INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE SUSTAINS BALLINGER.

UNJUSTLY ACCUSED BY PINCHOT, GARFIELD AND GLAVIS.

He is Invited to Hold Down His Job as Long as He Cares—Unofficial Report.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, July 18.—Richard A. Ballinger is vindicated. He has been unjustly accused by Gifford Pinchot, James Garfield, and Louis Glavis. He is the right man in the right place and ought to be invited to continue holding down his job as long as he cares to hold it. This is not officially given out, yet it is learned to be the basis of the report of a majority of the investigating committee. It sums up the finding of a majority of the joint congressional committee which for five months has been making exhaustive investigation of the conduct of affairs in the entire department. The findings have not been officially made public, but they are known, nevertheless. The minority will file two reports, one by Representative Madison, Republican, of Kansas, and one by the four Democratic members of the committee. It is said the reports will be made at once, without waiting for the meeting of the committee in September.

TRIAL OF BEEF PACKERS.

Testimony is Being Taken Secret. Some Witnesses in Europe.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Chicago, July 18.—The Federal jury began taking testimony today in secret in the beef trust investigation, with a view of indicting officials of the packing companies. Ralph Crews chief counsel of the National Packing Co. at their last trial, was scheduled to be the first witness. Some of the men wanted for witnesses are in Europe and efforts to subpoena them have proven useless. Attorneys Edwin Simms, James H. Wilkinson, and Edward B. Gorman will conduct two weeks' examination.

STRIKE DANGER PASSED.

Railroad and Employees Have Adjusted Their Differences.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Philadelphia, July 18.—The crucial conference of employees, leaders and General Manager Myers, of the Pennsylvania railroad, was concluded at 1:30 this afternoon. It was stated that the situation had practically cleared, but another conference would be necessary late this afternoon or tomorrow morning. All indications now are that the crisis has passed, and there is no further danger of a strike on the Pennsylvania lines.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS STOPPED.

But Week End Trips Will Take Their Place.

Sunday was the last of the excursions that the Norfolk Southern will run from Raleigh to Morehead City and Beaufort. But in place of these Sunday excursions the road will, beginning next Saturday, run week-end trips on a very convenient schedule that will give the people an opportunity of spending Saturday night and Sunday at the seaside. This train will leave Raleigh about 12:30 p. m. Saturday, and pass Greenville about 3 p. m. and reach Morehead and Beaufort in time for supper. Returning the train will leave Beaufort about 5:40 p. m., and Morehead about 6 o'clock. The fare for the round trip from Greenville will be $2.25.

Complimentary Musical.

There will be an informal musical given by the teachers of the summer school of the Teachers' Training School in the school assembly hall, tonight, at 8:30 o'clock, complimentary to our friends in Greenville and vicinity.

OUR NEIGHBOR AND OURSELF.

Well to Remember the Example That You Set.

Each of us is responsible not only for his own conduct but also in a certain degree for that of those about him. Too few of us realize how much influence some word or deed of ours may have over another. We do not stop to think when we do or say something that we ought not to do or say that perhaps someone is watching us who is tempted to do that very thing and that he may think because we do it that it is the proper thing to do. How often we hear that offered as an excuse: "Oh, well, So-and-so does it, and I guess if he can I can."

Especially is this responsibility a serious one on the part of men as regards their influence over young boys and younger men. The mind of a boy or a young man is very impressionable and susceptible to influences of this sort. Let the average be in the company of men who swear and he will swear, too. Let him see drinking, chewing and smoking about him and he will easily follow the example of his elders; naturally, he gives them credit for having more intelligence than he and for knowing what is right to do.

We ought to regard this not only as a responsibility, but also as an opportunity for which to be thankful, for it seems to me nothing can be finer than to know that we have been instrumental in however a small degree, in helping to keep the young boys and young men about us clean and true and healthy minded. It is a great deal pleasanter to know that than it would be to know that by example and influence we have given some young traveler a wrong direction on the path of life and that he has done wrong or made a fool of himself because he saw us do it, and therefore thought it was the proper thing to do.

Some people are forever worrying over the conduct of others, not paying as much attention to their own as they might. The thing to do is not to worry over what others do, but what we do that may influence them.—Eli.

ADVICE FOR YOUNG MEN.

Something That Every One Should Heed.

Remember, my son, you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, dig ditches or edit a paper, ring an auction bell or write funny things, you must work. If you look around you will see the men who are the most able to live the rest of their days without work are the men who work the hardest.

Don't be afraid of killing yourself with overwork. It is beyond your power to do that on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes, but it is because they quit work at 6 p. m. and don't get home until 2 a. m. It is the interval that kills, my son. The work gives you an appetite for your meals; it lends solidity to your slumbers; it gives you a perfect and grateful appreciation of a holiday.

There are young men who do not work, but the world is not proud of them. It does not know their names even; it simply speaks of them as "old So-and-So's boys." Nobody likes them; the great, busy world doesn't know that they are there. So find out what you want to do, and take off your coat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less harm you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and nappier your holidays and the better satisfied the world will be with you.—Bod Rendille.

A COMPLIMENT.

From One Who Knows Whereof He Speaks.

Mr. Z. T. Broughton, who is himself all the routine of a printing office self an "old print" having been through from "devil up, and knows it form A to Z, stopped the editor this morning to say: "I want to congratulate you on the get-up and appearance of The Reflector. You have improved it not only a hundred per cent, but five hundred. It is finer paper, and a great credit to Greenville and Pitt county. I know what it takes to make such a newspaper."

WAR BETWEEN THE TWO RACES IN LOUISIANA.

NEGRO LYNCHED AND TWO OTHERS FATALLY SHOT.

Another Escaped to Woods and is Hunted With Blood Hounds—Strong Posse in Pursuit.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Franklinton, La., July 18.—A race war has broken out at Rio Junction, in this State and as a result one negro has been lynched and two others fatally shot. One escaped to the woods and is being hunted for with blood hounds. The negroes there are arming, and a posse has been sent out from here to help stop the trouble which began last night.

MINCING SKIRT IS HERE AGAIN

Ladies Find Them Rather Impractical in This Country.

Ultra-fashionable women today must mince their steps just as much as ever our poor, misrepresented, gentle grandmothers had to do. It has been put down to affection and a foolish idea of femininity that our gentle grandmothers were gentle and "ladylike," and inactive and helpless and all the rest of it. And yet what honest woman who has tried to pursue her ordinary twentieth-century activities in a skirt that measures two yards around the bottom will not admit that our grandmothers were not to blame for their inaction and helplessness? They were literally held down by the terrible limitations of cloth.

I caught sight of a woman the other day who seemed to be hurrying to catch a train. She was making her way in the direction of the Grand Central Station with as brisk and long strides as her narrow skirt would allow her. She was decidedly hampered. I thought it must have been an imperative necessity to catch that train that could have made her attempt such an incongruity as a brisk walk in a two yards-around-the-bottom skirt, for there was hardly one among all the busy people in that neighborhood who did not turn to watch her make her ridiculous, skirt-bound strides across the street.

And yet it was a pretty skirt she had on. I would not have you take objection to the skirt by any means. The objection should be all against her doing such an unseemly, ungentele, un-eighteenth century thing as to hustle for a train! Or, I am afraid that the more practical of you will suggest she might have made her skirt with a yard's or even half a yard's more width—which is the compromise that most of us make.

One of these interesting things in fashions—it is one of the commonplaces, too—is the way the same ideas recur. This narrowing of skirts that some women are carrying to the extreme now and other women are rebelling against is the same cry that held everybody's interest when the sheath style first came into vogue. Since then Fashion has turned away for a brief time from the very narrow skirts, then has very promptly returned to them. The idea of the narrow silhouette was not really given up. Skirts were allowed for a while to be actually wider only under the condition that they fell in soft, straight folds.—Mrs. W. Harrison Black, in The Designer for August.

Lamp Explodes.

Early Saturday night a swinging hall lamp in the home of Miss Etta Hines went wrong and took fire all inside of the oil fount. With some difficulty the lamp was taken down and carried out into the street where it continued to burn until the fount exploded.

NEGRO GIRL MAKES HIGH DIVE INTO WELL.

WENT DOWN HEAD FIRST—CAME OUT UNHURT.

Timely Assistance With old Sweep Saved Her Life, But She Was a "Skered Coon fo' Sho."

Mr. Bithel Fleming, who lives a few miles from town tells us of an accident, or what came near being an accident, that occurred at his home a few days ago. The incident first looked serious, but was amusing after it was over.

Mrs. Fleming was out in the yard looking after the family laundering and had a colored girl helping her. The girl went to the well, the old fashioned open kind, to draw some water, and losing her balance tumbled head first over the curb and down she first plunger. Mrs. Fleming called for help and her husband was quickly on the scene. Just as Mr. Fleming looked down the well he saw the girl right herself as she arose head up from beneath the water. He lowered the sweep and drew the girl out of the well, finding her none the worse for her involuntary high dive. It being a hot day, the girl was not even discomfited by the ducking she got.

BULLETIN ON FIG CULTURE.

Prepared by North Carolina Experiment Station.

A very timely bulletin of Fig Culture has just been prepared and published by the North Carolina experiment station. The publication was prepared to supply information with reference to the growth and marketing of the fig, for at this time much interest is manifested in fig culture by farmers and other fruit growers in most sections of the upper South. The bulletin deals with the climate requirements of the fig, as well as the sections of the State suited for the growth of this fruit. It discusses the advantages and opportunities the State has over other sections.

Such subjects as soils for figs, propagation, planting, cultivation, mulching, measures, and fertilizers, irrigation, pruning, winter protection, harvesting, marketing, uses and varieties are fully discussed. The important subject of the premature dropping of green or immature figs is fully treated and remedies for the same are given.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured free by addressing director C. B. Williams, West Raleigh, N. C.

BASE BALL.

Greenville vs. Williamston, Wednesday, July 20th.

After a short layoff occasioned by the absence of several players from town, the Greenville team will again take the field on Wednesday, July 20th, when they will cross bats with the crack team of Williamston.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock p. m., in order to allow the visitors to catch the train. Everybody is invited.

One-Legged Chicken.

We have heard of two-legged chickens, and three-legged chickens, and even of an occasional one adorned with four legs, but not until now, so far as is recalled, do we remember to have noted the existence of one that had only a single leg. Mr. J. J. Elks, of Chicod township, tells us that one of his hens "came off" with a hatching of chickens recently, and among the brood was one that had but one leg. Otherwise this particularly chicken was as well formed as any in the brood.

Taken Sick on Excursion Train.

Mr. James Averett went on the excursion to Morehead City Sunday, and suffered a painful experience before getting back home. Soon after eating dinner he went to the surf and remained in the water for quite a while. On the return trip home on the train he was seized with a violent attack of cramp colic and came near dying before relieved. His condition is much improved today.

SHE TEACHES CORRECT SPEECH.

One Woman Supplies a Need and Makes a Good Living

Woman of culture and travel made a glorious success of teaching correct speech. It is surprising how much incorrect speech there is among educated people. They cling to provincialisms, incorrect pronunciations, wrong use of words, and unmusical intonations. The Southerner holds to the soft, r-less utterance of his "mammy" days; the middlewesterner flattens all his vowels; the Bostonian throws his r's completely out of joint. This woman undertook to correct such errors and teach a pure, perfect English speech to a few young women. She became so successful that she was compelled to start a school of correct English which has grown to great proportions. This promising field is open in every town in America.—The Delineator for July.

Opposition.

A certain amount of opposition is a great help to a man. It is what he wants and must have to be good for anything. Hardships and opposition are the native soil of manhood and self reliance.—John Neal.

It is not the insurrection of ignorance that is dangerous, but the revolts of intelligence.—Lowell.

Next week will be New Bern's big time with her bi-centennial celebration and meeting of the State Firemen Association.

The rain made a decided difference in the temperature today.

The rain stops the street work again.

MR. L. I. MOORE ILL.

Stricken Under Intense Heat While in His Office.

A dispatch in Sunday morning papers telling of the serious illness of Mr. L. I. Moore, of New Bern, caused much uneasiness among his host of friends here. The dispatch stated that while in his office Saturday he was overcome by the intense heat and was seriously ill in consequence. In falling to the floor he also sustained painful injuries upon his face. Inquiries by wire to New Bern Sunday and today reported the condition of Mr. Moore as much better, and it is hoped he will soon be entirely restored.

MONDAY, JULY 18, 1910.

Possibly it has been this warm before, but it is too hot now to think about them.

It was not so much turning down the governor's appointments as it was the people preferred somebody else.

Last year 4500 convicts worked on the public roads of Georgia and 21,000 miles of roads were built and permanently improved.

We thought Mr. Roosevelt knew it all before, but he says he is going to spend several days working on an exhaustive study of New York politics.

Says the Wilmington Dispatch: "The chap who asks 'Is it warm enough for you' ought to be fired alive." A roasting would be better.

Everybody who knows of her progress says, "Pitt county is the biggest and best county in eastern Carolina." We must maintain our position, but we can not do it without good roads.

The Wilmington Dispatch wants to know if some one can't get up a North Pole discussion to relieve the hot weather. The kind of discussion we had before would only make it hotter, as there was no frigidity about it.

Whatever a man doeth, that is what goeth to make up his record. What he saith in juggling words and yet cometh not across with actions to suit his words: the same setteth a snare for the unwary, the unsophisticated, and the sucker. Fair promises unperformed are delusions and the final analysis of them is hot air.

MEN OF ABILITY.

The Chronicle understands that the Democrats of Johnston county are arranging to send Ashley Horne to the legislature, the only difficulty in the way being the securing of his consent. It is to be hoped that Mr. Horne will give in. As a member of the legislature he could do his State valuable service. It has been noted that there is a disposition on part of the people of the State, this year, to send men of ability and influence to the legislature. In Carr, Boyden and Horne, the State would have a mighty triumvirate. We would account the sending of Mr. Horne to the legislature a fortunate circumstance. We hope they will get him in the nation of going. He lives so close to Raleigh that he could serve in the legislature and sleep at home and it would not be the hardship upon him that it is upon the others.

It has already been noted that Durham county has nominated Gen. J. S. Carr for the legislature, and as the Chronicle says, it is really to send men of ability to represent the counties. There has been much surmise as to who Pitt County can send this year, and while The Reflector is not in the habit of bringing out men for nomination but leaves the selection to the people, it is going to take occasion to ask here, could Pitt county do better than to send ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis as one of its representatives in the next legislature. There is not a man who could do more for the county and State than he.

The legislature would be a striking contrast to the offices he has already held—governor of his State United States senator, minister to Brazil—but if he could be induced to go to the legislature the people would honor themselves in sending him. And just think what he could do for us!

One of the truest of many good things credited to ex President Roosevelt is the following paragraph: "I warn my countrymen that the great recent progress made in city life is not a full measure of our civilization; for our civilization rests at the bottom on the wholeness, the attractiveness and the completeness, as well as the prosperity in life, in the country. The men and women on farms stand for what is fundamentally and most needed in our American life. Upon the development of the country life rests ultimately our ability, by methods of farming requiring the highest intelligence, to continue to feed and clothe the hungry nations; to supply the city with fresh blood, clean bodies and clear brains that can endure the terrific strain of modern life. We need the development of men in the open country who will be in the future, as in the past, the stay and strength of the nation in the time of war and its guiding and controlling spirit in the time of peace."

The Chronicle agrees with The Progressive Farmer in this: It is a high ideal which The Fayetteville Index has set for its territory but one which is none to high and which every other county paper in the South would do well to pattern after. We quote "The index wants to see the time when all the principal roads of Cumberland, Robeson, Bladen, Sampson and Harnett counties are real highways and all the branch roads of any importance are good roads; when every white child in each of these counties is in easy reach of a comfortable and modern schoolhouse with a school library and well trained and well paid teachers; when in easy reach of every citizen of each of these counties is a comfortable and attractive church building with a well paid, capable and consecrated pastor; when throughout all these counties is a network of telephone wires and mos. of the homes have telephones and all comforts and conveniences of the modern city home; when the average farm will produce twice as much crop with the same average expense as it now produces, and when the farmer and the laborer will get their rightful share of the profits of toil."—Charlotte Chronicle.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Greenville, But Daily Growing Less. The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed. Not one so important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood. When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous. There can be no health where there is poisoned blood. Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble. It is the kidney's cry for help. Heed it. Doan's Kidney Pills is what is wanted. Are just what overworked kidneys need. They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.

Mrs. B. Pittman, Walnut street, Tarboro, N. C., says: "For some time I had not been feeling well and thought that my kidneys might be disordered, as my back was very weak and the passages of the kidney secretions were irregular. My husband got me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and since using them, my back has become stronger and my kidneys have been normal. I am now feeling much better in every way and therefore am willing to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

MUSICAL GLASSES.

The Queer Looking "Armonica" That Franklin Devised.

Books have been written about the many sided Franklin. His omnivorous and practical mind seemed ready to attack any new branch of science with the same earnestness. Music did not escape him, and he actually invented a musical instrument that was sufficiently unique to arouse the interest of some of the great masters.

How long "musical glasses" have been used for their special purposes no one really knows. There is an account of an Irish performer who played upon the musical glasses in his native country as early as 1743. When Gluck went to England (April, 1746) there is an account of his playing at the little Haymarket theater, which runs as follows: "He played a concerto on twenty-six drinking glasses, tuned with spring water, accompanied by the whole band, being a new instrument of his own invention, upon which he performs whatever may be done upon the violin or harpsichord." In Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" the "musical glasses" are mentioned as being fashionable.

When Franklin was in London (1762) he saw a performer upon the glasses, who played them by wetting his fingers and wiping them over the brims. Seeking to improve and systematize this instrument and at the same time to extend its usefulness by means of the application of mechanical appliances, Franklin devised an unusual looking instrument which was described thus in Grove's Dictionary: "The bells or basins of glass were ranged or strung on an iron spindle (long rod). The largest and deep toned ones were at the left and gradually rose in pitch according to the usual scale. The lower edges of the basins were dipped in a trough of water. The spindle or rod was made to revolve before the performer, so that all the glass bowls were kept continually going around and around by means of a treadle connected with the spindle and operated by the foot of the performer. The sound was produced by applying the fingers to the wet edges of the bowls as they revolved. Franklin called the instrument the armonica.

Mozart wrote music for this unusual musical machine, and it became very popular in parts of Germany. The composer Naumann wrote sonatas for it, and at one time it was used in some of the court orchestras. Beethoven wrote a piece of twenty-four measures for the instrument. In Germany the instrument was called the harmonica. Its tone was often irritating, penetrating and exciting, and it was said to have had a bad effect upon the nerves of the performers.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Jules Verne's Romance.

The story of Jules Verne's courtship and marriage is a most romantic one. Verne was a shy young fellow who had a great dislike to the society of women, and it was only his affection for his brother which led him to go to the latter's wedding. Verne, however, arrived too late and found that the whole bridal party had left for the church with the exception of the bride's sister, a charming young widow, who explained the matter. The friendship thus accidentally begun rapidly developed into a warmer feeling and ended in a marriage which may be described as ideal.

Cut Both Ways.

A farmer's boy in Scotland was charged with attempting to steal an article from a shop door. In pleading his case he said he didn't steal the thing—he was only gaun tae dae it," whereupon the judge informed him that to do it and going to do it were all the same and that he would have to pay a fine of 10 shillings or go to jail for ten days. The boy, not having the money, was allowed to go and get it from a friend. In a little while he was seen standing in the court, and when asked if he had got the money to pay his fine he answered: "Na, but I was gaun tae dae it, and ye said that gaun tae dae it and dae it were jist the same. I'm thinking you and me'll be aboot clear hoo."—Pearson's.

Getting Around it.

"Thomas, you have disobeyed your old grandmother."
"No, I didn't, ma."
"Yes, you did: Have you not been swimming?"
"Yes, ma."
"Didn't I hear her say to you not to go swimming?"
"Oh, she didn't tell us that! She only came out and said, 'Boys, I wouldn't go swimmin', and I shouldn't think she would, an' old rheumatic woman like her. But she didn't say anything about our goin' swimmin'."

HORSE SWAPPING

In the Good Old Days It Was Sport, Not Commercialism.

A MAN TOOK A CHANCE THEN.

He Didn't Ask For a Written Guarantee That the Animal Was Sound, and if He Got Stuck He Bided His Time to Pass Along the Prize.

"I have been reading that David Harum story," said the ancient liveried man when his cronies were comfortably seated in his little office. "A friend told me that story was the last word on horse trading, but the man who wrote it didn't understand the spirit of the game at all. David Harum would have been skinned out of his teeth if he had blown into any western town in the palmy days of horse trading twenty-five or thirty years ago."

"I tell you, my friends, all the dead game sports are asleep with their fathers. Nobody is willing to take a chance nowadays. If a man buys a cigar he wants a bill of sale with it. The other day a cheap skate pestered me a whole afternoon talking about buying a horse. He tried out all the nags in the barn and finally decided that the glass-eyed bay would suit him. And he actually wanted a written guarantee that the horse was sound! A written guarantee! No, gentlemen, I am not joking. That bald-headed travesty on a man actually asked for such a document. I regarded it as an insult, and after I had rebuked him they had to pour four buckets of water over him before he recovered.

"In the good old days horse trading was a game, not a commercial transaction. If a man wasn't willing to take the chances when he went trading he was advised to try some other line of business. Many and many a time I had the harpoon administered to me. One day Major Charlie Slaughter drove to my barn.

"I have quite a neat package of horseflesh here," said the major, and I have a sort of presentment that he can travel a few lines when the wind is blowing in the right direction."

"His horse was a handsome roan, a regular peacock for style, with his head away up in the air so you'd need a stepladder to see if he had a star on his forehead. And the way he hit the road was a sin. Talk about galting horses! That roan handled his legs as though he had taken sparring lessons. Now, my weak point in the horse business is that when I want a certain nag the worst way I can't conceal the fact. I just can't sleep or eat my victuals until that horse is in my barn with a new halter on him. The major was wise to my weakness.

"It's no use, Jake," says the major. "This hoss isn't on my swapping list. Every roan half on him just suits me, and I'd be a chump to let him go."

"Well, of course I got the roan all right. The major was just bluffing. And I gave him the biggest trade you ever heard of—gave him a matched team and several bills for that gangling roan. And when I took the roan to the water trough for a drink I found that he couldn't lower his head. He had to carry it about ten feet in the air all the time, owing to some injury in his neck. He had to eat his flaked rice off a shelf and drink from a garden hose, and a man needed an aeroplane to put a bridle on him.

"Did I raise a fuss with the major? What sort of skate do you take me for? Next time I let him I told him I liked the roan better than any horse I ever saw. 'He isn't always rooting in the ground like a pig,' said I, 'and if you had told me about his patent dirigible neck I'd have given you $10 more.' We were sports in those days.

"One time the veterinary surgeon told me about a fine trotting horse in a town some distance away which had been deprived of its tail by a surgical operation. I went and looked at the horse. He was a perfect beauty and could trot like an avalanche. But he had just a stump of a tail, and the owner was ashamed to drive him, so I bought the critter for a song. I went to a lot of trouble having a tail made for him. It was a beautiful, flowing tail, a credit to the hairdresser's art. It was fixed to slip over the horse's stub tail and was then fastened to the crupper of the harness, and a man needed good eyes to see that it wasn't the real thing.

"The major had poor eyes, and when I took him for a drive behind that black trotter he simply had to be tied down to the seat he was so excited. He said he'd always wanted a horse with a tail like that. He had my own weakness. He couldn't pretend indifference when he wanted a thing the worst way, and he wanted that horse so bad that his hair was falling out. After a great deal of deliberation I issued my ultimatum.

"I'll give you the horse, harness and buggy just as they stand, said I, 'for your sorry three-year-olds and $50.' Either of the sorrels was worth a herd of horses like the black.

"It's a trade," cried the major. "Next morning the major came around to my barn all smiles. 'Ever since I was a child and quit playing with a rattle,' says he, 'I have wanted a horse with a detachable tail—a tail that a man could take off and use as chin whiskers at a masked ball. I just called to pay you another 50 cents, so that when I meet you after this you can't say I took advantage of you in our trade yesterday.'

"Oh, there were real sports in those days."—Walt Mason in Chicago News.

When the sea is smooth we have many good sailors.

THIS IS A BIG COUNTRY.

One Man Traveled Away Out West as Far as Boston.

The ideas of foreigners regarding the size and characteristics of this country do not seem to grow less amusing with age, and the statement that in London there are people who think New York is a city of Indians is not so farfetched as some consider it.

The writer met at Long Branch last summer and Englishwoman, and a cultured Englishwoman at that, who had gone there directly after landing from a steamer in New York. Having casually mentioned that I was born in Brooklyn, she remarked that she had met some people named Henderson who lived on Long Island and wondered if I knew them. I asked in what part of Long Island they lived, and she naively answered, "Oh, down near the business section!"

A young Englishman whose cousin is in the grain business in this city came over to see his relative and also to see something of the country. One of the first places suggested to him was Niagara falls, and at train time the Englishman presented himself minus overcoat and hand bag.

"Where's your grip?" asked his cousin.

"Why, can't we run over and see the falls and get back tonight?" he asked.

On being assured that he could not he began asking questions regarding distances and ended with, "How big is this state?"

When he was told that it was bigger than the whole of England there were no fitting words to express his wonderment.

Another young Englishman came to New York during a very warm Indian summer. He spent a week there and then went on to Canada, returning to New York in March to embark for England.

He was asked the inevitable question, "How do you like America?" His answer was: "It's a nasty country. 'Arf the year you are roasted, and the other 'arf you are up to your waist in snow."

A New Yorker went to Brazil last year to put in a few months on one of the cattle ranges. One day a young Irishman rode into camp to see the New Yorker, saying that he had ridden forty miles to do so, as he wished to inquire of him as to the health of his brother, who left Ireland ten years before and was settled in New York city. There was no question in his mind but that the two would know each other.

Still our foreign cousins are not so much more vague on these subjects than are some natives. For instance, a man in Maine whom I met last summer told me in the course of a conversation that he had "been west as far as Boston."—Boston Herald.

USE FEET AS HANDS.

A Custom Somewhat Common Among the Yellow Races.

A French savant, M. Lannelongue, in a communication to the Paris Academy of Sciences maintains that among the yellow races, the Chinese, the Japanese and the Malays, the foot is used as an organ of prehension, like the hand, to a far greater extent than is generally supposed. He says that while in Tokyo he saw a young man sitting in a theater box grasping the rail with his feet just as though they were hands, ever and anon using his right foot to scratch his left thigh. The fact that the Japanese usually sit on their heels at meals and in the house develops extreme suppleness and mobility in the feet and toes, and the prehensile function is still further encouraged by the fact that the Japanese who adhere to the ancient customs wear forked stockings and dispense with the indexible and constricting European shoe.

Chinese postmen navigate their boats lying down, steering with their hands and rowing with their feet. The cat is held between the big toe and the others. The natives frequently use their feet to collect and to pick up small objects lying on the ground, and sometimes even catch mice with their toes. M. Lannelongue holds that the yellow races, who are able to use their feet somewhat as the elephant uses his trunk or the monkey his tail, enjoy a very considerable advantage in the everlasting struggle for existence over the less fortunate Caucasians, who are able to employ their feet only for locomotion purposes.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rebuked.

Hoffman, the German physicist, arrived in Glasgow late one Saturday night and on Sunday morning went to call on Lord Kelvin. The doorbell was answered by a woman servant, whom Hoffman asked if Sir William was at home.

The servant answered, "Sir, he most certainly is not."

Hoffman then asked, "Could you tell me where I could find him?"

"Sir," she answered, "you will find him at church, where you ought to be!"

His Revenge.

"You shouldn't have proposed to me," she said gently. "You might have known I'd refuse you."

"I did know," he said savagely, "or I wouldn't have proposed."—Baltimore American.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, July 18.—There was a large general trading in cotton in the opening today, accompanied by a jump of 11 to 26 points, August showing extreme advance. A strong and unexpected upturn at Liverpool was largely due to a covering movement. Opening: July 16.50; August 15.50; September 13.83; October 13.00; January 12.79.

New York, July 18.—Many gains were shown today at the opening of the stock market and in early trading, but after the first sales prices were generally more regular, and confined within narrow limits. People's gas rose 1 1/2%, while a majority of the railroad ranged 1/4 to 1/2 above Saturday's close. New York Central, however, was weak, declining 1/2%. Demands that caused material gains were quickly out and there was a reaction. Industrials ranged slightly higher.

Chicago, July 18.—Wheat led the grain list upward this morning, shorts and investors taking hold in the belief that prices are to advance still further. Corn was in demand from shorts mainly in sympathy with the wheat upturn. Oats are up, with other cereals and provisions steady with hogs.

SHE SHUT HER EYES.

True to Her Principles, She Determined Not to See.

Mrs. Storey's life had been haunted for years by the fear that some day she might be called upon to serve as a witness in court. Her grandmother was a witness once, and when Mrs. Storey was a little girl she used to hear all about it. Grandma, it appears, had been so scared she couldn't tell the judge her own name.

"And," said Mrs. Storey to her husband, "if there is anything more disgraceful than to be unable to tell your own name I'd like to know what it is."

In order to reduce the possibility of such a calamity to a minimum Mrs. Storey would walk on with deafened ears and averted head whenever she happened to be near a fire, a fight or the scene of an accident. Only the other day she had occasion to shut her eyes and ears to the seething crowd around her. She was waiting in the Grand Central station for Mr. Storey, who had gone around to the baggage room to check a trunk.

Presently she became aware that something exciting was happening close beside her. Hastily she shut her eyes and stuck her fingers into her ears, but before those protective measures could be accomplished she learned that a female thief had snatched a hand bag which she had found lying on the floor and was being pursued by an excited crowd. Not being entirely devoid of the curiosity of her sex, Mrs. Storey would have liked to know more, but the old fear of being detained as a witness held her inert until her husband's return. Then she ventured to ask if they had caught the thief.

"Yes," said Mr. Storey, "but they couldn't do anything with her. Every one was confident the bag didn't belong to her, but as nobody appeared to claim it they had to let her go."

At that Mrs. Storey opened her eyes. "I am so glad," she said, "that it is all over. I am ready to go now. But, oh, dear me! Where are my purse and hand bag? I had them here a moment ago. They must have dropped—oh, I wonder!"

"No use to wonder now," said Mr. Storey heartlessly. "Of course the stolen bag was yours."—New York Herald.

Visitor—And how is Johnny getting on with his figures?

Johnny (aged five)—Oh, I'm learning my tables, and I can do a few sums.

Visitor—Good! If I were to give you a dozen apples and you ate three, how many would you have?

Johnny—Twelve.

Visitor—Wrong. You'd have only nine left.

Johnny—No; I should have twelve—three inside and nine out.—London Scraps.

Antiquity of Gold Leaf.

The origin of the gold leaf, like the first use of gold itself, is lost in the mists of antiquity. It is found, for example, in connection with the most ancient known mummies, having been used for covering teeth, tongue, skin, etc. Sometimes it is also found on the coffins. Gold leaf was also used on the tombs and monuments of ancient Egypt. The process of making gold leaf has thus been known since the eighth century B. C. In the eleventh century it seems to have attained as high a degree of perfection as today. The gold leaf on some ancient Grecian pottery indeed is as thin as that now used.—Magazine of Commerce.

A South Arabian Food Plant.

Jowari, a tall, slender plant resembling corn and headed with a grain something like millet, is the Abdali's chief crop. He feeds the stalks to his camels and eats the grain himself. Three crops a year are produced. Jowari requires little cultivation except weeding, which the Abdali does by hand, and when ripe he cuts it off close to the ground with his hunting knife. New shoots spring up from the roots to become the next crop. For a camel load of about 125 pounds he receives at Aden an average of 2 rupees, or $64.88. A fair yearly yield is twenty camel loads an acre.—Consular and Trade Reports.

Classified.

Custom house stories are always interesting. The hero of this one, a Swiss missionary, was returning to Basle from South America, taking with him some skulls discovered in ancient Patagonian burying places. At the frontier the authorities insisted on inspecting his trunk. They classified the skulls as "bones of animals" and demanded duty at the rate of a penny a pound. The missionary protested, and it was presently agreed that as the skulls were for scientific purposes they must be allowed to enter without payment.

The only question was how to classify them for the purposes of the Swiss statistical bureau. This problem was debated at great length, but ultimately the skulls went through as "personal effects already worn."—New York Sun.

Sounded Like a Game.

"We had an African explorer at the club last evening. He talked of progressive Abyssinia."

"Sounds interesting. How do you play it?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PHOTOGRAPHIC PLATES.

Discarded Ones Make Business For the Old Negative Man.

There are people in every large city who make a business of buying up old used photographic plates, cleaning and reselling them. They get their supply mostly from the photographers who make a specialty of commercial or newspaper illustration. No one knows how many thousands of these squares of glass are sold every week, but the number must be enormous in the aggregate.

While it is the custom for photographers to preserve carefully all plates that they think may be of future value, they discard a great many more than they keep. A firm of newspaper photographers, for instance, will send out several men to get pictures of snow scenes or of spring in the suburbs or of summer at the seaside. Each will bring back half a dozen views. Only three or four will be selected as being worth preserving. The other twenty or thirty plates will be dumped into a big box with the other discards to await the coming of the glass man.

The average selling price for the plate of ordinary size is $3 a thousand. These plates cost the photographer originally about 80-cents a dozen. By means of an acid bath the dark covering is quickly removed, and the glass becomes as clear as though it had never been used. Some of these plates are sold to manufacturers to be recoated with the sensitive film and to be used once more in photography. A far greater number, however, are disposed of to dealers, who sell them to people who are fond of making passe-partout pictures. Still more find their way to greenhouse men and those gardeners who have acres of "cold frames," where vegetables are propagated under glass. A few are used as decorative or protective features around flower beds in suburban estates.—Harper's Weekly.

Time Hung Heavy on His Hands.

A Chinese laundryman recently had his troubles with a watch that habitually lost time. So he took the timepiece to the nearest watchmaker.

"Watchee no good to Charlie Lee," said he briefly, pushing it across the counter. "You fixee him, eh?"

"Certainly," said the watchmaker. "What seems to be the trouble with it?"

"Oh, him too muchee by 'n' by," said Charlie Lee.—Harper's Weekly.
