ATLANTIC HOTEL.

Opening Ball Saturday Night—Building Modernly Equipped

Morehead City, June 5th.—The Atlantic hotel under the management of Mr. Frank P. Morton, gave its opening ball Saturday evening, June 4th.

The hotel, fully equipped and in every small particular ready for this auspicious occasion, attracted a larger crowd of visitors than ever before.

Many improvements in the hotel and on the grounds add charm to the natural attractiveness of this seaside resort. Concrete sidewalks and platform have recently been laid. The grounds and flower gardens have received very careful attention and the blooming plants give just a touch of color.

One of the most attractive and convenient additions is the building of a pavilion on the left pier. This will prove a great pleasure to boating, surf, and fishing parties, as all drinks, candies, and cigars can be purchased here.

The interior of the house having been thoroughly renovated now offers every convenience to its guests. A most proficient corps of assistants has been engaged, and with the aid of the competent servants, the management feels safe in assuring each guest prompt attention.

Neither expense nor time was considered when decorating the ball room. The beautiful room, with its eight hundred electric lights was transformed into a Japanese parlor. At intervals below the balcony rail were placed large red and white fans, while from the high dome, in the centre of the room to the balcony was suspended garlands of red and white bunting, alternating.

On the main floor, festoons of red and white reached from pillar to pillar.

With the most beautiful effect was the large Japanese parasol suspended from the centre chandelier. From this parasol many garlands of lanterns were strung. While at intervals dropping from the ceiling and from many of the lights were parasols and lanterns.

No more artistic or appropriate decorations could have been selected for this occasion. The faint red glow fascinated not only the dancers but the spectators, too.

A very beautiful german was led by Mr. W. A. Allen, of Kinston, N. C. The dance begun at nine o'clock and many attractive novel figures were introduced.

Seventy-five couples formed a line for the grand march. The beautiful roined women were indeed fair representatives of North Carolina society. Elam's orchestra, consisting of seven pieces, furnished most splendid music.

Immediately after the dance, the guests engaged in a sail for a couple of hours. The music from the orchestra and the singing on board the boat made a most fitting climax for the opening day.

Mrs. Walter Grimes and son, of Raleigh, have arrived for the summer.

On Monday, the noted fisherman, Mr. W. L. Kennedy and wife will arrive, Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy spend each summer here, and their private yacht, the India, has been gotten in readiness for them.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

BETHEL SOCIAL CIRCLES.

Young People Enjoy Delightful Porch Party.

On Friday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock Miss Mamie Blair, of Thomasville, delightfully entertained at Hotel Blount, a number of her friends at a porch party.

As the guests arrived they were received by Miss Elizabeth Jones and Dr. Ward who directed them to the punch bowl presided over by Mrs. J. A. Staton.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of vocal and instrumental music and a very interesting contest, entitled "The Girl I met in France." The successful contestants were Miss Maude Barnhill and Dr. Ward, the prizes being a fan and book.

At the close of the contest delightful refreshments were served consisting of ice cream and cake, salted peanuts and candy.

The decorations were very pretty indeed. In the hall nasturtiums were used the punch bowl and table being decorated in them. A white parasol suspended over the bowl had nasturtiums pinned over it with a large bunch tied on the handle. In the parlor white roses were used. On the porch Japanese lanterns were hung which added much to the attractiveness of the place.

Accident on Dickinson Avenue.

Another automobile accident which will probably have fatal results occurred Saturday afternoon. Dennis Dickson, a negro who lives on a small farm about three miles from Greenville, was driving his mule up Dickinson avenue when just in front of the residence of Mr. Gregory he met the automobile of Mr. W. J. Turnage returning from the depot. The darkey got out of the cart to lead the mule by. The mule became suddenly frightened and jumped, throwing Dickson backwards against the pavement, fracturing the back of his skull. Dr. Charles Laughinghouse, who has attended the man, says that he has concussion of the brain, but may recover.

Knitting Mill Sold.

The Commercial Knitting Mill of Greenville, which has been shut down for about one year, was sold this morning in front of the ruins of the court house at the order of the court by F. G. James & Son, receivers. The chief stockholders in the company, were L. I. Moore, C. O'H. Laughinghouse, Hayward Dail, D. E. House, C. E. Bradley and W. S. Atkins.

The entire property, after various preliminary sales of different parts to the stockholders, was sold to Mr. Hayward Dail at $5,000.

W. L. Ray was the auctioneer.

Marriage Licenses.

Register of Deeds W. M. Moore has issued the following licenses since last report:

WHITE.

William Moye and Mary E. Parker.

COLORED.

Stanley Kennedy and Pennie Harris.

Chas. Corey and Bertha James.

The rain which came about supper time Sunday evening caught several of the Training school girls far from their place of refuge. The first few large drops sent them scurrying for cover.

FORMER GRADED SCHOOL PUPILS

Preparing for Higher Work in Various Colleges.

Several of the young people of the town who were students at the graded school last session, will continue their studies at the different colleges of the State next year.

Alfred Schultz and Charles Haskett will enter the State university. Landon Smith, who finished the ninth grade last spring, will go either to the A. & M. or the university.

Joe Anderson and Key Brown expect to go to the University to study pharmacy.

Miss Allie Estelle Greene will go to St. Mary's; Miss Sadie Exum, to the State Normal; Miss Agnes Spain, to the Atlantic Christian college.

J. C. Lanier, who finished his sophomore year at the University in May, is conducting a class in geometry for those who wish to make up entrance conditions for the different colleges of the State. Willie Wilson, who will take the West Point examination in January, and Alfred Schultz are the only ones under his instruction as yet.

IN-MEMORIAN.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. J. E. Cannon, of Runtrees, May 19th, 1910, and robbed one of its precious jewels. Little Lillian was born August 16, 1908. She was the pride and joy of her mother's heart, and while her heart yearns for her darling, Jesus has added another link to bind her closer to heaven.

May He comfort, guide and direct her ways that she may be reconciled to his will and prepare to meet her loved ones in that better land, where there'll be no sorrow or grief, pain or worry.

One Who Mourns.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas the W. C. T. U. of Bethel has sustained a great loss by the sudden death of one of its most loyal members, our friend and brother, Mr. Henry W. Martin, which has saddened our hearts and caused us to feel the uncertainty of life, we therefore resolve,

While we bow in humble submission to our Fathers will, we feel and believe he is at rest and extend to the bereaved wife and family our tenderest sympathies and commend them to the care of the Good Shepherd in whom he trusted.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the White Ribbon, the bereaved wife and family, also to the Greenville Reflector.

Mrs. F. E. Bullock, Mrs. Sarah Whitehurst, Mr. Frances M. James, Committee.

Died.

Mr. Joshua L. Tucker, a farmer who lived near Grifton, died late Saturday afternoon, leaving it is rumored, $47,000 life insurance. Mr. Tucker, who had been in bad health for some time, was stricken with partial paralysis last Monday and died Saturday. He was 68 years of age.

For Sheriff.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for sheriff of Pitt county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

BOAT STRIKES SNAG.

Occupants Spend the Night on Log in the River.

Another near accident occurred Saturday night at 8 o'clock when the gasoline launch Crerole, in charge of Mr. Charles Harrison, of Washington, struck a snag about one mile below Greer-ville. There were three other Washington men besides Mr. Harrison on the boat. They were bringing up the trunks and personal belongings of four disreputable women who having been warned to leave Washington, came up to Greenville on the late N. & S. train Saturday night. The boat was sinking and two of the men swam to shore. The other two ran the boat high up on a log, when it turned over on its side. They spent the night there and were there Sunday morning when the four ladies and their two gentlemen friends came down to rescue their much bedragged wardrobes.

The boat which is about the size of Mr. Simon Moye's boat, Mayona, is the property of Mr. Dick Neal, of Washington.

PRIMARIES SOON BE CALLED

Candidates for the Offices are Getting Active.

At an early date, the Democratic primaries for the nomination of county officers will be formally called for sometime in August by Mr. F. C. Harding, chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Pitt county. Although but few formal announcements of candidacy have been made as yet, several others have declared to their friends their intention of asking the Democrats of the county to run them for certain offices.

Among them are W. B. Wilson and C. T. Munford, for treasurer; S. I. Dudley, Joseph McLawhon, and J. M. Cox, for sheriff; J. D. Cox and D. C. Moore, for clerk of the court; R. R. Cotten and A. L. Blow for the State senate.

$5 in Gold.

A $5 gold piece will be given to the person that guesses nearest to the number of dots which will be shown on the picture curtain at the Amuzu theatre. Cards will be given at ticket office with your name and number of your guess and leave with ticket seller.

Following is the program for tonight: Vengeance, Refreshing Baths, Frost Bound Nature, Ski Jumping, Egg Race.

At the Christian Church.

Mr. H. H. Settle, a ministerial student from the Atlantic Christian college, of Wilson, who is also an ordained preacher in the Christian church, preached to a large congregation in the Christian church here Sunday night.

This was the second sermon preached in the Christian church since Mr. Arnold left, the fourth Sunday in April.

Flowers in the Churches.

Mr. O. E. Warren, proprietor of Riverside Nurseries, is a frequent contributor to the pleasure of other people. It is unusual thing for him, on Sunday mornings, to go around to the churches before service and fill vases with beautiful flowers that the congregations may enjoy them. It is a thoughtfulness that the people appreciate.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

New Telephone Directory Out.

We are now delivering our new telephone directory, and we earnestly ask that all users of the telephone will call by number instead of name, as it very greatly expedites the service. It is not for our own good, but the subscribers that we ask this. Owing to our rapid growth it is impossible for the operator to remember all the numbers and have to look them up, thereby greatly reducing the efficiency of the service. In calling by number always call the figures singly, as 17 call, "one," "seven," or as 280-L, call, "two," "eight," "0" -L. Try this and you will like it. Respectfully,
Home Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Sunday at the Baptist Church.

As was to have been expected, there was a large congregation at Memorial Baptist church Sunday morning to hear Rev. W. B. Oliver, of Florence, S. C. Having preached here before and being well known to many of the people, they were glad to hear him again. His text was "Ye Are My Witnesses," and his sermon was both inspiring and delightful.

Rev. E. N. Johnson, the young man who is to serve as supply pastor through the summer, preached at night His sermon was a splendid one and he made a good impression on the congregation. There is in him the elements of a useful man in the ministry.

Those wanting the jobs are courting the aldermen elect.

Getting poorer every day until they get by the tax lister.

The extra session of the legislature will enliven Raleigh once more.

Up at Pittsburg they have actually passed some sentences for bribery, though light ones.

With the newspaper boys it is pack the bathing suit in an envelope and be off to Wrightsville tomorrow.

I. M. Meekins, of Elizabeth City, has been made assistant United States attorney of the eastern district of North Carolina.

T. Roosevelt must think he is capable of telling the whole world how it ought to be run. Wonder he didn't make a speech to Halley's comet and point out where it was not doing right.

The bankers of the State are being asked to come to the rescue and take the bonds which are being offered for sale. There is money enough in the banks of North Carolina to readily do this without any inconvenience, and to do so would be an act of patriotism and a manifestation of State pride. If the banks come to the rescue the necessity for the proposed extra session of the general assembly will be obviated.

Folly of Burning Woods and Pastures.

Dr. Cooper Curtice, of the United States department of agriculture, who has had many years' experience in tick eradication work, says that the idea of burning off the forests will get rid of the cattle tick is all wrong. "It is true that at certain times of the year burning the grass on an enclosed field may remove the ticks wherever the fire travels, but even then many places remain unburned and the owner depends on the fire for eradication, and consequently fails. Whenever the grass is repeatedly burned, the roots become eventually destroyed, the sweeter grasses give way to the more resistant, and finally the latter perish. Firing the leaves has not eradicated ticks, although followed for years." Farming with fire is pretty generally very poor farming, and unrestrained fire in a forest is always harmful.—Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

If you show me a man who drinks to excess, who spends money getting drunk that belongs to his children in his family and he fills himself up with liquor and goes home to make his home a hell, I tell you that man has forfeited his right to drink and society has a right to interfere.

I will give you another case. If a man under the pretense that he is defending his right to drink insists on establishing a saloon and running it in such a manner that it befouls the neighborhood and jeopardizes the community, I say, when a man insists not merely on the right to drink but the right to drink in that saloon and at all hours, and under all circumstances, he is asking for the enforcement of his right in such a way that he is infringing upon the right of others and he has no right to ask it and ought not to get it. I give you these two illustrations. There are many more. I simply give them to you that you may see that the man who talks about personal liberty has something more to do than to get up and talk about it. He must be prepared to put down in black and white an outline of what he regards as within the limits of his personal liberty and then you have a right to decide whether he has a right to invade your rights.—William Jennings Bryan.

Newspapers as Text-books.

An experiment is being tried in the public schools at Danzig of teaching the children by making the daily paper the reading text-book. The teachers exclude all politics and crime, and the reading is confined to scientific and literary news and weather reports, and even stock exchange information is discussed. This new mode of letting the scholar know what is going on is very popular, and has been found so far to give good results.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Hon. Thomas E. Watson's announcement that he will hereafter be found in the Democratic party puts a final period to one of the longest political rebellions of history. Mr. Watson, always a middle-of-the-roader, is still aligned apart from the fusion Populists, who, as everybody foresaw from the first that they would, wound up mostly in the Republican party. He is a man of much ability—a writer of real mark—and his honesty is unquestioned. The Democratic party has not for some time had a more valuable acquisition.—Charlotte Observer.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Greenville Homes

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.
If women only knew the cause—that Backache pains come from sick kidneys.
"I would save much needless woe. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys. Many residents of this vicinity endorse them."
Mrs. L. Cameron, 117 Payton ave., Kinston, N. C., says: "The greatest benefit I obtained from Doan's Kidney Pills justifies me in recommending them. A dull, nagging backache, accompanied by sharp twinges through my loins bothered me for a long time. I had but little energy or ambition and was caused additional annoyance by a kidney weakness. Having Doan's Kidney Pills recommended to me, I procured a box. After taking the contents, the pains in my back ceased and difficulty with the kidney secretions was corrected."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

GAVE ALL HE HAD.

The Romantic Story of an Old California Miner.

"The finest gentleman I ever knew," said Mark Iwain once, "was an old California miner who could barely write his own name. He was a forty-ainer, and he and his partner had struck it rich in the early days. The old man had neither chick nor child, and he had worked hard all his life, and when he did get his money he hardly knew what to do with it.

"He did not try to jump into society or to push his way with the 'big fellows' there. He continued to live with the people whom he had associated with all his life, and many an act of kindness was done, many a wandering son and father saved, many a sorrowing woman's burden lightened and her home brightened by an unknown donor, whose identity with the old man was only known to a few.

"It was different with the partner. He had a wife and two daughters with social aspirations, and after a whole lot of pushing and hauling and shoving they landed in society. The expense was too much of a drain on the husband's purse, and he speculated, with the inevitable outcome. He lost his entire fortune and then shot himself. Then it was that the true gentleness of the old man showed itself. The widow and her daughters had no one to turn to but him, and he did not disappoint them. He saved their home for them when everything else went under the hammer, and he maintained them in all the regal style to which they were accustomed, although he still lived in his old lodgings. He lived long enough to see both of the girls well married and the mother carefully settled in life. Then he died in a charity hospital in San Francisco. He had spent every penny he owned on the family of his partner."

NO WONDER HE DIED.

The Way Charles II. Was Dosed by His Fourteen Doctors.

Charles II. of England lived less than a week after he was attacked by his fatal illness, and it is wonderful that he lived so long. A monograph on "The Last Days of Charles II." gives some extraordinary details of those last days:

"The royal patient had fourteen doctors in attendance. They bled him to the extent of thirty-four ounces; they shaved his hair and applied blistering agents all over his head; they also applied plasters to the soles of his feet, and they dosed him with orange infusion of the metals, white vitriol dissolved in compound peony water, powder of sacred bitter, sirup of buckthorn, rock salt, emetic wine, two-blend pills, bryony compound, powder of white belladonna roots, powder of cowslip flowers, best manna, cream of tartar, barley and licorice, sweet almond kernels, sal ammoniac, antiridol milk water, mallow root, melon seeds, chicken-broth, bark of elm, a julep of black cherry water, flowers of lime, lilies of the valley, peony compound, spirit of lavender, prepared pearls and white sugar candy, senna leaves, flowers of camomile, gentian root, nutmeg, ale made without hops, spirit of human skull (commonly employed in convulsive disorders; the purpose was suggestive—viz. to excite horror, as it was to be the skull of a man who had died a violent death), Peruvian bark, sirup of cloves, Raleigh's stronger antidote, Goa stone, Rhine wine and oriental bezoar stone."

Dr. Raymond Crawford, the author of this odd historical sketch, believes that the king's trouble was not apoplexy, but Bright's disease.

Easy Oysters.

During a discussion on finance in the United States senate one of the speakers traced the history of the various mediums of exchange, their development and changes from the days of barter to the days of gold and silver.

"I call to the attention of the senate," he said in the course of the speech, "that at one time the medium of exchange was oyster shells. Oyster shells were used for money."

"Delightful!" broke in the late Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. "If that system only prevailed now we could order half a dozen oysters on the half shell and pay for them with the shells."—Saturday Evening Post.

Painfully Frank.

The caller didn't look it, but she declared to little Clorinda that she "didn't love children." It may be that she said so because she heard the distant swish of the skirts of Clorinda's mamma; but, whatever the cause, she repeated it urgently. Then, as the small lady with the pet cat made no move to answer her invitation to come and make friends, she asked, "Why is it that you love your kitty better than me, dearie?"

And Clorinda's mamma entered the room with an ill concealed smile as she heard her daughter answer, "Cause she purrs as if she meant it."

Harmony.

"What we want is harmony," said the statesman.
"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "it makes me think of a glee club I used to belong to. Every fellow's idea of harmony was to pick his own key and sing so loud nobody else could be noticed."—Washington Star.

Steps to the Presidency.

"Pa," said little George, "I've chopped down your favorite cherry tree."
"That's a good start toward the presidency, son," responded wisp Mr. Washington. "Now split it into rails."—Pittsburg Post.

PROPOSALS BY PROXY.

The Advantage a Chinaman Has in Case of a Rejection.

Dr. Isaac T. Headland, a resident of Pekin for many years, throws a new light on the new women of China in the Travel Magazine. Taking up the relations between the sexes and especially the Chinese method of getting a wife, the writer repeats a conversation with a young Chinaman who had recently become engaged to a Chinese maiden with whom he had never spoken.

"We students have a very great advantage over the old Chinese method of finding a wife and getting engaged," said my Celestial friend.

"What do you mean?" I inquired.
"Well, you see by the old Chinese method a man can never see his wife until she is brought to his home unless he can bribe the middleman to allow him to stand on the street corner and see her pass by in a cart."

"And what advantage do you have?"

"We see the girls in church," he answered. "They also can see us. We have sisters in the girls' school, they have brothers in the college, and when we go home during vacation we can learn all about each other."

"This is an advantage."
"In my judgment," he continued, "we have a better method than even you foreigners have."

"How is that?"

"Well, you see," he continued, "after we have selected the lady we want we can have a middleman go and ask her for us, while you have to go and ask the lady yourself."

"But," I objected, "we can get so much better acquainted by our method."

"Yes, that's true," he admitted, "but doesn't it make you awfully angry if you ask a girl to marry you and she refuses?"

It was necessary to admit that there were advantages in the middleman method which had never occurred to me, and, while I was not ready to acknowledge that his new found method was better than mine, I could still see that the force which brought it about was bringing woman out of her seclusion and placing her on a level with her brother and her future husband.

A Bet and Its Odds.

A notorious gambler who died some time ago once wagered a thousand dollars to one that six would not be thrown with a pair of dice ten times in succession. His offer was taken up by a fellow clubman. The dice were brought, and his opponent actually threw six nine times in succession. The gambler then offered $470 to be free of the bet. The other man declined, had his tenth throw and failed to get another six. Just to show how very little the average man knows about the doctrine of chances, a well known mathematician has pointed out the real odds about this bet. The chances were no less than 60,466,175 to 1 against six being thrown ten times in succession. Therefore the real bet should have been about $600,000 to a cent against such a thing happening.

The Herring Line.

A senator apropos of fame said at a Washington luncheon:

"What is fame, after all? Kipling when he lived in Brattleboro took a trip to Montpelier, and the first evening he came down to the hotel dining room he overheard this dialogue between two waiters:

"First Waiter—Do you know who that is, George?"

"Second Waiter—No. Who is it?"

"First Waiter—That's the celebrated Kipperin."

"Second Waiter—What's he done?"

"First Waiter—Hanged if I know, Fish line, ain't it?"—Washington Star.

Mother's Task.

When mother gets breakfast she must remember that father likes his breakfast food without cream, Johnny wants both cream and sugar, Susie doesn't like breakfast food at all and must have a substitute, Mary has to have grapefruit and the rest of the family want oranges or apples. No two agree on anything, but she must remember what each one wants or the family doubt her devotion. What is it, do you suppose, that keeps the mother of a large family from going crazy?—Atchison Globe.

His Manly Spirit.

A sturdy Scotchman had been having a dispute with his wife, which resulted in his taking refuge under the bed. As she stood on guard with a good sized stick in her hand he called lustily from his retreat: "Ye can lamb me and ye can lamb me, but ye canna break ma manly spirit. I'll ha' some back."

BABOONS IN BATTLE.

These Creatures Use Method in Fighting Their Enemies.

If we are to credit all testimony on the subject offered by naturalists man is not the only animal who carries on his warfare by means of organized bands and calls in the forces of nature to assist him. There have been witnessed in Africa fights that were conducted in as orderly a manner as if the warriors had been really men instead of only somewhat like them in form—i. e., baboons.

A certain naturalist was once stoned out of a pass in a very few minutes by these creatures, who sprang upon ledges and stones, looked down for a few moments on the valley, growling, snarling and screaming, and then began to roll down stones with so much vigor andadroitness that the intruders took to flight. The baboons evidently knew the value of co-operation, for the naturalist saw two of them combine their efforts in order to set a particularly heavy stone rolling. One monkey, bent on making the most of his missile, was seen to carry a stone up a tree that he might hurl it with greater effect.

Once while some baboons were crossing a valley they were attacked by dogs, and, as is usual during a march, the females and young were in the center, the males heading the column and bringing up the rear. As the dogs rushed upon them the males turned and faced their enemies, growling, beating the ground with their hands and opening their mouths wide, so as to show their glittering teeth. They looked so fierce and malignant that the dogs—Arab greyhounds, accustomed to fight successfully with hyenas and other beasts of prey—shrank back. By the time they had been encouraged to renew the attack the whole herd had made its way, covered by the rear guard, to the rocks, one six-month-old monkey alone excepted.

This little monkey sat on a rock, surrounded by the dogs. But he was not long left in his perilous position. An old baboon stepped from a cliff near by, advanced toward the dogs, keeping them in check by threatening gestures and sounds, picked up the baby monkey and carried it to a place of safety on the cliff, while the whole crowd of baboons watched the act of heroism and shouted their battlecry.—Harper's Weekly.

Solving It.

Patrick, a thrifty tradesman in the neighborhood of the Dublin docks, was, the story goes, a man who never spent a penny more than he needed to spend, but he was nevertheless as good a man at the making of an Irish bull as any who lived between Bantry and Ballycastle. Having one day occasion to send a letter to a place some distance, Patrick called a messenger and asked him his price for going such a distance.

"It'll be a shillin'," said the man.

"Twice too much," said Patrick.

"Let it be sixpence."

"Niver," answered the messenger. "The way is that lonely that I'd niver go it under a shillin'."

"Lonely, is it?" said Patrick, scratching his head. "Faith, an' ye're right. Now, man, I'll tell ye what we'll do. Make it sixpence an' I'll go wid ye to kape ye company."

The Water Wheel.

The water wheel is probably the oldest method of obtaining mechanical force apart from the employment of animal force. This wheel was no doubt at first worked by a flowing river and then by a falling stream, and it would not be a very great advance on this method to dam back the stream so as to obtain a continuous supply of force even in times of drought. Such storing of water at a sufficiently high level is the simplest method of storing force. It carefully arranged the loss by evaporation and leakage is small and may be partly or wholly replaced by rain, so the force is always available, and but little labor is needed to keep such works in repair. The water clock of the Romans was an elaboration of this method of storing force and was for them the only form of "motor."

The Rose.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers, after the battle of Cirrha, refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiae the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

A BRAVE GIRL.

Her Terrible Experience While on a Smuggling Expedition.

This tale of heroism displayed by a young woman engaged in smuggling contraband goods over the Swiss-Italian border comes from Geneva: "Mlle. Porette, aged eighteen, and her brother, aged twenty-three, left Swiss territory to cross the Baldisco pass carrying contraband goods into Italy. On the summit they were overtaken by a violent snowstorm and were soon in deep snow. The Porettes roped themselves, the young man leading. They lost their way, and while attempting to find the path Porette fell through the snow into a crevasse into which he nearly dragged his sister. The girl, however, planted her ice ax in the snow and withstood the shock.

"Early the next morning several smugglers crossing the pass from Swiss territory into Italy, found the young girl near the ordinary route taken by smugglers and recognized her at once, as she belonged to a smuggler's family and lived at Chiavenna. The smugglers at once drew up the brother, but found that he had died during the thirteen hours his sister had held him by the rope. He had received severe injuries in the head, and his body was frozen.

"The smugglers carried down the brave girl, who was almost unconscious, as well as the dead body of her brother, and notified the Porette family at Chiavenna. On reaching the valley the girl had recovered sufficiently from her terrible experience to explain that she and her brother had spoken for several hours after the accident and at last he had said that he felt nothing and wanted to sleep.

"A warm light followed the snowstorm, or two dead bodies were found. Under the great strain the rope had cut through the girl's clothes and her waist was bleeding when she was rescued."—Chicago News.

MISERY AIDING MISERY.

The Helping Hand Among the Beach Combers of Marseilles.

Harry A. Franck in "A Vagabond Journey Around the World" writes of the trying times when he was a beach comber in Marseilles: "Long, hungry days passed, days in which I could scarcely withstand the temptation to carry my kodak to the mont-de-piete (pawnshop) just off the sailors' square. Among the beach combers there were daily some who gained a few francs by an odd job, by the sale of an extra garment or by 'grafting' pure and simple. When his hand closed on a bit of money the stranded fellow may have been weak with fasting, yet this first thought was not to gorge himself, but to share his fortune with his companions under hatches. In those bleak November days many a man ranked a worthless outcast by his more fortunate fellow beings toiled all day at the coal wharfs of Marseilles and tramped back, cold and hungry, to the Place Victor Gelu to divide his earnings with other famished miserables whom he had not known a week before.

"More than one man sold the only shirt he owned to feed a new arrival who was an absolute stranger to all. These men won no praise for their benefactions. They expected none and would have opened their eyes in wonder if they had been told that their actions were worthy of praise. The stranded band grew to be a corporate body. By a job here and there I contributed my share to the common fund, and between us we fought off gaunt starvation.

"In a dirty alley just off the place was an inn kept by a Greek in which one could sleep on the floor at 3 sous or in a cot at 6, and every evening a band of ragged mortals might have been seen dividing the earnings of some of them into three sou lots as they made their way toward 'L'Auberge chez le Grec.'"

Halley's Achievements.

Edmund Halley was a very great man. He was not only the first to predict correctly the return of a comet, but also—before Newton had announced his results to any one—arrived at the conclusion that the attraction of gravitation probably varied inversely as the square of the distance. While these and other important achievements of his are well known it seems to have been forgotten that Halley devised a method of determining the age of the ocean from chemical denudation.—Dr. G. F. Becker in Science.

Florence Nightingale's Real Name.

The family name of Florence Nightingale was not originally Nightingale, but Shore. Her father was a rich Sheffield banker of the name of Shore and connected with an old family which had been in possession of land in the counties of Derby and York since the fifteenth century. Mr. Shore assumed the name of Nightingale long after the birth of his children and because he inherited the fortune and estates of his mother's uncle. There were but two children in the family, both girls. The eldest was named Parthenosse, because she was born in Athens, and this name was supposed to indicate her father's profound admiration for the Parthenon. The younger, Florence, was also named after the city of her birth.

JAPANESE HEROISM.

The Brave Record of the Loss of a Submarine Vessel.

Subjoined is the translation of a message written by Lieutenant Tsutoma Sakuma, who was in command of the Japanese submarine No. 6, which foundered while maneuvering in Hiroshima bay. The message was found in the conning tower of the submarine after she had been brought to the surface:

"It is with the deepest regret that I write this message to describe the loss of this boat with my fellow officers and men, due to my own fault. I would here specially mention that all steps have been taken to raise her, my comrades and men working earnestly and calmly till the end. I ordered the ship to dive with the engine running, but as I found she went down too far I tried to shut the valves which admit the sea water to the ballast tank, but unexpectedly the chain working these valves broke, and I was left helpless, unable to control the boat. Meanwhile the tanks filled with water, and the boat went down at an incline of about twenty-five degrees. After striking the bottom the water began rushing in, the switchboard was immersed in water, all electric lights went out, the fuses burnt away, and the boat was filled with poisonous gases, so that we experienced the greatest difficulty in breathing.

"Under these conditions we worked our very utmost with the hand pumps to empty the main ballast tank, which, I believe, we succeeded in doing, although we could not read the gauges owing to darkness. No electric current was available, as I mentioned before, and our last hope of rising to the surface lay in working the hand pumps only.

"I write this in the dim light coming from the conning tower—11:45 a. m. "I earnestly beseech his majesty to grant me forgiveness and to succor the families of my comrades and men who have lost their lives in this perishing boat. This is my only wish. 12:30 p. m.

"It is with the utmost difficulty that I can breathe, though I am sure we must have blown out the gasoline entirely from the tanks. I cannot continue any more. 12:40 p. m.—London Times.

IN A MEXICAN JAIL.

Food and Bedclothes Scanty, but There's Money For Cigarettes.

"Beating your way through Mexico," said the man who had been there, "is a snap compared with the same unconventional method of traveling in the United States. The engineers and brakemen on the freight trains are nearly all Americans, and they generally welcome a fellow from home.

"There's one drawback, though. The authorities are tickled to death to catch an American breaking the law in that way. It means a jail sentence every time with hard labor, and it is hard labor and no mistake about it.

"At a watering tank near Hermosillo, in the state of Sonora, I braced the engineer of a freight train for a ride. He was a gruff sort of chap and seemed to have a bad grouch on that day.

"I don't give a curse what you do," he said, "but I won't have you in my cab, and all the cars are sealed. Ride on the cowcatcher if you like."

"I was foolish enough to follow his suggestion and had a great time for an hour or so. But I wasn't familiar with the country, and we were sneaking into Hermosillo before I realized that it was time to remove myself. A policeman caught sight of me and waved his arms frantically. As soon as the train slowed down a bit I made a jump for it, but the Mexican cop was right there. Before I knew where I was I found myself sentenced to twenty days or a twenty dollar fine.

"They shoved me into a cell already occupied by six Mexicans. They seemed to be half starved, but I was surprised to notice that they were all smoking cigarettes. It was the siesta hour, and I thought that if smoking was permitted Mexican prisoners must be rarely well treated. I soon discovered my mistake. In the afternoon they took us out, made up a chain gang and set us to paving a section of street. The work was hard and the sun was hot. I was half dead by the time work was called off.

"For supper they served us red beans—frijoles is the native name—boiled in plain water; no meat or bread and only a limited supply of salt. A ragged quilt was given me as my covering, and I was supposed to sleep on the floor among my Mexican companions.

"The next morning I understood the cigarette game. As they marched us to work the comandante handed each man a small coin. 'For cigarettes,' he said, with an amiable wave of his hand. Later on I discovered that the custom is universal.

"On Sundays they had a new job for us. Instead of mending the pavement they set us to sweeping the main thoroughfare. The brooms consisted of green branches broken off the nearest tree, and we were merely supposed to stir up the dust and sweep it into little heaps. Nobody ever came to cart it away when we were through. It was a comical business, though humiliating at the same time. One week was just about enough for me. I saved up my cigarette money for a few days and paid a boy to take a message to a gringo friend who lived in Hermosillo. It happened to be Sunday, and when he came down he found me at my street sweeping job. It struck him as being so funny that he laughed for five minutes before he could explain his business. Then he paid my fine and took me home to a good dinner."—Baltimore American.

People Are Different.

Chief Justice Taney, driving through the Tennessee mountains, once broke one of the shafts of his buggy. A small colored boy came riding by on a mule. The justice hailed him. "Here, my boy," he said, "can you help me fix my buggy?" "Sure, boss," answered the boy, and cutting a hickory withe, he soon fixed the shaft so that it was quite serviceable. "Well, well!" said the learned judge. "Now, why couldn't I have done that?" "I dunno, boss," replied his "first aid," "unless some folks know more than others."—Success Magazine.

Took to Him Naturally.

"Now, it's a curious fact." The belle of the ball sighed. All through the waltz her partner had been relating "curious facts" to her about everything under the sun, from pigs to politics, till she was bored to death, and now he was on the subject of hegemony.

"It's a curious fact," he remarked, "but my brother, who was born on the same day of the year I was, but who's three years older, is the exact opposite of me in every respect. Do you know my brother?" "No," demurely murmured the belle, "but I should like to."

He "Sells it Cheaper". Try Him

The Valuable Match.

There was a loud splash, and a moment later a dripping head appeared above the waves. On the end of the dock was a stevedore nonchalantly lighting his pipe.

"Help, man!" cried the chap in the water. "Can't you see I am overboard? I can't swim."

"How often you been down?" asked the stevedore, shielding the flickering match from the wind.

"Once, I believe, but hurry up, man! Give me a hand!"

"You wait! You have two times yet to go down, and I have only one match. I'll catch you on the last trip."—Chicago News.

Literal Lannigan.
