JOE JOHNSON MURDERS LUKE HARRIS, NEGROES.

RESULTS OF A THREE CORNERED ROW SATURDAY NIGHT.

Tragedy Occurred at the House of One Annie Hinton—Frank Forbes in Trouble, as Usual.

About 2 o'clock Sunday morning at the house of Annie Hinton, on Cotanch street, near the market and just opposite the city guard house, there was a tragedy. As a result Luke Harris is dead, Joe Johnson has fled to parts unknown, and Frank Forbes is in prison, all the parties being colored.

Like all matters of this kind, especially among negroes, there are conflicting stories, the disposition of the race to shield its criminals making the truth hard to get at.

Those who arrived early on the scene after the tragedy found Luke Harris lying dead on the floor of the woman's house, with a pistol ball hole in forehead just above one eye, through which penetrated the brain, causing almost instant death. The body remained there until arrangements were made for the coroner's inquest Sunday morning, and as the news of the tragedy spread over town after daylight hundreds of curious people going to the scene to look at the body.

Dr. C. O'H. Laughinghouse, county coroner, summoned a jury—Messrs. R. Greene, C. E. Rountree, J. W. Rice, W. P. Edwards, W. B. Greene, and Leon Smith, and about 9 o'clock began an inquest in the mayor's office.

The first witness examined by the coroner was Rosa Roberson, a colored woman who was confined in the guard house, who testified that she heard a row going on at the house of Annie Hinton just across the street. Frank Forbes told Annie to open the door, but Annie replied that she had to go to bed. Annie shut the door and Frank broke it open. Frank cursed Annie and threatened to kill her. Witness called across the street to Annie and asked what was the matter, Frank told Annie to tell nothing. After that Frank and Joe Johnson went to the stables near by and were talking. They both went back to Annie's house and wanted to get in. Annie told them to go on, that she wanted to go to bed. Frank told a man in the house that he had had it in for him for a long time. I heard a gun fire one time. Somebody said: "Frank, you have shot somebody," I do not recall the name of the one said to be shot. Frank said "When did you see me with a gun? If you say I shot him I will kill you." She got scared and said it was Joe, and after I called her again she said it was Joe. Frank went out and hid a gun near the stables, and told Joe to go off and say nothing, that he was not going after anybody as the boy was dead.

Addie Beaman, another colored woman who was in Annie's house, said Luke Harris went there about 2 o'clock, and was sober. A few minutes later the shot was fired. When Luke came into the room Joe Johnson was there. Frank was also there. When Luke came in he spoke to us. Joe was sitting on a box and I was sitting on a chair. Frank and Joe were talking. Frank had been there half an hour when Luke came. Frank was drinking. I saw Joe with a gun in his hand. Luke said when he was falling "You have shot me." Joe said it was accidental. Luke did not live two minutes; Frank did not shoot, only one shot was fired.

Other witnesses examined were Wright Daniel, Annie Hinton, Tom Brooks and Frank Forbes, but there was much variance in their testimony. The verdict of the jury was "That Luke Harris came to his death from a pistol shot wound in the hands of Joe Johnson or Frank Forbes, and recommended that Addie Beaman and Rosa Roberson be placed in safe keeping or under sufficient bond to ensure their appearance as witnesses at the next term of the Superior court of Pitt county."

Frank Forbes was committed to prison, and Joe Johnson has not yet been found. The funeral of Luke Harris took place late Sunday afternoon, and was attended by a large number of one of the secret lodges of which he was a member.

Two Scraps.

There were two fights that disturbed the peace and quiet of the town Saturday afternoon. One was between two colored men who were working insurance.

Wherein We Fall.

In his address before the Farmers' Union, Maj. William A. Graham, State Commissioner of Agriculture, made the startling statement that whereas the State of North Carolina received every year from thirty-five to forty million dollars for its cotton crop, it sent out more than that sum for meat and bread and supplies that could be grown or produced upon North Carolina farms.

It is just here where North Carolina fails, and it is the mission of the Farmers' Union, the Farmers' Alliance, the Department of Agriculture, and the press to work in harmony to put an end to this unwise system of farming that stands like a lion in the path of agricultural prosperity.

North Carolina farms ought to produce all the meat and corn sold in the State and help supply the Northern markets with everything we eat. It is gratifying to see the farm leaders bringing these matters to the attention of the farmers, and it is more than gratifying to see the progress that is being made in that direction. Many farmers are wide awake and the doctrine of "hog and hominy" is more popular than ever in the history of the State. A leading merchant in Raleigh, who is himself also a farmer, says he believes more progress has been made in agriculture in North Carolina during the past two years than in the previous twenty years. The progress by many farmers has been marked. The need, is that this example shall leaven the whole country.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Baptist Sunday School Picnic.

The Memorial Baptist Sunday school will have its annual picnic next Thursday. The school will assemble on the graded school lawn at 9 o'clock and from there proceed to Rock Spring, the place staged for the picnic. A wagon will be at the school to take baskets out to the Spring.

50 PEOPLE---10 WHITES, 40 COLORED KILLED IN RIOT.

SLOCUM, TEXAS, HAVING A BAD TIME.

Trouble Precipitated in Controversy Over a Note Between White Man and Negro—Mob Quietening Today.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Palstene, Texas, Aug. 1.—A troop of cavalry arrived here this morning and is sweeping the country between here and Slocum, to save negroes menaced to death by infuriated whites. The worst of the trouble seems to be over, but spasmodic outbreaks are expected for a day or two. Sheriff Black said today that the dead may number 50, including ten whites, but it would be several days before figures are complete as many negroes were killed in the marshes around the city.

The trouble that caused the riot seems to have been precipitated in a controversy over a note a man named Alford had endorsed for a negro. The negro when questioned as to the reason why he had not paid the note, cursed Alford and said no white man could "do" him. Fighting between the races began immediately and continued throughout Friday night, Saturday and Sunday.

Off For Camp.

A party composed of Dr. R. L. Carr, Profs. Meadows and Knight and Messrs. S. T. Hooker, Bruce Hooker, W. D. Pruitt, Hugh Ragsdale and G. E. Harris left this morning for Hargetts Island, below Beaufort, where they will spend several days in camp and fishing. They contemplate a big time and will find it.

Colored Woman Dies Suddenly.

Sunday night a colored woman, named Lou Wilkins, died very suddenly at her home on Pitt street. The woman was complaining of feeling badly after supper and was in the act of undressing to go to bed, when she fell dead in a few moments.

Mr. J. R. Corey Stricken.

As he was going from his residence on Dickinson avenue to his store, early this morning, Mr. J. R. Corey was suddenly stricken with illness and fell on the sidewalk. He was unconscious when taken back to his home and had not regained consciousness this afternoon. His condition is quite serious.

EDITOR SAUNDERS OF THE INDEPENDENT IN HOT WATER.

600 "CHRISTIANS" FOLLOW HIM HOME WITH THREATS.

Sequel to Sermon About Attack Made on Pastor in the Paper—Sheriff and Police Quiet Mob.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Elizabeth City, N. C., Aug. 1.—Great excitement was created here last night when, at the conclusion of services at the Blackwell Memorial church, a crowd of more than 300 people attendants at church services followed W. O. Saunders, editor of the Independent, to his home and made threats of violence. In the demonstration several shots were fired, but no one was hurt. Sheriff and police were soon on the scene and succeeded in quieting the crowd. The demonstration last night was the sequel to a sermon preached yesterday by pastor Loftin, in regard to attacks that have been made upon him in The Independent, a weekly newspaper, concerning a seduction case. Saunders' house was guarded by police last night and all is quiet this morning.

The Child Dead.

A telegram from Beaufort announced that the infant son of Mrs. Lina Baker died this morning. The remains will be brought home, and while the hour of the funeral cannot be stated now, it will probably be sometime tomorrow.

The death of this child is peculiarly sad, and all hearts go out in sympathy to Mrs. Baker in her sorrow. She previously lost two children about the same age. Her husband died a few months ago, and she was left with only this last child, and now God has seen fit to take that to himself. Truly her sorrows have been many, and may He in whose wisdom the afflictions have been sent, abundantly give His Holy Spirit to comfort her.

Be Governed Accordingly.

Anyone who does not want to receive a publication will have no trouble in discontinuing it, if you notify the publisher that you don't want the paper any longer provided you owe nothing. Don't continue to take the paper until you are pressed for payment and then "swell up" and say you "never subscribed" for it. No publisher wants to force anyone to take his paper, if he does not want it—at the same time he expects those who take his paper to pay for it just the same as they pay any other obligation.—Maryville Enterprise.

DR. CRIPPEN AND ETHEL LENEVE CAPTURED.

SUSPECTS ON BOARD MONTROSE PROVED TO BE THEM.

Both Are Under Arrest at Father Point—Surprised That They Were Suspected. Dr. Crrippen Watched.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Father Point, Canada, Aug. 1.—Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen, and Ethel Leneve are under arrest here after one of the most difficult and interesting man hunts in history. The suspects on board the Montrose proved to be the couple wanted, and they were taken off the boat this morning. Dr. Crrippen and the girl had heard no inkling of suspicion directed against them and did not know their identity was known or suspected until the police boarded the boat. The passengers on board were also very much surprised when they learned their fellow passengers were the man and girl instead of man and boy, and the much wanted Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve. The pair were immediately separated and not allowed to talk to or see each other. After locking Dr. Crippen up the police paid little attention to him except to keep him under constant watch, but they questioned the girl closely and are making every effort to have her turn king's evidence.

Dr. Crrippen did not sleep any after his arrest. The girl slept fitfully, and awoke one time with a shriek. She received a cablegram from her mother this morning urging her to tell everything she knew, and assuring her that her parents believed her innocent of having a hand in the murder. It is hoped to have the couple back in London by the first of September.

From 38 acres of wheat Mr. M. F. Teeter, of No. 1 township, Cabarrus county threshed 1250 bushels, nearly 33 bushels to the acre.—Statesville Landmark.

Mr. D. D. Haskett left this afternoon for a tour of several of the eastern counties attending farmers' institutes.

PITT COUNTY GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

LARGE ATTENDANCE FROM ALL SECTIONS OF THE COUNTY.

Enthusiastic Speeches by Congress- man Small, Road Engineer Boykins, Dr. Pratt and Secretary of State.

This has been one of the greatest days in Pitt county in many years. It was the occasion of the holding a good roads convention of all the people of the county for the purpose of awakening a general interest in good roads.

This movement was started a few weeks ago by the chamber of commerce, of Greenville, and how well the work of advertising the meeting was shown in the large crowd of people who came from all sections of the county.

President Wright, of East Carolina Teachers' Training school kindly tendered the school auditorium for the meeting, and this was accepted with thanks. There were fully 600 people in the auditorium when the meeting was called to order by President H. A. White, of the chamber of commerce, and more came in to swell the attendance. As they came in neat buttons on which was inscribed "Good Roads for Pitt County" were distributed.

Anything that means progress to Pitt county never fails to strike a responsive chord in the hearts of her people. Centuries ago the Africans played ball with diamonds, not knowing their value. It took the enlightenment of civilization to show them that their plaything were the world's most valuable articles of commerce. It is only as a people becomes enlightened, do they appreciate their undeveloped resources. Pitt county has long since reached the stage of true appreciation of her undeveloped resources and the most efficient way of developing her magnificent rural sections, and as Dr. Dixon, of Ayden, said, they "are not waiting until they are dead to do it."

It was indeed an inspiring scene that welcomed the speakers of the good roads convention.

Congressman John H. Small was the first speaker, and touched upon many interesting topics as well as good roads, and showed the untold opportunities confronting Pitt county in the way of drainage, developing water power, and so on.

Following Congressman Small there were also excellent speeches by Mr. Lester E. Boykin, practical engineer of the United States Department of Agriculture; Dr. J. Hyde Pratt, State Geologist and president of the North Carolina Good Roads Association, and Hon. J. Bryan Grimes, Secretary of State, but owing to the lateness of the hour a fuller report of all the speeches has to be left over for tomorrow's paper.

New Scheme for Marketing Eggs.

Mr. R. R. Slocum, who is with the bureau of Animal Industry United States Department of Agriculture, was here Tuesday looking up the possibility of handling eggs through the creamery. Mr. Slocum's plan is to supply egg carton to each patron. The patron is to gather the eggs daily, filling the sarton, which just holds one dozen. The cartons are to be gathered up every other day by the cream hauler, brought to town and put immediately upon the market. Each patron will be required to supply clean, fresh eggs of uniform size. Each will be given a number, which will be stamped on the top of his carton, and any complaint made against a carton of eggs will be traced back to the producer, who will be held responsible for the eggs he supplies.—Hickory Democrat.

Applicants for Missionary Work.

According to Rev. Livingston Johnston, secretary of the State Baptist mission board, the church is receiving applications from many more volunteers for work in the foreign field than for charges at home. Missions both home and foreign are necessary to any live church, but the importance of the one should not be allowed to overshadow the necessity for the other. A diligent search would be likely to develop as crying necessities for consecrated workers right here in North Carolina as could possibly be discovered in the lands beyond the seas, and no applicant for the home mission field need be deterred by the impression that evangelistical work within the bounds of North Carolina is too easy a career.—Charlotte Observer.

There were folks in town today, and we were glad to see them.

Everybody is talking good roads and wearing good roads buttons.

The tobacco market will open in about three weeks.

With the editor August is the biggest month in the year, as it brings his natal day.

Saturday afternoon's storm was one that thundered and lightened.

It is time the merchants were starting up their advertisements in readiness for the opening of the tobacco market.

When the loads of tobacco get to rolling in there will be more money in circulation.

Kill the Dogs.

England has suppressed hydrophobia among human beings by killing all dogs under suspicion and all along the track of an infected dog and then shutting out all imports of dogs. The Philadelphia Press thinks that "hydrophobia could be stamped out in this country in the same way if the States would act together." Some of these days North Carolina will have a legislature bold enough to pass a law requiring all worthless dogs to be killed, and then the Pasteur institution at Raleigh will go out of business and sheep husbandry will come into existence.—Charlotte Chronicle.

MONDAY, AUGUST 1, 1910.

Mr. Bryan is giving more attention to his farm. That is one local option he may be able to work.

Meetings like the one held here today to discuss good roads and better farming, are the kind that count for most.

When Republican leaders cannot settle it with words they resort to their fists. At least that was the way two of them did recently.

New Bern has every reason to feel proud over the success of her bi-centennial celebration last week. All who visited the city were charmed with what they saw.

The Richmond girl who was bitten by a snake which crawled into her hair rat when she carelessly laid it down, should be a warning to girls to be careful where they place their rats.

The Republicans may claim all they want to, that high tariff makes high wages, but the numerous strikes all over the country show that the wage scale does not enable laborers to meet the cost of living under the demand of a high tariff.

It is a current rumor that Governor Kitchin was not invited to the New Bern bi-centennial celebration, but we can hardly believe it. Still, it looks odd that he was not present on such an auspicious occasion.

Very unkind reference, especially in the face of the fact that the governor was in Scotland Neck at the bedside of his mother whose death was expected at any moment. But it is one of the traits of Republican newspapers to invade, even the sanctity of the death chamber to try to make political capital.

Drain of Hookworm Disease.

The importance of the crusade being made for the eradication of hookworm disease under control of the North Carolina Board of Health, is perhaps not fully appreciated by the people. When talk of hookworm disease first came about many persons were disposed to treat the subject as a joke and smile at the mere mention of hook worm. But it is anything but a laughing matter unless it has got the doctors badly fooled. Indeed, hookworm disease is one of the most serious propositions that confront the people of North Carolina if what Dr. John A. Ferrell, assistant secretary, says is true. In a circular letter directing attention to some literature on the subject which his department is sending out to publishers and others he declares: "The discovery of hookworm disease will mean more for the people of our State than any other discovery that yet been made, provided the State will take the proper action toward its extermination. It is probable that a conservative estimate would show that the farm products of the State would be worth at least $6,000,000.00 more each year if the disease were exterminated. Investigations have thus far been made in nearly every county in the State, and everywhere it is found prevalent, doing remarkable damage in lowering the physical and mental standing of the people." "Six hundred North Carolina college students have already been examined, and more than one-third of them were found infected with the disease. We are now making examinations of about 1,200 men in the State who are members of the National Guard. These will represent all sections of the State and will give further proof of the general prevalence of the disease. When this work is finished the results will be made public. "The doctors from whom we have had letters concerning the disease report having treated about 5,000 patients but in nearly all instances the people were reluctant to undergo treatment. You can do your State no greater good than to use your influence toward bettering the health of its people. Hookworm disease having been found to be so prevalent in the State and one which is easily prevented, and curable, it should be among the first to receive special attention from the Commonwealth.—State Board of Health Bulletin.

Wonder of Womanhood.

American women have to wear costly raiment to outdress their servants, says the Countess Henri de Frankenstein, "formerly the beautiful Anna Brewster." American women by their careless deportment breed immortality into the younger generation, says Miss Adelaide Leonore McAdam, "fresh from long study abroad." American women think more of self preservation than of race preservation, says Martin Cox, an author claiming to express "man's view of the situation." As one in doubt at what leads trumps, according to the old formula, so one at loss for other conversational material talks about the weather or the American woman. Much wisdom goes astray on either topic. Meanwhile the weather cannot care, and the woman can always talk back. But it all goes to justify Prof. Mary A Wilcox in her declaration at Wellesly College that to speak of the equality of sex is merely to play on words. For what man among us could hope to rival under fire the beautiful equality with which woman floats through an endless tide of analysis, idolatry, misrepresentations, criticism, flattery, and plain gossip without missing a turn in her self-imposed task of complicating human existence?—New York World.

Not So Here.

It is more fun to see a man read a puff on himself in a newspaper than to see a fat man slip on a banana peel. The narrow-minded man reads it over seven or eight times, and then goes around to the office and pays what he owes. The successful business man who advertises regularly and makes money by it, immediately starts out to find the editor and the two walk silently down the street and the business man takes sugar in his and they both eat a clove or two and life is sweeter and peace settles down on their hearts for moments. Such is the experience of mustard seed that falls on different ground.—Rockingham (N. C.) News.

This is a clever bit of writing and may accurately set forth the return that comes to Ye Country Editor for saying pleasant things about the patrons of his paper. The observation is that in larger communities the "puff" is accepted by its recipient without acknowledgment of any sort, is considered in fact a very insufficient tribute to conspicuous merit and therefore not entitled to gratitude. Its omission, however, is held to justify resentment in practical form; and if the name of the daughter of Sum Pumpkins, should be misspelled in the society column, the offense is one never to be forgiven.—Virginian Pilot.

The Anderson Mail states it is a fact that it saw a farmer buy a watermelon on the streets of the town just before starting home in his automobile. Had The Mail investigated the purchase of that machine it would have found that the farmer had bought it on credit and given a mortgage to secure the payment. A farmer in this part of the country who depends on somebody else to raise the watermelons he eats hasn't cash enough on hand to pay for an automobile and he hasn't any business buying one or riding in one belonging to some one else either. A mule cart should be his only mode of travel.—Charlotte News.

We have heard it remarked several times lately that money is scarcer than usual at this season of the year. We don't know about that, but it is a well known fact that the farmers who could conveniently do so paid cash for their fertilizers last spring in order to avoid paying time prices. This perhaps accounts for the little money now in the country. It might also be remembered that a dollar looks bigger during the summer season than at any other time—especially through cider making months.—Our Home.

MEMORIES OF MARK TWAIN.

Two Letters the Humorist Wrote to Henry Watterson.

"Mark Twain—An Intimate Memory," is the title of Henry Watterson's article about his cousin as it appears in the American Magazine. Mr. Watterson recites the following incident as being typical of Mark Twain's whimsical point of view:

"His mind turned ever to the droll. Once in London I was living with my family at 103 Mount street. Between 103 and 102 there was the parochial workhouse—quite a long and imposing building. One evening, upon coming in from an outing, I found a letter he had written on the sitting room table and left with his card. He spoke of the shock he had received upon finding that next to 102—presumably 103—was the workhouse. He had loved me but had always feared that I would end by disgracing the family—being hanged, or something—but the 'work'us, that was beyond him; he had not thought it would come to that. And so on through pages of horseplay, his relief on ascertaining the truth and learning his mistake, his regret at not finding me at home, closing with a dinner invitation. Once at Geneva, in Switzerland, I received a long, overflowing letter, full of buoyant oddities, written from London. Two or three hours later came a telegram: 'Burn letter. Blot it from your memory. Susie is dead.' Susie was Mrs. Clemens.

TURKISH WOMEN.

They Are Curiously Fastidious in Some of Their Ways.

The habits of the Turkish women of Constantinople are wonderfully fastidious. For instance, when they wash their hands at a tap from which water runs into a marble basin the fair ones will let the water run until a servant shuts it off, inasmuch as to do this themselves would render them "unclean." They cannot open or shut a door, as the handle would be unclean.

One of these fastidious women was not long ago talking to a small niece who had just received a present of a doll from Paris. By and by the child laid the doll in the lady's lap. She was horrified and ordered the child to take it away. As the little girl would not move it and no servant was near and the lady would be defiled by touching a doll that had been brought from abroad, the only resource left her was to jump up and let the doll fall. It broke in pieces.

Another Turkish woman would not open a letter coming by post, but required a servant to break the seal and hold the missive near her that it might be ready also should her handkerchief fall to the ground it was immediately destroyed or given away, so that she might not again use it.—Exchange.

INDIANS' PRIDE.

Native Reserve and Conservatism Keep Them Apart From Whites.

Even among the Five Civilized Tribes there still remain many communities wholly full blood. These people drift together, following their own ideas of life, speaking their own language and retiring before the whites with the same strange reserve and pride that characterized them in their wild state.

Although claiming the name of several Christian denominations and following certain beliefs with devoutness, their ways of thinking, their dislike of innovation and their aversion to work have made them withdraw to the mountain districts. Whether this so called reserve comes from pride or a distrust of the white man or timidity or merely a stubborn conservatism, it produces the same result, the backward and nonprogressive Indian.

There is, too, a certain mystic quality that holds the Indian aloof, says the Southern Workman—a quality that we do not understand and with which there is little sympathy in our everyday life. He is so much of a philosopher that he looks upon our strenuous life with some contempt, dismissing our efforts for personal comfort and material advancement with the remark that "the white man is heap trouble to himself." While people call him lazy because he does not care to exert himself for those things which seem important to whites, yet to some religious ceremonial or some artistic expression his application is persistent, and the "patience of an Indian" has passed into a proverb.

WORKED LIKE A CHARM.

She Joined a Card Club In Order to Forget Her Work.

An Atchison woman who found the monotony of dishwashing, cooking and laundry work proving too much for sanity was urged to join a card club. "It will take your mind off your work," she was told, and so she joined. In order to attend she had to get up that morning an hour earlier to get her work done; a neighbor girl was hired to stay with the baby, and when, flustered, nervous and tired, she left the house fifteen minutes late she was followed by the screams of her three children because they couldn't be taken along. But she had her mind taken off her work at the card party. Of that there is no doubt, for when she made a misplay her partner, a perfect lady, walked right over her, then picked her up and shook her, and then chewed on her for fifteen minutes. She became so frightened that the little wits she had under her hair fled, and she made another misplay with another partner, and this woman, also a perfect lady, talked to her in a way the woman should have been ashamed to talk to a dog. It was more than she could endure, and, weeping like a sprinkling cart, she got up and went home.

"It did even more than it promised," she told her husband. "Nothing has ever happened to me in all my life that so effectively took my mind off my work. Why, there were times when I even forgot I had you and all the children."—Atchison Globe.

Athletics and the Unfit.

Those who are unfit should not indulge in athletic games is a warning by Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Outlook.

A boy, for instance, is a little weak after a mild attack of infectious fever, pneumonia, influenza or tonsillitis, and his heart is beating faster and more violently than it should on exertion. But the team wants him or he wants a record, or both, and away he goes into training.

"Suddenly one day the heart can no longer drive on its overload of blood, and down goes the runner or oarsman in an attack of heart failure," and athletics get all the discredit.

The same danger lies when there is no training, the sport being purely informal. It lies also where the girl just convalescent persists in taking part in a long anticipated dance. Only that phase of common sense which is manifested in common prudence is necessary to avoid such perils.

CRYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Greenville, But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills is what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.

Mrs. B. Pittman, Walnut street, Tarboro, N. C., says: "For some time I had not been feeling well and thought that my kidneys might be disordered, as my back was very weak and the passages of the kidney secretions were irregular. My husband got me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and since using them, my back has become stronger and my kidneys have been normal. I am now feeling much better in every way and therefore am willing to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A ROMANCE IN SIGHT.

Started by the Unmasking of the Pair of Frauds.

Not until boarding houses cease to exist will all their romances be written. Shabby romances, some of them are like that of the young woman who got so tired of being called "poor thing" because she received no invitations and had to eat all her meals at the boarding house table that she took to eating alone once in a while at a cheap restaurant and then brazenly lying about the friends who had invited her to dinner.

There was a young man in that house who never went anywhere either. The first night the girl stayed out life's desolation nearly overpowered him. "Even that poor little white faced soul has made friends who want her," he said. "Nobody wants me. I'm no good on earth."

Then on rare occasions his place at the table was vacant. "New friends?" asked the landlady.

"Yes," lied the young man. One night the man and the girl met in a twenty-five cent restaurant. They blushed; they fenced; they finally confessed.

"We're a pair of frauds," said the girl. "It's awful to think that tonight when we go home we will have to swear that we have been dining with friends."

"Well," said the young man, "ain't we?"—New York Press.

SHE WAS AGGRESSIVE.

Lucky For the Little Man He Was Not Her Husband.

The lady in the offside corner of the tramcar possessed a truculent air and a discolored eye.

"Funny thing any one can't take a penny ride without everybody glaring at 'em," she remarked, fixing a small gentleman wearing gray whiskers and a somewhat rusty top hat with her normal optic.

The small gentleman suddenly became interested in a soap advertisement.

Silence, allied with soap advertisement study, though eminently discreet, was ineffective.

"You 'm a-talkin' to." The lady prodded the small gentleman's knee with her umbrella. "Bin settin' there this last ten minutes, you 'ave, wonderin' if my 'usban' gives it to me. If it'll ease yer mind, 'e did. Is there anything else?"

"Madam," the small gentleman commenced, "had I been your husband?"

"I should 'a' got off at th' cemetery with a wreath instead of goin' ter the 'orsepital with a visitor's ticket," snapped the lady, "and the wreath wouldn't 'a' been expensive either."—London Ideas.

A Weary Celebrity.

When Mrs. Roger A. Pryor was a young woman living in Charlottesville, Va., visiting authors seldom reached the beautiful university town. "Thackeray, Dickens and Miss Martineau passed us by," says Mrs. Pryor in her book entitled "My Day—Reminiscences of a Long Life." But Frederika Bremer condescended to spend a night with her compatriot, Baron Schele de Vere of the university faculty, on her way to the south.

Schele de Vere invited a choice company to spend the one evening Miss Bremer granted him. Her works were extremely popular with the university circle, and every one was on tip-toe of pleased anticipation.

While the waiting company eagerly expected her the door opened—not for Miss Bremer, but for her companion, who announced:

"Miss Bremer, she beg excuse. She 'er tired and must sleep. If she come she gape in your noses."

Funerals in England.

At the time of Queen Victoria's funeral a writer in the Undertakers' Journal complained that, while royal burials were still conducted in an impressive manner, a sad lack of ceremonial distinguished the funerals of the nobility. "Item after item has been abandoned, idea after idea has been dropped, each meaning a distinct loss to our business. An undertaker in the west end, referring to the recent death of a noble lord, confided to me: 'Forty years ago I buried a member of that family, and the funeral bill came to £1,250 ($6,250). Ten years later I buried another, when it came to just over £700 ($3,500). Fifteen years ago I buried a third, at a cost of £320 ($1,600), but the bill for this one did not reach £75 ($375).'"

RATTLESNAKE BITES.

Simple Rules For Treatment if You Have the Nerve to Use Them.

The treatment of a rattlesnake wound resolves itself into the application of a few very simple rules. In the first place, a person wounded by a snake usually does the very thing he should not do—that is, goes tearing off at top speed for the nearest human habitation, thereby increasing the circulation and disseminating the virus through the system more rapidly. The man should sit calmly down and bind his handkerchief around the limb (if it is a limb), break off a stout twig and insert beneath the handkerchief, producing a rude tourniquet, and twist until the circulation is effectually shut off.

With a sharp knife make an X incision over the wound, taking care to penetrate deeper than the fangs have done. If he has good teeth and no canker in his mouth, he may now suck vigorously upon the wound. It does no good to suck the original wound. It is quite difficult to get any virus back through an opening not greater in caliber than a fine needle.

If all this is done without delay the chances are that the patient will suffer no greater inconvenience from his experience. If he chances to have handy a stick of silver nitrate he can cauterize the wound thoroughly. Failing that, a brand from the fire will serve. After a time he may release his tourniquet somewhat and permit a portion of the retained blood to enter the circulation. The system is capable of taking care of a great deal of poison if it is allowed to flow into the blood gradually.—Outing.

SET HIM THINKING.

The Reason His Wife Gave For Disliking Postponements.

Just when Mrs. Ackroyd had finished packing her trunks and after William Ackroyd had bought railway tickets for her and their two daughters little Bessie came down with a severe case of whooping cough. The doctor positively refused to let the child start on a long journey, and even if he had thought it safe for the little one to leave home he assured Mrs. Ackroyd that she would not be permitted to take the patient into a hotel anywhere. "Isn't it a shame?" the distressed lady wailed. "Here we are with everything in our trunks, and my husband has even bought our berths in the sleeper."

"It is unfortunate, but I don't know what you can do except sit down and wait four or five days! It may be safe then for you to start away."

When her husband got home that evening Mrs. Ackroyd was weeping.

"Don't take it so hard, dear," he said. "It might be a good deal worse. Our little one is likely to get along all right. The doctor says the case isn't an unusually severe one, and when I telephoned him this afternoon he said he thought it might be safe for you to start away by the end of the week."

"I know. He told me the same thing. But I feel that we'll never go. I never postponed anything yet that didn't turn out sadly. I once postponed a wedding, and the marriage never took place."

Half an hour later William Ackroyd was still sitting in a corner alone thinking it over.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Carrying a Bundle.

A stylish looking woman who looked as if she had rather die than carry a bundle that wouldn't go into a handbag went into the women's suit department of a big store lugging a pasteboard box half as big as herself. Other customers present wondered at her undignified action, but the saleswoman did not wonder.

"There is one time when the proudest woman on earth will carry a bundle," she said. "That is when some garment has been sent home finished off badly and has to be brought back for alterations. If the customer would only telephone to the store we would send for the garment, but that would take time. She wants it finished without delay, and rather than wait she brings it down herself."—New York Sun.

Alaska's Coast Region.

The coast region of Alaska has a mild climate, not colder than the northern part of Puget sound or of Scotland. The stand of trees is dense, averaging for considerable areas 25,000 feet per acre, Sitka spruce forming about 20 per cent of the stand and western hemlock about 75 per cent. Although by far the most abundant species, western hemlock does not produce as large individual trees as the spruce or western red cedar, the former occasionally showing a diameter of six feet with a height of 150 feet and the cedar diameters of from three to four feet.

WEDDED THE DEAD.

Queer Marriage Ceremony That Was Performed in Japan.

The tragic ending of a Japanese love story is reported by the Japan Chronicle from Tsuzuki, a little seaside village in the province of Shizuoka.

Ono Matsusaka, twenty years old, fell in love with Ono O-bun, a girl seventeen years old. The young couple sought the consent of their parents, and the father and mother of the girl refused to sanction the union. The two lovers decided to commit suicide rather than be separated. By appointment they met at a trysting place that had been the scene of their love-making and embarked in a fishing boat. At a point some distance from shore they bound themselves together with some cloth brought along to serve that purpose and threw themselves into the sea.

Committing "shinju," as lovers suicides are called in Japan, is such an ordinary occurrence that little attention is attracted by it, but this tragedy was followed by something exceptional in Japan.

When the two bodies, still bound together, were washed ashore the officials who examined them turned them over to their respective parents. The villagers were so deeply affected that they called upon the two bereaved families to "do justice" to the boy and girl by uniting them in marriage after death. The mayor of the village was especially insistent that the rites be performed, "so that the deceased might be safely united in the next world." The parents agreed, the ceremony was carried out in due form, and presents were exchanged between the two families. The ceremony was legally registered just as if it had taken place before the deaths of the bride and bridegroom.

Lafadio Hearn in his "Glimpses of Unfamiliar Japan" and "Gleanings in Buddha-fields" never brought the attention of the occident to any Japanese custom or occurrence stranger than this real happening that finds its way into the columns of a Japanese newspaper as a feature of the day's news.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MADDENING MONOTONY.

The Graveyard Sort of Life That Obtains in Sierra Leone.

It is difficult to explain how complete in normal times is the dullness of the small villages in the protectorate of Sierra Leone, on the coast of western Africa, says a writer in the Nineteenth Century and After. An hour before sunrise shadowy figures move noiselessly through the narrow alleys which separate the mud walled houses and in single file pass out of sight toward the farm lands. A little later children and a few women leave the houses to obtain water for cooking. They also go in single file and in a short while will return in the same manner carrying water in calabashes, except, perchance, one or two may be affluent enough to possess a tin in which kerosene oil has been imported. During the great heat of the day people return and sit, silent and motionless, in the thatched roof verandas. Toward evening there is more movement. Food time generally brightens people even when it only means rice and peppers. Soon after sunset all sign of life ceases. There is no light in the houses, because oil is expensive, and a dying fire is enough when there is nothing to see except those you have seen all day; there are no sounds, save a baby's cry at intervals, or perhaps the weird call of some night bird, because people cannot talk much when no one has anything fresh to say. Next day will be the same, and so will be every day in the year except at festival times, such as when the girls or boys return, dancing and gayly decked, from the Porroh Bush. There is no church, no postman, no passing horse or carriage and no newspapers.

A Freak of Nature.

Colonel Dennison had become the bappy father of twins, and his unbounded pride in this twofold blessedness found expression on every occasion.

He stood with a friend on the bank steps one day as a young woman passed wheeling a baby carriage containing a pretty girl baby.

"Doesn't a woman look queer," said the colonel loftily, "with only one child?"—Success Magazine.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—There was little change in the grain market today. The undertone was strong. Trade in wheat was light, with shorts best buyers. Corn and oats firm.

New York, Aug. 1.—The market opened steadily with an average of two points lower. The September market was off three points, and new crop positions were 1 to 5 points higher. Opening: August 15.13; September 14.40; October 13.55; November 13.35 bid.

New York, Aug. 1.—The new week started in with a renewal selling movement in stocks, causing general unsettlement of values. Many issues were pressed for sale at sharp concessions, and although gains were shown in few stocks, they were exceptional. At the end of the 15 minutes the market steadied most of the issues. Rallying small fractions from low range was reached just after the start.

The Cynic's Point of View.

Of course we all like to know that our enemies are vulnerable, but it is only the cynical elect who can appreciate with fine epicurean fastidiousness the glorious revelation that their friends are human after all. And it is not only the weakness of those near and dear to us, but their misfortunes and annoyances, which give a thrill of illicit joy to those honest contortionists who can look in their own hearts. I once heard a young mother say that there was only one thing which gave her greater pleasure than hearing that the children of her friends were sick, and that was to hear that they were bad. No one but a brom-idiot (to borrow the excellent root with which Mr. Gelett Burgess has enriched us) would think of condemning this young woman for being malicious or unkind. Misery is not the only human quality that loves company. Some of her distant relatives—Anxiety, Discouragement, Annoyance—are equally sociable.—Atlantic.

THE SPEED MANIA.

Sensations That Come With a Ride in a Racing Motor.

Imagine yourself in a big racing machine plunging over a course at eighty miles an hour. For the average man the sensation is awful, but the speed kings revel in it. Down the road streaks the car. Lashed into a typhoon by the appalling speed, the still air roars in your ears. You think you will never regain your bearing. The resistance of the atmosphere is fearful. The slightest forward movement is an effort. Distant objects loom up suddenly before you and jump by. The landscape is a streaky line of green, blotched here and there as a house is passed. The gale seems to cut your face, and you feel yourself being gradually flattened out against the back of the seat. It seems that the glass in your auto goggles is on the point of breaking. Particles of dust are driven back in your eyes. You may become blinded. The vibration of the engine is terrific. Mysterious indicators fluctuate alarmingly. It may mean that the engine is on the point of exploding. What makes the floor tremble so? Surely something will happen now!

And then you hear explosions booming from the exhausts as the drivers "shut off." A sharp turn is ahead. The noise is deafening. The terrific speed does not seem to have been checked. The outline of the turn grows more distinct. It is sheer folly—maybe death—to rush at it at such a pace. You dare not breathe as the car tears into the bend. It skids and a wall of dirt is thrown up alongside you as the driver, with a sharp twist of the wheel, sends the car once more back in the middle of the road. You are safe—until another turn is encountered.—Hampton's Magazine.

A Painful Inference.

A teacher was instructing a class of boys and had spent half an hour trying to drive into their heads the difference between man and the lower animals, but apparently with little success.

"Tommy," he said coaxingly to a little chap, "do you know the difference between, say, me and a pig or any other brute?"

"No," replied Tommy innocently, but another teacher standing by laughed.—London Answers.

Alternating Currant Pie.

In the light of what has been learned about the housefly there is no longer any excuse for the gay insouciance of the poet who wrote a summer boarding house lyric, in which these lines occurred:

Here, sir, is your currant pie.
Alternating currant pie.
First a currant, then a fly
'Neath the crust alternate lie.
—Louisville Courier-Journal.
