STATE NEWS.

Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Wadesboro, May 28.—Mr. T. C. Robinson, for eight years clerk of the Superior Court here, died this morning after an illness of three weeks. His death came suddenly.

Raleigh, May 28.—The corporation commission this afternoon elected A. J. Maxwell, of Dover, secretary to the commission to succeed H. O. Brown, appointed by Governor Kitchin as commissioner in the place of the late B. F. Aycok. Mr. Maxwell is prominent politically, having served several sessions as principal clerk in the state senate and had the endorsement of all the Democratic state senators and many others. There were 30 or more applicants for the place. Mr. Maxwell will take up his work June 1.

Isabelle Perry, for the past four months the maid at the home of Mrs. L. J. Dowd, on North Tryon street, was arrested this morning on a warrant sworn out by Mr. W. F. Harding, charging her with the theft of a pearl pin, a cut glass bowl, table linen and towels. A search warrant was also issued and after the woman had been taken to the police station her home was entered and two towels with Mr. Harding's name were found. The case will come up for trial Monday morning before Recorder Smith.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Raleigh, May 28.—The governor and council of state at noon today opened the second bids for the $3,430,000, four percent, forty year refunding bonds and found bids aggregating only $1,195,000, mostly at par. The constitution of the state prohibits the sale of bonds at less than par. This leaves $2,234,500 that must be taken care of in order to meet the bonds outstanding that mature July 1. The bids on batches ranged from $1,500 to $200,000. A number, who had bids for first advertised opening, did not take part this time, the bid for $500,000 by the New York Life Insurance company being noticeably absent. The council of state were called in executive session by the governor immediately after opening of bids was completed.

A negro man was detected stealing a pair of trousers from a store in Red Springs yesterday afternoon, and made a dash for the open. He was followed by a policeman and half of the population of the down town section. When the posse reached the new Presbyterian church building the thief was lost sight of. Some contended that they saw him run through a field of oats, while others said they saw him go under the church. After considerable argument, several boys were sent under the church, to see if they could find any trace of the man. When they neared the center of the structure, they were horrified to see a hand sticking up out of the ground. They summoned aid, and soon the man was dug out of an excavation into which he had fallen, the earth at the same time caving in on him. The fellow was almost dead and it was sometime before he was revived and landed in jail.—Fayetteville Observer.

The Amuzza Theatre will not be opened until the new machine is received. It is expected every day and notice will be given in these columns upon its arrival.

MRS. JO. N. ANDREWS ENTERTAINS

In Honor of Miss Bessie Stevens, of Dunn.

Reported for Reflector.
On Saturday evening at her home on Greene street, Mrs. John Andrews charmingly entertained about thirty couples in honor of her guest, Miss Bessie Stevens, of Dunn. On arrival the guests were greeted and cordially welcomed by Miss Stevens, attired in white satin, with Mr. Bert James. Fruit punch was served in the hall by Miss Mary Shelburn, attired in pink net, and Mr. Cecil Cobb. Japanese decorations prevailed throughout the home and the soft lights shed by the Japanese lanterns added much beauty to the scene. Progressive heart dice was the game of the evening and the guests enjoyed it until a late hour. The young ladies' prize, a gauze fan, was won by Miss Hennie Whichard and the young gentlemen's prize a pearl handled knife, was won by Mr. Willie Wilson. The guest of honor's prize was also a gauze fan. After the presentation of the prizes delicious ices and cakes were served. The guests departed at late hour declaring Mrs. Andrews an ideal hostess and Miss Stevens a charming guest of honor.

The World Will Find Them.

A wise man said, "If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods the world will make a beaten path to his door." In other words if he shows other men a better way they look to him for help. The boys and men who are now trying their best to make large yields of corn on an acre of land in this country are going to be greater benefactors to the people than the men who endow colleges and other institutions. These men who are leading for a better yield on the lands are going to change the methods of farming in this section and put farming on a higher plane. The slip shod methods of the past will be no more after these pioneers show what it is possible for the lands of this section to produce.—Mt. Airy News.

Cheese and Mutton Fatal Combination.

Mr. F. Linney says that one of the best remedies that he has tried for sheep-killing dogs is to lay a piece of cheese by the carcass of a sheep that has been killed by dogs, and he says that when the hungry curs return for a second feast and find fresh meat and cheese both awaiting him that he is so overcome with joy that death results in a few minutes. He has tried this remedy on four within the past few days, and in each instance it has worked like a charm. It may be that he does a little "doctoring" on the cheese, and if he does, who blames him?—Watauga Democrat.

From "The Girl and the Wizard."

By special arrangement with the publishers of the music of the musical play "The Girl and the Wizard." The New York World will publish next Sunday the song hit of the production, words and music complete. This is the famous "Frantzi Frankenstein" song which fairly brings down the house every time it is sung. Be sure to order next Sunday's World to get this song.

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY.

Now Ready for Distribution to Subscribers.

The Reflector printing establishment has just turned out a new directory for The Home Telephone & Telegraph Company, covering the exchanges at Greenville, Ayden and Grimesland. If we do say it ourselves, we believe this directory is as hand some a product in the printing line as the telephone company will have at any of its exchanges, and the shop feels proud at being able to turn out such work. In addition to praising its neat typographical appearance and get-up, Manager Smith paid us the further compliment of declaring it absolutely errorless.

The new directory will be distributed to subscribers in the next few days, and they should read it over carefully so as to use the telephone in accordance with directions. The numbers in the directory are now all correct, and you will facilitate matters in always calling by number.

Workman Gets Close Call.

Ferd Barnhill, one of the colored street hands, had today a narrow escape from being killed while assisting in cutting down the trees in front of Dr. Moye's. A large limb was being cut off and it was braced by a pole to throw it in the desired direction. In falling the limb swung further around than had been calculated, barely missed Ferd's head and struck him hard enough on the shoulder to rub off the skin and knock him down. Had he been an inch nearer in the line of the limb and caught it on his head a funeral would likely have been the result.

Marriage Licenses.

Register of Deeds W. M. Moore has issued the following licenses since last report:

WHITE.
Oscar H. Peele and Katie Wells.
Allen J. Cox and Cornelia Estelle Oakley.

COLORED.
Eli Savage, Jr. and Jennie Gorham.
Emanuel Randolph and Ellie Gorham.
Marcellus Barnhill and Pauline Bland.

Large Congregation and Fine Sermon

That Greenville people were glad of an opportunity to hear Rev. R. A. McFarland, of Scotland Neck, was shown in the immense congregation that gathered in Memorial Baptist church Sunday night. Some had to be turned away for the want of room. It was a splendid audience, and all present heard a fine sermon. Mr. McFarland's subject was "Good Soldiers of Christ," and his sermon was fully in keeping with his reputation as a preacher and orator. It was indeed a feast to hear him.

Corner Stone in Municipal Building.

The city fathers have placed a very neat corner stone in the front of the municipal building on Fifth street. The stone contains the names of the mayor, present board of aldermen, the building committee and the date of erection. There was no ceremony of any kind at the placing of the corner stone, but several articles of record were placed in it.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

Boys and Girls Going to Hell.

"While you are fighting for some theological dogma, our boys and girls are going to hell," declared Mayor Seidel in an address before the Milwaukee Ministerial Association at the Y. W. C. A. building. There was a verbal battle and some sharp repartee during the discussion and immediately after. Mayor Seidel had remarked that when a boy is offered a baseball ticket he will shun the saloons. One of the ministers arose and declared he wouldn't trust his boy to attend a baseball game for the very reason that intoxicants were sold on the baseball grounds. "They'll manage to drink somehow," declared the minister.

"Then it is up to you," replied the mayor "to cultivate and develop better taste."

Mayor Seidel suggested that the ministers co-operate with the school board in an attempt to have the schoolhouse doors thrown wide open to the children for social purposes. One of the ministers declared there wasn't any need of trying to give the boys good, wholesome amusement when the nickel theaters downtown catered to their baser passions.

"The thing for you to do then is to compete with the theaters," replied the mayor. "Have a moving picture machine right in the schoolhouse."

Hon. Harry W. Whedbee.

Hon. Harry W. Whedbee, of Greenville, is a candidate for the judgeship of the third judicial district to succeed Judge Ward.

Mr. Whedbee needs no introduction from us to the people of Pitt county. For sixteen years he has been actively engaged in the practice of law at our county seat. During these sixteen years his every effort has been to advance the interests of his county, his state and his party. A man whose honor is unblemished, a gentleman of the highest type, a Democrat in the truest sense and a lawyer whose reliability is unquestioned, he stands without a peer in the bar of Eastern Carolina. The robes of office could not fall upon shoulders that would carry them with more dignity and honor than those of Mr. Whedbee.—Farmville Enterprise.

Land Purchase.

Mr. E. B. Ficklen has purchased from Mr. J. L. Moore 34 acres of woods land, southwest of town, lying between the old race track and sand clay road and the Norfolk Southern railroad. It is a nice piece of property and subject to development for factories. Mr. Ficklen will begin clearing the track this fall. He says you will see a cotton factory out there in a few years.

Even yet the comet is slightly visible.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Ar'n't you glad its over?

Get ready for tax listing.

There is but one more May day.

Possibly this will be a quiet week.

To the last there was a crowd at the carnival.

The carnival shipped out Sunday for Edenton.

May has given much cool weather, but is warming toward the finish.

Potatoes were quoted in northern markets today at from $1.75 to $2.50.

Only a week to the town election, and but little talk of candidates for aldermen.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are registration days for the town election next Monday.

This being Federal decoration day, and a holiday, there were neither weather nor market reports.

The Masons will have a special communication tonight in Red Men's hall, for work in the second degree.

Two Ribs Broken.

Mr. J. H. Averett was painfully hurt Saturday night, but is not laid up from his injury. While driving along the street his horse shied and run the buggy against a post. The collision threw Mr. Averett out, and in striking his body against the buggy wheel two of his ribs were broken.

BROWN'S PARTNER.

The All Around Genius That Would Just Fill the Bill.

The following is quoted from the American Magazine and is signed by H. Lee:

"Here's the whole thing in a nutshell," said Brown to me. "I am now twenty-eight years old, have my own business and have brought it to such a state that I have decided to take a partner."

"Take one," answered I.

"There's the rub," he gave back. "My partner must be such an all around knowing one that I'm afraid I'll have hard work to fill the position."

"My partner must be able to make laws and to enforce them, must be able to carry out complicated chemical work, must be a skilled mechanic, must know something of economics, must be able to buy wares of all kinds with due consideration of my finances and must be able to do tailoring of a kind if necessary."

"Hold on, Brown!" said I. "Are you dippy, as the vulgarians say?"

"No," replied he. "I want a wife. Look around among your friends and see if any one man among them could do all that a good housewife should be able to do. She must make just laws for the family and enforce them. She must understand the complicated processes of cooking. Making, mending, washing, ironing and otherwise caring for the clothing of a family require mechanical skill. Bringing up a child properly requires far more knowledge and wisdom than selling dry goods of standard makes and prices year after year. Where are more science and skill required than in the sickroom? And if the wife does not know how to do all of these things how can she direct the work of her paid help, especially if the help knows less than she does?"

"My dear boy," said I, "do the way 90 per cent of us do—marry and trust to luck."

A Gentleman and Boots.

The "first gentleman in Europe" got the very worst definition of a gentleman from his valet when driving down to Brighton. The prince regent was arguing about the gentleman and finally turned to his valet. And the valet replied that a gentleman was one who did not clean his own boots. It was a stunky's reply. One likes better the demand of the Duke of Wellington, "Give me men who can sleep in their boots."—London Graphic.

Notice of Sale.

I will offer for sale at public auction at 11 o'clock a. m. on Saturday June 4th, 1910, in the store occupied by Wiley Brown on corner of Fifth and Main streets in the town of Greenville, N. C. the entire stock of merchandise and book accounts recently assigned to me by the said Wiley Brown, for full particulars and copy of inventory, apply to S. T. Hooker, May 24th, 1910. Assignee, 5 26 8td.

Removing Trees.

Today work started taking down the large trees on the sidewalk in front of Dr. Moye's residence, preparatory to the grading down of the sidewalk in keeping the street. The trees are very large and it will take much work to get them out of the way.

The Republican State convention going to Greensboro ought to especially please the News of that city.

And even the president is a lover of graft, but congress refused to let him overdraw his allowance.

Though the last one here seemed the least objectionable of any that has come, we as yet have to see any good a carnival does a town.

Kinston blind tigers will be careful hereafter how they run in contact with Judge Cook. Fines of a thousand dollars may break up their game.

From the experience the State is having over the offer to sell $3,430,000 bonds, it does not look like a good time to put them on the market.

Congressman C. R. Thomas, of third district, has declined to be a candidate for re-nomination. He was first elected in 1898, and has been congressman of his district for twelve years, making a very useful member of that body.

The Greenville Reflector does not like the idea of crawling out at midnight to catch a train. They are kicking because they get a night train and we are kicking because we did not get it.—New Bern Sun

Just a little wrong in diagnosing the case. We are not kicking because of the putting off of a night train, but because of the proposed taking off of our most convenient day train. Of the two the day train is much the best for this section.

The Republicans in North Carolina seem to be between two fires in making nominations for offices. The leaders feel that if they choose old-line Republicans who have been closely identified with the party in this state in the past they will only be able to command the support of the regular dyed-in-the-wool Republican voters while, on the other hand, if they select "business Republicans" or "near-Democrats," men who have never been active in party work, they will lose the support of many of the old-timers. As evidence of the fact that this kind of thing is "cutting some figure" the following comment of the Asheville Gazette-News on the candidacy of Mr. McNinch, of Charlotte, for congress is significant, to say the least: "We may be wholly mistaken in this, but we have somehow got the idea that Mr. McNinch is one of those Republicans, if he has got to the point of admitting his affiliation with that party in state matters, who would take the first train to Washington the day after the election, along with John Motley Morehead, and use the prominence acquired through Republican support to push along the impression in Washington that the only way to build up a respectable Republican party in the South in general, and in North Carolina in particular, is to kill off all the old-time Republicans who had the hardihood to acknowledge their Republicanism at a period when to do so was not popular."—Winston Sentinel.

We hereby strike John G. Carlisle off the last page in the book of our esteem. His course in letting the unscrupulous attempt to collect worthless reconstruction bonds from North Carolina engage his name and counsel speaks for itself. He never possessed force or attraction of character; he was a purely intellectual force when most conspicuous. The State of North Carolina will not be intimidated, let the New York stock exchange do what it may; but the spectacle presented by John Griffin Carlisle, sometime speaker of the house of representatives, senator from Kentucky and secretary of the treasury, is wretched to behold.—Charlotte Observer.

Once in a while a judge is found who displays common sense. One of these is in New York State. He announces that because a man reads the newspapers is no reason why he will not make a good jurymen; in fact he goes further and says they can read all the papers they want while being kept together on a case, his idea being that a man of sense is not going to be swerved from doing his duty by anything the newspapers may say. Quite true, but how does he know he has men of sense on the jury every time.—Greensboro Record.

ARE YOU SURE

That the ice cream you buy is strictly PURE? Do you know that the makers' hands were clean, flies excluded from the factory, and freezers and other utensils kept in Sanitary Condition? Why take any chance where your health is concerned? Why not MAKE AND FREEZE YOUR OWN ICE CREAM in 10 MINUTES FOR ICE A PLATE with Jell-O ICE CREAM Powder. It is so easy. Simply stir contents of one 13c. package into a quart of milk and freeze, without cooking, heating or the addition of anything else. This makes two quarts of ice cream, clean, pure and wholesome. A good ice cream freezer can be bought for a dollar or two which will last for years, and will soon save its cost. 2 packages JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder for 25c. Flavors: Chocolate, Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon and Uppitavored. Sold by all good grocers. The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Greenville Homes. Hard to do housework with an aching back. Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work. If women only knew the cause—that Backache pains come from sick kidneys. "I would save much needless woe. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys. Many residents of this vicinity endorse them." Mrs. L. Cameron, 117 Payton ave., Kinston, N. C., says: "The great benefit I obtained from Doan's Kidney Pills justifies me in recommending them. A dull, nagging backache, accompanied by sharp twinges through my loins bothered me for a long time. I had but little energy or ambition and was caused additional annoyance by a kidney weakness. Having Doan's Kidney Pills recommended to me, I procured a box. After taking the contents, the pains in my back ceased and difficulty with the kidney secretions was corrected." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FLAVOR SENSATION.

Variations in Taste Are Due to the Sense of Smell.

It is not generally known that we can taste only four different kinds of matter—that is, perceive by means of the tongue any more than four taste qualities of matter. They are sweet, sour, bitter and salt. If one holds his nose and places on his tongue in succession pieces of apple, onion, raw potato and beet he cannot tell the difference between them. By these experiments it has been determined that the sense of smell has a great deal to do with the flavors perceived or taken cognizance of by the brain. As the tongue can distinguish only these four sensations, it is at once seen that all variations in taste are due to the sense of smell. In some cases, as with the orange, all the flavor is in the smell, so when we eat an orange while we have a cold no taste is apparent.

These four sensations also have not their respective seats distributed uniformly over the tongue. Sugar and other sweets are perceived at the tip of the tongue, as are also salty things. If a little sugar is placed on the back of the tongue no sweetness is apparent. The locus of sour and bitter perception is back farther in the mouth and placed on the sides of the tongue. Both these facts are easily proved by experiment.

Another peculiarity of taste perception is that dry things cannot be tasted; only those that are in solution. If a dry cracker is placed on the tongue no taste is apparent until the saliva has dissolved part of it. If the tongue is wiped dry with a handkerchief and a little sugar is placed on it no taste is perceived for some time.

The mechanical arrangements provided by the body for the perception of taste are also interesting. In the mouth, situated in the places mentioned as seats of taste perception and also in other places, though not so thick, are what are known as "taste buds." They get this name from their almost exact similarity to a bud when cut in cross section. These taste buds have in them the excessively fine branches of the nerves of taste that carry the impulse to the brain.

The only reason a great many things are tasteless to us is because they are not soluble in water or saliva. Take sand, for instance, or lead or gold. None of these gives any taste on this account.

The tongue of course has many uses besides the organ of taste. One of the chief of these is the ability of its end to perceive very slight touch sensations. The tip of the tongue is proved by numerous experiments to be the most delicate touch perceiver in the human body.

Of course the floodgates of the saliva ducts are controlled by nerves from the brain. One or two peculiar experiments can be made to show results of thought on their operation. If one thinks about sucking a lemon or about eating a luscious pear his mouth immediately receives an extra flow of saliva. The mouth waters for it. If a person is frightened the flow of saliva is stopped, and immediately afterward one perceives that his mouth is extraordinarily dry and cannot account for it.—Lawrence Hodges in New York Tribune.

An Accident.

Cast away upon a desert island, Lonely Joe came suddenly upon another shipwrecked party—the lost Hibernian crew of the good ship Shamrock. Their hair flowed down below their waists, and their beards and whiskers resembled miniature jungles.

"I want food!" gasped Lonely Joe to the first man he met. "Food! Give me food! Tell me, are you the mate?"

"No, sorr," replied the Hibernian ship's cook coldly. "I'm the man who cooks the mate."

"Great heavens!" cried Lonely Joe, fleeing for his life. "Cannibals!"

He took the first plank home and as he sank gurgled:

"This is a far, far better death than t'other would have been."—London Fun.

A Big Bell.

The largest hanging bell in the world is said to be that in the great Buddhist monastery near Canton, China. It is eighteen feet in height and forty-five feet in circumference, being cast of solid bronze. This is one of eight immense bells that were cast by command of the Emperor Yunglo about A. D. 1400. It is said to have cost the lives of eight men, who were killed in the process of casting. The whole bell, both inside and out, is covered with an inscription in embossed Chinese characters about half an inch in length, covering even the top piece from which it swings, the total number being 84,000. These characters tell a single story, which is one of the Chinese classics.

JAPANESE WEDDINGS.

An Important Preliminary is the Advice to the Bride.

A Japanese wedding does not establish a new home. It only adds the bride to the family of the bridegroom. The government gives official recognition to this custom by transferring the bride's name on the register from her own to her husband's family, so young Orio does not bring Miss Chrysanthemum to his own little dovecot, but to his father's house.

At the door of this house the little bride to be is formally surrendered by her own family. Before the actual wedding ceremony takes place, however, there is an important preliminary to be observed—Miss Chrysanthemum must drink tea with her mother and the wife of the go-between. This lady might be called a bridesmaid, but the Japanese wedding knows no bridesmaids in the western sense. There is, however, a little girl in attendance, called a "butterfly," who has important duties to fulfill.

While the three women are together the occasion is taken to give the nervous little bride some final advice on her conduct in her new home—how to humor her husband and how to get on the right side of her mother-in-law, a personage who is just as important in Japan as she is with us. Perhaps, moreover, the two older women quote from the Japanese "Greater Learning For Women," the revered classic which lays down rules for female conduct. "The great lifelong duty of a woman is obedience. In her dealings with her husband both the expression of her countenance and the style of her address should be courteous, humble and conciliatory, never peevish and intractable, never rude and arrogant. Never set thyself up against thy husband with harsh features and a boisterous voice."

This seems to insure the young husband getting his own way without any bickering or nagging, but it may be that the old hands tell the young bride how to bend Orio even while she seems to obey him and how to lead him when she appears to follow, as is the way of women the world over.—Wide World Magazine.

Long Distance Courtships.

Sketching one day in Burma, an English artist noticed a man a little distance off glaring fiercely straight ahead at him at some object he could not see from his position. The man sat with the same fixed glare the whole afternoon and was at it again next morning. The artist had the curiosity to ask an English visitor what it meant. The reply was, "Oh, he is in love!" And it was explained that this was their method of courtship. The object of the man's attentive gaze was a girl in a neighboring bazaar. When a young man falls in love he has to seat himself at a certain distance from his adored one and wait for her to do the rest. If she looks in his direction once or twice on the first or second day he is wildly encouraged, and if on the third day she nods to him and smiles it is time to go to the parents with reference to the marriage settlements.

Missed Fire.

A boy who had been going to one of the public schools in Buffalo left school to go to work for a small manufacturer. The boy was dull, and his stupidity annoyed the manufacturer greatly. After two weeks of trial the manufacturer discharged the boy at the end of the week on Saturday night.

"You're discharged," the manufacturer said. "Go and get your pay and let that be the last of you. You're discharged."

On Monday morning the manufacturer was much surprised to see the boy in his former place at work.

"Here," he shouted, "what are you doing in this shop? I discharged you Saturday night."

"Yes," said the boy, "and don't you do it again. When I told my mother she licked me."—Saturday Evening Post.

A Tale of Russian Wolves.

A man was telling about an exciting experience in Russia. His sleigh was pursued over the frozen wastes by a pack of at least a dozen famished wolves. He arose and shot the foremost one, and the others stopped to devour it. But they soon caught up with him, and he shot another, which was in turn devoured. This was repeated until the last famished wolf was almost upon him with yearning jaws when—

"Say, partner," broke in one of the listeners, "according to your reckoning, that last famished wolf must have had the other eleven inside of him."

"Well, come to think it over," said the story teller, "maybe he wasn't so darned famished, after all!"—Everybody's Magazine.

BRONCHITIS.

Need of Watchful Care During an Attack of the Disease.

Bronchitis is the name given to any inflammation of the mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes. In a fairly healthy adult an attack of acute bronchitis is not a very terrifying thing, although it is most distressing and disagreeable.

It is as if an unusually severe cold and cough, instead of confining itself to the head and throat, wandered on down the chest. The irritation of the tubes results in a constant cough and sense of breathlessness. The temperature rises, the patient feels sick, the more so that the incessant coughing does not result in the throwing off of any secretion to speak of.

In a day or two the inflammation in the tubes subsides, the temperature goes down, there is less and less sense of oppression, and the secretion gradually becomes freer. From this point there is gradual recovery, as from an ordinary bad cold.

On the other hand, in the very old or the very young or with those whose powers of resistance are lessened from any cause whatever bronchitis is a dangerous disease. It has a tendency to run from the acute into the chronic form, in which the sufferer may be perfectly well during the summer months or while in a warm climate, but at the least chill or exposure must expect and will get his inevitable attack of bronchitis with symptoms persisting until the return of warm weather.

The moral of this is that it is most essential to give proper treatment during the acute stage. The need of watchful care during a bronchial attack will be the more appreciated when it is understood that such an attack may be the beginning, sign and warning of a tuberculous trouble and, furthermore, that whooping cough and measles sometimes begin that way.

In any case, whether the attack be simple bronchitis or a warning of some other trouble, the first rule should be "straight to bed." In fact, this good old fashioned rule at the onset of any type of so called "cold" cannot be bettered.

A wise secondary rule is to stay in bed till the temperature has been normal for a day or two. If this were observed relapses would be fewer and convalescences shortened.

Never mind how mild the trouble promises to be, a physician should be at once summoned not only because he alone is competent to recognize danger signals, but also because there are many alleviations in his power of the numerous painful and distressing symptoms of this disorder.—Youth's Companion.

Beans.

The bean that we eat in some form nearly every day, that almost everybody likes, is comparatively new as an edible. Our common every-day bean is a native of South America and was introduced into Europe, whence it came to this country during the sixteenth century and now is represented by over 150 cultivated varieties. The big broad bean is the bean of history, and its origin is so remote that it is doubtful. It is probably a native of southwestern Asia and northeastern Europe. The broad but not thick lima bean, called by some folks "butter bean," is a pole variety that came from South America. Soy beans, little pealike beans, with hairy plants, are natives of China and Japan and are as old, as cultivated vegetables, as anything else in those long time countries.—Exchange.

Dishonest Croupiers.

Each roulette table in Monte Carlo has a chief, an underchief and seven croupiers. The roulette croupiers are ordered to keep their hands spread out open upon the table between the turns. This is designed not only to give confidence to the players, but to protect the bank against its own employees. Once it was found that a croupier who seemed inordinately fond of snuff had a spring bottom snuffbox. Every now and then he would set it down on a gold piece, and when he took it up the gold piece was inside. Another croupier was discovered to have a sort of funnel under his collar, which ran down to a money belt. Every now and then he would scratch his neck, and every time he did so the bank lost 20 francs.

Unanswerable.

Meg and Dorothy were both six, but Meg was a month the older. Recently very serious difficulties arose between the little ladies over an extremely important matter. Meg was finally heard to put an end to the unfortunate controversy in these crushing words:

"Well, I don't care if your doll is bigger than mine, Dorothy Brown. I'm siver than you are, anyhow."—Woman's Home Companion.

Tissot Corrected.

A visitor asked the late James Tissot one day whether the picture he was at work on was intended to illustrate the time of Christ. The artist replied in the affirmative. "Then," said the visitor, "permit me call your attention to an error. Aloes such as you have in your picture did not exist in the Mediterranean region till after the conquest of Mexico by Spain." Tissot promptly took his brush and altered his picture.

A Great Speaker.

"Yes; he certainly is a great speaker, one of the best I ever heard."

"What is his special line of argument?"

"That's his strong point. He can thrill you and get you worked up to a great pitch of enthusiasm, and the next day you can't remember what it was about, so that when you hear him again what he says is as fresh as ever."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE NIGHTMARE.

A Ride on This Strenuous Animal is Generally Exciting.

The nightmare is one of the best known of all animals and one of the most feared. She is wilder than the tiger and more frightful in its speed than the turkey buzzard. A young nightmare with no previous experience can fling a 200 pound man over her flanks and carry him all over the south sea islands and the Gobi desert in less time than it would take him to look them up on the map.

The nightmare is so called because she is always ridden at night. She is somewhat timid, but may be easily caught. Mix up a little crab flake, some mayonnaise and some rich pastry and you can catch her with it every time. She will also come for mince pie, for broiled lobster, for chicken salad and for a variety of other temptations.

Once the nightmare is caught it is no trouble to ride her. It is no fun either. The nightmare usually wears a high saddle without stirrups and studded with redhot nails. She rocks like a ship in a gale as she dashes from mountain peak to mountain peak. The rider soon loses his hold and slides downward, only to find sharks and cuttlefish awaiting him. He hangs on to the mare's legs and is kicked by her hoofs. He lets go and falls 11,000 miles, catching on jagged splinters of rock and crashing through acres of glass and ice. Occasionally the mare comes after him and tramps on him. Sometimes she varies this by eating his legs. When the ride is over the rider wakens sideways in bed very cross and spanks his oldest child before breakfast. The lasting effects of riding nightmares are always more severe upon other members of the family than the rider.

The champion nightmare is Dyspepsicuss Mince Picuss, a pale green animal with redhot legs, who can do the circuit of the earth upside down in eleven seconds. Nobody likes to ride nightmares, but every one does just the same. They are not as expensive as taxicabs, but are far more exciting.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Matter of Economy.

Effects of Air.

Attention has been called to some curious effects of rarefied and of condensed air on human respiration. On high mountains some persons experience distressing shortness of breath, one result of which is that they are unable to whistle. Precisely the same effect is sometimes produced by the condensed air in caissons and diving bells. Laborers working in compressed air frequently find, however, that their powers of exertion are increased as long as the atmospheric pressure is not more than double that of ordinary air, but beyond that point unpleasant effects are experienced after the men have left the working shafts and returned into the open air. On the other hand, high atmospheric pressure in the case of persons not doing manual labor has been found to act as a mental stimulus, increasing the impulse to talk.—Harper's Weekly.

A Courtier's Retort.

Queen Bess had a pretty wit, they say, which she was by no means loath to exercise upon her subjects. She got the worst of it in one verbal duel at least. Observing in the garden a courtier to whom she had promised promotion that had not yet been realized, her majesty thrust her head out of the window and called to him:

"What does a man think of, Sir Edward, when he thinks of nothing?"

"Of a woman's promise, your majesty," was Sir Edward's response.—Pittsburg Dispatch.
