WITH MISS MATTIE MOYE KING.

Entertains in Honor of Her Guests, Misses Pierce and Carter.

The home of Mr. R. W. King on Dickinson avenue took on the appearance of gayety which numerous young people's merry-makings have made characteristic when Miss Mattie Moye King was at home to a large number of friends Tuesday night in honor of her guests, Misses Sallie Peirce, of Warsaw, and Laura Carter, of Wilson. Progressive hearts dice was one of the amusements of the evening, the prize going to Miss Lillian Carr whose tally-card showed the largest number of punches. She permitted the two guests of honor to draw and Miss Carter was the final possessor of the kodak. The receiving party consisted of Miss Carter with J. Burt James, Miss Peirce with Burney S. Warren, and the hostess with Bascom L. Wilson. Early in the evening punch was served in the rear hall, Miss Lillian Carr with Mr. Joe Anderson and Miss Margaret Blow with Mr. Charles Haskett presiding at the bowl.

Among the out-of-town guests were Misses Charlotte Fennell, of Wilmington, and Mary Goodwin, of Philadelphia.

Invitations were sent to eighty-five of the young people of the town.

ROCHDALE ITEMS.

Rochdale N. C., 14.—Misses Agnes and Trilby Smith and Mark Smith attended the Lang Joyner wedding at Farmville last Wednesday evening.

Miss Virginia Mayo, of Wilson, returned home Saturday evening after having spent a week with us.

We had the heaviest rainfall of the season last Thursday evening. We must think it was near three inches. Several say it's the biggest rain they ever saw, and it's been raining right much since.

The rain kept us from having Sunday school Sunday evening. And we had another very big rain yesterday evening.

Mrs. Kincaid, of Wilson, was visiting at Cobddale last week.

Miss Ruth Cobb, of Norfolk, went to Wilson yesterday.

Miss Mamie Norman, of Greenville, was visiting at Ivy Smith's a few days ago.

Robbers, or a robber, broke in Jerry Nichols' work shop at Arthur Thursday night and armed themselves with such tools as they wanted and broke in Robert Strickland's store, which was near by, and carried off all of his potted ham and a quantity of other canned goods, crackers, soap and all the money they could find. Such robbers ought to be caught and punished.

T. E. Little has been sick for a few days, but is improving at this writing.

Miss Valeria Alston, of Henderson, came in yesterday to spend sometime with Mrs. L. W. Smith.

Our Base Ball Team.

The base ball team, which is to represent Greenville this summer, got together Monday night and elected J. C. Lanier manager and J. I. Smith captain. The boys are trying to make arrangements for games with Washington and Tarboro as soon as the weather will permit practice. The faculty of the Training school are considering the matter of allowing the team to use its grounds during the summer.

STATE NEWS.

Newy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Raleigh, June 14.—Capt. R. H. Brooks, superintendent of the Soldiers' Home, died this morning. He had been in feeble health for sometime. He had been superintendent of the home for twelve years.

Winston-Salem, June 14.—The store of Boyles Brothers, on Trade street was entered by three men last night and about $700 worth of merchandise was carried away and over $2,500 worth of merchandise was scattered over the floor, being piled up as high as two feet in some places. Entrance was effected from the rear by the use of a ladder and breaking out a glass. The burglars left a note saying they "had just left."

Asheville, June 15.—In a fit of jealousy last night at Marshal, 15 miles from here, Fred Caldwell shot and probably fatally wounded his sweetheart, Miss Myrtle Lowe, about 20 years of age. Both are well connected in Madison county.

High Point, June 14.—The little girl of Mr. and Mrs. Dinnis, residing on North Main street, this morning while out playing caught hold of a live wire. A gentleman passing saw the condition the little girl was in, and tried to pull her loose from the wire, but the current was so strong that it took another man to take her away. While the child was not burned seriously she is suffering very much from nervousness. Her condition at a late hour today is still unchanged.

The Public Library.

The public library will be in a position to begin letting out books to the people of Greenville by the end of next week. The ladies of the town under whose supervision the library was run until their entire equipment was destroyed by the fire in February have set to work with energy only renewed by this temporary reverse and have already secured quarters, which are finished them gratis in the Winslow building by the Chapter Masons of the town. Seventy even dollars has been expended in books and library furniture. The books are expected to be here by Saturday, June 18. The End of the Century and San Souci clubs at present have charge. They have invited the two other ladies' clubs, The Round Table and Civic League and the Carolina Club to co-operate with them by sending representatives upon a committee which shall have charge of the affairs of the library.

The Civic League has donated $10 recently, but as yet no arrangements have been made about sending representatives.

Mrs. W. A. Bowen, who was librarian of the old library, has charge of the new. She hopes to have the secretary of the State Library Commission to pay a visit here soon and help launch the new library.

Informal Reception.

An informal reception to the bridal party and a few relatives and friends at the home of Mr. E. B. Ficklen followed the dress rehearsal for the Ferguson Skinner wedding which took place Tuesday night. A light supper was served at 10:30 p. m. The marriage will take place in the Episcopal church at 9 o'clock tonight.

State Normal College.

We desire to call attention to the advertisement of the State Normal and Industrial college which appears in this issue. Every year shows a steady growth in this institution devoted to the higher education of the women of North Carolina.

The college last year had a total enrollment of 993 students. Ninety of the ninety-eight counties of the State had representatives in the student body. Ninety per cent of all the graduates of this institution have taught or are now teaching in the schools of North Carolina.

The dormitories are furnished by the State and board is provided at actual cost. Two hundred appointments to the dormitories, apportioned among the several counties according to school population, will be awarded to applicants about the middle of July. Students who wish to attend this institution next year should make application as early as possible, as the capacity of the dormitories is limited.

Should Receive Attention.

A matter which is causing a great deal of complaint and which should quickly receive the attention of the proper authorities, is the habit that about fifty negroes of the town have of congregating at Five Points for a noise jest during the two hours before the whistle blows for them to go to work. Mr. Vines of the Hotel Bertha thinks that the fact that he pays hotel license to the town, should insure his guests protection against this nuisance.

Mr. T. E. Jackson Dead.

Mr. T. E. Jackson, an excellent man and prosperous farmer died at his home near Winterville this morning, after an illness of nearly two weeks, with typhoid fever. Mr. Jackson was 42 years of age and leaves a wife and seven children. He is also survived by his mother and six brothers, one of the latter being Mr. J. L. Jackson of this city. The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon.

Added Undertaking.

J. H. Boyd, Jr., the new furniture man, has added undertaking in connection with his business. He has already received a stock of caskets and coffins and has placed an order for a hearse.

More Improvements.

The building formerly known as Hines' cafe has undergone a remodeling. A new front has been put in and it is now divided in two apartments, one to be used by Smith & Beaton as a brokers' office, and the other by McLemore's tailoring establishment.

It Rains and Rains.

The way stars came peeping out for a while last night, there was hope that today might be fair. But it was soon raining again and has continued all day.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

Dr. and Mrs. W. I. Fleming, of Hamilton, arrived today to visit relatives.

Miss Donie Abrams left this afternoon for Farmville, where she has accepted a position.

J. L. Jackson went to Winterville this afternoon in response to a message informing him of the death of his brother.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

And it keeps right on raining.

There will be prayer meetings in the churches tonight.

Rev. D. A. Windham, of Saratoga, will preach at Delphia Moyer Chapel Sunday morning and night. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Oh! the Rain.

This rain is some kind of a nuisance anyway it is looked at. It is ruining the crops, muddying the river so that the Pitt county disciples of Annanais will be sadly handicapped as to subject matter for fish yarns. It has made workmen let up on the various new buildings being erected in town and is trying to take some of the glamor off some of our June weddings. It has various and manifold sins to answer for, including the anxiety caused a young man in town who feared that he might have to hire a carriage to take his partner to the reception last night.

Last and in the opinion of many the gravest fault of the seven days shower is the fact that it has frustrated all efforts of real estate agents to rent the well ventilated Blow house on Third street, which they say is useful only as a good weather residence.

River Continues Rising.

Observer R. M. Hearne has received another warning from Raleigh that the water in Tar river will reach the 17 foot stage before the end of the week. For the 24 hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning the river rose a foot and a half here, and there was an inch more of rainfall in the same time. There is no telling how high the river will go before it stops rising.

The thing which the farmers fear almost as much as a continuation of these heavy showers is a spell of hot, fair weather. Such a period, they say, will work as much havoc with the cotton and corn crops as the present rain. What they think best for the weather man to send them now is a lot of clouds who are only bluffing.

Marriage This Afternoon.

Of the two marriages set for today, one has already taken place. At 2:30 this afternoon Miss Malissa Brooks was married to Mr. Henry Tyson, of Farmville, at the home of Mrs. B. G. Albritton on Third street. Rev. Mr. Bland, of Ayden, performed the ceremony.

To Late Hon. W. R. Williams.

At the recent annual meeting of the trustees of the N. C. A. & M. college for the colored race, at Greensboro, the following record was made upon the minutes:

"The attention of the board of trustees is called to the death of Hon. W. R. Williams, of Falkland, N. C. It was deemed fitting that a memorial page be set apart to the memory of the late member, and that the board go on record as testifying to the faithful, patriotic service of its former member, and as deploring the loss the college and the State have sustained in the death of a faithful member and a patriotic citizen."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15, 1910.

Here is another reminder—talk good roads.

From July 25th to 30th the city of New Bern will celebrate its two hundredth anniversary. Preparations are now on the way to make this celebration one of unusual interest.

He hung to error a long time, but a Chicago man, 82 years of age, renounced his allegiance to the Republican party to become a Democrat. It was almost a death bed repentance, but it is never too late to do good.

No better evidence of what a good hotel will do for a town is shown than in the Ricks Hotel at Rocky Mount. When the proprietor, Mr. Lee Bland, secured the building of that modern hotel a few years ago, there were those who thought it so far in advance of the needs of the town that it would be a long time before it would pay, if at all. But just the opposite of this prediction came true. The reputation of the Ricks Hotel became such that traveling men flocked there to spend Sundays, and also made it a stop over point from which to radiate Eastern North Carolina. As a result this hotel, though it has seventy-five rooms, is constantly so crowded that two other large buildings have to be used as annexes. Nothing helps a town more than a first class modern hotel.

Getting back from Wrightsville the other day, we were told that an editorial in The Reflector about the time the new Norfolk Southern schedule went into effect, had been a subject of criticism, some construing it to be a reversal of a previously expressed opinion about the schedule. We did say there are some good features about the schedules of the new night trains, and so there are, but these advantages do not compensate this section for the loss of the day train formerly operated between Washington and Raleigh. The night trains between Norfolk and Raleigh are very convenient for through travel. They also give the people of Greenville an opportunity, if they do not mind starting at 4 o'clock in the morning, to go as far north as Richmond as far south as Wilmington or as far west as Greensboro, spend several hours at either place and get back home a little past midnight. But discontinuing the day train has cut off much business that came to Greenville by rail, and has greatly delayed and disarranged mails in and out of Greenville over the Norfolk Southern road. If the Norfolk Southern officials wish to do what is best for this section, as is claimed, they will restore the day train.

"No honest man," says a writer in the Charlotte Observer, discussing tax listing, "wants his property assessed lower than the same value in property owned by his neighbor." Either this writer's confidence in humankind is something to wonder at and admire, or the honest men in the land are about as few as the righteous men in Sodom. The truth is the great majority of the folks want their property assessed as low as possible, and use their best efforts to that end. They expect the neighbor to do likewise.—Statesville Landmark.

Those wealthy persons who smuggle and attempt to smuggle articles through the port of New York are consumers who realize that they could save a great deal if they could only get rid of paying the tariff. They vote for a tariff but they try to dodge their share of the burden.—Wilmington Star.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Greenville Homes

Hard to do housework with an aching back. Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that Backache pains come from sick kidneys.

"I would save much needless woe. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys. Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.

Mrs. L. Cameron, 117 Payton ave., Kinston, N. C., says: "The great benefit I obtained from Doan's Kidney Pills justifies me in recommending them. A dull, nagging backache, accompanied by sharp twinges through my joints bothered me for a long time. I had but little energy or ambition and was caused additional annoyance by a kidney weakness. Having Doan's Kidney Pills recommended to me, I procured a box. After taking the contents, the pains in my back ceased and difficulty with the kidney secretions was corrected."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Good Way to Use Hyomei

Besides breathing through the inhaler a few times a day, many catarrh sufferers write that they find inhaling Hyomei from a bowl of steaming water each night before retiring a great aid in curing stubborn cases.

Try it; it's very simple; gives quick relief and makes you breathe easier.

Fill a bowl half full of boiling water; pour into the water a half tea-spoonful of Hyomei, cover head and bowl with a towel and breathe through nose and mouth the medicated antiseptic and healing vapor that arises.

This method relieves that stuffiness at once and makes your head feel clear. You can get a bottle of Hyomei at druggists everywhere and by Coward & Wooten for only 50c. Ask for extra bottle Hyomei Inhalant.

But bear in mind if you want a Hyomei inhaler you must buy a complete outfit which only costs $1.

But as stated before; if you already own an inhaler a bottle of Hyomei costs but 50c.

Hyomei is guaranteed by druggists everywhere and by Coward & Wooten to cure catarrh, sore throat, coughs, colds, rose fever, asthma and croup, or money back. Try it on that generous basis.

The Barber's Pole.

The barber's pole has a strange origin and one which accounts for the red and white stripes with which it is often painted. In years gone by it was the usual custom among barbers to combine surgery with their other accomplishments, and the striped pole is the modern representation of the bleeding staff carried by the old time barber in the practice of his arts. It was the custom then of village practitioners to give a staff to their patients to grasp when bled. The stripes were formed by the tape which was wound round the staff when not in use.

His Hobo Name.

"What is your name?" inquired the kind hearted woman as she handed the intellectual looking tramp a large piece of her best jelly cake.

"Me real name, ma'am," the man replied between his eager bites, "is known only to th' forgotten past, but ever since me gal turned me down an' her ole man turned me out I've went by th' name of 'Gas.'"—Chicago News.

Winter Home of Deer.
The winter home of the American red deer is very interesting. When the snow begins to fly the leader of the herd guides them to some sheltered spot where provender is plentiful. Here as the snow falls they pack it down, tramping out a considerable space, while about them the snow mounts higher and higher until they cannot get out if they would. From the main opening or "yard," as it is called, tramped out paths lead to the nearby trees and shrubbery which supply them with food. In this way they manage to pass the winter in comparative peace and safety.—St. Nicholas.

Family Relations.
"Who is that man you were just talking with?"
"That's my brother-in-law."
"He looks enough like you to be your own brother."
"He is my own brother. We are twins."
"Twins? Then why did you say he was your brother-in-law?"
"Because he is. I have three brothers—one in law, one in medicine and one in the army."

FIGURE PROBLEMS

Gems That Are to Be Found in the Old Arithmetics.

ALL OF THEM "PRACTICAL"

That Was What the Inquisitive Boy's Father Told Him, and the Lad Started Out to Verify the Statement—The "Practical" Examples He Dug Up.

Was education more practical a generation ago, or did John's father study his books more thoroughly than John does? John is a seventh grade student in the public schools. He asked his father to help him solve the following problem:

"A. asked how much money he has in the bank, replied, 'If I had $10 more I would have $1,000 more than half what I now have.' How much money had A.?"

"Such a fool problem," said the father. "Tell that teacher to ask the cashier. You have been pestering me with problems like that for a week. Suppose your teacher asked you how old you are. Would you tell her 'If I were ten times as old as I am, diminished by forty-two, I would be thirty years older than dad, and if dad were one-fourth as old as he now is he would be my age?' What would your teacher do if you answered in such a manner? In my day we had practical problems in our arithmetic."

In order to investigate his father's statement John went to the public library and asked for an old arithmetic. The librarian gave him Richard's Natural Arithmetic. He turned to the page marked "Practical Exercises" and read:

"A. puts his whole flock of sheep into three pastures. Half go into one pasture, one-third into another and thirty-two into a third. How many in the flock?"

"That's queer," said John. "Practical exercises too. Here is a man who wants to find how many sheep he has. He counts them so he will know when he has half of them. This half he puts into a pasture. Then he counts out a third and puts it in another pen. Next he counts what's left and finds he has thirty-two. After a little figuring he finds how many in the whole flock. Very practical. I guess dad didn't study that book."

The next book he examined was Milne's Inductive Arithmetic, edition of 1879. In miscellaneous examples he found the following:

"Two ladders will together just reach the top of a building seventy-five feet high. If the shorter ladder is two-thirds the length of the other, what is the length of each?"

"Why didn't he measure each ladder separately?" John asked himself. "That problem is not practical. I guess dad is older than I thought. I want an older book."

The text written in 1868 was handed to him. The book was evidently influenced by the civil war, for it was filled with problems dealing with battering down fortifications and the sustenance of soldiers. One problem was:

"If twelve pieces of cannon (eighteen pounders) can batter down a fortress in three hours, how long will it take for nineteen twenty-four pounders to batter down the same fortress?"

"That's fine for a general," John reflected. "but dad says that I am going to be a captain of industry."

Another arithmetic of the same date had the famous fish problem with which John's teacher had troubled him for six weeks before he himself finally explained it to the class. The fish problem is:

"The head of a fish is ten inches long. Its tail is as long as its head and one-half the body. The body is as long as the head and tail both. How long is the fish?"

Very handy problem for a butcher. John turned to the Common School Arithmetic, edition of 1853. "Here I'm sure to find something good," he reflected and read:

"A hare starts up twelve rods before a hound, but she is not perceived by him till she has been up one and one-fourth minutes. She runs at the rate of thirty-six rods a minute, and the hound runs at the rate of forty rods a minute. How long will the race last, and what will be the distance the hound runs?"

"What difference does it make how far the hound runs?" John asked as he turned to the Scholar's Arithmetic, edition of 1807. The present high cost of living made the first problem impractical for present day purposes, John concluded. The problem was as follows:

"If I give eighty bushels of potatoes at 21 cents a bushel and 240 pounds of flax at 15 cents a pound for sixty-four bushels of salt, what is the salt worth a bushel?"

Another problem was:
"A good man driving his guest to market was met by another, who said, 'Good morning, master, with your 100 geese.' Says he in reply, 'I have not 100 geese, but if I had half as many as I now have and two and one-half geese besides the number I now have already I should have 100.' How many geese had the man?"

"How long would you permit a man to live if he made such an answer to you?"
"Phew!" John sighed as he wiped his forehead and handed the book back to the librarian. "Dad must have skipped these practical problems."—Kansas City Star.

We are never so ridiculous by the qualities we have as by those we affect to have.—Rochefortcauld.

PAWNSHOP LINGO.

A Business Chat Between a Customer and His Uncle.

Maybe you never had occasion to go to a pawnshop. Probably it's just as well. If you ever have gone there, though, you may have learned that the pawnshop has a lingo of its own.

Here is a conversation overheard—oh, a man told me about it—in a place on Ontario street.

A young man with a worldly wise expression had just walked in, unhooked a large gold watch from a chain and handed it to the man across the counter for inspection.

"How many do I cop on the chimer?" he inquired nonchalantly.

"Cough your figure," said the duck behind the counter.

"Would four sawbucks find you in the front parlor?"

"Not so, my cheeld. I c'd get a dray load of 'em for forty."

"Aw, well, pass me over sixty Mexicans, then."

"Nope. Come again. Thirty's too strong too."

"Say, bo, where do you think I gets this ticker—by findin' six out o' twelve faces in the picture?" inquired the young man with a disgusted leer.

"Anyhow, twenty-five's the rock figure. That goes. Nothin' less."

"Twenty-five on a gilt dial," murmured the money lender as he wrote out the ticket and the transaction was ended.

The next customer was a red haired youth with a forehead about one and one-eighth inch high and carrying a suit of clothes under his arm.

"How often for me happy togs?" he asked, spreading them out on the counter.

"Up to you."

"Bout four, then. They're gay ones."

"Spilt," said the other laconically. "Better rake it down too. Can't play the high one."

"What—on'y a double on them giddy tags?" in a tone of injury.

"Two's the limit."

"You win." And, taking the two dollar bill and his ticket, he went his way.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FAULTS OF GOLFERS.

To Cure Them the Play of Experts Should Be Studied.

The common faults of the golfer may be named in the following order of importance: Swinging too quickly, taking the eye off the ball, holding the left hand under the club, keeping the hands too near the body and standing too near the ball.

The easiest, says Outing—indeed, the only satisfactory—way of curing all these faults is to go out and watch some first class experts play. If you cannot find any expert of the first class go for the best available.

This, of course, is rudimentary advice and certainly not original. The youngest caddy at St. Andrews has learned to request his master to keep his eye on the ball and not to press.

The trouble is that no amount of book teaching will make you follow this advice.

There is only one way to hit a golf ball. You must watch a good player and imitate what he does. Most beginners make the serious mistake of taking lessons from professionals who watch their pupils play and try to correct them. The pupil would get twice as much good out of the lesson if he would watch the professional play and think as little as possible about himself.

The human being is naturally imitative. If you sit and watch a good tennis match between first class players you will unconsciously finish your stroke better the next time you take up a racket. With golf this is particularly true, because nothing is so important as the rhythmical timing of the stroke which distinguishes a good player from bad.

Made a Social Outcast.

In court circles in England it is a serious matter to incur royal displeasure. The man or woman who does so intentionally ceases to be recognized by his majesty, which means social extinction. The offender's name is struck out of the visiting list of every person who is anybody in society, and should the offender be a man he is politely informed that his resignation from his club or clubs would not be out of place. No man or woman of social repute will in future know him, and if he be in the army or navy he has no option but to resign, for he will find himself cut dead by every one of his brother officers.—London M. A. P.

His Own Hands.

A fashionable painter, noted for his prolific output, was discussing at a studio tea in New York a recent scandal in the picture trade.

"Look here, old man," said a noted etcher. "do you paint all your own pictures?"

"I do," the other answered botly, "and with my own hands too."

"And what do you pay your hands?" the etcher inquired. "I'm thinking of starting an art factory myself."

EASY TO FLOAT.

Simple Rules That Will Aid Those Who Want to Learn.

"It is inexcusable for cramps to cause the death of a good swimmer," remarked an old and enthusiastic swimmer.

"Any normal person can float in the water," he said. "A good swimmer can learn more easily than others, and he should learn it. There may be human bodies that will be entirely submerged if unsupported, but I doubt it, and I know that such bodies are rare."

"Probably the bodies of drowned people sink because they have taken in large quantities of water. Whether this is or is not the explanation is not important."

"With the air expelled as much as possible by ordinary breathing and with no swimming movement some part of the head will remain above the water. If the experiment is to be prolonged it is more agreeable to throw the head back and have the nose above the water, but that is a detail."

"When you are in the water you should practice floating. It is easier to float in deep than in shallow water, but until you have learned to swim prudence demands that you remain where you can stand with your head above water. Walk out until the surface is near your shoulders. You can float in a less depth, but it is more difficult. Allow yourself to fall backward. Make no effort to prevent sinking. Let your nose point to the zenith. Your head may go under water, but it will rise again. You can take my word for it, knowing that if you fall you can stand on your feet."

"If you have followed instructions you should float the first time. The important thing to remember first, last and all the time is: Hold your breath all the time unless you know you will take in air and not water."

"You who have not learned to float may be thrown into the water. You may have a few hours or a few seconds of warning. Use those few or many seconds to get control of yourself, and there are two things you should bring to the front in your thoughts. Refrain from breathing except when you know you will take in air and not water, and if a swimmer attempts to rescue you make no effort to grasp him except when and as he requests."

"If he is a wise and a good swimmer he will not allow you to do this, as an effort to grasp him will add to his labors, and he will need all his strength."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ashes From the Old Hearth.

A quaint Swedish legend concerning a cure for homesickness appears in Selma Lagerlof's book "The Girl From the Marsh Croft," translated by Veima Swanston Howard. The tradition is to the effect that if a person suffering from nostalgia took some ashes from the hearth in his or her old home and strewed them on the fire in the strange place he or she would be rid of the homesickness—an easy remedy apparently, but it had two serious drawbacks. The first was that after using the remedy in the new home one would never be content in any other place. If one were to move from the home-stead to which one had borne the ashes one would always long to get back there again just as much as one had longed to get away from there. And the second drawback was that one couldn't carry ashes along every time one moved to a new place, because the remedy could be used once only. After that it lost its charm and had no effect. So that, taken all in all, it was a rather dangerous experiment to make.

Housekeeper's Reason.

"What is your chief objection to moving pictures?"

"The dust that has accumulated behind them."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Luminous Crab.

Indian journals tell of a luminous crab captured by a dredge of the Zoological society of Calcutta in the Indian ocean about a mile off the coast and forty-five fathoms deep. It is nearly two feet in diameter, and its longest claws are about a yard in length. It has projecting eyes, like those of a lobster, and is very voracious. It was put in a tank of sea water, and in two hours it devoured about fifty other crustaceans and fishes. When darkness came it proved phosphorescent, emitting peculiar white rays and illuminating the whole tank.

TOOK HIM AT HIS WORD.

Don Platt's Client Had a Stunted Sense of Humor.

A quaint story about Don Platt is told in the "Recollections of a Varied Life," by George Cary Eggleston. The story is given in Mr. Platt's own words:

"When I was a young man trying to get into a law practice in Ohio and eager to advertise myself by appearing in court a fellow was indicted for arson. He came to me, explaining that he had no money with which to pay a lawyer, but that he thought I might, like to appear in a case so important and that if I would do the best I could for him he stood ready to do anything for me that he could by way of recompense. I took the case, of course. It was a complex one, and it offered opportunities for browbeating and 'bailing up' witnesses—a process that specially impresses the public with the sagacity of a lawyer who does it successfully. Then, if by any chance I should succeed in acquitting my client, my place at the bar would be assured as that of a sharp young fellow who had beaten the prosecuting attorney himself."

"But in telling my client I would take his case the demon of humor betrayed me. Just across the street from my lodging was a negro church, and there was a 'revival' going on at the time. They 'revived' till 2 o'clock or later every night with shoutings that interfered with my sleep. With playful impulse I said to the accused man:

"You seem to be an expert in the arts of arson. If you'll burn that negro church I'll feel that you have paid me full price for my service in defending you."

"I defended him, and as the witnesses against him were all of shady character I succeeded in securing his acquittal. About 4 o'clock the next morning a fire broke out under all four corners of that negro church, and before the local fire department got a quart of water into action it was a heap of smoldering ashes, hymn books and all. A week or so later I received a letter from my ex-client. He wrote from St. Louis, 'on his way west,' he said. He expressed the hope that I was 'satisfied with results' and begged me to believe that he was 'a man of honor, who never failed to repay an obligation or reward a service.'"

FIRST PICTURE BOOK.

The Daring Idea That Was Carried Out by Johann Comenius.

Some 300 years ago a German savant had a wonderful vision. At that time children were taught to read by force of arms, so to speak, through hardships and with bitter toll on the part of teacher and of child. It seems curious that the first real step toward lightening the labor of children as they climb the ladder of learning was the product of the imagination not of some fond mother or gentlewoman teacher, but of a bewigged and bedled university doctor.

It was Johann Comenius, however, who first conceived the daring idea that children could be taught by the aid of the memory and the imagination working together, "by means," as he quaintly expressed it, "of sensuous impressions conveyed to the eye, so that visual objects may be made the medium of expressing moral lessons to the young mind and of impressing those lessons upon the memory." In other words, the good herr doctor had the bright idea that picture books could be useful to children. Comenius made his first picture book and called it the "Orbis Pictus." It contains rude woodcuts representing objects in the natural world, as trees and animals, with little lessons about the pictures. It is a quaint volume and one that would cause the average modern child not a little astonishment were it placed before him.

As truly, however, as that term may be applied to any other book that has since been written, the "Orbis Pictus" was an epoch making book. It is the precursor of all children's picture books, and modern childhood has great cause to bless the name of Comenius.

Not the Same Spelling.

A stout man had recourse to a doctor to see whether something could not be done to reduce his size. "It's a disgrace, doctor!" he cried. "Just look at this bay window of mine! Now, what would you advise?"

"Well," replied the physician, eying his waist line, "all I can suggest is to diet."

"All right, doctor, I'm willing. What color would you suggest?"—St. Louis Republic.
