IMPORTANCE OF COWPEAS.

A Crop Every Farmer Should Plant Liberally.

Again we desire to remind farmers of the importance of planting every available cultivated acre to cowpeas.

They are valuable for the following reasons:

They are a fairly good human food.

If turned under, the vines add considerable fertility to the land.

The presence of decaying roots, stubble and vines in the soil helps to convert mineral substances into plant food.

If picked, the peas alone are worth from eight to twelve dollars per acre.

The vines that grow on an acre are worth from six to ten dollars for stock food.

Through their roots peas put into the soil from four to six dollars worth of nitrogen per acre. Most of our unprofitable soils are lacking in this substance.

The vines, roots and stubble help to make the soil loose and easily cultivated.

They also absorb and retain moisture that will aid the next crop to go through a drought easily.

The roots of peavines are good subsoilers. They go to considerable depth and open up the earth so that air and water can make a deeper soil.

Peas get their nitrogen from air, free of cost to the farmer, so that very little nitrogen is needed in their fertilizers except for very poor soils.

Peas feed strongly upon the supply of potash and phosphoric acid, therefore these substances should be supplied to them. Many crops fail for the lack of acid and potash.

The price of peas is high, but this does not keep the wise farmer from planting them. He is thinking of the ten dollars in value he is to receive later for every dollar invested in them now.

Let no farmer neglect to plant abundantly of this important crop. Plant some for hay; plant some on poor land for turning under; plant some for grazing by horses, cows, hogs and other farm stock; and by all means plant and cultivate a few acres from which to obtain seed peas for next year's planting. Then you will rejoice if the price is high.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The first work of the meeting was the election of a secretary and treasurer, J. B. James being unanimously chosen for that position.

It was decided to start an active good roads campaign and the purchase of two thousand buttons containing a good roads slogan was authorized.

The directors also decided to have a meeting of the chamber of commerce on the night of July 4th, and have planned to give all who attend that meeting something interesting.

The secretary was instructed to make canvass of the town to secure members.

Another important matter discussed was the loss to the business of Greenville arising from the Norfolk Southern railroad taking off the morning train between Washington and Raleigh. The president and secretary were instructed to call the attention of the railroad officials to this, and to ask that the loss be remedied by placing a passenger coach on the west-bound and eastbound freight trains between Washington and Raleigh.

Gone West Again.

Mr. T. F. Christman, who has several times crossed the continent between Greenville and California, bled himself away this morning for the far West again. Like as on his former trips, he will stay out there until that Pitt county home sick takes hold of him, and some fine day he will come walking up from the depot again almost without warning. Here's hoping it will not be long before he comes back home. He is a prince of good fellows, and may good luck keep on his trail.

Congressional Convention.

The Democratic congressional convention of the first congressional district of North Carolina, is hereby called to meet in Edenton, N. Attend Your Township Primary.

Don't think that your township primary next Saturday to select delegates to the State, congressional and judicial conventions, is a matter of little or no importance. It is of enough importance to demand your presence.

Amuzu Coming Down Town.

One store in the Proctor building, third door from corner, is being fitted up by F. W. Mitchell for the Amuzu theatre, and we will soon have a moving picture show down town and more convenient for people to get to.

Singing Darkies.

Several darkies at work cleaning the brick on the burned Masonic temple site, make the surroundings melodious with their singing. There are some fine voices among them and they make good music.

BASE BALL.

Greenville and Washington to Cross Bats

Tomorrow afternoon for the first time since 1905, Greenville will meet her old rival, Washington, in a struggle for baseball supremacy. The local team by hard practice has rounded in fine form, and is ready to play ball of the "big league" variety. While Washington as yet is an unknown quantity, she will doubtless send a strong aggregation to battle for the orange and black.

Below is Greenville's line up as it will appear in the game.

There is very considerable expense connected with the inauguration of the baseball season here, and as the young men who compose the team are giving their services freely, certainly those who attend and enjoy the games ought to be willing to meet their expenses.

There is no enclosed ground and so the team will have to trust to the honor of those who attend to voluntarily pay the admission fee. This is very small, -25c for men, 10c for boys, ladies free—and surely no one who attends will refuse to pay.

FINE FISHING AT MOREHEAD.

Season There a Most Delightful One—Atlantic Hotel.

Morehead City, June 20.—On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Taylor and party had splendid luck fishing. They spent most of the day, both fishing in the sound and trowing, and brought into the hotel two hundred fish, blue, trout and mackerel.

M. M. Marks and party from New Bern brought in a catch of eighty-five trout and blue fish on Monday morning. The party had only been out about two hours.

Mrs. E. T. Lamb, Mrs. Lamb, Miss Mattie Lamb, Edwin Lamb and Mr. Mays spent the week end at the Atlantic. President Lamb and party arrived Friday in his private car.

Mrs. F. R. Hyman, of New Bern, expects to be a guest of the Atlantic for a month or so.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Jacques and Miss Constance Jacques, of Macon, Ga., arrived today to spend the summer at the hotel.

Mrs. Stedman Thompson and son, of Raleigh, will spend a part of the summer also as a guest of the Atlantic.

Among the recent arrivals are Walter Grimes, Raleigh; Col. and Mrs. J. E. Robinson, Miss Rebecca Humphrey, R. W. Powell, Dewey Slocumb, Goldsboro; Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Dickerson, Kinston; Dr. R. L. Carr, Greenville; D. M. Miller, West Virginia; L. I. Moore, New Bern; Mrs. John Wiley, from Durham, will arrive tonight with her two children and nurse.

W. C. Young, of Norfolk, led a beautiful German on Saturday night.

Looked like rain early this morning, but the clouds passed without any. Yet there is a sultriness in the temperature.

HANRAHAN ITEMS.

Hanrahan, June 20.—Indeed it was a watery deck that we stood on last week. The rains poured down, yet we did not go, because there was nowhere else that we could hear of that it was not doing the same way, and in Bolivia it was even much worse to the extent of a cloud burst. So there is something else for us to do that we may yet be a hero. We stood calm and tried to be serene because there was no other alternative. We have even thought that that other boy stood amidst the fire because he feared to disobey the orders of a stern father more than he dreaded the flames that rolled o'er him, which could last but a few moments. I am glad that even children are being taught, and that most of them are allowed to think, "Children obey your parents in the Lord for this is right," "Fathers provoke not your children to wrath" or command them to do a foolish thing, for this is sin.

Miss Mamie Dawson, of Grifton, is the owner of a chicken that has three well developed legs. All of the legs point downward. We suppose that the mother of that chicken must have been a comet gazer, and as 't was that the tail of the comet pointed downward, so this extra protrusion of the chicken should point downward.

On reaching home Saturday night about 9 o'clock the moon was shining in resplendent beauty because the clouds had cleared away, and all nature seemed to be rejoicing, and our soul was lifted up in thanksgiving. Yes we felt good, and as we alighted at the gate, behold a stately lady stood there to meet, yes, and to greet us. We embraced her, yes and many times we kissed her. For we had not seen her before since she was a little tot, so if you had supposed that it was my wife you see that it was not. Well, she was a school teacher just on her way home from the training school, and decided to spend a few days with me and mine before she went home. She spoke in loud praise of the training school.

All the teachers that the above might describe, if they were in the dormitory or at their board-

THE FATS AND THE THINS.

Brilliant Game of Ball for Independence Day.

On the next anniversary of our national independence, Monday, July 4th, Greenville is to have a game of base ball that is the real article. It will be purely a local affair between the fats and the thins of the town, and the proceeds of the game, which should be large in contemplation of the immense amount of fun, will be divided between the Greenville public library and the Greenville baseball team.

Daily practices among the fats and the thins have already begun with a view of each side selecting its line-up for the contest. There are many on both sides to select from, and those fortunate enough to get a call "on deck" must win that honor by their skill with the hickory, twirling the sphere, or dexterous sprinting. Here are the candidates for honors:

Thins—Sam White, Stuart Carr, E. H. Taft, Tom Duke, Fred Forbes, Tom Hooker, Kid Skinner, Claude Tunstall, Dolly Overton, James Little, R. H. Wright, T. A. Person, W. A. B. X. Y. Z. Hearne, E. B. TUESDAY, JUNE 21, 1910.

Good roads are the thing that must come.

On with the street work, then out in the country for good roads.

Join hands with the chamber of commerce and do something for Greenville.

If North Carolina does not get a square deal it will not be the fault of our senators and congressmen.

Yes, it is dull, but you do not help things by complaining about it. A better plan is do some hustling and advertise.

T. Roosevelt has expressed the desire to drop out of public sight for the time being. Didn't know he would ever grow tired of the strenuous life.

When the secretary of the chamber of commerce calls on you have your name enrolled as a member and get in line to work for the progress of Greenville and Pitt county.

Why don't you talk more politics? a would-be candidate wants to know. Hang politics, man, we want good roads. And the man who wants to go to the legislature had better let it be known where he stands on this question.

In view of their faithful services, and both being without opposition, it will be the graceful thing if the Pitt county convention that soon meets to send delegates to the State, congressional and judicial conventions, should endorse Hon. John H. Small for congress and Hon. Charles L. Abernethy for solicitor. No district has a better congressman than Mr. Small, and none is more awake to the interest of his people. And Mr. Abernethy has no superior as a solicitor. As to our own candidate for judge, Hon. Harry W. Whedbee, it need not be said that he will have the unanimous endorsement of the county and he will go to the convention with Pitt's solid vote.

One thing good can be said for Greenville that deserves notice and that is we have such a decent lot of men and boys that a near-beer saloon can't prosper here. Of course there is some of the vile stuff sold, but it is handled as a side line, and not through an imitation saloon, the one that was here having moved away for the lack of patronage. Raise the license tax and run it all out so that we will continue to have a good moral tone. We wish we could say that blind tigering couldn't prosper here also; but the old soaks will have it you know. They will die a natural (?) death though after a while and then we will be the better for prohibition. Near-beer and blind tigers are two things we will rejoice in seeing pass away.

Listen, gentlemen to this answer by Parson Whichard, of the Greenville Reflector, to a request for a description of Editor Cowan, of the Wilmington Dispatch: "He might easily be taken for our twin brother. He is just a little bit larger in size and almost as good looking, but we outshined him on the hair proposition, his top knot only reaching a sandy hue. If so near like us, you know he is bound to be the real article." If Cowan can't recover under the libel law for that there is no justice in the courts.—Salisbury Post.

It would be a matter of the deepest regret to have the serenity and fraternal good feeling existing between the members of the Press Association disturbed, but if Bro. Cowan don't institute that libel suit he will have done himself a great injustice, and charges ought to be preferred against him at the next meeting.—Concord Tribune.

Say, you fellows stop that racket. You are both jealous because you haven't got brilliant top knots like Cowan's and ours. And you can't make any breach between us by your libel talk. At any rate you might wait for Cowan to "acknowledge the compliment." He is of age, let him speak for himself.

Imperfect Digestion Causes Bad Complexion and Dull Eyes.

The color of your cheeks won't fade, the brightness in your eye won't vanish, if you keep your stomach in good condition.

This was the advice of a prominent physician to a woman's club in Boston and it is good advice.

Belching of gas, heaviness, sour taste in mouth, dizziness, biliousness and nausea occur simply because the stomach is not properly digesting the food.

The blood needs nourishment to carry vigor, vim and vitality to every part of the body and when food ferments in the stomach enough nourishment is not supplied.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets give instant relief to upset stomachs, but they do more; they put strength into the stomach and build it up so that it can easily digest a hearty meal without giving its owner hours of misery.

Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere and by Coward & Wooten at 50c a large box. It is guaranteed to cure indigestion or any stomach distress or money back.

A Luminous Crab.
Indian journals tell of a luminous crab captured by a dredge of the Zoological society of Calcutta in the Indian ocean about a mile off the coast and forty-five fathoms deep. It is nearly two feet in diameter, and its longest claws are about a yard in length. It has projecting eyes, like those of a lobster, and is very voracious. It was put in a tank of sea water, and in two hours it devoured about fifty other crustaceans and fishes. When darkness came, it proved phosphorescent, emitting peculiar white rays and illuminating the whole tank.

European Tattooers.
Tattooing is not by any means confined to savage peoples. There are races in Europe which make it a regular practice, and men, women and children bear on their bodies ornaments that are as ornate and queer, although not as extensive, as are markings on the bodies of the south sea savages. These European tattooers are among the Albanians and Bosnians, who live in the famous Balkan

POINTERS ON COMETS

Interesting Facts That Were Unearthed by Bill Nye.

HIS STUDY OF SKY SCIENCE.

The Humorist's Researches Shed a Flood of Brilliant Light Upon the Peculiar Traits of the "Astronomical Parodies on the Planets."

The famous American humorist, Bill Nye, wrote the following article on the traits of comets for the San Francisco Argonaut, in which it was published a number of years ago:

The comet is a kind of astronomical parody on the planet. Comets look some like planets, but they are thinner and do not hurt so hard when they hit anybody as a planet does. The comet was so called because it had hair on it, I believe, but of late years the baldheaded comet is giving just as good satisfaction everywhere.

The characteristic features of the comet are a nucleus, a nebulous light or coma and usually a luminous train or tail worn high. Sometimes several tails are observed on one comet, but this occurs only in flush times.

When I was young I used to think I would like to be a comet in the sky, up above the world so high, with nothing to do but loaf around and play with the little new kid planets and have a good time, but now I can see where I was wrong. Comets also have their troubles, their perihelions, their hyperbolas and their parabolas. A little over 300 years ago Tycho Brahe discovered that comets were extraneous to our atmosphere, and since then times have improved. I can see that trade is steadier and potatoes run less to tops than they did before.

Soon after that they discovered that comets all had more or less periodicity. Nobody knows how they get it. All the astronomers had been watching them day and night and didn't know when they were exposed, but there was no time to talk and argue over the question. There were 200 or 300 comets all down with it at once. It was an exciting time.

Comets sometimes live to a great age. This shows that the night air is not so injurious to the health as many people would have us believe. The great comet of 1680 is supposed to have been the one that was noticed about the time of Caesar's death, 44 B. C., and still when it appeared in Newton's time, 1,700 years after its first grand farewell tour, like said that it was very well preserved indeed and seemed to have retained all its faculties in good shape.

A late writer on astronomy said that the substance of the nebulousity and the tail is of almost inconceivable density. He said this, and then death came to his relief.

Another writer says of the comet and its tail that "the curvature of the latter and the acceleration of the periodic time in the case of Encke's comet indicate their being affected by a resisting medium which has never been observed to have the slightest influence on the planetary periods."

I do not fully agree with the eminent authority, though he may be right. Much fear has been the result of the comet's appearance ever since the world began, and it is as good a thing to worry about as anything I know of. If we could get close to a comet without frightening it away we would find that we could walk through it anywhere as we could through the glare of a torchlight procession. We should so live that we will not be ashamed to look a comet in the eye, however. Let us pay up our newspaper subscription and lead such lives that when the comet strikes we will be ready.

Some worry a good deal about the chances for a big comet to plow into the sun, some dark, rainy night and thus bust up the whole universe. I wish that was all I had to worry about—the comet's crashing into the sun and knocking its daylight out.

There is much in the great field of astronomy that is discouraging to the savant who hasn't the time or means to rummage through the heavens. At times I am almost hopeless and feel like saying to the great, yearful, hungry world:

"Gripe on forever. Do not ask me for another scientific fact. Find it out yourself. Hunt up your own new laid planets and let me have a rest. Never ask me again to sit up all night and take care of the newborn world while you lie in bed and rock not."

Pocketed the Silver.
There is an amusing anecdote regarding Lord Crew how on one occasion at a charitable entertainment he leaned against a corridor wall and went fast asleep with his hat in his hand. Some young fellows started dropping half crowns and coppers into the hat from a balcony above, and the chink of the coins woke him up, when he promptly pocketed all the silver and pelted his impromptu benefactors with the pence.—London M. A. P.

A Wink in the Dark.
There was to be an attack by night. The darkness was impenetrable. A sergeant addressed his section as follows: "Now, pay attention, No. 2 attention. We are going to do a night attack. There'll be no talking or smoking. If there are any orders to be passed down I will just tip you the wink."

It is a great misfortune not to have mind enough to speak well or judgment enough to be silent.

WHEN JENNY LIND SANG.

A Nightingale That Charmed Hearts as Well as Ears.

"She would trip on and off," he says, "as if in an ecstasy of delight at the opportunity of singing, bowing and smiling to her audience and giving every one present a flattering sense of contributing in a measure toward the success of the evening. She had three or four songs which showed the wonderful compass and power of her voice, and one or more of these were called for at every concert—a Swedish echo song in which she would echo her own voice by a sort of ventriloquism that was quite marvelous and another in which she made a remarkable diminuendo, reaching a pianissimo as faint as a sigh, but with a carrying power that made it distinctly audible at the most extreme limits of Castle Garden or Tripler hall, where the later concerts were given.

"This was a fine building situated at Broadway and Bond street and just finished in time for the second series of concerts. The hall had fine acoustic advantages, and it was a great loss to the city when it was destroyed by fire a few years later. The Winter Garden was afterward built on the same site.

"One of the most haunting things to me was her singing of Taubert's bird song, 'I Know Not Why I Am Singing.' Her shake was the finest I ever heard, so close and even as to be altogether perfect. Her voice, which she said herself was naturally stiff and stubborn, she had educated and practiced into such a degree of perfection that her roulades and cadenzas were unparalleled in their execution.

"In her sacred songs she rose to the sublime, and on one occasion as she finished singing the aria 'I Know That My Redeemer Liveth' I recollect that Daniel Webster, who was seated in the center of the balcony, rose from his seat and made her a profound bow. Her rapt expression of face and never ending volume of voice made her appear like some inspired seraph delivering a divine message.

"She was indebted to Sir George Smart, with whom she had studied in England, for all the traditional readings of oratorio parts, he being at that time the greatest living authority in this school of music, but her vocal training was done under Manuel Garcia in Paris."

The Tourist in Japan.

All Japanese inns of course charge a great deal more to the globe trotting European tourist who does not speak the language since he or she is not content to travel strictly a la Japanese and worries the entire household with a variety of strange demands—extra quilts to sleep on (because they find the floor hard), an improvised pillow, special food (the ordinary guest takes what is given him and at the hour that the host pleases and is thankful), knives, forks and spoons (because he has neglected to practice eating his food with chopsticks), a bath with fresh water in it (because he will not follow the custom of entering the bath as soon as he arrives, thus getting the opportunity of first bath and the water while it is fresh) and half a dozen other requirements.—Exchange.

New York's Obelisk.

The obelisk in Central park, New York city, is a granite monolith presented to the city, through the department of state, by the late Ismail Pasha, khedive of Egypt, in 1877. It was brought to this country by Lieutenant Commander Gorringe, U. S. N., and placed in position Jan. 22, 1881, the entire expense of removal and erection ($103,732) having been borne by the late William H. Vanderbilt. Its height from apex to base is 69 feet 2 inches and its weight about 220 tons, or 440,000 pounds. It is sixth in size of the famous monoliths of Egypt and is one of two obelisks erected at Heliopolis by Thothmes III, (1600 B. C.) and removed to Alexandria by Augustus about 23 B. C., or, as some authorities say, by Rameses II.

Who Told the Fib?

The bell rang, and the occupier of the apartment started to the window to see who the visitor might be. To his annoyance he saw a persistent creditor who had evidently called again for payment of his long outstanding account. The impecunious one instantly called to his youthful son and said:

"Tommy, go to the door at once. I don't want to see that man. Tell him I'm not at home."

"Oh, papa, I thought you never talk fibs!" remarked Tommy.

"I don't, my boy. It's you that's going to tell one. Now run off."—Exchange.

TOOK HIM AT HIS WORD.

Don Platt's Client Had a Stunted Sense of Humor.

A quaint story about Don Platt is told in the "Recollections of a Varied Life," by George Cary Eggleston. The story is given in Mr. Platt's own words:

"When I was a young man trying to get into a law practice in Ohio and eager to advertise myself by appearing in court a fellow was indicted for arson. He came to me, explaining that he had no money with which to pay a lawyer, but that he thought I might like to appear in a case so important and that if I would do the best I could for him he stood ready to do anything for me that he could by way of recompense. I took the case, of course. It was a complex one, and it offered opportunities for browbeating and 'balling up' witnesses—a process that specially impresses the public with the sagacity of a lawyer who does it successfully. Then, if by any chance I should succeed in acquitting my client, my place at the bar would be assured as that of a sharp young fellow who had beaten the prosecuting attorney himself."

"But in telling my client I would take his case the demon of humor betrayed me. Just across the street from my lodging was a negro church, and there was a 'revival' going on at the time. They 'revived' till 2 o'clock or later every night with shoutings that interfered with my sleep. With playful impulse I said to the accused man: 'You seem to be an expert in the arts of arson. If you'll burn that negro church I'll feel that you have paid me full price for my service in defending you.'

"I defended him, and as the witnesses against him were all of shady character I succeeded in securing his acquittal. About 4 o'clock the next morning a fire broke out under all four corners of that negro church, and before the local fire department got a quart of water into action it was a heap of smoldering ashes, hymn books and all. A week or so later I received a letter from my ex-client. He wrote from St. Louis, 'on his way west,' he said. He expressed the hope that I was 'satisfied with results' and begged me to believe that he was 'a man of honor, who never failed to repay an obligation or reward a service.'"

FIRST PICTURE BOOK.

The Daring Idea That Was Carried Out by Johann Comenius.

Some 300 years ago a German savant had a wonderful vision. At that time children were taught to read by force of arms, so to speak, through hardships and with bitter toll on the part of teacher and of child. It seems curious that the first real step toward lightening the labor of children as they climb the ladder of learning was the product of the imagination not of some fond mother or gentlewoman teacher, but of a bewigged and betitled university doctor.

It was Johann Comenius, however, who first conceived the daring idea that children could be taught by the aid of the memory and the imagination working together, "by means," as he quaintly expressed it, "of sensuous impressions conveyed to the eye, so that visual objects may be made the medium of expressing moral lessons to the young mind and of impressing those lessons upon the memory." In other words, the good herr doctor had the bright idea that picture books could be useful to children. Comenius made his first picture book and called it the "Orbis Pictus." It contains rude woodcuts representing objects in the natural world, as trees and animals, with little lessons about the pictures. It is a quaint volume and one that would cause the average modern child not a little astonishment were it placed before him.

As truly, however, as that term may be applied to any other book that has since been written, the "Orbis Pictus" was an epoch making book. It is the precursor of all children's picture books, and modern childhood has great cause to bless the name of Comenius.

Not the Same Spelling.

A stout man had recourse to a doctor to see whether something could not be done to reduce his size. "It's a disgrace, doctor!" he cried. "Just look at this bay window of mine! Now, what would you advise?"

"Well," replied the physician, eying his waist line, "all I can suggest is to diet."

"All right, doctor, I'm willing. What color would you suggest?"—St. Louis Republic.

A Pious Wish.

It was in a city hospital that a man refused to undergo an operation for appendicitis until his minister could be present.

"Because I want to be opened with prayer," was the reply.—New York Tribune.

Cause and Effect.

"You're right. I have a friend who contracted a severe case of hay fever immediately after he had married a grass widow."—Memphis Appeal.

A Dialectic.

"My wife is foreign born. She always talks broken English when she is angry with me."

"Gives you a dialectic, so to speak."—Washington Herald.

Too Well Known.
Titus Titmouse was infuriated, but the editor of the Wind shut him up in two seconds.
"Is this the newspaper office?" inquired Mr. Titmouse.
"It is," responded the man at the desk.
"Didn't this paper say I was a liar?" and he began prancing.
"It did not."
"Didn't it say I was a scoundrel?"
"It did not."
"Well, some paper said it."
"Possibly it was our contemporary down the street," suggested the editor as he picked up a paper-weight. "This paper never prints stale news."

So They Would.
Mrs. Newwed went into a butcher's shop to get a joint of beef. The butcher was a little old man, inclined to be cranky. He began to cut the meat. She thought he was sawing off too much bone.
"That joint will have too much bone in it, I fear," she said.
The butcher stopped and sighed.
"Madam," he said, "that's the cow's fault. These cows would be awful in shape if they had to run around without bones."
Mrs. Newwed said no more.—London Scraps.

A FEAT OF HORSEMANSHIP.

Threading a Needle While Riding at Full Gallop.

Some amazing feats of horsemanship have been performed by cowboys and Indians, not to speak of those astonishingly expert Cossacks, but it is doubtful if these have ever exceeded the feat of a kit irregular cavalryman.

Cossacks have been seen to snatch a baby from its mother's arms at full gallop, toss it into the air, catch it and repeat the performance. Indian riders in the far west have sprung from their horses' backs while the animals were moving at full gallop, picked up arrows and remounted instantly in a standing posture. But who ever heard of a Cossack, an Indian or a cowboy threading a needle while at full gallop?

The horsemen of the Rif coast use small mounts, slight, but quick and wiry, of thoroughbred Arabian barb type. Those of the irregular cavalry perform all manner of charges and evolutions. They will throw their swords and matchlocks into the air, catching them by the hilts and stocks. On one occasion, by way of offering some new and unusual entertainment to a French officer visiting that region, it was announced that one rider would attempt the needle threading feat.

A needle and a piece of thread possibly two or three feet in length were produced. They were both handed around for inspection. The needle was a cambric one and the thread fifty or sixty fine.

The rider galloped his mount down the sand about 400 yards or so. He finally wheeled his horse and remained stationary, facing his audience. The man who held the needle and thread waved them in his hand and rode toward the other. When he had covered about two-thirds of the distance he halted and waved his hand to the farther one. Immediately the latter spurred his horse into a gallop and came toward the audience at full speed. As he passed the other he took the needle and thread from his companion, bent over for a moment and pulled up when he reached the visiting Frenchman, holding the threaded needle triumphantly over his head.—St. Louis Republic.

His Special Grace.

"Yes," said a teacher the other day while endeavoring to explain to her class how the same word may have different meanings; "there is more than one kind of grace. Grace may be a girl's name, and grace means beauty, too, so that when we say a lady or anything else is full of grace we mean that she or it is beautiful in form and in character. Now, there is another kind of grace. I wonder who can explain what it is. Freddie, what does your father say when he sits down to breakfast in the morning?"

"Oh, gosh, ma, I wish things wasn't always put on the table so sloppy that they spoil a fellow's appetite."

Wishing Too Much.

When Wilberforce was a candidate for Hull his sister offered new gowns to the wives of all the freemen who voted for her brother. "Miss Wilberforce forever!" shouted the enthusiastic crowd when she made the announcement.

"Oh, no, gentlemen," she replied, smiling. "It is very good of you, but I really do not wish to be 'Miss Wilberforce forever!'"—London M. A. P.
