JUDGE WHEDBEE TAKES THE OFFICIAL OATH.

SWORN IN TODAY BY SUPERIOR COURT CLERK, D. C. MOORE.

Ceremony Witnessed by Number of Friends Who Extend Congratulations—Tenders Resignation.

At noon today there was an interesting occasion in the office of superior Court Clerk, D. C. Moore, it being administering the official oath to Hon. Harry W. Whedbee, the new judge of the third judicial district of North Carolina. Quite a number of friends gathered to witness the ceremony, and as soon as the oath had been solemnly administered and Judge Whedbee had affixed his signature thereto, they showered congratulations upon him, wishing him every honor and success in his judicial career.

Judge Whedbee will hold his first court at Jacksonville, in Onslow county, beginning Monday, 18th. He was nominated by the judicial convention just a week ago, and the subsequent resignation of Judge D. L. Ward, followed by Governor Kitchin appointing the nominee of the people, causes him at once to enter upon his career as judge.

His elevation to the Superior court bench made it necessary for Judge Whedbee to tender his resignation as mayor of Greenville, which office he has held for sometime, and that resignation has been sent to the board of aldermen. It reads as follows:

To the Board of Aldermen of the Town of Greenville—Gentlemen: I hereby tender my resignation as mayor of the town of Greenville, N. C., to take effect at noon, July 16th, 1910.

I regret the necessity of having to take this course just at this time, as I hoped to be able to assist you in fully organizing the new board and business for the coming year, but my straightening out and mapping out the unlooked for appointment by Governor Kitchin, following the resignation of Hon. D. L. Ward, has made it a necessity that I make my resignation effective at once.

Permit me to thank each individual member of the board for their uniform kindness and courtesy to me during my continuance in office as mayor of Greenville. My associations both of pleasure and personal have been most town of Greenville has never had a more faithful board of aldermen, and I hope that your every act will redound to the public welfare and growth of our city.

Allow me on retiring from the mayorship to suggest that you continue the policy of making improvements permanent when you make them at all. Experience has always taught me that this is the wisest course to pursue in public matters.

Very respectfully,
Harry W. Whedbee.

OUR SHAMEFUL NEGLECT.

Of The Road Drag—Simple, Inexpensive Method.

The indifference of the South to the value of the split-log road drag is beyond understanding. It is no longer an experiment. It is cheap, and consequently practically our only available means of maintaining good roads and yet we ignore it almost completely. We must for generations depend on dirt roads throughout the greater part of the South. Hard surface roads are better, but too expensive, in most sections, for many years to come. In the split-log drag we have a simple means of maintaining our dirt roads in good condition at a trifling expense, after they have been drained, and yet we refuse to avail ourselves of this proved method. Some have explained that the reason is, that the drag is too simple. It is a fact that no one can appreciate its value who has not seen it properly used, but it does seem that we should learn more quickly. If the split-log drag were an experiment, there might be some reason in the failure of our road authorities to begin its use, but when any method has been proved the best known, by years of extensive trial, the failure to adopt it, by those having the care of our roads, is simply inexcusable stupidity. —Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

Mr. W. B. Wilson, jr., and Lieut. D. S. Wilson, left today for Morehead City.

ATTRACTIONS AT MOREHEAD.

Finest Mackerel Fishing of the Season. Constant Round of Social Features.

Morehead City, N. C., July 15.—Thursday Mr. Brooks Parham, of Henderson, made the largest catch of mackerel that has been made this year. He was out only a few hours and brought in over two hundred fish.

Several other large catches of mackerel were made the same day, and the fishermen say that the run of mackerel is the largest that they have seen in years.

Mr. W. L. Kennedy also made an unusual catch this week. After being out only a part of the day, he came in with sixty sheep head. These fish were of unusual size.

While fishing is still proving one of the many attractions at Morehead, sailing and surf parties are still very popular with the young people.

Mr. Smith gave this afternoon a delightful surf party complimentary to Miss Eloise Erwin of Morganton.

The Japanese geman to be given Saturday night will prove one of the greatest successes of the season. The couples will form in the halls, and the grand march and May pole figure will be led by Mr. Mahone, jr., of Norfolk. During these figures only the lights from the lanterns carried by the couples will be seen in the ball room. After this phantom march a very few lights covered with Japanese lanterns will be used for the other figures. The costumes of the ladies will be Japanese kimonos, and the gentlemen will wear white trousers and shirts with red sashes. Seventy couples will take part in the grand march.

The N. C. Regiment will reach Morehead Tuesday. The Atlantic Hotel is rushed with guests for the week end, and this month has been most successful. Colonel Morton has had a very fine season and the prospects are that the house will be filled to its utmost through August.

TAKES TWO EDITIONS.

But The Reflector is Trying to Serve the People.

Since the Norfolk Southern railroad took off the day trains on this division of their road, it has given very poor mail facilities between Greenville and local points both east and west. This gave The Reflector quite a hard knock, for previous to that change papers could be sent in every direction throughout the county the same day of publication, but after the change no point could be reached on the Norfolk Southern until next day.

To some extent we are now trying to overcome this disadvantage, and have about succeeded in doing so with the mails going west, by getting out an early edition in time to send on the 4 o'clock train. This was done successfully Friday, and we hope to be able to do so every day. This will put the paper in the hands of the people of Farmville as quick as the people of Greenville get them.

PENNSYLVANIA STRIKE.

Looks Like a Settlement Will be Reached.

By Wire to The Reflector. Philadelphia, July 15.—A formal order calling a strike of the employees of the Pennsylvania railroad has been drawn, but the situation is quiet and awaiting a final word from the company. There is a disposition among the men here to wait on Pittsburg for deciding action.

Pittsburg, July 16.—The Pennsylvania railroad strike here took decided turn for the better today, and it was declared a peaceable settlement would be reached between the company and the men on the line west of Pittsburg. Another conference will probably be held Monday, and it is believed no strike will be called until after that matter.

GREENVILLE MAN RESPONDS.

To Address of Welcome to State Dental Association.

We take the following from The Wilmington Star in reference to the State Dental Association in session at Wrightsville:

The response was made by Dr. D. L. James, of Greenville, one of the leading members of the profession in North Carolina, whose splendid address was listened to with great interest. In the beginning he said that he was proud to be the spokesman for such a body of men as the dentists appreciation of the society for the cordial welcome. Dr. James was familiar with the fact that Wrightsville Beach has been the scene this year of many notable gatherings, mentioning each and expressing regret that he was not able to deliver a response as eloquent as those heard at the other conventions held during the season, but declared that none could accept an address of welcome more heartily than he in behalf of the fine men that gathered at the seashore. After paying a tribute to the members of the profession, he referred to the fact that recently there was unveiled in Paris a monument of Horace Wells, an American dentist, who discovered anesthesia, which, he declared, had done probably more than anything else for the happiness of mankind. Diseases of many kinds, such as consumption, typhoid fever, etc., have their origin in the mouth. Roosevelt, whom the speaker said was the greatest living man, said that the prosperity of the country depended upon the health of its people, and the speaker declared it of the utmost importance that one should properly care for his teeth and use the brush and antiseptics intelligently, thereby greatly decreasing the death rate. He referred to the campaign of instruction of school children started last March by the National Dentist Society and declared that it was destined to accomplish much good for the general health of the people. In conclusion, Dr. James said: "Keep the mouth clean, for out of it are the issues of life."

THE REFLECTOR QUARTERS.

Where You can Find The Different Departments.

With the other changes that have come along recently in making the new Reflector, some changes have also come in the arrangements for carrying on the business and editorial departments.

Mr. C. B. Whichard has been transferred from the printing room to the business office, and has charge of things there.

The editor's office is in the room just in the rear of the business office, with entrance on Third street, where he can be found when not elsewhere.

Mr. C. W. Hearne is foreman and superintendent of the printing department up stairs.

If you have business with either of these departments, you will know where to go. There will always be somebody to wait on you. The business office telephone is No. 74, and the printing room 56.

LUMBER MERCHANTS.

Complain of Rates Railroads are Now Charging in Southern State.

By Wire to The Reflector. Washington, July 16.—Complaints were filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission today by Louisville, Ky., lumber merchants who united in protesting against the rates charged on lumber by railroads operating between points in Southern States and Louisville. They allege that the present rates are unreasonable and an impediment to the progress of the lumber industry.

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE END.

Agreement Signed and 80,000 Will Return to Work Monday.

By Wire to The Reflector. New York, July 16.—Announcement was made today of a settlement of the strike with the Garment Worker's Union, and that about 80,000 of the strikers would go back to work Monday. Agreements have been signed with manufacturers employing that number of men and women. The settlement committee worked all night arranging the agreements. In all of the cases the demands of the union have been granted.

ON WITH THE WORK FOR GOOD ROADS.

GREENVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COMMITTEE ACTIVE.

What Citizens of Bethel Say About Good Roads—Other Sections Will be Heard From.

The Bethel people are also talking good roads, and here are expressions from some of them.

Mr. M. O. Blount, "We want good roads; I favor the township plan."

Mr. S. M. Jones, "A thing that is needed all right enough; I have been a good roads man a long time. Each township should levy its own tax."

Dr. V. A. Ward, "I certainly favor good roads; mighty good thing."

Dr. P. Manning, "Everybody is in favor of good roads. Think we should have the township plan."

Mr. W. J. Smith, "That is something that is very important. We ought to have better roads."

Mr. J. E. Brown, "Best to have good roads; I believe in them myself. Don't know what is the best plan."

Mr. G. R. Whitehurst, "We need the good roads everywhere."

Mr. C. D. Whitehurst, "Can't get roads good enough to suit me."

Mr. G. L. Moore, "We want good roads. I approve of the best plan, but we can't work fast enough. All of the roads should be worked by tax."

Mr. W. T. Barnhill, "We ought to have better roads by all means."

Mr. M. G. Ford, "I want to see good roads."

Mr. B. R. Whitehurst, "I am in favor of better roads, on the township plan."

THE OLD SPRING HOUSE.

Bubbling Waters Was Followed by a Vision Long Ago.

I was about fourteen. At the close of a long, hot summer day on my way from the fields to the barns with my team, I stopped to get a nice, cool drink at the spring-house. Wherever I hear the slogan "Back to the Farm," I think of some of those days, and shake my head. To this day I can not imagine horseback riding for pleasure. Up at break of day; a fire-alarm toilet; to the pasture for the horses; breakfast; then to work; dinner at eleven; more work; supper at five; more work; at sunset back to the barns to take care of the horses; then remove both suspenders—if there were two—and, as Kipling writes of his Kim, "sink ten thousand miles into sleep." Oh, it was a merry roundelay—I think not.

Well, I stopped at the spring-house. You know the kind, built into the hillside, of good, big field stone and logs. The water bubbles out of the hillside into the stone-lined spring, and runs over into a trough under a log partition to the water-tight trough inside the real spring-house where the crocks of milk, and jars of butter, and smearcase, and the other good things are kept cool. There is a stout door to this treasure-room of the spring-house, and sometimes mothers have had to put locks on the doors, for not only stolen water is sweet. I dipped the hollow gourd dipper deep down in the cool waters, played it back and forth awhile idly, to cool it too, and with the fresh water pearls dripping from it, poured the satisfying stream down my hot throat. I wiggle my toes as I think of it, as I must have wiggled my bare toes then. Another dipperful of water over head and writs, splashing over the clean stone floor, and I came up out of the spring-house refreshed and clear-eyed to the vision that I met—the prettiest woman I ever saw.

I have met women since who seemed prettier at the time, but somehow I always go back to the vision of the spring. Was it the contrast of her beauty with the hard, daily grind? Was it the environment; the twilight; the time of year; a mood of the moment? I had never thought of women as pretty or not pretty, before; but as she came down the path to the spring, a new world seemed opened in that instant. Was it the budding of an esthetic side hitherto unrealized? or was it the wide chasm between boy and man bridged on the instant, as often happens? or was she real-pretty? You shall say.—Erman J. Ridgway, in the Delineator for August.

SATURDAY, JULY 16, 1910.

It is too hot to even write right.

Some folks wish the bill collector was like Jeffries, couldn't "come back."

The politician who loses and gets grouchy over it, should have kept out of the race.

They all can't "come back," but there are some who ought to go back and sit down. The kickers for instance.

We fail to see wherein the Republicans have any cause for rejoicing over the deadlocks in Democratic conventions.

Now the county candidates can have it all their way. No more district or State conventions to attract attention from them.

Mr. Roosevelt is going to visit Georgia in October and the cracker State will be happy. Just watch for Atlanta to get a date with him.

That the Democratic State convention platform made no reference whatever to prohibition, indicate that it is looked upon as a finished proposition in North Carolina.

London has developed counterpart to the recent Charlton case. An American who with his wife was sojourning in that city, murdered her and shipped back to this country.

If you do what you ought to do, you will come to the good roads convention in Greenville, on the first Monday in August and bring somebody with you.

The east could build roads for one-fifth of what they are costing up this way, and yet few of the eastern counties are not doing anything at all in the way of road building.—Durham Herald.

The Daily Reflector, published at Greenville, has come out with a new dress, which greatly improves its appearance. Bro. Whichard can always be relied upon to keep up with the times.—Louisburg Times.

Dr. C. W. Stiles, who as head of the Rockefeller commission is waging war on hookworm, declared in a recent speech on "flies" that the United States is the filthiest great nation in the world.

There is one thing about a man, and that is that no woman can equal him in keeping a secret. Indisputable evidence of that fact is furnished by a denance of that fact is furnished by a Pittsburg man who got a raise of $2 a week in his salary a year ago, and he has not yet revealed the secret to his wife.—Wilmington Star.

Good roads will lead to the general improvement of the countryside. The farmer who drives to and from town over a spacious, smooth well-cared for road will unconsciously come to effect corresponding improvements in the management and operation of the farm.—Louisburg Times.

The editor of the Catham Record, who is a lawyer, thinks the jury system should be remedied in many respects, in which opinion it would seem that all observant people would coincide. He says:

"While many persons advocate a bare majority verdict, others insist on a unanimous verdict as now prevails. Yet better than either of these might be a two-thirds or three-fourths majority verdict. This might be applied to the trial of civil cases at first, and if found to work satisfactorily, it might then be applied to the trial of criminal cases also. The grand jury presents an indictment and returns a true bill upon the affirmative vote of 12 of its 18 members. Then again the most important questions of constitutional law affecting all the people of the United States have been decided by a majority of 5 to 4 of the Supreme Court of the United States. If the most learned judges are not required to be unanimous in their opinion of the law, why should 12 average citizens be required to be unanimous in their opinion of the facts in the case?"

"While the change from a unanimous to a majority verdict might be considered too radical a step, it would seem that the two-thirds or three-fourths majority verdict is sensible and sane. But the primary trouble with the jury system is the manner of selection in capital cases. This is the first point that needs to be remedied."

BONDS FOR ROAD BUILDING.

Most every county in North Carolina has been convinced of the importance and utility of good roads but several have appeared to be confused as to the most economical and practical way of raising funds for constructing modern highways. Some of the counties have voted down bonds propositions, and levied direct taxes for good roads instead of taking the bond route which makes it less burdensome for tax-payers of today. Some of our counties are doing nothing in the way of building good roads rather than issue bonds.

North Carolina had such a sad experience, with bond issues during the Reconstruction orgies that the proposition of a bond issue has ever since been a nightmare to them. However, hundreds of thousands of dollars have been voted in North Carolina during the past twelve months for good roads and municipal improvements, for the people are beginning to realize that the most economical way and the most practical plan for inaugurating improvements of a permanent nature is by the issue of bonds running long enough to place some of the burden on one or more generations who are to come after us and get as much or more benefit out of the improvements than does the present tax-paying generation. A direct tax puts the burden altogether on the taxpayers of today, while a bond issue places a portion of the burden of posterity which also shares in the benefits of all permanent improvements. Neither does the direct tax produce sufficient revenue to undertake permanent improvements on a scale of such consequence, whereas, a bond issue justifies worthy undertakings instead of a piddling efforts which only can be made by means of meagre taxes.—Wilmington Star.

The Structure of Ferns.
When flowering plants usually make seed, that is generally the last effort for plant life. The seed is the beginning of the life of the new plant. Ferns, however, only produce spores for reproductive purposes. These spores germinate and go through the same process subsequently that flowers go through in the production of seeds. The spores expand when the germinating time comes and form a flat, green membrane. What are then really the flowers appear on this membrane. As a general rule after these fern flowers have matured the membrane dries up and disappears. In one family of ferns, however, natives of New Holland, named platycerium, this green blade is permanent and continues to enlarge, becoming really a portion of the plant. Every year a new blade is formed which spreads over the old ones. The large plant is of a totally different character, having the fronds of ordinary ferns.

COATED WITH FOX FIRE

Owls That Show a Phosphorescent Glow in the Dark.

We are told by some students there is a species of owl that has a phosphorescent glow in the dark and that it is a rare bird.

There may be such a bird, but a careful investigation on the part of a number of persons who have made such things a careful study has revealed the fact that certain owls and even bats and other creatures that are known to roost in old hollow trees that are in a certain stage of decay, producing that peculiar phosphorescent condition so often witnessed, and coming in contact with the matter that makes the glow, the feathers or outer coating of the creatures become saturated with the luminous matter and on damp nights give forth a brilliant glow, such as is often seen on old stumps, decaying logs and in some localities on ledges of limestone that protrude from the hillside.

On a number of occasions the writer has known persons to be badly frightened by coming suddenly upon a mass of what is known to many as fox fire. It is more frequently seen during the summer months, during or shortly after a shower. The brilliancy of the glow will depend much on the location, the temperature, and sometimes much is due to the person's imagination.

This same glow is often seen on small animals and a number of insects. The glowworms are quite common in various sections of the world, and in some localities insects have a brilliant glow coming from beneath their wings. The fireflies or lightning bugs are the most common in the United States.

In some countries certain vegetable growths are known to give forth such a glow, and it has been hinted that some of the crops harvested and stored in barns have the same properties and under certain conditions produce not only the glow, but actual flame, resulting in what is known as spontaneous combustion, destroying the barns and contents.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Welsh Legend.

In Wales there is a legend of Irish smugglers who arrived at Llanddona many years ago in a boat without rudder or oars. They were looked upon, according to the Irish custom of sending malefactors to a sea doom in this plight, as outlaws. However, they had been allowed to land, and a spring of water bursting forth in the sand at the place was taken as a sign of their right to a refuge. But they ill repaid the Welsh. The men lived by smuggling, the women by witchcraft. It was not possible to overcome the smugglers in a fray, for each carried about with him a black fly tied in a knot of his kerchief, and the moment the knot was undone the fly flew at the eyes of the opponents and blinded them. If the Llanddona witches attended a market and bid for anything no one ventured to bid against them.

A Love Story.

A teacher offered to her class a prize for the best short love story. Here is one of the results: "A poor man fell in love with a lady whose mother was a rich toy dealer. The poor man could not marry the rich lady because he had no money. A villain then offered him £10 if he would become a drunkard. The poor man needed the money to get married with, so he agreed, but when he got to the beer saloon he said, 'No, I will not become a drunkard, even for great riches.' On the way home he found a bag of gold. So the young lady married him. It was a splendid wedding. Moral—Virtue is its own reward."—London Mail.

Two Standards.

One of the strangest illustrations of the ups and downs of fortune comes from Paris. A rich Parisian banker became reduced through unlucky investments to the sum of 10,000 francs. That amount was poverty to him, and overwhelmed by his loss and the hopelessness of the situation, he committed suicide. The 10,000 francs then fell to his brother, who had been for years a pauper, estranged from his family. But to him such a sum represented incredible riches, and his reason was overthrown. In a moment of delirium he jumped into the Seine and was drowned.

Windmills.

Holland is known to all the world as the land of windmills, but very few people know that the windmill did not belong to Europe in the first place, but originated among the Saracens. There is, it is believed, no instance of a windmill being used in Europe until the time of the crusades. In a typical wind-driven flour mill in Asia Minor the planes of the wind wheel are made of a fabric and catch the wind as do the staysails of a sailing ship.

CHILDREN WHO ARE SICKLY

Mothers who value their own comfort and feel the welfare of their children, should never be without a box of Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for children. For use throughout the season. A HINDU LEGEND.

How the First Man and the First Woman Lost the Garden of Eden.

Brahma made up his mind to make the world and a man and woman. He made the world, and he made the man and then the woman and put them on the island of Ceylon. According to the account it was the most beautiful island which man can conceive—such birds, such songs, such flowers and such verdure! And the branches of trees were so arranged that when the wind swept through them every tree was a thousand aeolian harp.

Brahma when he put them there said, "Let them have a period of courtship, for it is my desire and will that true love should forever precede marriage."

Then they had their courtship, with the nightingale singing and the stars shining and the flowers blooming, and they fell in love. Imagine that courtship—no prospective fathers or mothers in law, no prying and gossiping of neighbors, nobody to say, "Young man, how do you expect to support her?" Nothing of that kind. They were married by the supreme Brahma, and he said to them: "Remain here. You must never leave this island." Well, after a little while the man said, "I believe I'll look about a little."

He went to the northern extremity of the island, where there was a little narrow neck of land connecting it with the mainland, and the devil, who is always playing pranks with us, produced a mirage, and when he looked over to the mainland such hills and vales, such dells and dales, such mountains crowned with snow, such cataracts clad in bows of glory, did he see there that he went back and told his wife: "The country over there is a thousand times better than this. Let us migrate." She, like every other woman that ever lived, said: "Let well enough alone. We have all we want. Let us stay here."

But he said, "No; let us go." So she followed him, and when they came to this narrow neck of land he took her on his back like a gentleman and carried her over. But the moment they got over they heard a crash and, looking back, discovered that this narrow neck of land had fallen into the sea. The mirage had disappeared, and there was naught but rocks and sand, and then the supreme Brahma cursed them both to the lowest hell.

Then it was that the man spoke. "Curse me, but curse not her. It was not her fault. It was mine." The supreme Brahma said, "I will save her, but not thee." And then she spoke out of her fullness of love, out of a heart in which there was love enough to make all of her daughters rich in holy affection, and said: "If thou wilt not spare him, spare neither me. I do not wish to live without him. I love him." Then the supreme Brahma said, "I will spare you both and watch over you and your children forever."—Robert G. Ingersoll.

Antiquity of Gold Leaf.

The origin of the gold leaf, like the first use of gold itself, is lost in the mists of antiquity. It is found, for example, in connection with the most ancient known mummies, having been used for covering teeth, tongue, skin, etc. Sometimes it is also found on the coffins. Gold leaf was also used on the tombs and monuments of ancient Egypt. The process of making gold leaf has thus been known since the eighth century B. C. In the eleventh century it seems to have attained as high a degree of perfection as today. The gold leaf on some ancient Grecian pottery indeed is as thin as that now used.—Magazine of Commerce.

A South Arabian Food Plant.

Jowari, a tall, slender plant resembling corn and headed with a grain something like millet, is the Abdali's chief crop. He feeds the stalks to his camels and eats the grain himself. Three crops a year are produced. Jowari requires little cultivation except weeding, which the Abdali does by hand, and when ripe he cuts it off close to the ground with his hunting knife. New shoots spring up from the roots to become the next crop. For a camel load of about 125 pounds he receives at Aden an average yield of 2 rupees, or $64.88. A fair yearly yield is twenty camel loads an acre.—Consular and Trade Reports.

ON A CATTLE SHIP.

Working One's Passage to Europe is a Mighty Hard Job.

A writer in the Philadelphia Record, telling of working one's passage to Europe on a cattle ship, says:

The food is the worst part of the trip. It is nauseating, and but few can stand it. The bulk of it is served in the dishpan, which is carried to the galley, and the mainstay is "scouse," a sort of watery beef stew. This is varied with corn beef and cabbage, beans, potatoes and a few other staple articles, all of poor quality. Tea and coffee are drawn from huge caldrons directly to the kettles, with milk and sugar added in the galley.

The first duties of the men were to tie the cattle up. It is no small matter to secure and control a thoroughly frightened 1,600 pound steer, but as we moved down the Delaware all became more quiet, and by 1 o'clock all were securely fastened, and we went to our first meal.

Sunday the real work began, which was to be the routine until the end of the voyage. Each morning we were awakened at 4 o'clock.

From 4 to 6 we engaged in the wet and back breaking work of watering the cattle. Each steer drank from three to seven bucketfuls, and as we had only eight pails the problem became how to keep them filled and yet not overflow without shutting off the hose. It was made harder by the fact that the steers fought for the water.

From 6 o'clock to 8 we hauled up from the lower decks by means of block and tackle thirty-two bundles of hay and twenty bags of corn, each weighing 100 pounds. Under the hatches it was stifling work; above the hands grew blistered from the ropes. Then a third of the hay was fed out. Breakfast followed. After a short rest the troughs were cleared, corn fed and the aisles swept. Inspection began at 10:30, and the captain, purser and doctor passed on tour of the vessel, looking into every nook and cranny. Work finished at noon, after which there was a respite until 3, when more hay was given, and again at 7. We were usually ready for bed at 9, although a few times we remained up until 10.

The cattlemen had the entire run of the great broad open steerage deck aft and the portion of the bow forward assigned to the crew. Here we met many of the cabin passengers and had jolly good times and talks with them. On the quiet several of the higher officers had pleasant words for us. To our amusement the menials took delight in making things as unpleasant as possible when opportunity offered.

The Ostrich.

That ostriches hide their heads in the sand and think that their bodies are thereby hidden seems to be pure myth, says the London Times. Old birds on the nest and young birds when seeking to evade notice squat close to the ground and stretch their necks out flat on the sand. In the case of the young, which harmonizes as perfectly with their sandy surroundings as young ringed plover do with the stones on a beach, the ruse is said to render them almost invisible, and on the wide expanses of the desert it is evident that the upright neck of a sitting bird would render it unnecessarily conspicuous to a marauding enemy. But there is no more ground for accusing the ostrich of "self illusion" than there is for bringing the same charge against the partridge chick, which by merely sitting still among the grass practically disappears from sight.

FULLY DESCRIBED

A Lady of Pizarro Tells Story of Awful Suffering That Cardui Finally Relieved.

Pizarro, Va.—"I suffered for several years," writes Mrs. Dorma A. Smith, "with that awful backache and the bearing down sensations, so fully described in your book.

"I tried doctors and other medicines and found little relief, until I was induced to try Wine of Cardui, when I found instant relief and today I can heartily recommend Cardui to all suffering women and think there is no other as good."

In some instances, Cardui gives instant relief; in others, it may take a little time. But in all cases of female trouble Cardui can be depended on to be of benefit, as it is a specific remedy for women and acts in a curative way on the womanly organs.

As a general tonic for women, to build up your strength, improve your appetite, bring back rosy cheeks and make you look and feel young and happy, nothing you can find will do so much for you as Cardui.

Your druggist has it.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, July 16.—The most important changes at the opening of the stock market today were in the direction of lower prices. Canadian Pacific opened one point down, while material fractional losses were sustained in Amalgamated steel, Union Pacific and St. Paul. Pennsylvania sold steady and showed a slight gain. At the end of fifteen minutes general heavy tone prevailed.

New York, July 16.—There was another big scramble to buy July cotton this morning, foreign houses being conspicuous not only on that opinion, but on August and September as well. As a result old crops were up 14 to 22 points, the exchanges highest levels since the great Sully campaign, while new crops were up 3 to 5 points. Opening: July 16.50; August 15.20; September 13.52; October 12.83; January 12.60.

Chicago, July 16.—Profit taking by longs and general unloading by weak cables, more favorable weather conditions and a sharp decline at Winnipeg, were weakening factors in the wheat market today. There were declines 3/4 to 1 1/4. Corn and oats lower, provisions easier.

USE FEET AS HANDS.

A Custom Somewhat Common Among the Yellow Races.

A French savant, M. Lannelongue, in a communication to the Paris Academy of Sciences maintains that among the yellow races, the Chinese, the Japanese and the Malays, the foot is used as an organ of prehension, like the hand, to a far greater extent than is generally supposed. He says that while in Tokyo he saw a young man sitting in a theater box grasping the rail with his feet just as though they were hands, ever and anon using his right foot to scratch his left thigh. The fact that the Japanese usually sit on their heels at meals and in the house develops extreme suppleness and mobility in the feet and toes, and the prehensile function is still further encouraged by the fact that the Japanese who adhere to the ancient customs wear forked stockings and dispense with the inflexible and constricting European shoe. Chinese postmen navigate their boats lying down, steering with their hands and rowing with their feet. The oar is held between the big toe and the others. The natives frequently use their feet to collect and to pick up small objects lying on the ground, and sometimes even catch mice with their toes. M. Lannelongue holds that the yellow races, who are able to use their feet somewhat as the elephant uses his trunk or the monkey his tail, enjoy a very considerable advantage in the everlasting struggle for existence over the less fortunate Caucasians, who are able to employ their feet only for locomotion purposes.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rebuked.

Hoffman, the German physicist, arrived in Glasgow late one Saturday night and on Sunday morning went to call on Lord Kelvin. The doorbell was answered by a woman servant, whom Hoffman asked if Sir William was at home.

The servant answered, "Sir, he most certainly is not."

Hoffman then asked, "Could you tell me where I could find him?"

"Sir," she answered, "you will find him at church, where you ought to be!"

He Had Reformed.

A young man who was an enthusiastic lover of nature went to the seaside for a holiday and, approaching a typical fisherman, said:

"Ah, my friend, how well you must know the face of nature and know it in its many moods! Have you ever seen the sun sinking in such a glare of glory that it swallows up the horizon with fire? Have you not seen the mist gliding down the shrinking hillside like a specter?"

And, very excited and throwing out his arms, he continued:

"Have you never seen, my man, the moon struggling to shake off the ragged, rugged storm cloud?"

The fisherman replied, "No, sir; I have not since I signed the pledge."—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Not?

Johnny's Arithmetic. Visitor—And how is Johnny getting on with his figures? Johnny (aged five)—Oh, I'm learning my tables, and I can do a few sums.

Visitor—Good! If I were to give you a dozen apples and you ate three, how many would you have? Johnny—Twelve.

Visitor—Wrong. You'd have only nine left.

Johnny—No; I should have twelve—three inside and nine out.—London Scraps.
