HAPPENINGS THROUGHOUT NORTH CAROLINA.

CREAM OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE EXCHANGES.

Loses Eye on Picnic—Receives 2,000 Volts of Electricity—Killed by Train—Killed by Lightning.

Hickory, July 29.—Frank Elliott, the young son of Mr. H. F. Elliott, lost the sight of his left eye while attending a moonlight picnic of the Methodist church Baraca class Tuesday night some of the boys lured him off "off snipe hunting" and in the dark he tumbled into a ditch, striking his face against a piece of barb-wire fencing. A piece of the wire pierced his eye. He was taken to Charlotte for treatment, but the eye could not be saved.

Shelby, July 28.—While placing humidifiers in the Shelby cotton mill this afternoon Harold S. Stockwell of Brockton, Mass., came in contact with a live wire, receiving, it is said, 2,000 volts. He fell eighteen feet from the scaffolding to the floor, receiving other injuries in addition to the electric shock. He was picked up unconscious seemingly dead. After heroic efforts, by physicians he was resuscitated, and, although his injuries are still regarded as extremely serious, they are not considered fatal.

Monroe, July 29.—Mr. William W. Lee, an employee of the Icomoree cotton mill, located one mile west of this place, was struck by a Seaboard passenger train, No. 132, shortly before 8 o'clock tonight and instantly killed. Mr. Lee had gone across the track to feed his hogs and was on his way back when the accident occurred. His body was thrown fifteen or twenty feet from the track. His neck was broken and he died almost instantly.

Elizabeth City, July 29.—Word was brought here this morning of an accident to Mr. S. M. Beasley, representative from Currituck county to the lower house of the general assembly of North Carolina yesterday morning. He was last night carried by special train to Norfolk, where during the night an operation and amputation of the foot was performed by surgeons at St. Vincent's hospital. Particulars as to the accident are meager, but it is understood that Mr. Beasley was working on the machinery of a gasoline launch when, in some manner not learned, his foot was caught and ground in terrible shape.

With sightless eyes turned toward the electrified zeus that grimly reaped his life, storm beaten and lying prostrate beside a lifeless mule with reins in his grasp the lifeless body of Sam Jones was discovered three miles out of Hendersonville, yesterday after the severe electrical storm that swept this section. Prior to the storm, Jones was plowing his corn, and as he did not reach home directly after the rain it was feared that ill fate had overtaken him, where upon a search was made. Jones' body was found outstretched beside that of the mule, which he had been plowing, beneath an apple tree nearby where he had been working. Presumably, he had taken the tree as a refuge from the storm. The tree beneath which he was found showed no signs of having been struck by lightning but indications were seen on another tree a short distance away. It is said that the case of the watch found on his person had been melted by the stroke that caused his death.—Hendersonville Herald.

Cleveland county has many good farmers and many of them are turning their attention more and more to the cultivation of small grain. This year Mr. W. W. Wellmon, of Caesar, made 29 bushels of wheat on three fourths of an acre of land and this yield resulted from the drilling in of 30 pounds of seed wheat. The labor and fertilizer all combined in making this 29 bushels of wheat made it cost Mr. Wellmore only 23 cents a bushel. This plan of intensive farming and large yields from small acreage must be the plan adopted by the successful farmers of the future. Cleveland Star.

Raleigh, July 29.—For quite a while now a big squad of county convicts have been at work on the construction of a fine sand-clay road from Raleigh to the Johnston county line. The most important remaining link to be built has just been completed, and the farmers throughout that section joined yesterday in a great big barbecue and

CHURCH MAKES NO CONCESSION.

Main Almost Disrupted Over Religious Struggle.

By Cable to The Reflector.
Rome, July 30.—The Vatican will remain firm in its attitude towards the dispute over the religious stand taken by Premier Canalegas and King Alphonzo. It is understood that an appeal to the people of Spain is now being prepared. "No concession" is the attitude of the Catholic church in the crises.

Madrid Aroused.

Madrid, July 30.—Although church leaders are co-operating with the government to prevent disorder, the suspension of the constitution and the declaration of martial law throughout Spain is imminent. All demonstrations have been prohibited, but popular clericals threaten to parade on Sunday. The situation in Portugal is almost as bad as in Spain.

REVOLUTIONISTS IN CONTROL.

President Madriz Hemmed in His Palace.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Washington, July 30.—Nicaraguan revolutionists have practically hemmed in President Madriz at Mangua, according to the State Department advices received today from Consul Olivares. The telegraph wires between Mangua and San Juan del Sur have been cut by the revolutionists. Counsel Olivares also reports that revolutionary forces are in control between Mangua and Rivas, and are steadily gaining strength.

Columbus, O., July 30.—There was fierce rioting among the street car strikers last night, and martial law will probably be proclaimed today. Mayor Marshall this morning formally requested the State militia officers to have the tracks of the street cars patrolled. Five more regiments have also been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for action. Nearly forty people were injured in the lawlessness last night. Forty riot calls were sent in by the police, and many cars were stoned by the rioters.

Is It Crippen?

By Wire to The Reflector.
Montreal, July 30.—The following telegram from Captain Kendall, of the steamer Montrose, was received today: "The supposed Crippen was on deck early this morning looking like one deep in thought. The supposed Miss Leneve was in her room all day. She wears a gloomy look. Suspects said they did not sleep well last night. Miss Leneve does not smile or laugh, and both appear haggard."

Wider Glad he is Caught.

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS.

Superintendent Joyner Outlines a Plan.

The agricultural school is coming. They are teaching elementary agriculture in the public schools now, but that is about like teaching the public school book physiology to a real doctor—it does not go far enough. A movement has been on foot for some time to have some real farming taught the boys of North Carolina. The State Farmers' Union, now in session in Raleigh, has taken up the matter of agricultural education and in a speech before that body last Tuesday, State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, declared in favor of establishing agricultural farm life in schools, at least one in each county. He outlined the plan of having the Legislature appropriate $50,000 or $100,000 and then appropriating this in lots of $2,500 to counties in which the county authorities and the people will provide suitable farm and school buildings, including dormitories and raise at least an additional $2,500 toward maintenance. He declared this the most needful step at the time, in the development of the educational system of the State. He thought that a $50,000 appropriation should be demanded of the next Legislature and this allotted throughout the State, where counties were ready to undertake the advanced work.—Monroe Enquirer.

More and Better Roads.

"Uncle John" Cherry, who a day or two returned from his summer outing at Ocracoke, fell right in with the good roads movement which he found going on at home. He had his rolling chair stopped in front of The Reflector door this morning to say: "Put me down for more and better roads. Let the good work go on."

Do You Want to Work

If you want to work, then there is work for you. Your sort of work—the very job you are fitted for—that thrills you with joy, because you love it—know it.

But so long as you cannot locate that job, you get nothing out of it.

You will never locate it until you go after it in the right way.

You must tell the people what you can do and want to do. Tell the right man at the right time. Tell him in the right way.

The Reflector Want Advertisements will carry your message, not only to one man who wants you, but to thousands, possibly. Ten cents or more will pay the cost.

Million Dollar Fire in Portsmouth.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Portsmouth, Va., July 30.—The million dollar plant of the Burns Box Company, contractors of the Standard Oil Company, was destroyed by an incendiary fire here today. Three acres in area were swept by the flames, and a score of buildings were destroyed.

Petrified Chicken Head.

Mr. R. L. Butler, who lives in South Greenville, dug up a petrified chicken head in his garden. The head is as hard as a rock and quite a curiosity.

PLOT TO KILL ROYAL FAMILY EXPOSED.

YOUTH WEAKENS AND COMMITTS SUICIDE.

Before Dying He Reveals The Plot For Assassination of Dowager Queen and Royal Family.

By Cable to The Reflector.
Rome, July 30.—An archistic plot having for its immediate tim the assassination of Dowager Queen Marguerite, and the ultimate wiping out of the entire royal family was revealed here today following the suicide of the conscience stricken youth who had been chosen to kill the queen mother. The plan had been made for the assassination but the youth who was chosen by the lot to do so weakened and killed himself, exposing the plot before he died.

PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The People Who Come and go on Our Trains.

Rev. J. H. Shore left this morning for Roxboro, to join his family who are visiting there.

Mrs. H. L. Carr and daughter, Miss Mildred, have gone to Hookerton for a visit.

Mrs. N. D. Graham, of Warrenton, a teacher at the E. C. T. S., left Friday evening for her home.

Mr. J. G. Godard, of Williamston, who has been visiting at Mrs. W. T. Hunter's left Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Susan Keel and Mrs. C. D. Jenkins and child, of Robesonville, who have been visiting Mrs. J. H. Keel, returned home this morning.

Mr. J. S. Stump went to Scotland Neck today.

Mr. F. C. Harding went to Wilson today.

Mr. Vernon Wells, of Richmond, Va., who has been visiting Mr. C. W. Wilson left this morning.

Mrs. Mary Holton, of New Bern, who has been spending some time here as the guest of Miss Mamie Ruth Tunstall, returned home this morning.

Miss Lucille Joyner, of Greensboro, who has been visiting at Farmville, came in this morning.

Mrs. Mollie Fleming and Miss Clemmie Fleming went to Tarboro this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Couch left this afternoon for Beaufort. Mrs. Couch will remain there several days, while Mr. Couch will return Sunday.

Mr. R. M. Zahnizer left this afternoon for Beaufort to spend some time. This will be the first vacation from the water and light plant he has had in over four years.

Has Appendicitis.

Mr. W. L. Brown is in receipt of a telegram from his son, Mr. Zeno Brown, who is in Tampa, Fla., stating that the latter has appendicitis, but is getting along as well as could be expected.

Notoriety and Advertising.

When a police magistrate in New York before whom Jack Johnson, the prize fighter, appeared as a defendant the other day called the prisoner's attention to the fact that he had been arrested in nearly every city he had visited, and the slugger frankly replied: "But, Judge, that was done for advertising purposes."

In the pugilistic field of advertising and notoriety are synonymous Johnson's "drawing power" is increased by getting his name in the newspapers, no matter in what unfavorable connection. But there is a difference between notoriety and advertising in the business field, in that the former costs its object money in the long run and the latter makes money for him. It is newspaper advertising, not newspaper notoriety, that sells merchandise. Ex

Parties holding any of these tickets will do well to present them promptly and be rewarded accordingly.

Miss Cox Entertains.

This summer has not brought an occasion of more innocent merriment than that which the young people of South Winterville enjoyed on Friday night at the home of Dr. B. T. Cox. Miss Jeanette Cox entertained her friends at a delightful birthday party, and among those who were favored with invitations several out of town guests were included. The front hall and parlor were tastefully decorated with choice cut flowers. These extended a cherry welcome to the guests, who began to arrive about 8.30. Being warmly received in the front hall they were conducted into the parlor where the air was filled with strains of sweet music. Instrumental solos were rendered by Misses Venetia Cox and Olive Butt. Between these the ready conversation and hearty laughter which rang out gave ample evidence that everyone was "at home," and enjoying themselves.

An amusing contest was entered, with plenty of spirit. The outcome finally showed the odds in favor of Miss Mattie Johnson and Gordon Johnson, who won a neat little prize. The booty was awarded Miss Olivia Cox and Jesse Butt.

Promptly at 9.20 the guests were cleverly divided into couples and ushered into the dining room. Mr. Jesse Butt, of Bonneton, was fortunate enough to escort to supper the hostess, Miss Jeanette Cox. The attending couples were: Jesse Rollins with Miss Lillian Baker, Gordon Johnson with Miss Mattie Johnson, Herbert Cox with Miss Annie Carroll, Herman McLawhorn with Miss Esther Johnson, C. T. Cox with Miss Pearl Hester, D. R. Johnson with Miss Lanie Tyson, Miss Helen Smith with Miss Myrtle McLawhorn.

The birthday cake was the most interesting feature at the table and over this the company enjoyed a great deal of fun. Miss Pearl Hester was the lucky finder of the thimble, while the

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Little Items too Short for a Head, but Interesting.

Tomorrow will finish out July. County commissioners will meet Monday.

Monday is going to be a big day in Greenville, and the people of the town should do their duty by it.

Mr. J. S. Sutton, who is curing Mr. Fred Crawford's crop of tobacco, reports some very fine cures. The neighbors say his cures are the best seen.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church will meet Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock with Mrs. W. M. Moore. Every member is requested to be present. Business of importance.

You will have an opportunity Monday to show your interest in good roads.

Have you got your weeds cut down? August 1st, the date.

Peaches that are coming in now are the finest of the season so far.

If you try it you may be able to keep as comfortable tomorrow by attending church as to stay at home.

Methodist—Sunday school and Baraca class meet at 9.45 a. m. No preaching because of absence of pastor.

penny fell to Miss Esther Johnson. Almost, but not quite, did Miss Baker consume the ring, it was rescued just a minute before suffering the fate of the other "refreshments." Delicious ice cream was served, and after repairing to the parlor a second time, amusing games and another contest filled the hours until eleven o'clock. The evening drew to a close all too soon, for the satisfaction of the guests and they went away wishing that birthday parties were not kept necessarily a whole year apart. The evening was a success in every way.

Attendance Contest.

The Amuzu Theatre will give the person that attends the most times the next week a $2.50 gold piece. The ticket taker will tear off the number on your ticket and give to you each night you attend. Keep them and come every night and get the $2.50. Commencing today and ending one week from today.

The reason men can be such liars is they think you can't see it.

SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1910.

They are both H's., but we expect to see Harmon beat Harding for governor of Ohio.

When his home state downs him, it is getting time for Mr. Bryan to quit. But he is a great man.

Son-in-law Nick came very near making a tall-end run in the race for the nomination for governor of Ohio.

At this distance it looks like Mr. Godwin ought to come out of the race for congress in the sixth district.

A Woman's Intolerance.

A Pittsburg woman's club had for discussion at a recent meeting the statement that Mrs. Nicholas Longworth smokes cigarettes. What business it was of theirs no one who took part in the discussion undertook to explain. They assumed the right as free-born American women to express their views of the subject, and, assuming that the report was true, they proceeded to criticize that other equally free and independent woman for her conduct. There was one woman among them who had the common sense to know that it was none of their business if Mrs. Longworth did smoke, and the nerve to show her disapproval of the course by injecting the remark into the discussion: "We needn't get on our feathers simply because Mrs. Longworth smokes cigarettes, for one hundred years ago our great grand-mothers sat with their husbands and smoked corn-cob pipes"—those great grand-mothers to whom no doubt many members of that very club trace back their lineage in establishing their right to membership in the society of Daughters of the Revolution or of Colonial Dames—those good women of the eighteenth century of whom their descendants are so proud if through them they can secure admission to those patriotic societies.—Charlotte News.

In a recent issue of the Greenville Reflector contained this:

"The Republicans throughout the state are getting ready to put up tickets just to see them knocked down. But they have to do something to make the government bosses think they are earning their jobs."

The most charitable construction we can place upon that assertion is that it was made from force of habit, and in the carelessness and recklessness that follows from habit. The percentage of increase in the Republican vote in North Carolina the past few years, the counties added to the Republican column, the increase in members of the general assembly, and the capture of three congressional districts in the last campaign, prove beyond a doubt that there is not a word of truth in the charge that the Republicans are merely putting up tickets to "see them knocked down." The Democrats are trying awful hard to believe the Republicans are not in earnest about the growth of their party in the state.

The Reflector's charge that Republicans have to do something to make the government bosses think they are earning their jobs is a shot from a small-bore gun. It sounds like a report from a "Smart Aleck" street urchin, who is growing up without manners and without parental training. Such ill-mannered performances are more objects of pity than contempt.

The foregoing came to The Reflector in a letter, with nothing to indicate who sent it, or what paper the clipping was taken. It is evidently taken from a Republican paper that, like the office holders, is trying to "make a show for the money." It is the truth that hits, and what is quoted from The Reflector above went straight to the mark. No, bud, this writer is not in the street urchin class, but has been at it long enough to grow gray headed in the business, if his hair had not been a kind that don't turn gray. And we long ago learned to see through Republican tricks.

For ways that are dark and for tricks that are vain there are more people that are peculiar besides the heathen Chinese. The modern politician is a tolerably smooth article. And it seems to be growing on the brethren. We have read more scurrilous abuse this year than we remember to have read in any one year before; and that by members of the same party. They have thrown mud on each other by the ton, and those who have been too discreet to come out in the papers have talked in whispers about the other fellow, and intimated, if they did not charge, that he is a grand rascal. Now all this is very nauseating to decent gentlemen, and there are many decent gentlemen in politics. When a candidate begins to try to take short cuts on another, or put him in a false light before the public, or rob him of his rights, that candidate ought to be dropped like a hot potato. Men ought to be fair and frank and open in politics as well as in other relations of life. The trading that has been going on of late is not creditable to the candidates or to the party they pretend to represent. All may be fair in love and war, but all is not fair in politics; and the people are doing a lot of thinking in views of these "dead locks" and the trading that has followed them. We have contemptible opinion of a bunch of delegates who can be traded. They are little better than mules. It is high time that the newspapers were speaking out loud against the evil tendencies of the times.—Charity and Children.

There is something new under the sun. Down in the third judicial convention, where the Democrats trafficked around until they beat Judge Ward with a young fellow so young that nobody knew whether he was capable of holding court, the lawyers have issued what they call "Impressions" It will be remembered after his defeat for the nomination Judge Ward resigned, and the governor appointed the nominee, young Whedbee. The lawyers in their "Impressions" certify that young Whedbee has the judicial temperament and got through his first attempt without stage-fright. Thus a new rule is laid down. Hereafter, when a nominee's ability is an unknown quality, all you have to do is to get the lawyers to issue an "Impression," and the people will be satisfied that no mistake has been made.—Reidsville Weekly.

If the editor of the Weekly had started out for that special purpose, he could not have written an article that shows more clearly that he does not know what he is talking about.

The question has been asked will the farmers go into politics again in North Carolina. If they desire to do so, they have a perfect right. We have no patience with that sentiment in some quarters that says go ahead, boys, and do everything you want to do, but stay out of politics. That would be horrid! We trust that every farmer will take an active interest in politics and work for and demand the best things that will advance the interests of the farms and one of the first things that should occupy the attention of all farmers' organizations is good roads throughout the State. The farmers in North Carolina will never become what they should be unless they become live wires on all public questions. Throw away sentiment and become business men.—High Point Enterprise.

The House Was Shaky.

When John Quincy Adams was eighty years of age he met in the streets of Boston an old friend, who shook his trembling hand and said, "Good morning, and how is John Quincy Adams today?"

"Thank you," was the ex-president's answer. "John Quincy Adams himself is well, sir; quite well, I thank you. But the house in which he lives at present is becoming dilapidated. It is tottering upon its foundation. Time and the seasons have nearly destroyed it. Its roof is pretty well worn out. Its walls are much shattered, and it trembles with every wind. The old tenement is becoming almost uninhabitable, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out of it soon. But he himself is quite well, sir; quite well."

With that the venerable sixth president of the United States moved on with the aid of his staff.

Had All His Nerve With Him.

In a downtown stand up lunch place, where the chief source of the waiters' revenue is in the form of tips and where the patrons are supposed to step lively so that those who wait may be accommodated, a man has been coming of late who brings a newspaper with him and reads it leisurely, sometimes for half an hour, while he takes his modest luncheon. The waiter at whose station he plighted himself one day recently was prepared for the emergency, and when the man had finished reading his paper the servant handed him two others with the remark: "Maybe you'd like to see these?" The other waiters, knowing of the plot, looked to see the man wilt, but were disappointed. He took the papers with thanks, continued reading, and finally, when he asked for his check, asked also whether he might keep the papers.—New York Tribune.

One of Falb's Predictions.

In 1874 Professor Rudolf Falb predicted an eruption of Etna on Aug. 27. He offered a Vienna editor to write an account of it if the editor would send him to Sicily. Falb was commissioned. When he reached Etna there was not the slightest sign of disturbance. As the 27th approached Falb was tortured with anxiety and spent sleepless nights watching the volcano. Nothing happened on the 27th and 28th. The following morning the servant rushed into the professor's room shouting, "An eruption, a terrible eruption!" Falb saw the spectacle and sent off his dispatch.

"One" as a Pronoun.

I have never been smitten with the use of the word "one" as a pronoun. It takes a word juggler to attempt it and get away with it. Unless one feels that one has won one's spurs in this respect and can extricate oneself from the mess one gets oneself and one's readers into one should avoid the use of the word one in referring to oneself as one would a plague.—London Idler.

His Part.

"Who is the responsible person in this firm?" asked the brusque caller of the office boy.
"Can't tell you, sir," replied the pert lad, "but I'm the one who gets all the blame."

GOLDSBORO HEARD FROM

A Lady Who Lives in Goldsboro Joins in the Chorus of Praise for Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Goldsboro, N. C.—"A physician treated me for many distressing symptoms," writes Mrs. Etta A. Smith, "but gave me no relief.

"I suffered with neuralgia around the heart and was troubled at times with my head. I had pain in my left side, bowels, left thigh, shoulders and arms.

"After taking Cardui, I am now well and can recommend it to other suffering women."

Just such doubtful symptoms, as those from which Mrs. Smith suffered, are the ones for which it will pay you to take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

It is at such times, when there is nothing to show, for certain, the real cause of the trouble, that you need a tonic, to give the body strength to throw off the illness that evidently threatens.

Take Cardui, when you are ill, with the ailments of your sex. Take Cardui as a tonic, to prevent illness, when you feel it coming.

Your druggist keeps it.

Getting Desperate.

Some of the office buildings in the large cities are constructed apparently with the idea that every possible square foot of space must be utilized for renting purposes. The corridors are narrow, the passageways to the elevator shafts hard to find and the stairways located in obscure corners. There may be fire escapes, but they are equally obscure, and a stranger would not know where to look for them.

The occupants of a room on the seventh floor of a building of this kind, devoted to the uses of a fire and life insurance companies' agent, were surprised one day by the sudden entrance of a wild-eyed man who seemed to be laboring under strong excitement.

"Say," gasped the intruder, "will some of you fellows please throw me out of this building?"

"What for?" asked one of the clerks.

"I've been trying for fifteen minutes to find a way out of it, and I can't. They did not throw him out, but piloted him to the elevators, and he succeeded at last in making his escape.—Exchange.

Nearly a School Scandal.

What might have been a terrible sensation, calling for public investigation and much newspaperly, was averted by the visit of a shocked mamma to one of our public primary schools. A friend of the mother was calling at the house and asked the little daughter, "How do you like your teacher?"

"Oh, my teacher is nice," answered Tot, "but she is always asking us for a cigarette."

"What?" cried the lady and the mamma in horrified tones, seeing contamination of the morals of Tot under the teachings of a modern bachelor of the feminine gender.

"Yes, mamma. She says, 'Cigarette, cigarette.'"

The next day mamma visited the school. As she entered the class room the teacher was calling first to one child and then to another. "Sit erect, sit erect!" while Tot flashed a glance of intelligence and "Didn't I tell you so?" at her mother.—Wasp.

It Is a Wise Child.

An official of the immigration bureau at Ellis Island told a story of a wise little immigrant child.

"A little girl came over in the steerage in search of her father, whose name she gave us. We sent for the man, and he came and looked at her.

"I can't tell whether this is Mary or not," said he. "I haven't seen Mary since she was a baby about three months old. How can I tell, then, whether this is Mary or not?"

"It was a question we couldn't answer, so we looked from him to the child and from the child back to him, remaining silent.

"Finally, when we were all at our wits' end, he looked earnestly at the child and said plaintively, 'Am I your father?'"

"And the wise little child answered quickly, 'Yes, you are.'"

"And so we made her over to him."—New York Press.

"Hang on Tight"

When a smoking car with thirty-five passengers jumped the track, a railroad engineer in the car, off duty, yelled to the passengers to "hang on tight," and while the car turned over no one was hurt.

"Hang on tight" is good advice in most upsets. The man who hangs on tight to himself when his temper is upset will get through without hurting either himself or others. The man who "hangs on tight" to his earnings ends with a competence. The man who "hangs on tight" to his place when business upssets come generally holds down his job. The man who "hangs on tight" when discouragement or even disaster upsets others is a man to be hopeful about, because he will keep right side up whatever else turns over.—Philadelphia Press.

Saved by a Dream.

"Hints conveyed by dreams are occasionally worth heeding," says the London Chronicle. "The late Lord Dufferin when in Paris dreamed that he was in a hearse on the way to the cemetery. A few days later, as he was about to enter the elevator of a certain hotel, he was startled to find that the attendant was a double of the driver of the hearse in his dream. He thereupon promptly left the elevator and walked upstairs. The car ascended without him, but as it neared the top something in the mechanism gave way, and the passengers met their death. Had they also, one wonders, been forewarned in a dream?"

A Voracious Monster.

The most voracious of all marine beasts of prey is the orca, or killer whale. It reaches a length of twenty-five feet, and its jaws bristle with teeth from four to six inches long and as sharp as a dirk knife. Its digestive power is proportioned to the tremendous efficacy of its jaws. It seems also to be an atrocious glutton, as one specimen examined contained in its stomach thirteen porpoises and fourteen seals.

A Mohammedan Festival.
Taboots is an Indian festival in connection with the celebration of the month of Mobarrah, which begins the year of the true Mohammedan. This festival commemorates the death of Prince Hossein, the grandson of Mohammed, who met his death in battle after ten days' fighting against King Omar. The word taboot, from which the festival takes its name, means literally a tomb, and it is always built in front of the homes of some rich and important Mohammedans and under a temporary shed built for this purpose. The taboots are made from thin bamboo strips covered with highly colored paper, and it is always decorated with isinglass, gold and silver paper, glass balls and much red and green paint. On the ninth day of the festival of Taboots the taboots are carried in a procession through the streets of the various cities in India. On the tenth day all the taboots are thrown into some river, and thus ends the Mohammedan festival of Taboots.—Boston Herald.

Primitive Fire Fighters.

As late as the end of the sixteenth century in London the sole method of extinguishing fires was by means of contrivances known as "hand squirts." These were usually made of brass, with a carrying capacity ranging from two to four quarts of water. The two quart "squirts" were two and a half feet in length, one and a half inches in diameter at their largest part and but half an inch at the nozzle. On each side were handles, and three men were required to manipulate a "s squirt." One man on each side grasped the handle in one hand and the nozzle in the other, while the third man worked the piston or plunger, drawing it out while the nozzle was immersed in a supply of water which filled the cylinder. The bearers then elevated the nozzle, when the other pushed in the plunger, the skill of the former being employed in directing the stream of water upon the fire. Such primitive contrivances are said to have been used during the great fire of 1666.

Mythical Horses.

Pegasus ("born near the source of the ocean") was the winged horse of Apollo and the Muses. Bellerophon rode this animal when he charged the Chimera.

Sleipnir ("the black horse of Odin") had eight legs and could carry his master on sea as well as land. This animal is believed to typify the wind, which blows from eight different points.

Al Borak ("the lightning") was the horse commissioned by Gabriel to carry Mohammed to the seventh heaven. He had a human face and the wings of an eagle. Every step he took was equal to the farthest range of human vision.

According to Thessalian legend, the first horse was miraculously brought forth by Neptune striking a rock with his trident.

A Japanese Anthem.

The majority of national anthems are not conspicuous for beauty, either of words or music. The only one composed by a musician of the very first rank is the Austrian anthem, for which Haydn is responsible. And in no country has the composition of a really great poet been adopted except in Norway, where Bjornson's stirring lines beginning "Yes, we love this country," serve as the national anthem. The Japanese have a daintily worded anthem which Captain Brinkley translates as follows:

Until this grain of sand,
Tossed by each wavelet's freak,
Grows to a cloud girt peak,
Towering above the land;
Until the flake
Beating in the flake
Swell to a beauty lake—
Age upon age untold,
Joy to joy manifold,
Add for our sovereign's sake.

A Dirge.

She laid the still white form beside those which had gone before. No sob, no sigh, forced its way from her heart, throbbing as though it would burst. Suddenly a cry broke the stillness of the place, one single heartbreaking shriek; then silence, another cry, more silence, then all silent but for a guttural murmur which seemed to well up from her very soul. She left the place. She would lay another egg tomorrow.—Princeton Tiger.

Reversed.

An East Boston doctor told of the experience of a druggist the other day who sold some alcohol to a new customer. After the man had signed the book as required he said: "Now, don't get that name twisted. It is Michael Sullivan and not Sullivan Michael, same as they turned it around in the directory."—Boston Journal.

A Light Retort.

"How did the trouble in the family start?"
"The wife, it seems, got tired of her husband's heavy wit."
"Why didn't she simply make a light retort?"
"She did. She threw the lamp at him."—Exchange.

ADVERTISE

Royal Mistakes.

Sovereigns and princes are strangely given to making astonishing mistakes while dealing with dates. The inscription on King Edward VII's coffin that he died in the ninth year of his reign instead of the tenth is only an example of many similar errors. In November, 1858, Queen Victoria wrote to the late king to inform him that he might consider himself emancipated from parental authority and control, as he was now eighteen years old and therefore of age. Her majesty's letter, which was very long, was a quasi sermon, and it ended by informing the then Prince of Wales that he would be forthwith made a knight of the Garter and a colonel in the army. How Queen Victoria and Prince Albert fell into so extraordinary a mistake it is impossible to understand, for the prince had only then completed his seventeenth year. Dean Wellesley, to whom the young prince showed the letter, at once detected the serious error into which the queen had fallen, but he thought it best to say nothing.—London Truth.

Got Full Measure.

All yesterday James had played truant from school, and when the irate master raised his cane threateningly James burst into a flood of tears.
"Please don't lick me, sir," he sobbed.

"And why should I not lick you, pray?" thundered the schoolmaster.
"W'y, sir, 'cos I think I've 'ad enough!" gasped James. "Yesterday the boy as I played truant with and I fell out and he licked me, and a man we threw stones at caught me and licked me, the driver of a cart we hung on to licked me, the owner of a cat we chased licked me. Then when I got home mother licked me, and after that father licked me, and then mother licked me again for calling her a sneak for telling father."
"Well," responded the master grimly, "by this time one licking more or less won't make much difference, and it seems hard I shouldn't have my whack. Come here, sir!"—London Answers.

Prosecuting Attorney (examining a prospective juror)—Do you know anything about chemistry?
"I studied it at school."
"Do you think you remember enough of it to make you a competent juror in a poison case?"
"I'm not sure."
"Do you remember any of the formulas?"
"Let me see—two."
"Only two?"
"Yes, sir."
"Are they in a poem?"
"Blushing" "Yes, sir."
"Is this the poem?"
"Our Willie boy is dead and gone. We ne'er shall see him more. What Willie thought was H2O Was H2SO4."
"Blushing furiously" "Yes, sir."
"I thought so. You are excused."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Went Back on His Authority.
Leslie Stephen's single meeting with Freeman, the historian, was in the nature of a collision. "I came in contact with him only once," he said. "He wrote a life of Alfred for the Dictionary of National Biography under my editorship, but declined to do more because we had a difference of opinion as to whether Atheism should be spelled with an 'A.' That was, I confess, a question to which I was culpably indifferent, but I had taken competent advice, and my system (I forget what it was) had been elsewhere sanctioned by the great historian Stubbs. Now, as Freeman was never tired of asserting the infallibility of Stubbs, I innocently thought that I might take refuge behind so eminent an authority. The result was that for once Freeman blasphemed Stubbs and refused to cooperate any longer in an unscholarlike enterprise."

A Puzzle.
Mother (reprovingly to little girl just ready to go for a walk)—Dolly, that hole was not in your glove this morning. Dolly (promptly)—Where was it, then, mamma?
Couldn't Risk It.
Husband—Did you hunt up the new cook's references? Wire—No, John, I didn't. I was afraid they might prove prejudicial.—Harper's Bazar.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, July 30.—At the opening of the cotton market today there was a strong effort made to break new crops on the prospect of rain in Texas over Sunday. The first prices were one point higher to five points lower, and after the call new crops dropped eight to nine points below yesterday's close. Southern bulls made little effort to check the decline. Opening: August 15.22; September 14.16; October 13.64; November 13.50; January 13.42.

New York, July 30.—There were moderate declines in stocks today, and a loss of about 1/4 to 3/8 being sustained generally in the first few minutes, after which the market assumed a steeper tone and the recovery of fractional losses was in progress at the end of 15 minutes. Chesapeake & Ohio was about the only weak feature, failing to share in the improvement.

Chicago, July 30.—There was a break of 5/8c in Waterman brand wheat, July selling at 106 1/2 at the start and on down to 103 1/2, when it rebounded to 105 1/2. The close last night was 109 1/2. It was heard on all sides that the Waterman wheat corner had been abandoned. Corn and oats were firm, provisions off sharply with hogs.

The Forbidden City.

Peking has been a city for something like 3,000 years, first as the capital of a small state, then destroyed, again rebuilt and finally molded into the form in which we now know it, with its Chinese, Tartar, Imperial and Forbidden cities, each with its inclosing wall. Nobody has ever yet attempted to tell the full tale of its intrigues, its cabals, plots and counterplots. Few know anything about them. No one person knows them all. If only the bricks that form the walls could find a tongue, if only the pavilions on the Cool Hill could produce the sights and sounds that have fallen to their lot to see and hear, there would doubtless be a tale to tell which might vie in interest and dramatic force with anything that ancient Rome or Babylon has given, even through the medium of fiction.—Shanghai Mercury.

An Early Wall Paper.

On preparing a room in Bradbourne Hall, Derbyshire, in 1882, I found, partly covered by an old oak cupboard, considerable remains of quite early eighteenth century wall paper, of pale green tint, with a flowing pattern in darker color on it. This paper was made in squares of about twenty inches, and I was able to rescue two or more complete pieces. It had been printed on rather thick paper from woodcut blocks, and each square was nailed up with coarse iron tacks about one and a half inches apart, each tack being run through squares or washers of brown leather, so that both tack heads and washers showed all around each square of paper. It is possible that this wall paper was of late seventeenth century date. Bradbourne Hall, in the lower peak, is a picturesque house, almost unaltered, of the time of James I., having been then fashioned from the canonical house of the Augustines of Dunstable. It was just the place—"far from the madding crowd"—where curious details of domestic decorations would survive.—London Notes and Queries.

Three Men.

When H. H. Rogers was in the prime of his power, says a New York writer, he formed a "friendship partnership" with Mark Twain and Thomas Brackett Reed and took personal charge of their affairs, looking after them as he would a couple of children. It was great fun for all three, and especially Rogers. Neither Clemens nor Reed had any sense for business. The big ex-speaker came to New York a poor man. Five years later he died suddenly, and his estate assayed over $600,000. He probably had no idea what he was worth at any stage. Rogers made as much or more money for Clemens.

In the Long Ago.

"Adam," asked Eve, "what are you doing?"
"I'm discovering Mars," he said, looking down at her to rest his neck. "I wonder if it has any inhabitants."
From which we learn that Adam already knew about as much concerning Mars as the modern astronomers do.—Chicago Tribune.

A Child's Character.
