SUMMER SCHOOL AT E. C. T. C. S.

Doing Great Work for Teachers in East Carolina—Enrollment Large.

The summer school for teachers now being run in Greenville at the East Carolina Teachers' Training School is probably the most important summer school ever held in North Carolina. With an enrollment of nearly 300 teachers coming from every North Carolina county east of Raleigh and many west of that city, and a faculty of ten efficient, hard-working teachers—each one a proven master in his department—the school, now in its first session, is doing a work that is starting in its earnestness and amazing in its scope. Summer schools have been held in North Carolina at which the attendance nearly trebled that of the school now running in Greenville; but the statement is confidently made by Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, superintendent of public instruction in Pitt county and an educator of state-wide reputation, that in consideration of the vigor and conscientiousness of the work and the number of teachers reached who have hitherto not been attracted by summer schools. "Nothing in the history of North Carolina has ever shown such wonderful spirit along educational lines."

In the past, many teachers have looked upon summer schools as a nice place to spend enjoyably the summer's vacation. In the summer school in Greenville the "campus course" is noticeable for its absence. The discipline though not as stringent, is just as really present as in any of the colleges of the state. Each teacher who registers is given the choice of five courses ranging from 23 to 25 hours each. After registration one is expected and required to be present at every meeting of every class which has her name upon its roll.

But with this discipline and rule of hard work the teachers are extremely well satisfied. They all seem to think that the East Carolina Training school is giving them just what they need. The teachers are giving evidence of their appreciation and hearty approval of the conduct of the school by the spirit of co-operation and encouragement which they display on every occasion.

The faculty numbering only ten men and women are being worked severely to give, as satisfactorily as they do, the fifty courses which they offer. President Robert H. Wright is the head of the work. Professor H. E. Austin, teacher of Geography and Agriculture, Professor C. W. Wilson, Pedagogy; Miss Maria D. Graham, Mathematics; Mr. Meadows, of Texas, English; Miss Kate W. Lewis, Drawing; Mr. Knight, History; Professor Ragsdale, School Management; Miss Mary Arrington, Primary Methods; Mrs. Ogden, Household Economy; Miss Bishop music (sight singing); Miss Bishop an extra-curricular course in instrumental music.

The courses offered embrace the entire work required in public schools. Two terms of ten weeks each have been given. The first which began March 15, and ended May 20, had an enrollment of 32. The second term begun on May 24, which will run until July 30, has already 265 names on its registration list, and teachers are coming in on every train. Scarcely 25 could be accommodated in the college buildings, the others are boarding in the city.

N. C. PRESS CONVENTION.

The Pin Pushers are Having Great Time.

(Editorial Correspondence.)

Wrightsville Beach, June 9.—The editors of North Carolina and those who brought their wives daughters or sons along with them, have certainly had a great time at Wrightsville, notwithstanding the weather has not been entirely to their liking. The Tarrymore hotel, where the editors are stopping and the sessions of the association held, is so large that when it is raining they find plenty of room inside to meet and enjoy themselves.

The incoming trains bringing the editors were met by a committee headed by Editor Cowan, of the Wilmington Dispatch, and the visitors were at once made to feel at home. Besides being provided with badges that gave them recognition anywhere, through the courtesy of Mr. A. B. Shelding, of the Tidewater Power Co., they were given cards that took them at will over the street car and beach trolley lines. The reception and hospitality has been most cordial, and no dull moments were passed between the sessions of the association.

The attendance of the association was unusually large and the exercises of more than ordinary interest, showing that the newspaper men of North Carolina are not behind any in the country.

Both Wilmington and Wrightsville have improved greatly in the last few years and this is taking rank as one of the most important seaports of the South. Wilmington is going forward by leaps and bounds, and Wrightsville has built up for miles along the beach until it has become an important city. It is fast crowding Atlantic City in popularity as a summer resort. Attractions here are numerous and more are being added every season. It is an ideal place for pleasure and comfort.

A New Feature.

The Reflector has added a new feature in the Brooklyn Tabernacle Bible studies. Each week the International Sunday school lesson for the following Sunday is set forth in a clear, concise manner and will be a great help to both Sunday school teachers and scholars. It will be found on third page of this issue. Look for it every Thursday and in The Eastern Reflector.

Died.

A telegram was received here this morning from Reidsville stating that Robert, little son of the late and Mrs. J. R. Moore, died there this morning and would be brought here Friday for burial. The remains will arrive on the Norfolk Southern at 9:20 o'clock and will be taken direct from the depot to Cherry Hill cemetery.

for the East Carolina Teachers' Training school not quite two years ago. The first regular session closed May 20, after doing effective work with a registration of 172 students from all over eastern and central North Carolina.

Already the Training school like the State University is feeling cramped with its small equipment in face of its opportunity to do gigantic work educationally in North Carolina.

Sherman Knocks Insurgents.

In a speech delivered before the Republican State convention of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, Wis., yesterday, Vice President Sherman strongly reproved the insurgent element in the national party. After recalling Champ Clark's remark that the devil himself could not answer the question, "What is a Republican?" the vice-president warmed up to his subject. He traced the different outbreaks of insurgency in the history of the party and ended up with a strong plea for all Wisconsin insurgents to return to the fold and get solid on the national election of 1910.

Will Build Stores.

Charles Cobb and H. C. Edwards, who have purchased the lots between Higgs Bros. and Parham's warehouse on Dickinon avenue, will at an early date begin work on four single story brick buildings to be used as stores. Comet Eggs.

The hens of Pitt county are a thoughtful lot. They always notice what is going on around them and are deeply interested in what they see in the papers. The minds of some work more quickly than of others. The hens heard sometime ago about the visit Halley's comet was paying to this corner of the universe. Not long after the time that Greenville people sat up all night only to miss seeing the comet, because of clouds which gathered, the hens of the good old county got to meditating upon the phenomenon and one morning a certain poultry raiser found an egg with a caudal appendage and recognized it as a miniature of Halley's comet. Now these comet eggs are getting more and more frequent. If something doesn't happen to distract the poultry mind from meditating on matters firmamental all our eggs will be soft-shelled and have handles.

Large Barge Launched.

The large lumber flat which Mr. W. M. Chauncey, of Washington, has been constructing for the Cabinet & Veneer Company was launched Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony at the dock was very simple, one of the carpenters merely knocked out one of the pins which held the raft on the girders and without any cheering or breaking of champagne bottles, she slid cautiously into Tar river. As yet she is unchristened.

The dimensions of the boat are 60 x 20 feet. She will be used to float gun logs down the river.

The Winslow Building.

The corner building erected on the corner diemetric to the residence of Mrs. J. B. Cherry by Mr. J. E. Winslow is completed and is now occupied by the bottling works of Hines-Murphy Co. In the shape of the letter L around this corner building Mr. Winslow is rapidly completing a fine brick livery and sales stables, which will be a close second in size to the stables of Mr. R. L. Smith on Fourth street. The new stables will have an entrance on both fifth and Washington streets.

Miss Hardy Winner of Scholarship.

Miss Emma Hardy arrived home Wednesday afternoon from Lynchburg, Va. where she is a student of art in Randolph-Macon College. She won the scholarship, offered by the college to the one doing the most perfect work in art during the term just closed, to the Pennsylvania College of Art, Philadelphia. And she will take up her work there next fall. Her vacation will be spent here with her parents.

There will be a special meeting of Greenville Encampment No. 45, I. O. O. F. tonight in the Mayor's office at 8.30. Bro. Gilmore Ward Bryant, Grand Patriarch, will be present. Every member requested to be present.

Rogers, the Great, a colored magician from Washington City, who is here to give a performance in Tyson's Hall tonight, was in the office this afternoon to have some work done and while waiting did some truly wonderful tricks for the entertainment of the force. He has a little rubber ball that will put you to guessing as to where it goes.

Will Build Cold Storage Plant.

Mr. H. C. Edwards and Charles Cobb have, through Mosely Bros., purchased from Darden Bros., Greene county, the lots lying between Tunstall's store on Dickinon avenue and the Norfolk Southern depot. They have not fully decided upon what use they shall make of this land, but they have already gone so far as to have plans submitted for a $20,000 cold storage plant.

ARTS OF THE ANCIENTS.
Many of Our Modern Discoveries Are Only Rediscoveries.

History is not the only thing that repeats itself. Discovery does the same. We are not nearly so much ahead of the ancients as it pleases us to believe. Many of our discoveries are only rediscoveries—improved upon perhaps, but not altered in nature.

In 1662 France was already in possession of omnibuses. The Romans sank artesian wells even in the Sahara. In 1685 Papin published in the Journal des Savants an account of an experiment made by one of his friends who caused flowers to grow instantaneously. The secret, which was not revealed, lay in the preparation of the ground.

The Greeks had a woolen or linen cuirass so closely woven as to be impenetrable by the sharpest darts. We have not found out the secret of it. The Romans had better mills than ours for pounding olives. The Chinese had invented iron houses as early as 1200. Glass houses were found among the Picts in Scotland and the Celts in Gaul and many centuries earlier in Siam. Grass cloth was used many centuries ago by the Chinese.

Massage was an ancient practice and was known to the Romans. Paracelsus speaks of homeopathy and says that like is cured by like and not contrary by contrary. The speculum, the probe, the forceps, were known in the year 500. Indeed, specimens thereof have been found in the ruins of Pompeii. Aristotle noticed that sea water could be made drinkable by boiling it and collecting the steam.

The Romans appear to have been familiar with the lightning rod. On top of the highest tower of the Castle of Dunio, on the Adriatic, there was set from time immemorial a long rod of iron. In the stormy weather of summer it served to predict the approach of a tempest. A soldier was always stationed by it when the sea showed threatenings of storm. From time to time he put the point of his long javelin close to the rod. Whenever a spark passed between the two pieces of iron he rang a bell to warn the fishermen. Gerbert in the tenth century invented a plan for diverting lightning from fields by placing in them long sticks tipped with sharp lanceheads.—Chicago Record-Herald

New Telephone Directory Out.

We are now delivering our new telephone directory, and we earnestly ask that all users of the telephone will call by number instead of name, as it very greatly expedites the service. It is not for our own good, but the subscribers that we ask this. Owing to our rapid growth it is impossible for the operator to remember all the numbers and have to look them up, thereby greatly reducing the efficiency of the service. In calling by number always call the figures singly, as 17 call, "one," "seven," or as 280-L call, "two," "eight," "0" "L." Try this and you will like it. Respectfully,

THURSDAY, JUNE 9, 1910.

There is always some fool predicting great calamities.

Greenville girls are smart, as well as ornamental. Two of them have won scholarships this year.

And it was the A. T. Co. which came to the rescue. Just look out for some of the newspapers to find a "mare's nest."

The Chronicle mendacity medal has certainly brought out a full crop of snake stories. It must be the "stuff" the boys are drinking that enables them to tell such whoppers.

It is safe to say Greenville and Pitt county are going to have one of the prettiest and most up-to-date court houses in Eastern North Carolina. Work has begun on clearing the site of the former buildings. We hope to give our readers full particulars of the plans of the building in a few days.

Notwithstanding there has been much opposition to the American Tobacco Company, and certain legislators and calamity howlers have tried to run it out of North Carolina, that company has come forward in the State's dilemma and offered to take one million dollars of the bonds now on the market. The howlers should cease their howling.

A letter from Hon. Jno. H. Small, states that the report and map of the soil survey of Pitt county will be ready for general distribution in about ten days, and that he will be glad to send a copy of this report to any citizen of Pitt county upon application. Every progressive farmer in the county should secure one, as it will help a great deal in the selection of crops.

Editor Cowan, of the Wilmington Dispatch, thought he had The Reflector of his base at Wrightville, and that he would even up with us for some of the jabs we have been giving him. In his welcome address to the association on the part of the Wilmington press, Cowan said certain features had been picked out for individual members, and the one for his friend of The Reflector was a girl in a bathing suit, and if our timidity got the better of us we could stay on the bank and "hug the shore." When told to bring on the girl and we would show him we were more than a "shore hugger," he found that it was not so easy to make us "take water."

DON'T GET RUN DOWN

Ask for Mother Gray's Australian-Leaf at druggist or sent by mail for 50 cents. Sample free. Address, The Mother Gray Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

Something More Than Galm.
The Observer has already called attention to the nature and purposes of the amendment to the railroad bill proposed by Senator Overman, which seeks to regulate the issue of injunctions against State officers enforcing State statutes by any Federal judge upon the ground of constitutionality "unless application shall be presented to a justice of the United States Supreme court, or to a circuit judge and shall have been heard by three United States judges." The tangle over railroad legislation in this State two years ago and the action of Judge Pritchard are still fresh in the public mind, and the amendment is a constructive attempt to prevent hasty and ill-considered action in similar cases.—Charlotte Observer.

Place Some More Tablets.
The unveiling of the memorial tablet on the site of the navy yard has caused the venom of envy to flow freely in certain quarters. "In another fifty years," asserts the Anderson Mail, "Charlotte will claim that the battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac occurred on West Trade street." Fifty years nothing! A hasty reference to Recorder Smith's blotter will establish the fact that West Trade street has been the scene of not one but several score historic struggles.—Charlotte Observer.

North Carolinians are everywhere and wherever found, they are making good. In Baltimore two big buildings—the Emerson Hotel and the Tower Building—are going up. They are the greatest architectural features of that city. It transpires that the contractor, William M. Parker, is a native of North Carolina, and Captain Emerson, president of the hotel company, was born at Chapel Hill.—Charlotte Chronicle.

BIBLE STUDIES

"A CRUMB FROM THE CHILDREN'S TABLE"

Matthew 15:21-28—June 12.

"Great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt."—V. 28.

GOD loves the faithful and delights to have them trust in him. His chiefest blessings are for such. By reason of various conditions connected with our birth, it is not alike easy to all to accept the Divine promises and to shape life according to these, trusting that the rewards and blessings of the future will more than offset the sacrifices of the present. However, while only the faithful will attain the exceeding great and precious things of God's promises in this present age, we are glad that the Creator has still in reservation an inferior blessing for those who cannot exercise faith now, but who must be dealt with during the Millennial Age more along the lines of sight. Our present study well illustrates the Lord's grace towards those who trust him.

The Canaanish woman was a heathen woman—one not an Israelite—one with whom the Lord had not entered into covenant relationship—one of those who at that time were without God and without hope, because the Divine provision for the blessing of the Gentiles was not yet opened up to them. When our Lord sent forth his Apostles to preach the Gospel, healing all manner of diseases and casting out devils, he instructed them to pass by all who were not Jews—Gentiles and Samaritans. His words were, "Go not into the way of the Gentiles and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not, for I am not sent save to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." With a few exceptions our Lord's miracles were confined to the Jews. They alone were God's covenanted people. For this reason Jesus ignored the petition of the Canaanish woman, crying "Have mercy on me, O Lord, Son of David! My daughter is grievously vexed with a devil." And later on he explained, "I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel," and "It is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs."

The term "dogs" was applied to the Gentiles by the Jews as signifying their inferiority. Our Lord merely made use of an expression common in his day, and still common in Palestine. But note the woman's faith: She replied, "Yea, Lord, yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from the Master's table." What perseverance, what faith, was thus manifested! How evidently she believed the Lord to be the promised Messiah, the Heir of the throne of David! As Jesus intimated, she had more faith than a majority of the Jews. Her request was granted—"O woman, great is thy faith! Be it unto thee even as thou wilt." Her daughter was healed from that hour.

There are several lessons for us in this study. However degraded we may be by nature, by heredity, by environment; however outcast from God's favor, we may still know of the Divine compassion. The message is, "God is Love." If he chose first of all to manifest his favor towards Abraham's children, it did not signify that he had no love or care for the remainder of mankind; merely that the Divine purpose must flow out to mankind through Divinely-appointed channels and in God's due time. We may be sure that when we get to the standpoint of perfect knowledge in the hereafter we shall see wisdom in every feature of the Divine program. For instance, from the human standpoint it seems strange that God has permitted a reign of sin and death in the world for 6000 years, when he has the full power to speak the word and to overthrow the forces of evil and to inaugurate gracious influences of blessing for the deliverance of mankind from the power of sin and Satan, ignorance and superstition; to give light for darkness; knowledge of God for ignorance and blindness. Studying the Divine Plan of the Ages, we find the lesson to be that God will first select a Church class and subsequently use the elect Church as channels of blessing toward the world of mankind.

A little while, and the permission of sin and the trials and difficulties of the present life shall have served to chisel and polish the "very elect." A little while, and they shall be transformed to the glorious likeness of their Redeemer beyond the veil. And then a little while, and the blessings long promised to the world in general will be dispensed. The children of God will first be fed from this table, and then not merely crumbs will fall for the remainder of the race, but rich and bountiful provision, exceedingly and abundantly more than we could have asked or thought.

It is a great and important truth that many human beings are more or less completely obsessed by evil spirits—demons—not the spirits of human beings, but the fallen angels, as the Scriptures declare. Many battle for years against these influences of demons and, because not rightly informed of the Bible teaching on the subject, they come more and more under the occult influences with danger of entirely losing their reason. It was probably some such affliction as this which affected the daughter of the Canaanish woman. She seemed to realize that there was only one quarter from which she could get help. Hence her importunity, when she recognized the Lord.

In another sense of the word all sin and sickness may be said to be afflictions of the devil, because all are either directly, or through heredity, Satan's work. Thus our Lord declared that Satan had murdered our race by his falsehood to mother Eve—"He was a murderer from the beginning and abode not in the Truth." Through his lie our race has gone down into sickness, mental, moral and physical, and is going down rapidly to the tomb. Thank God for the great Deliverer; thank God also, for his great day of deliverance, the Millennial Age, now nigh at hand!

CHILEAN STEVEDORES.

A Feroocious Class of Men With the Manners of Savages.

At Caronel, the principal coaling port on the west coast of South America, it is customary for cargo boats to ship twenty or thirty Chilean stevedores, in addition to the regular crew, to break out the cargo when it is consigned to various ports farther up the coast. A worse looking lot of cutthroats than these seagoing longshoremen it would be hard to find even among the bandits of southern Europe or the old time pirates of the West Indies. Swarthy, undersized, dirty and clothed in nondescript rags, they are about the bottom notch in the scale of humanity.

What they lack in intelligence they make up in ferocity and animal cunning. Even a crew of Kanakas will refuse to berth or mess with them. Every man of them carries a knife, and they are commanded by an overseer who is addressed as "captain" and exerts a certain degree of authority. They do their own cooking while aboard ship, each man serving as cook for a week, at the end of which time he resigns in favor of the next in line. Of course the "captain" never descends to menial labor, not even to work the cargo. He stands by with a cigarette between his fingers and directs his men. The table manners of these semisavages are the manners of the stone age. Neither knives, forks nor spoons are used, but every man grabs for himself and crams as much as he can into his mouth at once, greedily tearing the meat apart with his fingers and cleaning up the grease with a piece of bread, which also does duty as a napkin before it is swallowed. A number of sheep generally are taken out on these tramp steamers and killed when fresh meat is needed. When the Chileans learn a sheep is going to be killed they crowd around with tin cups or basins to catch the warm blood, which they drink eagerly. They also bring chunks of bread and sop up every drop that falls.—New York Press.

At Sea.

A man was discovered one evening by a friend leaning disconsolately over the rail of a transatlantic steamer. "Are you waiting for the moon to rise?" asked the friend facetiously. "No," was the savage reply. "I have not swallowed the moon."—Los Angeles Times.

Sardinia.

That large Italian island Sardinia still belongs to the middle ages. It is hard to believe that Sardinia, known to the ancient Romans as the granary of the empire and its mineral treasure house, should so recently as 1828 have been entirely without roads. The beautiful highways over which, in Augustin days, golden harvests had been wheeled to the coast had been lost since the fall of the empire. Even feudalism retained its hold on the life of the Sardinians till 1856. Pestilence due to neglected soil and undrained swamps has no doubt helped to retard the return to civilization of the island which gave the crown to King Victor's house.—London Chronicle.

A Plant Watering Scheme.

Persons engaged in rearing household plants are often in a quandary when it is desired to leave the house temporarily without neglecting the plants. An arrangement can be readily rigged up so that the necessary water will be supplied to the soil automatically. Take a bowl of water and raise it well above the level of the plant to be watered by means of a box or a pile of books. Twist several strands of common darning wool together to form a long thread and soak them in the water. If one end be hung over the bowl and the other end left in the water a steady drip will commence and continue until the bowl is empty.—London Globe.

Their Fate.

The late Dr. Talmage once called on his lawyer and found two of his parishioners there on legal business of a private nature.

"Ah, doctor," called the lawyer in greeting, "good morning! Here are two of your flock. May I ask without impertinence if you regard them as black sheep or white?"

"I don't know as yet," replied Talmage dryly, "whether they're black or white, but I'm certain that if they remain here long they'll be fleeced."

LITERARY DANDIES.

Lytton and Dickens Were Not Alone In Their Pride of Dress.

Stevenson's get-up is thus described by a fellow member of the Savile club: "He wore a black flannel shirt, with a curious knitted tie twisted in a knot; he had Wellington boots, rather tight dark trousers, a pea jacket and a white sombrero hat. But the most astonishing item of all in his costume was a lady's sealskin cape, which he wore about his shoulders, fastened at the neck by a fancy brooch, which also held together a bunch of half a dozen daffodils."

Lord Lytton and Dickens prided themselves on being literary dandies, but in the matter of clothes their light paled before that of Disraeli in the days when the novelist was paramount to the politician.

A black velvet coat lined with satin, purple trousers with a gold band running down the seam, a scarlet waistcoat with elegant lace ruffles of such a length as to cover his hands and white gloves, the outside of which were decorated with a number of valuable rings, were, with the addition of a profusion of gold chains that meandered about his person, his not infrequent attire.

The dress of Gerard de Nerval, the French poet, was, on one occasion at least, in keeping with the lobster which he was wont to lead abroad on a gayly colored ribbon.

Trousers, coat and waistcoat were of green satin, each, however, of a different hue, to represent the varied colors of the sea under diverse conditions. His hat was adorned with long strands of seaweed, while around his neck he wore a string of coral beads.

The buttons of his coat and waistcoat were comprised of shells, while on his breast were pinned several pebble brooches. To complete his marine garb he carried in his right hand a Neptune's trident.

Dumas the elder was certainly "loud" in the matter of personal adornment. He was not infrequently seen abroad in a uniform plentifully besprinkled with decorations of his own design, while he once attended an ambassador's reception wearing a shirt covered with red demons careering about in little red flames.

Gautier was at times very gorgeous in the matter of his raiment, a dress of crimson and gold on one occasion adorning his sturdy person. Paul Bourget in his youth wore green trousers. "Monk" Lewis amused his friends by appearing in the streets in the guise of a Venetian bravo. Beckford, the author of "Vathek," presided at an entertainment at Fonthill in the costume of a Roman emperor.

Not a few writers have assumed singular garb while at work. Balzac used to don the dress of a Dominican monk ere he took pen in hand; Samuel Richardson, the author of "Clarissa Marlowe," could never write save in a laced coat and with a favorite diamond ring sparkling on his little finger; Rousseau's working costume was a court dress; Thomas Moore, the poet, penned his poems with kid gloved hands, and Buffon, the eminent French naturalist, dressed himself as a dandy previous to sitting down to his desk.—London Tit-Bits.

Covering Books.

To cover paper bound books take two pieces of cardboard a tiny bit larger than book. Paste fly leaves at front and back to cardboard, which of course is outside. Then take a strip of strong cotton cloth; paste it down back of book; have it wide, so it will cover about one inch of each piece of cardboard, thereby joining the two pieces together. Now put a cover of brown paper over all, pasting securely, and your decorated cover goes over this. The books may be covered with decorated silk, pique or duck if you paint or embroider, but the simplest way is to cover with tissue paper (not crape). Paste a pretty card on the front and after cutting title and author's name from old cover arrange them prettily on the new one.

Information.

He was a kindly constable and had for long been answering the inquisitive old lady's questions to the best of his ability. But he was beginning to tire a little. "And what's the truncheon for, policeman?" inquired the inquisitive dame.

"Ketch a feller a cop over the mob if 'e gets violent," responded Bobby.

"And what are those numbers for?"

"Identificashun purposes, mum," said Bobby laconically, turning away.

"And what, policeman," said the old dame, catching him by the arm, "is that strap under your chin for?"

"Well, mum," snorted Bobby, "that's ter rest me jaws when I gits tired answerin' silly questions."

A DANGEROUS FISH.

The Peril That Comes With Catching an Electric Ray.

Trouble lurks in the least suspected spots. One would think a smooth, shallow cove a safe place in which to float in a good craft, yet Charles Frederick Holder met with an adventure in just such a spot, which he relates in "Big Game at Sea." The author was visiting a friend on the New England coast, who was given to the study of natural history.

One day the author accompanied his friend on a collecting trip, and here is the story of the result as he told it: Opposite his house was a little bay with a clean sandy bottom. Over this we slowly drifted. I sat in the stern, enjoying the day and examining the curious things my friend drew out of the water. Suddenly he gave an ejaculation, and I saw him cling, seemingly helpless, to his pole. His face was ashy pale, with a white appearance like one stricken with a fatal disease.

I sprang forward just in time to catch him as he fell back into the boat and lowered him to the seat. At first he could only motion toward the water. He was almost rigid. Finally he recovered enough to say "Torpedo!" I saw the harpoon he was holding dancing about, evidently forced into a large fish. Grasping it, I soon discovered the trouble, for I received an electric shock strong enough to almost knock me over. I dropped the pole.

By this time my friend had recovered enough to tell me to let the fish remain where it was. With difficulty I rowed to shore. When the boat was grounded I picked up an old glass bottle, took a turn over it with the line and, with the help of this homemade insulator, pulled the fish on shore.

It proved to be one of the largest torpedoes, or electric rays, I have ever seen. Under certain conditions it would have been capable of killing a man. When touched the fish would roll its eyes dully and give a low croak.

I have never known a man to be killed by one, but many have been injured, and, as for my friend, he did not recover in a week.

Pain and Sudden Death.

In angina pectoris, agony spasm of the heart, there are two chief features—pain and sudden death. The pain is coming and going, intense, peculiar, strange, awful, usually in the chest around the heart and spreading into the shoulders and abdomen. Death, which comes in a higher percentage than in any other known disease, for few ever get over it, is usually sudden, often, as the poet says, "life struck sharp on death." There are indeed in this disease many mysteries remaining to be cleared up. A father and his four children have died of angina pectoris.—New York Press.

THE FIRST PHOTOGRAPHS.

Head Tongs, Long Exposures and the Ordeal of Looking Pleasant.

An event was the taking of the first photograph in the olden days, when photography was still hampered by pitchforks and long exposures. There are few good baby pictures of our fathers. The fond mother and father sit bolt upright, frozen or petrified, while between them is a very starry little dress surmounted by a very blurry little spot which represents a composite of several partial likenesses of the hopeful.

But it was with the child of ten or twelve years that the old time photographer succeeded best, the child that has reached the age capable of feeling the tremendous responsibility of having a picture taken. Every old album, such as used to grace the center table in the front room, parades before you a long array of these conscientious young people undergoing the terrible ordeal of "sitting." Loving mothers spent hours combing those smoothly plastered locks tightly back and binding them uncompromisingly behind with irreproachable ribbon bows. At the last moment, after the operator has screwed the iron fork tight up behind the trembling head and has pushed the huge camera here and there, ducking in and out under the black cloth in a most awe inspiring manner, mother has slipped into range and given just one more pat to the starry skirts and one more tug at the big sleeves. Then there came the awful command, "Look pleasant," which the victim did by a remarkable effort of will, usually attaining somewhat the expression which comes over the face of a strangling cat. Five minutes later the "artist" announces that "that will do," and the family feels the same relief that comes to friends with the announcement that the "patient has survived the operation and is resting comfortably."—Detroit News-Tribune.

Not Enough For Him.

The colored boy who had been sent to the postoffice by the porter of the hotel for private mail returned to say to the sender:

"Misser Brown, dar's a letter dar fur you, but dey dun wouldn't gib it to me."

"Hu! Wouldn't gib it to you?"

"No, sah. Dey said you must come yourself."

"What was the name on de letter, boy?"

"Sam Brown."

"Jist Sam Brown and no mo'?"

"Dat's all."

"Den I hain't gwine to take no walk down to dat postoffice. Dat letter hain't fur me 'tall. If it was for me it would be directed to de Hon. Samuel Brown, Esq., and de writin' would kiver most of de envelope."—Baltimore American.

The detective was in pursuit of a criminal who had traveled by a previous train, and he took out a photograph of the fugitive and studied it intently. FORE THEMSELVES AWAY. It Was Hard For the Audience to Leave After the Lecture. "One of my most surprising experiences," said a lecturer, "was a comparatively small thing that has left an unforgettable impression. It occurred in a small town hall that had just been refurbished and re-decorated. The seats were of that collapsible wooden kind with leather bottoms, and they had all been freshly and neatly varnished.

"So far as I could judge from the lecture platform, my remarks went off excellently. The audience was attentive, and when I had finished there was the usual applause that sometimes leaves a lecturer wondering whether the audience is pleased with the lecture or is just expressing its satisfaction that the infliction is over. I was about to leave the platform when I was surprised to notice that the audience was still seated.

"I stood and looked at them, and they sat and looked at me. It was a small hall, and there were only a dozen or so rows of seats immediately in front of me. I could see the faces of all the people, and the expressions puzzled me. In fact, each face wore almost the same expression of surprise, astonishment and indignation. Here and there one of them would start to get up and then change his mind and remain, thinking it over. They seemed to be waiting.

"Then it dawned on me. The seats! They had been newly varnished, and my entire audience was stuck to them. I began to wonder whether I should have to call for the janitor and pry them off one after another.

"Fortunately one man, sitting in the front row, had the courage to meet the situation. He drew himself together, made a mighty effort, and rose suddenly to his feet. The thing happened just as everybody had expected. There was a tearing sound as he left the varnish, but he was on his feet and had set an example that the rest felt they must follow or remain there forever.

"I went to the edge of the platform of seats and gentlemen," said I, "should begin another lecture?" "Apparently the threat and the successful escape of that one determined man inspired the others. There followed a succession of reports from the ranks of the infantrymen firing their guns one after another, and then the audience was on its feet, and moving toward the entrances. But the expression with which most of them looked back at some of the varnished chairs was something to remember."—Youth's Companion.

FORE THEMSELVES AWAY. It Was Hard For the Audience to Leave After the Lecture. "One of my most surprising experiences," said a lecturer, "was a comparatively small thing that has left an unforgettable impression. It occurred in a small town hall that had just been refurbished and re-decorated. The seats were of that collapsible wooden kind with leather bottoms, and they had all been freshly and neatly varnished.

"So far as I could judge from the lecture platform, my remarks went off excellently. The audience was attentive, and when I had finished there was the usual applause that sometimes leaves a lecturer wondering whether the audience is pleased with the lecture or is just expressing its satisfaction that the infliction is over. I was about to leave the platform when I was surprised to notice that the audience was still seated.

"I stood and looked at them, and they sat and looked at me. It was a small hall, and there were only a dozen or so rows of seats immediately in front of me. I could see the faces of all the people, and the expressions puzzled me. In fact, each face wore almost the same expression of surprise, astonishment and indignation. Here and there one of them would start to get up and then change his mind and remain, thinking it over. They seemed to be waiting.

"Then it dawned on me. The seats! They had been newly varnished, and my entire audience was stuck to them. I began to wonder whether I should have to call for the janitor and pry them off one after another.

"Fortunately one man, sitting in the front row, had the courage to meet the situation. He drew himself together, made a mighty effort, and rose suddenly to his feet. The thing happened just as everybody had expected. There was a tearing sound as he left the varnish, but he was on his feet and had set an example that the rest felt they must follow or remain there forever.

"I went to the edge of the platform of seats and gentlemen," said I, "should begin another lecture?" "Apparently the threat and the successful escape of that one determined man inspired the others. There followed a succession of reports from the ranks of the infantrymen firing their guns one after another, and then the audience was on its feet, and moving toward the entrances. But the expression with which most of them looked back at some of the varnished chairs was something to remember."—Youth's Companion.
