SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Attended by Delegates From Various Parts of the County.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session of the County Sunday School Association was opened with prayer by Dr. Peden.

After attending to some routine business the association listened to one of the finest addresses on the elementary department of the local school, by Mrs. Kate R. Beckwith, of the East Carolina Teachers Training School, it has ever been our privilege to hear.

Following this address was one by Dr. J. W. Bryan on the organized adult class, who, like the speaker who preceded him, touched high water mark, showing the improvements in the methods of today in comparison to methods of former days before the advent of the organized adult classes into our schools.

Rev. Thos. E. Peden, D. D., of Ayden, then gave a strong talk on teachers' training, giving some ways of doing this much needed work.

A short season of prayer was held, led by D. J. Whichard.

The committee on nomination of officers, made the following report which was adopted:

President, Rev. J. H. Shore.
Vice president, H. J. Langston.
Secretary and treasurer, Z. T. Broughton.

Executive committee, J. H. Shore, H. J. Langston, Z. T. Broughton, Miss Lillian M. Munn, H. C. Ormond.

The committee on constitution made their report which was adopted. This report recommended that semi-annual sessions of this association be held in March and September.

The committee on time and place of next meeting reported, naming Sept. 21st as the time and Greenville as the place, which was adopted.

The committee on resolutions made the following report, which was adopted:

The Pitt County Sunday School Association in its first session assembled beg leave to say, that:

Whereas, the good people of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, Greenville, N. C., saw fit in the goodness of their hearts to tender the association the use of their church, and;

Whereas, the Greenville Reflector and the Ayden Freewill Baptist have so kindly lent to the said association the use of their papers for publishing notices, etc., and;

Whereas, this association in its body assembled desires to thank the people of the said Methodist church and the said newspapers for said kindness,

Be it resolved: That this association extend to the pastor, stewards and members of the said church its deepest thanks for the use of same:

That this association also extend to the above mentioned papers its thanks for the interest they have taken in aiding the association in making known its meeting and its purposes.

The statistical secretary made report that there were 36 delegates present, representing 21 schools, as follows: Three pastors, six superintendents, thirteen teachers and fourteen workers.

After a few congratulatory remarks by the president and secretary the association adjourned with prayer by Rev. B. F. Hanks.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

BREADY-ANTHONY.

Pretty Wedding Solemnized at Adamstown Yesterday.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the Reformed church at Adamstown by the pastor, Rev. Atville Conner. The contracting parties being Miss Julia Elizabeth Bready, daughter of Mr. C. E. Bready, of Adamstown, and Mr. Peyton Tunstall Anthony, a prominent wholesale merchant of Greenville, N. C., both of whom are popular in their respective communities.

Mr. W. S. Rhodes, of Hamilton, N. C., was best man, and Miss Eva K. Bready, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Little Miss Letha K. Fair, of Harrisburg, Pa., niece of the bride, was flower girl. Messrs. Harry L. Mock, Lindsay Day, Walter Edwards and James Kuykendoff were ushers.

The bride was attired in a white satin Princess gown trimmed with pearls and fringe and carried bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids wore exquisite pink Empire gowns, trimmed with crystals and wore large pink and black hats. Little Miss Letha Fair wore a beautiful pink dress and hat and carried a basket of pink carnations. Lohengrin's wedding march was rendered by Miss Mary Elizabeth Padgett.

Quite a number of relatives and friends were present from out of town. After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, after which the bridal party left on the 7:48 train for Washington, D. C., and Virginia Beach on an extended wedding trip. They will reside at Greenville, N. C. Their many relatives and friends wish them a long, happy and prosperous life.—Frederick, Md. News, 24th.

Norfolk Southern will Give Prize For Best Corn Grown.

Raleigh, June 23.—The LaBaume silver loving cup offered by the Norfolk Southern Railroad company, through the state department of agriculture to the North Carolina farmer boy who exhibits the finest ten ears of corn grown himself, has been received at the department of agriculture here ready for presentation this fall to the winner for the first year. It is a handsome affair eleven inches high and mounted on an elegantly ebony base. The front of the cup bears the inscription: "The LaBaume Cup, awarded to the North Carolina Boy Making the Best Exhibit of ten ears of corn of his own raising." STATE NEWS.

Newly Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Concord, June 23.—Mr. W. T. Brinegar, an electrician employed at the Locke cotton mill, was killed this morning a few minutes before 7 o'clock, while connecting some wires to the main panel or distributing board in the quiller room of the mill. Brinegar had only been employed at the mill for about two weeks, coming here from Salisbury, where he had been employed in similar work. He was assigned this morning to do some work at the main switchboard and was standing on a small scaffold working on the switch with his right hand, when he placed his left hand either on the wall of the mill or on a pipe which is near the switch. He received the full force of the electrical current, 2,300 volts, killing him instantly.

One of the most daring acts of a burglar recorded was one which transpired last night. The deed was perpetrated at the residence of Mrs. S. F. Yopp, No. 212 South Fifth street, and occurred during the early part of the evening. The members of the family were on the front porch of the home, never for one instance suspecting that a thief would be bold enough to enter the house. But this particular thief was. He entered by the rear, lighted a lamp and proceeded to ransack the residence. There was jewelry on the bureau, but he either overlooked this or was frightened away before completing his work. Just what he got will take an inventory to tell.—Wilmington Dispatch.

TEACHING THE DEAF TO SPEAK

The Process is Slow, But Ingenious Methods of Instruction Are Used.

In teaching the deaf to speak of course, the very first words given for the child to reproduce must be elementary, indeed not words at all, but mere sounds, says Robert A. Sanborn in The Delineator for July. Other syllables are then used, but simply as exercises in control of the vocal organs. As soon as they have mastered these simple positions, whole words are given the child, and, later on, the syllables are corrected, if necessary. In fact, even the older pupils who have long since graduated from the primary drill in speech, are vigilantly watched for slovenly habits of articulation.

The making of aspirant sounds, requiring the forcible exhalation of breath, is explained by using a feather which is blown outward. The child also learns the meanings of "blow" and "breath" in this exercise. To aid a child in reproducing guttural sounds the teacher holds one of his hands to her throat, and to her nostrils for the nasal ones, and then places the hand to his own throat or nostrils until he has made and felt the same vibrations. The sounds of "K" and "g," being formed at the back of the tongue, are acquired with difficulty. In spite of this fact, Alec, who is only three years old, can pronounce "cow" as clearly as any hearing child.

The mirror is of particular assistance in teaching the child the positions behind the sounds of these last named letters. The mirror also serves the purpose of correcting all positions and, consequently, speech. An hour of nearly every day is devoted to sitting with each little one in turn before the looking glass, where he is given the profitable amusement of seeing himself talk. This, with the baby, is one of the most popular features of his training. He sees his own mouth, and his teacher's, side by side, and is thus able to observe the tongue from base to tip, to compare positions, and so to perfect himself in the pleasurable task of learning speech.

SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1910.

If President Taft gets much better pleased he will have to enlarge his smile.

The wrangle in Wake county is about over, and the balance of the State is glad of it.

New Bern and Wilson are both to have union depots. Greenville needs one bad enough.

A red rose is beautiful—why not red hair?—Greensboro News. It is. If you don't believe it, try us.

Mr. Roosevelt declares that he may never make another political speech. Possibly not, and then again he may.

Running a man and his business down is no way to help a town. We have known people to leave Greenville for that very thing.

Station or rank cut no figure when they want to elope. A daughter of Mayor Gaynor, of New York, ran away from home and got married. She telephoned the news back home and was forgiven.

It is not often that a man being tried for murder gets such distinction, but some of the railroads are going to run special trains on account of the Powell trial soon to take place in Warren county, where it was removed from Halifax.

How the mighty have fallen. Ex-pugilistic Champion John L. Sullivan went to the Jeffries training camp at Reno and was not even admitted. Jeff refused to shake hands with John or to see him, and Jim Corbett, who had better luck, said "You needn't be standing around."

Whichard can take care of his hair all right; but if Cowan doesn't quit putting a "t" in his name and making it Whichard, we fear President Shipman will have to appoint a peace commission.—Greensboro News.

Right you are! We spurn even the suggestion that we take "t" in ours.

Commenting on the efforts of the Greenville Reflector and the Wilson Times to get the people of their respective towns interested in a park, the Raleigh Times says:

"We hope both papers will keep up the agitation until they get the parks. The towns or the citizens of the towns could not spend a little money now to better purpose, and if they do not realize this now they will in a few years, and to their sorrow if they don't get the parks.

Editor Whichard, of the Greenville Reflector, tells all who haven't a good word to say for Greenville to crawl in a hole and pull the hole in after them. Good philosophy, but better advice for personal safety, because Editor Whichard is apt to kick in a hole a person who talks about his live town.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Say, you better drop that "t" off of us, old man.

Greenville, N. C., is a good town and prosperous. Along with her progress in industrial lines she has evidently taken care of the public conscience, due of course to home training largely. The Daily Reflector has this interesting sentence which we take from a timely editorial on the near-beer saloon there: "One thing good can be said of Greenville that deserves notice and that is we have such a decent lot of men and boys that a near-beer saloon can't prosper here."

This beats high license and if all of the towns of the State could get in the same condition, we would not even need prohibition.—High Point Enterprise.

A man would not think of going to a hotel and not paying for the service he received, he would not go into a store and buy goods and not make arrangements for the payment, but they will come to a newspaper office with an article a mile long and expect you to publish it as "news" when it is nothing but an advertisement for some particular man. But we are glad to say newspapers are beginning to realize that they are business institutions, and cannot be run on hot air.—New Bern Sun.

The Greenville Reflector of which Mr. D. J. Whichard is editor, has been incorporated under the name of The Reflector Company, this to increase its facilities and enlarge its sphere of usefulness. The office is to have linotypes and other modern improvements. Mr. Whichard is one of the "Old Guard," having been editor of The Reflector for over a quarter of a century. The Chronicle is pleased to see this evidence of prosperity and wishes him well.—Charlotte Chronicle.

An Extraordinary Shower.
Daniel O'Connell, the Irish agitator, once complained in the house of commons of a report of a speech in a London newspaper which, he said, put into his mouth opinions he had never expressed. He vowed that if the editor did not apologize he would move that he be brought to the bar for a breach of privilege.
Next day the reporter of the speech waited upon O'Connell and gave a most remarkable explanation. He stated that during his walk from the house to his office in Fleet street the rain streamed into his pockets and obliterated the notes of his speech.
"I accept the explanation," said O'Connell good humoredly, "but let me say that it must have been a very extraordinary shower of rain, for it not only washed out of your notebook the speech I delivered, but washed in another of an entirely different character."
Explained.
"Our air mattresses," said the dealer,

THE CANNING INDUSTRY

information of Value to Fruit and Vegetable Growers.
Too little attention is paid by the housewives of North Carolina to the canning of fruits and vegetables. This is an art that needs to be cultivated and the State Department of Agriculture is making a commendable effort in that direction. It has just published a bulletin on the home canning of fruits and vegetable, which should be in every farmer's home. The article is written by the assistant horticulturalist, S. B. Shaw, and it is worth quoting from. In rural communities, says Mr. Shaw, it is frequently the case that during the winter months the most delicious and wholesome fruits and vegetables are absent from the daily bill of fare.
Possibly some tomatoes are canned, some fruits preserved or dried, but the most nutritious vegetables and the most palatable fruits are allowed to spoil in the garden and orchard because of the impression that it is impossible to keep them. This is a mistake. It is just as easy to keep corn, peas and beans as it is to keep peaches and tomatoes—a fact which has been demonstrated by commercial packers who have canned almost every variety of fruit and vegetable.
When the supply of fruit and vegetables is greater than the family needs and a market is not convenient in which to dispose of this fresh produce, the surplus may be made a source of income by selling it in the form of canned goods. Sometimes those living near a convenient market experience difficulty in finding a ready sale for their produce on account of the glutted condition often existing in the markets of large cities.
In conditions of this kind, growers can provide themselves with canning outfits, suited in capacity to their needs, put up a clean, reliable grade of goods, market themas judiciously as they do their green stuff, and turn to profit that which otherwise might have been a complete loss.
There seems to be a belief by the general public that there is something mysterious in the commercial canning process. The great secret of this process is a careful observance of two things—cleanliness and complete sterilization. It is possible for every housewife to run a small canning factory in her own kitchen, and on the farm. This is both economical and desirable. Fruits and vegetables can be "put up" in glass jars or tin cans at home much cheaper than they can be purchased in the form of commercially canned goods, and the flavor, texture and general quality of the home-made product can be made superior to the product of the average factory.
This bulletin is not only full of details as to the process of canning all kinds of fruits and vegetables, but free distribution, and a postal card addressed to the Agriculture 1 Department at Raleigh will get it. The Chronicle urges all its farmer readers to get a copy. There's money in it.—Charlotte Chronicle.

THE SLAUGHTER OF THE 26TH.
In speaking of the great losses in battle, The Chronicle a few days ago gave a story by a New York veteran of the slaughter of the Twenty-Sixth North Carolina Regiment, at Gettysburg. This regiment belonged to Heath's division of Hill's corps and was under command of General George E. Pickett. It sustained its loss in the famous charge against Cemetery Ridge, on the afternoon of July 3. Another New York soldier contributes a story to the Sun as to how the slaughter came about. "At early dawn of that morning," he writes, "when our skirmishers were sent out the details from the 125th New York and the Eighth Ohio were placed somewhat to the right, that is, nearer to the village than the position of the respective regiments on the ridge, and were beyond the Embits-burg road when Pickett's charge was made. Instead of falling back to the line of battle on the ridge the skim-ishers of the regiment named wheeled and took position behind a low fence running at right angles to the line, and as the Confederat ecolum-n swept by not 500 feet away the skim-ishers kept up an incessant musket fire on their left flank, which caused it to give away and bunch toward the center until the Confederates were probably fifty files deep, and with our batteries on Cemetery Ridge working their guns double shotted with canister, and the infantry pumping lead into them just as fast as guns could be loaded and fired, the wonder is not that so many fell, but that any escaped." Then that there is no more thrilling chapter in all the history of wars.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Justice.
The only way to make the mass of mankind see the beauty of justice is by showing them in pretty plain terms the consequence of injustice.—Sydney

TORTURE MACHINES.

Curious Instruments (That Were Used in the Middle Ages.
In an old tower in Nuremberg there is a room set apart especially for the preservation of the curious instruments of torture used during the uncertain period historically referred to as the middle ages.
In that room you can see thumb-screws of the most approved pattern closely arranged along shelves filled with "lar helmets" and "bridles" for gossiping women. One horrid relic, called the "spike wheel," is a heavy cylinder on one side of which stand out two or more score of sharp iron spikes. In days of old when an offender had been sentenced to undergo a "rolling" he was stripped naked and firmly bound on a plank, face down.
In this position the "spike wheel" was slowly dragged up and down his back, the number of times depending upon the gravity of the crime and the wording of the sentence.
In several instances the poor victims were prodded so full of holes that they died before they could be removed from the plank. When death was intended the number of "rolls" was not specified, but double length spikes, heated red hot, were put in the surface of the cylinder. This mode of carrying out capital punishment was hardly as expeditions as the guillotine, but it was equally certain.

GIANT BUTTERFLIES.

Have a Wing Spread Greater Than That of Many Small Birds.
The largest butterfly known to naturalists is found only in British New Guinea, and specimens are worth anything from $100 upward. The male measures eight inches across the wings and the female not less than eleven inches, a wing spread exceeding that of many small birds.
The story of the first discovery of this gigantic butterfly is a curious one, says the Wide World Magazine. A naturalist saw a specimen perched on the top of a tree and, failing to capture it by any other means, finally shot it.
From the fragments he decided that the species was entirely unknown to science, and he forthwith fitted out an expedition at a cost of many thousands of dollars to go in search of the magnificent insect.
Two members of the party fell victims to the Papuan cannibals and another was rescued only in the nick of time. In spite of this inauspicious commencement to his enterprise, however, the naturalist persevered and ultimately succeeded in obtaining a number of perfect specimens.

Origin of the Letter V.
The letter V may be regarded as the mutilated remains of one of the symbols used by the ancient Egyptians in their hieroglyphics or picture writing.
A common animal in their country was the two horned sand viper, a representation of which stood for V. The priests ultimately found that for the practical purposes of everyday life it was a waste of time to use elaborate hieroglyphics and invented a kind of shorthand to meet the occasion. In this the snake was reduced to a V with a dash (V-) to represent horns and body. The Phoenicians adopted this letter, and from them we get our V by loss of the dash, leaving only the two little horns of the original picture. This snake is still common in Egypt and is probably the one mentioned in Genesis xlix. 17, "Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward." Travelers tell us that it is still addicted to this unpleasant habit.

Wet Weather and Camels.
Camels are very sensitive to moisture. In the region of tropical rains they are usually absent, and if they come into such with caravans the results of the rainy season are greatly feared. The great humidity of the air explains the absence of the camel from the northern slopes of the Atlas and from well wooded Abyssinia. This sensitiveness expresses itself in the character of different races. The finest, most noble looking camels, with short silk-like hair, are found in the interior of deserts, as in the Taureg region in north Africa, and they cannot be used for journeys to moist regions. Even in Fezzan, south of Tripoli, the animals are shorter and fatter, with long coarse hair, and in Nile lands and on coasts it is the same.
These animals, too, are less serviceable as regards speed and endurance.

The Eyes of the Musk Ox.
The skull of the buff musk ox is remarkable for the development of the eye orbits, which project sufficiently beyond the plane of the frontal bones to compensate for the interruption the horns would otherwise make in the range of vision. The musk ox, however, does not seem to rely greatly on keenness of sight, far less on acuteness of hearing, for the ears are of small dimensions and are completely covered by the heavy growth of fur about them. The organs of scent are evidently more highly developed, and they exact of the hunter his greatest caution.

Just Imagine!
"Why don't they have women on juries?" she asked.
"Imagine a woman sitting through a long argument by a lawyer and not interrupting," was the answer she received.—Buffalo Express.
Will is brushwood, judgment is timber. The first makes the brightest flames, but the other gives the most lasting heat.

A ROYAL BOOK BUYER.

The Purchase of Diderot's Library by Catherine II. of Russia.
Empress Catherine II. of Russia was a great reader and a lover of books.
One of her services to letters in Russia was the purchase of the libraries of Voltaire and Diderot. She was a warm friend and admirer of these French philosophers, and their work interested her because she was eager to learn new theories of politics and government. Voltaire's library of about 7,000 volumes is now a part of the Russian Imperial library in the Hermitage palace, and in the hall devoted to it is Houdon's statue of Voltaire.
The story of Catherine's purchase of Diderot's library is interesting. It is credible to her tact and her generosity. Diderot named $75,000 as the price of his library. Catherine II. offered him $80,000 and named as a condition of the bargain that her purchase should remain with Diderot until his death. Thus Diderot, without leaving Paris, became Catherine's librarian in his own library. As her librarian he was given a yearly salary of $5,000.
One year this salary was not paid.
Then Catherine wrote to her librarian that she could not have him or her library suffer through the negligence of a treasurer's clerk and that she should send him the sum that she had set aside for the care and increase of her library for fifty years. At the end of that period she would make new arrangements. A check for $100,000 accompanied this letter.

LEE HELPED HIM.

The Old Soldier That Asked For and Received Assistance.
General Robert E. Lee was sitting on the veranda of his Lexington home one afternoon engaged in conversation with some friends when a man, ill clothed and covered with dust, appeared at the gate and timidly beckoned to the general.
Apologizing to his friends, Lee rose at once and went to the gate. Very soon his purse appeared, and he was seen to give the man some money.
His friends, knowing the extent of his charity in any case of suffering, real or apparent, looked on with some impatience, for they knew how slender his means were then and how many calls of the same kind came to him.
"General, who was that?" one of them ventured when he had returned to his place.
"One of our boys in trouble," was the half smiling answer, for the general knew the remonstrance which his friend was longing to make.
"What regiment and company did he belong to?" persisted the friend, anxious, if possible, to unearth the suspected fraud.
"Oh, he—he fought on the other side," was General Lee's calm answer.

Chinese Business Honesty.
With due respect for others, the Chinaman is perhaps the most honorable and upright business man in the world today. His business principles are founded entirely upon honesty, and he adheres to the policy with the insistence of a leech. The chase after dollars stops if he has to resort to low tricks to get them. Of course a little thing like telling a falsehood occasionally does not bother him so much, but when it comes to plotting and scheming to defraud some one the task becomes distasteful. The equal of the Japanese in initiative and foresight, he is much their superior when integrity is concerned. A Japanese does not think twice before deciding to get the best of you. He calculates that you are liable to change your mind or get out of reach if he indulges in a little mental debate as to the propriety of cheating you.—Bookkeeper.
