additional burial lots. The aldermen should be considering the matter of getting more room for the cemetery.

Ring the Gong.

Talking about gospel, applicable to every day life and boiled down so as to fit snugly in a nutshell, this paragraph from the Richmond Journal strikes us as being "it."

"The man who never gets 'knocked' never gets anything." There is a great volume of truth, much philosophy and a tremendous amount of advice in this small, trite expression. It is capable of wide analysis and great profit can be derived from giving it thought. The chap who never "knocks," that is who never stands forth boldly for something, really never amounts to much. He is in the same class with the fellow who has no enemies. He never achieves anything for himself and never helps push things forward. The man who goes along without raising his voice in protest at iniquitous things or in advocacy of something good cannot benefit himself, nor his fellowman. It's true, a person may go along quietly, peacefully in this world, never expressing an opinion, and everybody will like him, and many will say when he has gone that he was a "good man," but the advancement of humanity and the march of progress require something more than this. Each requires, as well as the advancement of the individual and the going forward of his loved ones, that a person in this life has an opinion of his own. It is not necessary to be rowdy, nor arbitrary with such an opinion, but stand up for something. Push forward things you think are right, defending them, and shun what you think is wrong and help push them down. Without ambition mankind would indeed be a piece of machinery and the world would be at a standstill. But coupled with that ambition must be the desire to have an opinion and to express it. The latter, of course, can be done in a reasonable way, and without wails and shrieks, and such will always accomplish more. In having an opinion and expressing it a person is bound to make enemies, because the world has not reached the pinnacle of perfection as yet and a difference of opinion furthers advancement. But enemies who are made by a person when battling for right cannot do injury in the long run, and besides, if a person is fearless, but, of course, considerate, they will admire him all the more, even if he is on the opposite side of the fence.—Wilmington Dispatch.

The fearless editor may offend and lose a subscriber, but if he is right in the end he will gain five. He may lose an advertiser, but if he is right he will gain two thereby. If he labors not to displease anyone he will please no one. If he tries to ride all the horses in the field he will be unhorsed by each of them. The editor should follow his honest, well-considered convictions, and the man he should labor to please is himself. If he does this with ability and without fear or favor he will have a great following and better support, though he be wrong half the time, than he who trims his sail to every change of the breeze, and without chart or compass, principles or purpose, drifts aimlessly with every shifting tide.—Gaffney, S. ## BIRTH OF A VOLCANO.

Nature's Process in Forming a Mountain of Lava.

THE FORCE OF AN ERUPTION.

Upheaval That Destroyed the East Indian Island of Krakatoa in 1883 Propelled an Air Wave Three and a Half Times Round the Earth.

Though volcanoes are often spoken of as burning mountains, they do not burn at all, nor, in the proper sense of the word, are they mountains at all. A volcano is really a flaw in the crust of the earth through which the fierce glowing heat lying below the crust has managed to burst a hole. Through this hole great floods of melted rock spout up. Some volcanoes work at intervals; some are in eruption all the time. As the melted rock jets up into the air and falls it naturally builds itself into a mountain round the hole. The next eruption has to burst its way through the heart of that mountain. The chimney it spouts through is usually called "the pipe."

Sometimes an eruption is so fierce that when the lava (another name for melted rock) spouts out it is burst into bits. When it falls it is sometimes as fine as dust, sometimes the size of cinders. Most volcanoes, indeed, are simply gigantic cinder heaps. When the force is not so great the lava in the pipe simply bubbles over and flows down the sides of the mountain, exactly as porridge boils over the edge of a pot. As lava is liquid, the slope of a lava volcano (or lava cone, as it is usually called) is always very gentle. Falling cinders, on the other hand, pile themselves up quite steeply. A lava cone, then, is always less steep than a cinder cone.

And a volcano never burns. What looks like flame is only the glow of the white hot lava on the clouds of steam. The more steam there is forcing its way up the pipe the more the lava bubbles, just as in the case of the porridge. If the pressure of steam is very great, then you have the lava blown to bits and falling as cinders, while the mighty clouds of steam rise high above the mountain. It is this steam that, is mistaken for smoke.

Sometimes a cone sends out lava and cinders alternately, so that you have a great mountain of cinders bound together by layers and walls of lava. These walls of lava are due to the fact that sometimes more lava wants to come up the pipe than the pipe will hold, so the lava bursts its way out through weak spots in the sides of the mountain. Etna has no fewer than 700 of these cones on its slopes. One of them, Monte Rossi, is a hill in itself, being 450 feet high. Indeed, a model of Etna looks as if it were covered with pimples.

When Etna is really roused it is far more dangerous than Vesuvius. In 1169 it nearly destroyed the city of Catania, killing 15,000 people. In 1669 it found its pipe so inconveniently small that it had to crack one of its sides. This crack was no less than twelve miles long. At the bottom white hot lava could dimly be seen through the clouds of steam. In 1755 millions of gallons of boiling water were shot out of the Val del Bove, which is a great circular pit on the slope of the mountain, four or five miles in diameter, its sides being cliffs nearly a mile high in places.

The greatest volcanic eruption ever known took place in the East Indies in 1883. The story makes almost incredible reading. The volcanic island of Krakatoa commenced proceedings by blowing half of itself into thin air. From the opening no less than a cubic mile of rock was shot out.

A column of steam and lava dust rose into the air to a height six times as great as that of Mount Everest. It spread and spread till for hundreds of miles around the air was black as midnight. Sound's as of distant cannoning were heard 2,000 miles off.

Sea waves fifty feet high killed 25,000 people and were felt as far off as California. Instead of an island half a mile high there was now a hole a quarter of a mile deep. The shock of the eruption sent air waves three and a half times around the earth. The fine dust in the upper atmosphere added for months afterward a strange glow to the sunsets in England and did not vanish completely for three years.

The exact cause of the eruptions is not known for certain. A popular theory is that they are caused by water getting in to the white hot mass which is supposed to lie under the outer crust of the earth. And it is certainly a fact that practically all volcanoes are close to the edge of the sea.

Some lava flows slowly, some quickly. Vesuvius in 1805 sent out a lava stream that in four minutes had reached a spot four miles off. The size of a lava stream is sometimes gigantic. In 1783 Skaptar Jokull in Iceland emitted two streams at one time. One was forty miles long by seven miles broad, the other fifty miles by fifteen. The average depth of both was about a hundred feet.

Lava cools very, very slowly, except on the surface, which cools at once. It is an extremely bad conductor of heat. Twenty years after a stream of lava was sent out from Jorullo, in Mexico, tourists could light their cigars through chinks in the surface, and the surface had been cold for twenty years. In 1828 a layer of snow many feet thick was found under a layer of Vesuvius lava. It was still unmelting and is probably there still. — Pearson's Weekly.

TOWER OF LONDON.

The Picturesque Old Structure on the Banks of the Thames.

The Tower of London is one of the most picturesque places in all England. It is located on the north bank of the Thames and just east of the business district of London. It occupies about twelve acres and is surrounded by a broad and shallow moat. In feudal days it was one of the strongest fortresses in the country and was deemed impregnable. It is now a government storehouse and armory and, above all, one of the sights of London.

The moat, which, with the battlement and towers, makes the stone structure such a hoary antiquity, is bordered within by a lofty castellated wall. At frequent intervals of this part of the structure there are massive flanking towers.

Within this wall rises another of similar construction, but of greater height. Here are the various barracks and armories. In the center of all is the lofty keep or donjon known as the White tower. This was erected in the days of William the Conqueror and contains one of the most charming little chapels of Norman design which have remained till the present day.

The White tower was the court of the Plantagenet kings. In the northwest corner is St. Peter's chapel, now the garrison church. In another part is the jewel office, containing crown jewels of enormous value. One set which you see in the center of a case is said alone to be worth about $15,000,000.

Nearby is the horse armory, containing a truly wonderful collection of ancient and mediæval arms and armor. In the court just beyond is a slab marking the spot where Anne Boleyn, wife of Henry VIII., was beheaded. Similar fates befell many other famous personages in English history within the great walls of the Tower of London. — Boston Herald.

NIPPED THE REVOLT.

Dramatic Manner in Which Zelaya Caged the Conspirators.

Zelaya, the extraordinary man who for sixteen years retained the presidency of Nicaragua, only to lose it because he went too far in offending the government of the United States, was never satisfied unless he performed his coups d'états in the most dramatic fashion possible. This story the New York Sun tells of him:

His spies once brought him information that a revolution was being planned by several of his army officers. They were to meet on a certain evening at the house of one of the conspirators to arrange the final details. While they were eagerly discussing the best way to seize the president the door opened and in walked Zelaya himself.

"Good evening, gentlemen," he said pleasantly. "I heard you had a party here this evening, and I have dropped in to share the fun. Quite a distinguished gathering. You are discussing military matters, no doubt."

He went on, chatting affably for a half hour, while his enemies were torn with fear and suspense. Did he know of the plot? Most of them thought he did and wondered whether they had better not put a bullet in him at once. But he was so cordial, so thoroughly at ease, that they hesitated.

Presently he rose, poured out some wine and raised his glass.

"A toast, gentlemen," he said. "Here's long life to the president of Nicaragua and confusion to all traitors!"

As he spoke he hurled the glass against the window, where it smashed in pieces with a crash. The door flew open, and thirty or forty soldiers, who had been waiting outside for the signal, rushed in. All the plotters were convicted, but the president dealt leniently with them. Some were imprisoned and some exiled, but none was shot.

How Wasels Carry Eggs.

One morning a wasel was surprised crossing the public highway leading from Jedburgh into Oxnam Water. It was observed to be carrying something under its chin and pressed against its slender neck, and when a collie dog belonging to one of the onlookers made a dash at the little creature it dropped its burden—a hen's egg—and, gliding under the roadside hedge, disappeared in the woodland. On being picked up the egg was found to be without a crack. The nearest poultry run is about 300 yards distant from the place where the wasel was intercepted. — Scotsman.

Spiteful.

Patience—I hear you're engaged to be married.
Patrice—Where in the world did you hear that?
"My maid told me."
"How did she hear it?"
"A policeman told her."
"More mystery. How came a policeman to know it?"
"Why, the man you're engaged to told him when the officer was taking him home!" — Yonkers Statesman.

The Judge's Joke.

Sheriff Guy is responsible for a court of session story. Once when the present lord justice, Clerk, was conducting a jury trial he made a small jest. The audience thought it its duty to laugh. "Silence!" shouted the macer in measured tones. "There's nothing to laugh at!" — Westminster Gazette.

A Shocking Question.

Traveling Man (to hotel clerk at counter)—Can I take a bath here?
Clerk (indignant)—No, sir; hire a room. — Lippincott's.

SUNG THEIR LESSONS

Geography Set to Music an Old Time Teaching Scheme.

A PLAN OF YANKEE ORIGIN.

One of the Most Popular Airs in the List Used to Interest the Pupils in Their Studies Was "Auld Lang Syne"—"Bonny Doon" Also Liked.

Singing geography was a popular fad in the educational line in New York in olden days, particularly in upstate school districts. It was of Yankee origin. It was never made part of the common school system of the state, but was taught outside the regular hours.

A set of wall maps known as Pelton's outline maps was used. There were no names of geographical divisions or places on them. The instructor would go over the map on which the lesson was found, pointing out with a pointing rod the different countries, cities, rivers, lakes or whatever might be the subject in hand, and at the same time the name of each division, place or body of water would be mentioned in song. The teacher, usually a man, would lead the class chorus as he pointed, and if the subject happened to be political divisions the song would run like this, to the tune of "Bonny Doon:"

Let North America be first
In our descriptive rhyme rehearsed.
Its northern bound the arctic waves,
Its east the Atlantic ocean laves.
The gulf of Mexico we see
Upon its southern boundary,
Its western and southwestern sides
Are washed by the Pacific tides.

The geographical verses were contained in the pupils' text book called "The Key to Pelton's New and Improved Series of Outline Maps." Among other things the following is found in the preface of one of these old time volumes:

"With respect to the versification, it is merely necessary to say that the design has been to put all the important geographical localities on the globe, in connection with much valuable matter, in a form which can be most easily committed to memory, and it is confidently believed that the exhilarating effect of harmonious sounds will greatly facilitate the acquisition of this knowledge, and care has been taken that none but popular and approved airs be inserted in the work."

"Auld Lang Syne" appears to have been regarded as an especially "popular and approved" air and was often used. In the very first lesson the pupils were taught to describe the earth by singing the following to this tune:

The earth is a large ball or globe
Whose surface has been found
Three-fourths with ocean waves submerged
And but one-fourth dry ground.

Two hundred millions of square miles
Earth's surface does embrace.
Eight hundred million people here
All find a dwelling place.

Tongue twisting names did not embarrass the geographical versifier, although the enunciation of all the pupils probably was not perfect when, for example, in the lesson on Asia they sang to the air of "Bruce's Adventures" such lines as these:

Now in modulations sweet
Asia's rivers we repeat.
Obi first in Russia greet,
Irish river next.

Lost in sand behold Helmund,
Then northward seek Yarkund;
Be not turbid Oxus shunned;
Sihon river see.

Ural river next in place,
Attruck and Koor river trace;
Kizil Irnak then embrace
In our melody.

There were thirty-one states in the Union when singing geography was in vogue, and the pupils were taught to bound each of them in verse. California was then the newest state, having been admitted in 1850; was the last on the list, and its boundaries were thus defined:

On California's northern side vast Oregon is placed,
Both Utah and New Mexico upon the east are traced.
Upon its southern borders next may Mexico be found.
And broad Pacific's sparkling waves compose its western bound.

In thirty-four stanzas set to the tune of "Bonny Doon" the geography class would make a tour of Europe and glean bits of information about various countries and cities visited. The tour would start in this fashion:

Now be our geographic rhymes
Transferred to European climes.
The grand divisions first we teach
With the metropolises of each.

Norway, a region bleak and cold,
By Christiania is controlled.
Sweden, that Charles the hero bred,
Takes Stockholm for its chief and head.

Russia in proud expansion sits
And to St. Petersburg submits.
Austria, with its imperial crown,
Vienna takes for its chief town.

Turkey, in southern Europe placed,
Is by Constantinople graced.
Greece, once for arts and arms renowned,
With glorious Athens still is crowned.

Thus the geography pupils sang on through the list of European nations and capitals. — New York Sun.

Enlivened the Play.

"Monte Cristo" was playing to a crowded house in a New York theater. In a box, sat a man who had looked on the wine when it was red. When Monte mounted the rock in the sea and exclaimed, "The world is mine!" the man in the box shouted, "What'll you take for Hoboken?" — Brooklyn Life.

Silence is a figure of speech, unanswerable, short, cold, but terribly severe.—Parker.

War Caused by a Kiss.

In the year 1703 a stray kiss was the means of bringing about a bloody and expensive war. Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria was journeying in a neighboring state. One day he visited "the royal household," and while there his eye caught sight of a most beautiful maiden who happened to be near him. He was so bewitched with her charming personality that he impulsively and thoughtlessly implanted a kiss upon her fair cheek. She was a princess of the royal household, which the prince knew not. Neither did he know that she was an affianced bride and that her betrothed was near by and saw the whole affair. A duel was fought, and both principals were severely wounded. Diplomatic relations between the two kingdoms were suspended, and a long and bloody war ensued, all on account of a kiss which was paid for most dearly in blood and treasure.
