PITT COUNTY WILL HAVE A VOTING PRIMARY. COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE SO DECIDES QUESTION.

Saturday, September 10th, Named as
Day for Primary, Polls to be Open
From 7 a. m., to 6 p. m.

The Democratic executive committee of Pitt county held an adjourned meeting here today, in the office of Chairman F. C. Harding, to further discuss and determine the matter as to whether the county shall have a delegated convention or a voting primary to select candidates for the various county offices and the legislature. There was a full attendance of the committee, every township being represented.

The first work of the meeting, after some statements by Chairman Harding, was to give an opportunity to any person present, not members of the committee, to be heard first. Several expressed themselves in short speeches, the summary showing that there was pretty near an equal division of the sentiment on the question, with the feeling of all wanting to do what was for the best interest of the party.

The roll of townships was called for, the member of the committee from each to express his views, and in these almost the same equal division of sentiment was shown, the idea of doing what is best being upmost with every member.

The roll of townships was again called for the taking of a vote on the question, and the result was seven votes for a voting primary, five for a delegated convention, as near an equal division of sentiment as could have been made without a tie vote. The townships voted as follows: For voting primary, Belvoir, Bethel, Chicod, Contentnea No. 2, Falkland, Farmville, Greenville. For delegated convention, Beaver Dam, Swift Creek, Carolina, Contentnea No. 1, Pactolus.

Immediately following the announcement of the vote there was a motion that a call for the voting primary to be made unanimous, and this motion was carried without a dissenting vote, showing that every one, regardless of what his individual views might be, was ready to yield to the will of the majority.

The selection of the date for the primary was then taken up and after some discussion, Saturday, September 10th, was selected as the date, the primary to be open from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The entire meeting was marked with utmost harmony, and the readiness to which all assented to the will of the majority indicated that the interest of the party was at heart and every one wished to do just what is best.

BRYAN GETS DEFEATED.

Nebraska State Convention Against Him by Large Majority.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Grand Island, Neb., July 27.—William Jennings Bryan, thrice the Democratic candidate for the presidency, was overwhelmingly defeated in the State convention early this morning, when by a vote of 647 to 198 the delegates rejected his county option plank. The defeat of Mr. Bryan was especially in that it was his former friends and supporters who wrested the leadership from him when they registered such strong disbelief in his policies.

The principal figures in the fight in the convention were Mr. Bryan, Governor Shallenberger and ex-Mayor James C. Dahlman, of Omaha. Governor Shallenberger came out of the fight a complete victor.

RIOTING IN INDIANA.

Grand Trunk Strikers Giving Trouble
to Railroads.

By Wire to The Reflector.
South Bend, Ind., July 27.—Mob attacks on freight trains ending with the ditching of six cars, and an unsuccessful effort to kidnap non-union members of the crew, were the chief happenings in the last twenty-four hours of the Grand Trunk strike. The strikers have threatened to kill all non-union freight workers. The mob rushed a freight train, rolled it into a ditch, and later attacked the crew of a passenger train, who were saved from capture by interference of the police.

JUDGE HARRY W. WHEDBEE.

Now Holding New Hanover Superior
Court—Makes Fine Impression.

Judge Harry W. Whedbee is this week and next holding court in Wilmington. From the Wilmington Dispatch we take the following expression of him and the impression he is making:

"Judge Harry W. Whedbee, of Greenville, who went on the bench about a week ago taking Judge Ward's place, is presiding and has already made a good impression. Judge Whedbee is a fine looking man. In fact, his appearance is what might be termed a masterly one. His face is strong, though kindly, and his eye is firm and steady. He is stalwart of build and an easy, quiet talker."

"Judge Whedbee's charge was clear and forcible. There was nothing bombastic about it. Neither was there frills, nor sensations. It was a plain, logical, and it may be stated with accuracy, strong definition of a grand jury's duties and the laws they have to pass upon. He discussed and described the higher crimes, such as murder, arson and felonious assault, and laid particular stress upon perjury, which, he said, is one of the most serious of all crimes, endangering life and property. He told the grand jury that there is no safety for any one save in the strict enforcement of the law, and to all alike."

OHIO REPUBLICANS.

Conservatives Capture Platform Committee and Garfield Withdraws.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Columbus, July 27.—The conservatives captured the Ohio Republican platform committee, and the platform as adopted by the State convention is a complete endorsement of the Taft administration, including the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. The Garfield forces did not oppose the platform on the floor of the convention but Garfield would not allow his name to be presented as a candidate for governor on the platform adopted. Only two names were presented, W. C. Harding, who has the support of the Foraker-Taft forces, and O. Brown who is favored by the Cox men. The first ballot, however, indicated a deadlock, Harding getting 485, Brown 413, Garfield 73, Longworth 92 Denman 2. Necessary to a choice 533.

Columbus.—(Later) Harding was nominated for governor on the third ballot.

BEAVER DAM ITEMS.

Store Broken Into—Arthur Booming,
Some Very Old People.

Beaver Dam, N. C., July 27, 1910.
Wilson & Joyner's store was broken into on Saturday night and about $25 worth of goods taken.

Arthur, the capital of Beaver Dam, is booming. The fourth store is now going up and will have a stock of goods in it by the fall.

Messrs. G. T. Tyson, jr., Robert McArthur and Mark Smith each have an acre in fine corn. Their dads are jealous of the boys in their good farming.

Beaver Dam has her ancient people. Clement Allen has passed his 90th mile post in life. Alfred Nichols has 76 years behind him. Rachel Nobles, colored, has rounded out 84. Uncle Tommy Little is young at 75. Mrs. Allie Joyner carries her 86 years well, and Betty Pollard is still active at 90. So you see the water is fine and sunshine bright out this way.

Mr. J. H. Cobb is leading the farmers in this section on peanuts.

Democrats in Beaver Dam favor a delegated primary, and no one has an axe to grind.

HAPPENINGS THROUGHOUT NORTH CAROLINA.

CREAM OF NEWS GATHERED

Greensboro Doctor Attempts Suicide
—Charlotte Man Sues Railroad for $10,000 Damages.

Wadesboro, July 27.—Recently J. C. Carpenter, a former well known citizen of this county, but whose family now resides in Charlotte, had his nose broken and his back wrenched in a railroad accident at Hamlet. Mr. Carpenter, at the time of the accident was employed by the road as foreman of a bridge crew, but has since been discharged, because it is claimed he refused to settle with the road for the small sum which was offered him. Yesterday McLendon and Thomas filed suit against the road in the Superior court of this county for Mr. Carpenter for $10,000 damages on account of the injuries received in the accident.

Dependent over his illness, which has continued to waste and wear his life away, Dr. Richard K. Gregory, made a desperate attempt to commit suicide yesterday morning at his home on West Market street, but was prevented from carrying out his intentions by members of his family. For a long period Dr. Gregory has been troubled by a disease which physicians are unable to diagnose, and his condition has been growing more alarming almost daily. His efforts to end his life yesterday morning were not so much of a surprise as a shock to his numerous friends, for only recently he had made the statement to one of his friends that he was almost ready to give up the struggle.—Greensboro News.

GOOD ROADS SUGGESTIONS.

A Farmer Gives His Views of Plans
He Thinks Best

Editor Reflector:
In obedience to your request, I will be with you in the good roads meeting August 1st.

While I do not favor issuing bonds to build good roads, I favor better roads, and to change the ancient road law that has outlived its usefulness. My method is as follows:

That every able bodied male citizen work the roads three days in each and every year, or pay three dollars. That every horse and mule be taxed fifty cents each, every cart twenty-five cents, every buggy, carriage and bicycle fifty cents each. That the tax now levied on automobiles be applied to the road fund. That short term convicts be kept to work on roads as now. That each township shall have its amount of road tax spent in its territory. That there be a board of five road directors in each township, and that the roads and bridges be placed in the hands of said directors. That ten cents be levied on every one hundred dollars worth of real estate, as the value may be fixed for county and State taxes. That the rate of tax be charged only by act of legislature. That the road tax be collected by the tax collector as now, and the same paid over to the treasurer as now. That road fund accounts be kept in separate books and shall only be drawn out by order of said township board of directors. That no part of the road work shall be let by contract, but paid for at the market price for labor, per hour. That the teams and machinery and camp outfit be kept and used by all of the townships to get their prorate part of said convict labor. That the overseer of convicts keep an itemized account of all repairs to said property used by said overseer, and if any new is purchased the cost to be borne by each township, their prorate part.

This plan, we believe, brother Editor, will give the best results, as well as the best satisfaction.

MR AND MRS. FORBES ENTERTAIN

In Honor of Approaching Jenkins-
Brown-Marriage.

Tuesday evening the stately, elegant, and lovely home of Mr and Mrs. C. S. Forbes was a scene of beauty, love and joy.

The occasion was a reception given to the bridal party and the out of town guests in honor of the Jenkins-Brown marriage which takes place this evening in St. Paul's Episcopal church.

The guests were received on their arrival at the front door by Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, and in the spacious parlors by Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Moyer, and Misses Glenn and Helen Forbes.

Delicious and refreshing punch was served by Mrs. M. H. Quinerly and Mrs. Fred Forbes out on the large and elegant porch of this magnificent home.

The decorations in the hall were beautiful potted plants of every variety, so tastefully arranged as to give an exceedingly pleasant effect.

The colors in the splendid parlors were white and green so beautifully and delicately blended that unconsciously you felt the impress of love lines.

The decorations in the elegant and beautiful dining room were handsome pink hydrangers and potted plants, making the room so lovely that the guests lingered long to take in fully its beauty. The color scheme was carried out in the delicious refreshments which were served so charmingly.

The hostess, Mrs. Forbes, was attired in lavender crepe with jewel trimmings. The bride-elect, Miss Brown, always lovely, never appeared more charming than she did last evening, gowned in exquisite light blue crepe-media with crystal trimming and Princess lace.

The out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. John Pender, Miss Sallie Pender, Miss Alice Johnston Pender, and Miss Bessie Gaskill of Tarboro; Mrs. Paul Barnhardt, of Salisbury; Mrs. J. B. Cherry, of Kingston, N. Y.; Mr. A. E. Jenkins, Mr. Lawrence Jenkins and Dr. H. C. Henderson, of Charlotte.

The pleasures of the evening were very much enhanced by the sweet music so charmingly given by some of the ladies present.

At a late hour the charm of the evening had to be broken and as each one left, the impression lingered of one of the most delightful evenings ever spent by a happy and joyous bridal party.

Rochdale, N. C., July 27, 1910.

The Fountain boys came Saturday a week ago and played the Rochdale boys a game of ball and went home defeated. The score was 9 to 17 in favor of Rochdale. Our boys went to Fountain last Saturday and took their defeat, the score being 5 to 14 in favor of Fountain.

We had very good Sunday schools both at Smith's school house and at Arthur Sunday.

The people of our section had a bazaar at Arthur Friday night for the benefit of the Free Will Baptist church. They realized about seven or eight dollars.

There was another robbery at Arthur Saturday night. Some one entered Joyner & Wilson's store by breaking the door and carried off a lot of goods, but I did not learn how much.

There is a good deal of truth in what the Clinch Valley News says about bad roads being the cause of insanity in the country. When this Commonwealth has better roads, it will have also a happier and more contented people in the finest country homes on this continent. Hear what the News has to say:

"A statement was made here recently in public that the majority of the inmates in the insane asylums and detention houses for people with weak minds, came from the country. The explanation of the condition was that the bad roads prevented the country people from visiting their neighbors and coming to town, and obtaining mental relaxation from the daily grind on the farm or in the workshop. There are certain communities in Tazwell, which in bad weather are as much isolated as if a high rock wall surrounded them, and when an opportunity is offered these to come to town and attend religious services or be present at municipal, lectures or other mental diversions, the roads are in such condition that even the hope of such things are not enthusiastic. Persons who are not enticed for better roads, if not good roads, will be held responsible by the next generation for the neglect of a duty they owe posterity."

What were the ancestry about that they did not build any better? We are always talking about their great achievements, their sturdy virtues, their beautiful home life, their wonderful public spirit. They were all of that, and more, but they did not leave any good roads behind them, so that their posterity have had a hard time getting about. Perhaps, the posterity of the next three or four generations will think more of their ancestry of 1910 than we think of our forbears. Richmond Dispatch.

If 1910 is a political off-year in North Carolina, the hair of any citizen's flesh might stand up when he thinks of 1912—Cha rlotte Observer.

Should Legal Rate be Raised?

Within ten Southern states, during the past month, forty-one new banks have completed organization, and commenced business, with a combined capital of, from three to four millions. It is a significant fact that only one of these banks out of the forty-one new institutions scattered throughout the South was organized in North Carolina. These figures were compiled by The Southern Banker in its issue of July 20th.

It has long been the cry of those having money to loan in North Carolina that the legal rate of six per cent per annum was entirely too low, as compared with other states, and that new capital, seeking investment instead of stopping in North Carolina, went through to Georgia and South Carolina, Florida and other Southern states whose legal rate of interest was anywhere from 8 to 10 per cent. How far this is true may be judged in a measure by the influx of new capital and the marvelous growth and development of the Southern states. There will come a time soon in the history of this Southern state when the legal rate of interest will be raised. Today there are thousands of people in North Carolina—some of them here in our town—who are sending their money into other states where the legal rate is above six per cent.—High Point Enterprise.

Once again, don't be led into buying sewing machines, ranges, or any sort of household or farm equipment from traveling agents. These men must have a living from their work, and you pay the extra cost this entails above the profit of the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer. In many cases this added cost is 50 to 100 per cent of the price of the article obtained direct from the manufacturer or from your local merchant. The agent's story that his goods are better than those you can get at less cost from your merchant or from the manufacturer can always be safely disregarded. The agent may believe what he is telling you, but that is no reason you should. The highest grade articles can often be had from the merchant than from the traveling agent, and invariably at a lower price.—Progressive Farmer.

What kind of a country is Germany? Over there they advertise for a mayor just like we do for a horse. Here is one of the advertisements—"The place of mayor of Magdeburg is vacant. The salary is 21,000 marks ($5,250) a year including the rental of a dwelling in the city hall. Besides his salary the incumbent will receive 4,000 marks, (1,000) for his official expenses. Candidates should apply before September 1." In this country an ad like this would bring 7,442 applicants from every town, except Charlotte, where they have not that many people. In Germany, however, mayors are employed just as bookkeepers, teachers, and the rest. Men study to become experts in the work and one can be employed, no matter from what place he hales.—Greensboro Record.

From the howl the office-holder crowd is making over the manifest intention of Marion Butler to take charge of the Republican State convention, it is evident that they fear he is going to do it. Butler is marshaling his forces and seems to be succeeding so well that the other crowd has got to calling him "the carrion crow of North Carolina Republicanism." Bad as Butler is, he is a decent sort of a fellow compared to some of them.—Charlotte Chronicle.

I have used Hyomei for two weeks and find it the best preparation I have ever used for catarrh. Every cold I would catch seemed to go to my throat, and I had to use gargles for days at a time. Now when I catch cold in the throat I use Hyomei inhaler and this soreness disappears over night. Hyomei has put me on the good road to getting rid of my catarrh, and if you want to use this letter to publish in your advertising, do so. Perhaps it will help some other sufferer."—W. K. FUNERAL COSTUMES.

Their Extravagance Curbed by Law at One Time in England.

Sumptuary mourning laws were formerly found necessary in England to restrict the extravagance of the nobility and their imitators in the matter of funeral costume. At the end of the fifteenth century it was laid down that dukes, marquises and archbishops should be allowed sixteen yards of cloth for their gowns, "sloppes" (mourning cassocks) and mantles; earls fourteen, viscounts twelve, barons eight, knights six and all persons of inferior degree only two. Hoods were forbidden to all except those above the rank of esquire of the king's household.

In the following century Margaret, countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VII., issued an ordinance for the "reformation of apparel for great estates of women in times of mournings." So it seems that men and women have met in the extravagance of sorrow.

Even 200 years ago London tradesmen found that court mourning seriously affected their business. Addison relates that at a tavern he often met a man whom he took for an ardent and eccentric royalist. Every time this man looked through the Gazette he exclaimed, "Thank God, all the reigning families of Europe are well." Occasionally he would vary this formula by making reassuring remarks respecting the health of British royalists. After some time Addison discovered that this universal royalist was a colored silk merchant, who never made a bargain without inserting in the agreement, "All this will take place as long as no royal personage dies in the interval."—London Chronicle.

MENTAL INFLUENCES.

The State of the Mind Has a Direct Effect Upon the Body.

A good deal is said in these days about the effect of mind on matter in the way of the cure of disease, but less is heard about mental influences as a cause of bodily ills, yet it is an old truth that the state of mind has a direct effect on the body. The gloom and depression caused by worry and anxiety create a morbid condition of the physical system. It is impossible to feel well physically when the mind and spirits are downcast. The blood does not circulate properly, appetite fails, the head aches, and if these morbid conditions continue more deep seated ailments are likely to arise, and cancer may be one of them.

With many persons a fit of anger is followed by an attack of indigestion. Excitement destroys the appetite, bad news creates nausea, fright causes faintness, and so on. Violent or depressing emotions always disturb the equilibrium of body and mind alike. This being the case, it is inevitable that when these emotions often recur or become continuous serious physical results will follow. The obvious lesson is, then, that mental serenity tends to health—is, in fact, an essential element of health—and that instead of resorting to mind "cures" after the health is broken it is wise to preserve the serenity as a preventive and safeguard against disease.—Indianapolis Star.

A Curious Relic.

A curious relic of Louis XVII. is the "game of dominos" made of pieces of the Bastille which were given to the dauphin before he and his parents left Versailles forever. It is said that when the box containing it was brought in the queen exclaimed to her bedchamber woman, Mme. Campan, "What a sinister plaything to give a child!" The sinister plaything is with other revolutionary objects preserved in Paris.

SHARK PRODUCTS.

Even the Bones Are Useful, the Spine as a Walking Stick.

Products obtained from the shark are both numerous and valuable. Shark fins furnish a jelly that makes a delicious soup, if one may credit the statements of those affecting that delicacy. There is an excellent market for this jelly wherever Chinese are to be found.

The shark's liver gives a splendid clear oil excellently adapted for the lubrication of the parts of watches, clocks and fine guns. This oil is held in some quarters in as high esteem as is the oil obtained from porpoise and dogfish liver, long claimed to be the finest of animal oils.

Sharkskin is of much value. It is of a beautiful burnished gray or bluish color and at first glance looks like finely grained leather by reason of the tiny prickles plentifully set one way. There are so many of these prickles, quite invisible to the naked eye, that the effect afforded by the dried skin is one of rich beauty, a quality that makes it particularly valuable for the manufacture of shagreen. It is employed for many decorative purposes.

Even the bones of sharks are useful. The spine is in constant demand by the manufacturers of curious walking sticks. They pass a thin malacca or steel rod through the polished and rounded vertebrae, and the result is a cane that sells for a high price. The shark spine stick is a great favorite in Germany.—Harper's Weekly.

BULL BAITING.

A Brutal "Sport" That Was Popular in Former Days.

The principle of bull baiting was extremely simple. A collar was fastened round the bull's neck, and by this the bull was attached by a rope to a stake. The rope varied from nine to fifteen feet in length and therefore allowed the bull but little movement. The audience was accommodated in a circle or "ring."

The bulldog's duty was to grasp the bull's nose, and when he had succeeded in obtaining a grip he was required to maintain his hold, despite the efforts of the larger animal to dislodge him. The bull awaited the attack with lowered horns, which the dog sought to evade by crouching toward the head of his opponent. Sometimes the bull managed to get his horns under or into the dog, which was then thrown high into the air.

Writers state that dogs had been tossed up to a height of thirty or forty feet. The dog, if he survived, would "retire hurt." On the other hand, once the dog, which was trained to grip only the nose, obtained a hold his adversary would have little chance of shaking him off. The bull would whirl the dog in the air and struggle frantically to wrench his nose free from the terrible grip. When, from sheer exhaustion, the dog dropped clear of the bull a fresh dog was sent into the ring.

Easier to Write It.

In 1871 Edward Lear was staying with the governor of Bombay at Mahabaleswar, the hill station of the Bombay presidency. I was there and took a walk with him one day. He asked me the name of some trees. I told him they were called "jambul" trees in India. He immediately produced his sketch book and in his inimitable style drew a bull looking into a jam pot. He said it would help him to remember the name.—London Spectator.

Pleasant Prospect.

"Yo' isn't stopped at de Palace hotel befo', is yo', boss?" inquired the colored man who was piloting a just arrived traveler from the railway station to the hotel.

"No. But what makes you sure of it?"

A SERIOUS PLAY.

The Author Was Willing, Though, to Turn it into a Comedy.

The gallery god, no less than the patron of the padded chair, aspires to write for the stage. I have a vivid remembrance of the first of all the plays submitted for production at the New theater in New York. It was from an employee in a local railroad station, probably a baggage smasher, and I shall betray no confidence in recording that the author's name was Murphy.

Though Mr. Murphy called his work a play, it was in reality only a scenario. It was entitled "Jim's Wife." The plot was as follows: In the first act Jim had no wife, but he took his girl to a dance. Action—They danced. In act second came the "great scene."

The scene was caused by the fact that Jim's girl danced with another man. Jim felt impelled to kill him, but he refrained, reflecting that such things did not occur in the best circles and would thus be socially unpleasing to his lady. The curtain fell on his act of self sacrifice in not killing the other dancer. In act third there was still more action. Jim's girl rewarded him for his delicacy by marrying him. Final curtain.

Mr. Murphy seemed weighed down by a fear that his play was too serious for the New theater. In his letter he said: "If you would rather have it a comedy I will send you the jokes." I have a few jokes too.—John Corbin in World's Work.

To Be Noble.

The Cow.

The dairy cow, if able to express herself in a way which the human family would comprehend, might well lay claim to being man's best friend. She might establish such a claim by calling attention to the fact that from her carcass man manufactures more of the necessities of life than from any other animal source. She furnishes these necessities to him from infancy until such a time as temporal things are no longer associated with his existence, and she does it ungrudgingly and constantly.

In addition to contributing to men's necessity and his pleasure, the prosperity of agricultural community is more closely identified with her than with any other of the domestic animals. The horse is quite essential in tilling the soil, but where necessity requires it the sturdy son of the cow can take his place, as he has done in every agricultural section on earth.

The horse can only furnish labor, can only return a profit to his owner when conditions are right for returning satisfactory grain crops. It is a well known fact that the dairy cow is the salvation of the farmer in times of poor crops as she is able to convert the rough crops which are never a total failure, into dairy products which always have a cash value.

In addition to this, she furnishes skim milk and butter-milk for the calves, pigs and poultry and fertility for the soil, without which a farm becomes less valuable each year and the whole country less prosperous.

The elimination of the dairy cow would necessitate an almost revolutionary readjustment of man's tastes and requirements. It would mean untold suffering and hardship. Of course she will not be dispensed with but her value can perhaps best be appreciated by contemplating such a loss.

She will continue to be man's best friend as long as the human family exists and will keep on supplying him with his greatest needs just as she has done through all the ages.

High Financiering

A true story is the following. About a year ago a merchant in Gaffney owned a very fine Jersey cow which he had no particular need for, so he loaned the cow to a friend of his out in the country. One day recently this friend stepped into the merchant's store and requested the loan of some money. He explained that it had been raining so much his crop had gotten grassy. The merchant said he was not in the banking business and he was hard up himself and had to borrow money. The friend was non-plussed by this reply and said: "Oh, I'll make a paper at the bank. All I want you to do is to sign it." The merchant replied, hesitatingly, "All right, go ahead." The friend went out and after a short time came back to the merchant and said: "Come on; that paper is ready." The merchant went to the bank and endorsed the paper, which was a chattel mortgage. After endorsing it he looked at it to see what was included in the mortgage, and, lo! and behold! there was a description of his own cow. The merchant laughed at the audacity of the transaction, but let it go through. The merchant had allowed his friend to mortgage a cow he had loaned him and then endorsed the note. If you don't believe this story ask R. A. Jones and John Hopper whether, or not it's a true bill.—Gaffney S. C.) Ledger.

EVADING THE LAW.

The Pictures of Flying Birds in a Mohammedan Mosque.

According to one of the tenets of the Mohammedan religion, it is a sin to make a picture of any living thing. The elaborate decorations of the palaces and mosques of the east are almost exclusively made up of ingeniously interlaced geometric designs, arabesques or flowers, intermixed with sentences of the Koran.

There is a belief among Mussulmans that at the day of judgment Allah will demand that the artist who has made the image of a living thing shall endow that image with life and that, failing to do this, the artist will be sent to perdition for his sin.

A gentleman who visited a mosque in Algiers found that the tiles with which the building is decorated, which are very old and very beautiful, are adorned with flights of birds. He expressed surprise at this and asked if the command against such representation were a modern edict.

"Oh, no," answered the pious Algerian to whom he addressed the question. "These are not pictures of living birds."

"But they are painted as if flying across the tiles," the other said in some astonishment.

"Yes," the Mussulman replied, "but do you not see that about the neck of each there is a fine black line? That is to show that the artist painted only dead birds, and the command of the Koran is not violated."

CASTE IN THE ARMY.

Civilians Find It Difficult to Understand Military Discipline.

One thing not commonly understood among civilians is the completeness of the barrier which divides army officers from the soldiers, or, as they are more generally called, the "men." It is always vastly amusing to those familiar with the service to observe the errors in this respect frequently made by the novelist and the playwright.

Personal qualifications have nothing whatever to do with the matter. A soldier may be a gentleman who has enlisted with the purpose of obtaining a commission, yet there can be between him and his officers no social intercourse of any sort, and severe penalties would be inflicted upon the officer who would attempt to disregard the rule.

It might seem that this enforcement of a caste sense would result in much hard feeling on the side of the men. Such, however, is not actually the case. It is taken for granted and recognized as conducive to "good order and military discipline." It is a military regulation like any other and implies no disgrace. Directly a soldier's enlistment is out or directly he rises from the ranks the prohibition is removed.—Delineator.

Roundabout.

The very budding barrister assumed the approved legal look of indisputable superiority.

"Now, my good lady," he observed, shaking an admonitory forefinger at the woman in the witness box, "you do not appreciate the gravity of the question. Endeavor to concentrate what brain power nature has endowed you with and answer me. What relationship does the defendant bear to you?"

"Right-ho!" responded the good lady. "Is father's cousin was my cousin once removed, and 'is mother, marry-in' me uncle's only brother."

"My good lady," interrupted the bud despairingly, "I am not here to solve puzzles!"

"Well, I'm blowed!" ejaculated the lady. "You was talkin' jest nah as though you'd cornered most o' the brain pahr goin'. If you 'adn't swanked quite so much I'd 'a' told yer plainly an' simply! 'E'se me brother."—London Answers.

Old Moon Beliefs.

The health, growth and development of children and animals were years ago supposed to be influenced by the moon. If the sign was right at the time of birth they would be well formed and intellectual, but if it was wrong there was no telling what sort of creatures they would become. Every worthless fellow, every dog, rooting hog, fence jumping cow or kicking horse was believed to have been born under an unfavorable phase of the queen of night. Queer people or those who were of hateful disposition were children of the dark moon, with the sign below the heart.

New York, July 27.—There was a great excitement in July cotton today when Hayne bid 15.30 for 50,000 bales, and later offered 15.35 for 25,000 bales. Shortly after the call 16.10, an increase of 73 points; was bid for July and shorts were very nervous. At the opening the list ranged from two points lower to eight points higher. October later made a gain of 18 points. Opening: July, 15.35; August, 14.90; September, 13.82; October, 13.35.

New York, July 27.—The stock market, following London, was a little up at the opening, advances ranging from fractions to four points, but subsequently some recessions were noted. At the end of 15 minutes the market was under great pressure.

Chicago, July 27.—The entire grain list was easier today. Provisions were higher with hogs.

Couldn't Tell.

"Has your pocket ever been picked?" "Really, I don't know. It never was before I got married. If it has been since I, of course, would have no way of finding out about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Inspiration.

"This is a pretty good poem. You must have had some strong inspiration." "I had. The editor promised me $10."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Foods as a Cure for Grasshoppers.

The prodigious appetite of the toad is advocated as a cure for the scourge of the grasshoppers in the northern part of Colorado, according to Donald McClenahan, of Edinburg, Scotland. The grasshoppers are said to be so numerous that they are destroying crops and in one instance it is averred stopped a freight train.

McClenahan proposes to start a toad farm at his ranch and sell the Batracians to farmers for the purpose of exterminating grasshoppers and other insects.
