AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsp Notes From a Hustling Town Briefly Told

Ayder, N. C., June 3. Rev. J. R. Tingle showed us a sample of his potatoes that were transplanted on 13th of April, Nancy Haw variety. It was large enough for table use. This proves the fact that Mr. Tingle can farm as well as preach.

H. L. Good, one of the seminary students, is sick at the home of J. M. Barfield.

The Ayden Lumber Co. are preparing a house to install a large band saw and two planers. This company is doing an immense business already, but when they begin to operate their new machinery they will almost double the business.

The clock in the store of J. R. Smith Co., was uncovered Thursday. It stopped at 9:48 26. Mrs. Mc. G. Taylor won the 42 piece set of china, her time being 9:37-0. Mr. J. F. Moore, of Washington, won the second, a silk umbrella, Mrs. Minnie Turnage, the third a two pound can of Wesson cooking oil. There was a large crowd and much enthusiasm. You get a ticket with each dollar purchase.

June is said to be the poorest month in the year among the financial world, and is commonly known as "Annanias" month.

What would Ayden do without Rev. E. T. Phillips. He edits the paper, introduces the speakers, buries the dead, supplies for the absent ministers, is referee at the opening the clocks in stores, and is truly a great benefactor in our town. He has just returned from a class meeting at Chapel Hill, his alma mater. His wife is his equal in all good works.

Mr. J. L. Tucker, from near Grifton, is very low with what is thought to be paralysis. Mrs. C. V. Cannon and Mrs. W. B. Quinerly, his daughters, have been sent for to be with him.

C. O. Armstrong has returned from Chapel Hill.

Prof. J. E. Sawyer, of Merrett, N. C., a graduate, of Guilford college, has been elected principal of the Free Will Baptist Seminary, and efforts are being made to open the school on time. With the co operation of this denomination with Mr. Sawyer we expect to see its usefulness increased very largely.

Jesse Sauls, of Black Creek, is visiting her uncle, M. M. Sauls.

Mrs. E. M. Davenport, of Rocky Mount, is visiting her father, W. H. Harris.

Miss Bonnie Ormond, after spending several days with Miss Lucy Turnage, has returned to her home at Kinston.

Glad to see Ola Kittrell cut again he has been confined to his room with rheumatism.

The Home Telephone & Telegraph Co. has many improvements in our town for the past few weeks and finished their work Monday. Manager C. W. Prescott tells us he has added eleven new phones to his office.

The enterprising firm of J. J. Hines & Co. have purchased millinery stock of Mrs. Minnie Sumerell and will dispose of the goods and then convert the building into an up-to-date supply store.

J. B. Pierce has moved to his beautiful home in Ghent.

Carlos Harris, of Greenville, was in town Thursday.

Capt. D. G. Berry has cemented the side walk in front of Buckingham palace in Ghent.

Messrs. Ax, Tarnage and Huxten made a trip through Jones and Lenoir counties this week making diligent search for

THE TRUE OPTIMIST.

Extract from Address by Miss Herndon at Elon College Commencement.

At 8.00 p. m. the college auditorium the alumni address was delivered by Miss Jennie Herndon, Ph. B., of Greenville, whose subject was "The True Optimist". Miss Herndon said, in part: The subject I bring to you is not a new one, yet I venture to hope it is one that will attract you because it presents the highest, truest type of manhood, the type the world ever has and ever will admire. This optimism the world admires and this it is that moves man to his highest attainment. The man who is blessed with such a spirit in storm turns his face upward to the skies, where he knows the sun shines, and though the long night be thick with darkness he scans the horizon in eager gaze, and not with despair, for the first gleam of the dawning light. This is the true optimist, what he has of cheer he has won by stern fighting with the ills of life. This spirit of true optimism has wrought every great event in the world's history and has been the foundation upon which every great character has developed. There is honor always for the successful man and there is credit to the one who tries and fails, yet tries again. Such a man does not step aside to enjoy the fruits of conquest, when one disaster overtakes him does he sit down and wring his hands in despair, but rather makes the obstacles that oppose him stepping stones and over the mounds to higher ground.

"How may one attain to this high serenity, this calm unperturbable constancy and purpose, this tenacity and patience of a conscience? The answer is easy. There is no royal road, only the path of training, of plodding, of hope, of earnest endeavor, of fixed determination, for optimism is the faith that leads to achievement, for nothing can be done without hope.

"Every optimist moves along with progress and hastens it, while every pessimist would keep the world at a stand-still; the consequence, pessimism in the life of a family is the same as in the life of an individual; pessimism kills the desire that urges man to struggle against poverty, ignorance and crime and dries up all the fountains of joy in the world.

"Life is sacred because it is the arena in which character is developed, the trials, the defeats, the disappointments, the temptations, the sorrows no less than the joys, the satisfactions, the pleasures and the triumphs are merely the tools placed in our hands to chisel out the fine lines of a deathless character.

"Finally, let me say to you, if you would develop the strongest character, if you attain the greatest success you must be a true optimist without fear and without discouragement, with calm hope and serene confidence, look boldly, triumphantly optimistically to the future.

Bovine for this market.

Dr. E. L. St. Claire, of Edison, Ga., preached in the Free Will Baptist church here Thursday night. He tells us his success so far has been very gratifying in working for the seminary. There will be many improvements made before the fall session. This school should be the pride of our town and to the Free Will Baptists what Trinity is to the Methodist, Wake Forest to the Baptist and Wilson to the Disciples.

HIGGS INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE.

The Closing Exercises a Great Success—Began Sunday Afternoon.

Parrale, N. C., June 2.—The first annual commencement exercises of Higgs Industrial Institute, Parrale, began last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. M. B. M. Butler, Greenville. He chose for his subject, "Seek and Ye Shall Find." So practical did he handle the subject that no one present could go away without being greatly benefited. He urged the importance of seeking industrial education, and showed that no person could be truly religious without the habits of industry. That one must seek proper association in order to maintain a high intellectual and moral standard. "In the midst of all this," said he, "first seek eternal life."

Monday evening at 8 o'clock, program by the primary department. The principal speech was delivered by Rev. Jas. T. Gaskill, P. E., of Greenville. He spoke of the need of a school in this section of North Carolina that would train the colored youth to the habits of industry that they may become better citizens. He said that the school would have a broad field of usefulness in such a needy section of the State, and appealed to the people to give tangible encouragement to such a worthy cause.

Tuesday evening, program by the Douglass Literary Society. The address was delivered by Prof. C. E. Askew, president of Tar River Institute, Washington. He emphasized the importance of maintaining a high moral standard, and acquiring property. He showed with telling effect no race or individual could ever hope for much so long as their earnings were thrown to the winds.

Wednesday the exercises of the week closed with a very elaborate program that was a credit to the institution. Principal Chance spoke of the object of the school and what has been accomplished during the session. He appealed to the students to aspire to lofty ideals, and at all times cultivate such habits as go to make real men and women.

The Yeargin entertainment for the benefit of the school was a great success.

Make Room for Us.

Here is more evidence of the good time in store for the editors when they take themselves to the convention at Wrightsville next week. The invitation reads thus:

Banquet committee—James H. Cowan, chairman; Joseph E. Thompson, B. O. Stone.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Red Men meet tonight.

Primary meetings in the different wards tonight.

Do not fail to attend the primary in your ward tonight.

The Norfolk Southern train from Raleigh this morning was nearly two hours late.

Show your interest in the government of the town by attending your ward primary tonight.

The Norfolk Southern will begin running Sunday excursion trains to Morehead City and Beaufort on the 19th.

If you stay away from your ward primaries and then do not like the way things go, you have only yourself to blame.

Mr. H. B. Smith brought The Reflector three very large rutabagas of this year's crop. They are the finest we have seen for the time of year.

The New Norfolk Southern Schedule.

Mr. W. W. Croxton, traveling passenger agent of the Norfolk Southern railroad, was here today. He called on The Reflector to explain the advantages of the new train service beginning on the 5th and how this section will gain rather than lose by putting on the through night trains and the taking off of the local day train. There are certainly some good features about the new through schedules between Norfolk and Raleigh that may overcome the disadvantage of having to take these trains at night, as connections for other points can be more readily made. He said the day train which had heretofore run between Washington and Raleigh had been operated at a loss to the company, and it was hoped to get more patronage by the new schedules. The company wants to do what is best for the people of this section without loss to itself.

List Your Taxes.

Tax payers of the town of Greenville and of Greenville township are hereby notified that during the month of June we can be found in the city hall, on Fifth street, for the purpose of listing taxes for the year 1910.

NO ONE BURIED THERE.

But Police Badge Had Evidently Been Thrown Away.

Capt. A. J. Griffin thought he had made a find an evening or two ago. He had occasion to be out about a coal and trash pile in the rear of his store and saw a police badge and hat lying on it. His first impression was that somebody had murdered a policeman and buried him in the trash pile. Getting a stick he probed down in the pile but found nothing like a body there. Capt. Griffin took the police badge and started an investigation. Running up with Chief Smith that officer informed him that none of the force was missing, and looking at the badge he identified it as one that had been stolen from headquarters sometime ago. The thief had evidently become afraid to keep it and threw it on the trash pile. How the hat came there is another proposition.

FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1910.

June may warm up enough for the editors to take a sea bath when they get to Wrightsville.

The man who thinks that the salvation of the party depends upon his election to office may live to realize his mistake.

We are not worrying much over the number of people the census report is going to give Greenville. It is very evident that there are many more people here than last time, and the number will be even larger next time. So it is all right as long as the town keeps growing.

While we regret to see this section lose the day train which the Norfolk Southern road has been operating between Washington and Raleigh, there are some good features about the night trains of the new schedule. The Norfolk Southern people want to do the best they can for the sections they serve, and if they find out the new schedules do not meet requirements, other changes may follow later. All things must be tried, and it may be well enough to see how the new schedules are going to work.

Giving Land Away at 50 Cents an Acre

The editor of The News spent some time in Northampton county last week. We thought it might be of interest to the farmers of Catawba county to know what the farmers of Northampton are doing. A few years ago this section of the east was almost wholly engaged in raising cotton, but now we find that one of the chief agricultural crops is peanuts. We find that it does not require the labor to raise peanuts that it does to raise cotton. The invention of a machine to thrash the peanuts from the vines has greatly reduced the cost of gathering the crop. We were informed that the peanut crop is worth in some cases as much as two hundred dollars per acre and that it is a very common thing to make a crop worth one hundred and twenty-five dollars per acre.

This was the home of Ransom. He was much honored by the people from time to time, but in his official life his own people met at Jackson, the county seat and went on record against him. His grave is on his farm near the Roanoke river.

Millions of dollars have been wasted and given away by the owners of timber in this section. A Northern lumber company went through the section and bought the very best of timber at 50 cents per acre. We heard one man say that in many cases this company got a thousand dollars worth of timber for fifty cents, which is a striking illustration of what ignorance costs any people anywhere. Catawba County News.

The purification of the billboard, that mirror which flaunts its indecencies into the eyes of all, from innocent childhood to tottering old age, is now under way. The International Association of Poster Printers has just had a meeting in Cincinnati. At this meeting, the association decided to print no more suggestive or improper posters. The Baltimore Sun says: "By this action the billboard, it is to be hoped, will be forever stripped of its blonde ladies in abbreviated costumes, its broad double entendres and all the other shameless advertising devices which have offended good morals as well as good taste." The United Catholic Societies of the World has been the first organized body to officially approve of this action on part of the men who print billboard posters. All other religious bodies should take notice of it—and see that the billboard poster printers do not fall from grace. —Charlotte Chronicle.

A newspaper, if it has any brains, conscience and muscle back of it, must continually decide between doing its duty and injuring its pocket. In any position but that of an editor the public is able to separate the individual from the collective citizen. But if the editor does not please them, it's his pocket they aim at. Thus it is that newspapers learn who their friends are. The man who reads a newspaper and admires it all the year around, yet gives his business support to some other concern, whose principles he detests, is not a friend of the former paper.—Spray News.

Mrs. L. Cameron, 117 Payton ave., Kingston, N. C., says: "The great benefit I obtained from Doan's Kidney Pills justifies me in recommending them. A dull, nagging backache, accompanied by sharp twinges through my joints bothered me for a long time. I had but little energy or ambition and was caused additional annoyance by a kidney weakness. Having Doan's Kidney Pills recommended to me, I procured a box. After taking the contents, the pain in my back ceased and difficulty with the kidney secretions was corrected."

A TRICK IN FENCING

One Highly Distressing to an Accomplished Swordsman.

URNS A DUEL INTO A FARCE.

Used by a Weak or a Timid Opponent It Renders His Adversary Practically Helpless—A Case of Two Playing at the Same Game.

A long and interesting chapter might be written on the humors of duels which never came off or which in some way fell short of deserving the name. A case which occurred a few years ago in Paris, the particular home and harvest field of the habitual duelist, merits mention.

A peaceable looking gentleman was walking down one of the boulevards with a lady on his arm when out of a cafe sprang a man, who dealt him a violent kick. The victim turned, only to meet the horrified apologies of the aggressor, who begged to assure him that it was wholly a mistake in identity. Instead of insisting upon an exchange of cards and the other customary forms, the kicked man answered, with much warmth, but admirable self control: "I cannot, sir, accept your expression of regret as sufficient. Your action may have been a mistake, as you say, but acquaintances of mine may have witnessed it and will go away and spread the news that I have submitted to an insult without avenging it. I must therefore and instantly slap your face with equal publicity." The other most becomingly assented, the first sufferer administering a ringing blow on his ear, and the affair ended with entire satisfaction on both sides.

Weak or timid fencers are sometimes taught by their masters to keep a more skillful antagonist busy by fixing the sword in one position, aimed straight at his sword hand, and then not moving except to retreat when pressed too hard. It is highly distressing to an accomplished swordsman to have to face a learner so instructed, for it means a great outlay of energy and wind to little purpose.

Comte de Dion once thus chased a retreating adversary across plowed fields for a mile and a half and finally under the wheel of a cab for the poor satisfaction of giving him a slight prod in the back. Dr. Clemeuceau in his famous duel with M. Deschanel, after a swift and wearisome pursuit, halted, shouldered his rapier like a walking stick and strolled back to his original place, throwing the contemptuous remark over his shoulder, "And now, monsieur, I will await you here."

Catulle Mendes had a similar run after Lugne-Poe through the forest of St. Germain, which he ended by flinging his own sword into the bushes, with the angry exclamation, "I am willing to die from exhaustion by the roadside, if need be, but not from running after a poltroon."

A yet funnier incident was that which occurred in Toulouse, where a lawyer of some note named Cazeneuve was called out by a landed proprietor whom he had offended by a speech in court. He repaired at once to a fencing master, as he knew nothing whatever about handling a sword. This teacher gave him the usual advice about keeping his adversary at arm's length with the poised and immovable rapier, but strongly enjoined him not to retreat. It so happened that the landed proprietor, being equally ignorant, applied to the same master for instruction. The master, who was somewhat of a wag, gave him the lawyer's lesson in duplicate.

When the two men met and their seconds had duly placed them a long and tedious stillness ensued. For more than five minutes each foeman stood with his sword arm extended at full length, waiting for the other to advance. Then the seconds intervened, claiming that both had proved themselves men of honor and courage and that nothing further was necessary but to shake hands and be reconciled.

And this recalls the occasion when Lieutenant Randolph Ridgely of our army while in the Mexican war was sought by two young officers who had quarreled and each of whom wished the lieutenant for his second. It was finally arranged that he should act as second for both. On the field, where the adversaries were armed with shotguns, Ridgely measured off a line of ten paces and placed them respectively at its two termini, cocked his own revolver and announced that he would give all the orders himself and in his own way and that he would shoot down whichever of his principals disobeyed him in the slightest particular.

Then came the orders, very deliberately uttered: "Present arms!" "Carry arms!" "Shoulder arms!" "Take aim!" They took careful aim and waited almost breathlessly for some minutes for the command to fire. It never came. Instead came the orders: "Present arms!" "Carry arms!" "Shoulder arms!" "Right about face!" "Front!" "Forward march!"

They recognized his commands as given in deadly earnest and knew that it would be instantly fatal to rebel. He kept them marching till they reached his tent. There he halted them and bade them stand at parade rest till they had listened to a lecture on the folly of dueling which fairly made their ears ring. But he seasoned his dose of rebuke with a few words of praise for the soldierly mettle they had shown in facing each other's gun without flinching and the two men became just grateful from that hour.—New York Post.

A CUNNING WEASEL.

The Trick by Which He Trapped His Big Rat Antagonist.

Once a sawmill in a western town was infested with rats, which, being unmoested, became very numerous and bold and played round the mill among the men while they worked during the day. But one day there appeared on the scene a weasel, which immediately declared war on the rodents.

One by one the rats fell victims to the weasel's superior strength, until only one very large, pugnacious rat was left of the once numerous colony. The weasel had a go at the big rat several times, but on each occasion the rodent proved more than a match for his slender antagonist and chased the weasel to a hiding place.

Shortly thereafter the weasel was seen busily digging under a lumber pile near the mill. He was engaged for some time, but later appeared again in the mill, seeking his old enemy. He soon found him and at once renewed hostilities. As usual, after a lively tussle the rat got the better of the argument, and the weasel ran, pursued closely by the rat, straight to the hole under the lumber pile.

He ran in, still followed by the rat, but immediately reappeared round the end of the pile and again dodged into the hole behind the rat. Neither was seen again for some time, but the weasel finally reappeared, looking no worse for the fight.

The curiosity of the men in the mill being aroused, they proceeded to investigate the hole under the lumber pile. They found that the weasel had dug the hole sufficiently large at the opening to admit the rat, but had gradually tapered it as he proceeded until at the other end it barely allowed his own slender body to pass.

When the rat chased him into the large end of this underground tunnel he quickly slipped through, and while the rat was trying to squeeze his large body into the smaller part of the hole the weasel dodged in behind him, caught him in the rear and in a place where he could not turn round and finished him at his leisure.—Harper's Weekly.

POISON IN FLOWERS.

Dainty and Beautiful Blossoms in Which Lurks Death.

When the good friar in "Romeo and Juliet" reflected upon the properties of the simple flower, "within whose infant rind poison hath residence and medicine power," his observation embraced a goodly category of well known flowers whose secretions furnish the world with so many poisons.

For instance, the laburnum, which has been compared to a fountain of gold, leaping into the sun—a most charming sight—is one of the most poisonous things imaginable, inasmuch as it is poison in leaf and flower and seed. Even the grass growing beneath it is poisonous by reason of its proximity to the innocent looking blossoms overhead, and it has been found necessary to guard against cattle eating this grass for fear of fatal results.

The bulbs of such dainty and beautiful flowers as the narcissus, hyacinth, jonquill and snowdrop secrete the most deadly poisons, not to speak of the oxalis, the monkshood and the foxglove, all of which furnish noxious liquors sufficient to destroy life.

To these may be added certain of the crocuses, the lovely lady's slipper, the quaint old jack-in-the-pulpit and the laughing little buttercup. The latter, despite its most innocent appearance, is one of the worst of the poisonous flowers. Even the cow is aware of that and carefully avoids it. The cousins of the buttercups, the peonies, the larkspurs and the rest, all contain toxic fluids.

Another source of deadly poison is the oleander tree, while the bark of the superb catalpa tree contains many deadly doses.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

An Unfamiliar Alias.

There may be nothing in a name, but the American traveler of whom the Living Church tells found at least confusion therein. He had landed at Liverpool and hastened out of the city to a rural village, where he found a charmingly old fashioned inn which delighted his soul. It was late when he arrived, and when he asked what he could have for supper the buxom landlady suggested minced collops. He agreed with enthusiasm, the dish sounded so romantic, so Robin Hoodsy, so almost mediæval. And what do you suppose they brought him? Just plain hash!

Bread in Sweden.

In Sweden the bread of the people is for the most part hard, thin as a dinner plate and about the size of one. It is baked without yeast, and the water is practically all extracted in the process of baking; hence, relatively per pound of bread, its cost is much higher than in the common forms of bread as we know them, containing one-half their weight in water that has cost nothing. Loaf bread and rolls in Sweden are a luxury.

Making Time Profitable.

"See here," cried the busy merchant, "don't you know my time is valuable?" "Well," replied the book agent, "I'm sure it might be valuable to me. If you'll give me five minutes of it I believe I can sell you a set of these books."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Finding Issues.

"We've got to buy a paper if we wish to go in politics." "Sure. Then we'll have a lot of issues to offer the people."—St. Louis Star.

HIBERNATING ANIMALS.

The Lethargy of Winter and the Awakening In Spring.

The sleep of hibernation is a very different matter from the sleep of repose. If it be complete, respiration can no longer be detected. A torpid bat when disturbed will heave a sigh or two and, being left alone, again to all appearances cease to breathe.

Submerged in water of a temperature slightly higher than his own, the hedgehog not only continues to live, but appears to suffer neither inconvenience nor harm. Inclosed in an air tight receptacle, his atmosphere undergoes a change so slight that it affects him slightly, if at all.

But circulation does not cease. As respiration diminishes the irritability of the muscles of the heart increases, and thus without the stimulation of oxygen, although much more slowly, the heart continues to beat. In the absence of the fresh air drawn into the lungs in times of activity, uncleaned and unreinvigorated and venous blood passes on to fill the whole system of circulation.

A profound lethargy ensues, distinguishable from death only by the slight beating of the heart. The waste is very small. The fat accumulated during the plenty of summer and autumn supplies all expenditure until the coming of spring, when earlier or later the hibernating animal, having no capital in reserve, begins to suffer the pangs of hunger. In response to the demand respiration very slowly increases. His oxidized blood flows more quickly, and his energy returns.

Then the bat flies forth once more from the hollow tree in the wood to find the warm dusk teeming with insect life, and the hedgehog comes, it may be, from the cavity under the gnarled roots below to find beetles, worms and slugs once more among the spring grass.

Hibernation has saved both from death by starvation, but if their nooks had not been snug and wisely chosen they would not have been preserved from death by frost.

The hiding place also must be secret and free from intrusion, for the hibernating animal cannot bear to be suddenly roused. Even the little dormouse, which comes out at intervals to feed, when in deep sleep must be carried indoors to the warmer temperature of a room or revived by the heat of the hand passing through the nest. He then wakes refreshed and full of activity, but he does not survive for hasty an awakening.—Harper's Weekly.

Like the Moon.

"He's a star after dinner speaker, isn't he?" "A star? He's a moon." "How?" "The fuller the brighter."—Cleveland Leader.

STATE NEWS.

Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Lexington, June 1.—Mr. Sam Simerson of Boone township received a letter the other day that gave him a shock and a pleasant surprise also. The letter was from the thief, who was committed at night. The letter was from the thief, who enclosed $43, the amount he got for the bale, which he sold at Winston. He said that recently he had been converted and was now sanctified, and he desired immediately to square himself with Mr. Simerson. The shock to Mr. Simerson came from the discovery that this man stole the cotton. He lived in the county then, and nobody dreamed that he was guilty. He is still living in the State.

The tenth annual convention of the North Carolina Veterinary Medical Association will be held at Monroe, June 13-14. In conjunction with this convention the meeting of the North Carolina Live Stock Association will also be held, while meeting at the same time will be the State Veterinary Board, of which Dr. Adam Fisher, of Charlotte, is president. The board will meet to examine all applicants for license to practice veterinary medicine and all who intend to apply for license should communicate with Dr. Fisher at once.

New Telephone Directory Out.

We are now delivering our new telephone directory, and we earnestly ask that all users of the telephone will call by number instead of name, as it very greatly expedites the service. It is not for our own good, but the subscribers that we ask this. Owing to our rapid growth it is impossible for the operator to remember all the numbers and have to look them up, thereby greatly reducing the efficiency of the service. In calling by number always call the figures singly, as 17 call, "one" "seven" or as 280-L, call, "two" "eight" "0" "L. Try this and you will like it. Respectfully,
Home Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The nominees for aldermen to night will be elected Monday, hence the importance of attending your ward meeting and helping to nominate good men.

A DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

She Tried to Fascinate Hubby and Was Rudely Shocked.
She had been reading that a titled Englishwoman advises married women to flirt with their husbands. As she finished the article her husband came home to dinner.
She ran to meet him.
"A little late tonight, duckydooze-jum," she said, with a dimpling smile.
"What's that?" he growled.
She looked at him archly.
"Don't you dare to kiss me!" she threatened.
"Gee," he cried, "I don't intend to! What put that in your head?"
She half closed her eyes and coyly surveyed him through the drooping lashes.
"Don't you want to sit here by me on the sofa?" she cooed.
"No, I don't. Why, you told me only yesterday that the springs were getting weak. Aren't you feeling well?"
She laughed softly and shot him a side glance and drew in her cheeks and flashed her white teeth and perceptibly winked.
He drew back suddenly.
"What's the matter with you?" he demanded. "Who are you imitating? Can't you make your face behave?"
She picked up the paper she had been reading and flung it into the decorated wastebasket.
"There's nothing the matter with me," she coldly replied.
"Just mugging for fun, eh? Glad of that. Stimson was telling me today about a lot of trouble his wife is having with her facial nerves, and I was afraid you'd caught it. Ain't that confounded dinner ready?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Ancient Astronomer.

About 500 B. C. Anaxagoras of Ionia was born. When he "grew up in wisdom" he was the first to teach the course and cause of both solar and lunar eclipses and to give his followers rules whereby they could distinguish planets from fixed stars. He was punished for declaring that the sun was not a god.

THE BEST MEDICINE.

Pure Air Cures Many Ills and Means the Prolongation of Life.
"Pure air is more precious than gold," said the venerable physician. "It is the best medicine in the world and means the prolongation of life and the cure for many ills which make my calling necessary and profitable. Don't tarry too long in crowded, ill ventilated places and beware of 'stuffy' rooms. Now, the dangerous element in a stuffy place, like a rush hour subway train is, strictly speaking, not due to carbonic acid gas. That in its pure condition would speedily cause death, but it has been established that the chief danger in breathing vitiated air is not entirely due to carbonic acid gas, but rather to organic impurities which are invariably present in vitiated air.
"And here it may be pointed out that the other chief constituent of breath is water, and an amount varying from six to twenty-seven ounces, it has been calculated, may be given off in the course of twenty-four hours. Dr. De Chaumont, a well known authority on this subject, has estimated that an assembly of 2,000 people during a period of two hours—that is, the duration of an ordinary meeting—may exhale in respiration and give off in perspiration about seventeen gallons of water.
"The amount of carbonic acid given off by a man amounts to about three-quarters of a cubic foot an hour, or nineteen cubic feet in twenty-four hours. Each individual, therefore, may be said to destroy about fifteen cubic feet of air an hour, or 380 cubic feet in twenty-four hours. And the man who occupies a hall bedroom and keeps his window down while he reads by gaslight far into the night should know that the burning jet gives off as much carbonic acid as he does himself. Then he may let in a little air."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.
