HAPPENINGS THROUGHOUT NORTH CAROLINA.

CREAM OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE EXCHANGES.

Cloud Burst Near Asheville—Made Ill by Ice Cream—Child Found in Well—Fatally Burned.

At a church function in Hookerton Friday night, a large number were made violently ill by eating ice cream, said to have been prepared from milk, part of which was sour. There were no less than thirty four stricken and the physicians of Hookerton were kept busy all Friday night trying to prevent serious results to those that had partaken of the cream. Though a number were made deathly sick none have died and all will recover.—Kinston Free Press.

Durham, Aug. 2.—The finding of a little negro child this morning in a well by a negro boy caused an investigation by officers this afternoon, but no clue to parents of dead baby was discovered. The baby was in the water and was in a state of decomposition. Coroner Jordan thinks the baby was at least a day old. There was a string around its neck and a brick tied around its waist.

Wilmington, Aug. 2.—Preston Henry, white, 24 years old, son of Mr. J. S. Henry, of Town Creek, Brunswick county, was probably fatally burned yesterday at a saw mill operated by him and his father near his home, when one of the steam pipes blew out. Young Henry was fireman at the mill.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 2.—The grand camp, Confederate Veterans of North Carolina, through Major James W. Hamilton, of Durham, N. C., today accepted an invitation to meet in Norfolk jointly with the grand camp Confederate Veterans of Virginia, contingent upon the latter's acceptance of Norfolk's invitation. The tentative plan is to hold the joint encampment here September 6-10.

Raleigh, Aug. 2.—Governor Kitchin announced today a reward of $100 for the arrest of Claud Murphy wanted in Surry county for a murderous assault on George Ramsey, July 21, at Lowe Gap. The fugitive is 40 years old. A similar amount of reward is outstanding in the county.

Asheville, Aug. 2.—News reached here tonight of a terrible cloud burst near Nebo, below Marion, about five o'clock this afternoon in which great damage was done to the crops.

Goldsboro, Aug. 2.—This afternoon fire destroyed one of the large dry kilns of the A. T. Griffin Manufacturing Company, containing 25,000 feet of lumber, seriously damaged an adjacent kiln, and for a while it looked like the entire big plant would be consumed into ashes.

Kinston, Aug. 2.—Mr. Ray Croom was waylaid and beaten by Roscoe Britt, a young man who had been formerly employed by Mr. Croom and to whom Croom owed money for services. Mr. Croom was knocked down and kicked until his face and body were bruised and bleeding.

The disturbance attracted neighbors who came to the rescue of the assaulted man. Britt was arrested and put under a $400 bond, owing to the gravity of the offense.

Fayetteville, Aug. 2.—Charles Melvin, who escaped three years ago by overpowering Superintendent Cole, of the road force, was captured yesterday in Rockfish township, by Mr. M. A. McLean. He was brought to town and placed in jail.

Des Moines, Aug. 3.—There is rejoicing here over the insurgent victory in Kansas. Republican progressives loaded their heavy guns for a royal battle in the State convention which opens here today. It was conceded before the session opened that the insurgents would control the situation. They will give the Taft administration a qualified endorsement, and condemn the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

DAKOTA BOB.

Arrives in City on His Last Long Jaunt—To go on Stage

"Dakota Bob," known throughout the South, East and West, as one of the champion long distance walkers, arrived in Greenville Tuesday afternoon on a second visit, having been here about eleven years ago. Bob says he hardly recognizes Greenville now, such changes having taken place since he was here before. He has just finished a jaunt from Tampa, Florida. "Bob" has just concluded 100,000 miles of globe trotting afoot. He states that he has finished his last journey this way, as he proposes to take to the vaudeville stage in the near future.

Attired in a linen duster coat, wearing a genuine Mexican straw hat with high top and broad brim, and carrying his famous old cane with a spreading eagle for a head, and with his long locks flowing behind him. "Bob" is a picturesque character and he has attracted much attention on the streets. He expects to spend several days here. "Bob" is now 54 years old. He has been around the world twice and has crossed the United States six times.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION.

From a Teacher Who Attended The Summer School.

It is not because we are scripturally enjoined to "give credit where credit is due," that these remarks are made; but that the fullness of heart prompteth them.

For the past ten weeks, I have been one of that great body of teachers at the new East Carolina Teachers' Training School, and it was a privilege indeed to have been a sharer in the advantages extended to us there. Not only am I giving personal opinion, but I am voicing the sentiments of our whole body of students when I say that the summer course we have just finished has filled a very long-felt need. This was the first term of summer work but already the faculty understand conditions, and already are they seeking to remedy them. The managers of this summer school are giving the help for which the conscientious teacher in the rural school has been yearning. It is not a case of "cramming," as we have had at short institutes. It is a series of carefully prepared lessons which demonstrate facts that the teachers have to face. It gets down to the root of things. It deals with practice, not theory.

Bacon says, that, "Natural abilities are like natural plants that need pruning by study, but studies themselves do give forth directions too much at large except they be bounded in by experience." Here, in our new training school, we can boast of a faculty with experience enough to temper directions so they may guide and not confuse the young teacher. Besides that, every member of our faculty the present summer, has shown that whole hearted sympathy with our work and such genuine consideration for our welfare, that we are sure of their individual interest if we should ever turn upon them again for aid.

It has been a sacrifice on their part, no doubt, to give so freely of their time during the warm weeks that should bring complete relaxation from work, and no one appreciates the efforts these good friends have made in our behalf more than we do ourselves.

The spirit of the student body has been especially fine. On the whole the summer term at the school has been as full of pleasure as it has been of work.

We are indebted to many of the Greenville citizens for favors extended us from time to time. One that was especially helpful was The Daily Reflector, kindly donated by our good friend, Mr. Whichard. He needed but to see how the teachers devoured its news to prove to him that it was appreciated.

The Training School has scored a big point for its first year, surely.

A TEACHER.

JAMES R. COREY.

Tribute by One Who Knew Him Intimately.

The subject of this sketch was born in Greenville forty-three years ago. When he was three years old his father died, leaving a widow and two little boys, Jim and John, who was the elder. After his father's death his mother moved into the country and there the boys grew into manhood.

The two came to Greenville and entered in the hardware business in 1889. In a short time the co-partnership was dissolved and J. R. Corey has been conducting it ever since.

The writer has known Jim Corey since he was a boy. He was always modest and retiring and on the best of terms with everybody. If he ever had an enemy, no one found it out by an unkind word from him.

By his modest, simple life and good easy ways, he made hundreds of friends who grieve at his untimely death. He died in the prime of life and in apparent good health.

In going to our respective places of business in the early morning hours before many others were out, we frequently met, and at such times we often lived over again the scenes of boyhood. Had I been five minutes earlier I should probably have been with him or near him when he was stricken.

It saddens me to realize that I shall meet him no more in this life. He was one of the very best men I ever knew, and one of the most honorable.

OUR WEEKLY PAPER.

At the time of installing a type setting machine and other equipment, by which much improvement has been made in The Daily Reflector, both in general appearance and quality of reading matter, it was our purpose to soon follow with even a greater change in our weekly edition. Owing to the delay in getting some of the material wanted for this, the change in our weekly edition could not be made as soon as desired, but the change is coming with next issue. The next number of the weekly edition will be decidedly changed in appearance, and partially changed in name. Instead of being eight pages as now, there will be sixteen, the pages being smaller and giving the paper more of a magazine form. A handsome engraved heading has been made for this, and the name of the paper when it goes out next week will be "The Carolina Home and Farm and The Eastern Reflector." The name may sound long, but when you see it you will say it is a pretty good combination.

There are various reasons why we desire to make these changes in our weekly edition. As the new part of the name implies, our purpose is to make it more of a home and farm paper than it has been heretofore. While it will continue to have its news and editorial features, more attention will be given to agricultural and farm matters than in the past. The smaller and more numerous pages will give opportunity to classify the reading matter in departments that will make it an attractive paper.

It is our purpose to make the weekly edition a paper that will appeal to and interest those especially who live on the farm, and we want every farmer in Pitt and surrounding counties, in fact throughout Eastern Carolina, to feel that it is his paper. Look for it next week, and help us to make "The Carolina Home and Farm and The Eastern Reflector" the best home and farm paper in the Eastern section of the State.

A California country girl, who said she never had enough candy in her life, broke away from home ties and went to San Francisco. There she raised a check from $1 to $50, but before laying in a stock of candy purchased a silk layover waist. Then she got in jail and still had no candy.

The New York World took nearly a column to tell that Kermit Roosevelt is in love. You can tell that some folks are in love without a word being said.

BUY AT HOME.

Some Remarks on This Important That Should be Considered.

It is a surprising statement, but the Democrat learns on good authority that more than $100,000 a year goes out from Hickory and the sections which mails its letters at the post office there, for mail orders.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Field in Chicago and Wannamaker, perhaps get the bulk of this money.

This amount would contribute quite a good deal toward the general prosperity. The community ought to stand together. A man who makes his living off the community ought to trade with the people who support him. Yet we have heard of instances, within recent days, where people who had business in town, sent orders to distant cities for commodities they could have just as easily secured here.

We know that Wannamaker's catalogue is very alluring literature to the good women, and yet we believe they could get nearly everything they want from local dry goods houses. If it is not in stock surely the local men would order it, and be glad to do so. We know that more money is paid in some instances for the mail order goods than would be paid at home.

There is a sort of fascination in opening a package which comes through the mails or in ordering a box which comes by express or freight. It is a trait of human nature this joy of untying things. But it hurts a town.

One way to stop this drain of home money to distant places is intelligent persistent advertising in the local papers. But the very fact of this failure to support home institutions discourages a merchant and he doesn't advertise with the heart and vim he would like to use, and the lack of advertising discourages the newspaper man, and he does not run his paper with the enthusiasm he ought to have and so there is a depression and failure in the city to make it what it should be.

Trading at home is one thin which has made Charlotte and Atlanta great and rich. Trading away from Hickory and Newton is one thing which is keeping two of the finest towns in the State out of what is coming to them.

Let's pull together!—Hickory Democrat.

A Little Misunderstanding

They have a mystery at Washington which nobody can solve. For more than ten years there has been a frantic demand for the organization of postal savings banks. It looked as though the country had risen as one man. Congress at last yielded, and now that the law is in force nobody seems to want a postal savings bank. There is growing suspicion that the enterprise is destined failure.

Men who govern should know something about government. What is wanted in this country is a postal savings banks with all modern conveniences. They must be brought to our doors. Uniformed agents come in and get our money, giving a receipt therefor. To be strictly up to date, these employees should have a cigar for the head of the family and a few little kickstraws for the woman and children. There might be some trading stamps. No postal savings bank can hope to satisfy the cravings of the people unless it does business in an enlightened way.

It is a strange idea of public sentiment which finds a mystery in this situation. The people want the banks as keenly as ever but they want the office-holders at Washington to deliver them. What is government for?—New York World.

The foundation of society rests on its home. The success of the home rests on the wives. Therefore, first of all teach our girls how to be successful wives. Begin early to train their character. Teach them that jealousy is an immorality of gossip advice. Train them to keep the smallest promise sacredly and to speak of people only as they would speak of them. Teach them to look for the best qualities in everyone they meet, and to notice other people's faults only to avoid them. Train them to do small things well and delight in helping others, that sacrifice made for other's pleasures is a means of soul development. Once given a firm foundation of character like this, which is the poorest as well as the richest parents can give their girls, and no matter what necessity arises they will be able to rise above it.—Louisburg Times.

"When I accepted the chairmanship," says Judge Adams, chairman of the Republican State committee, "I did not have a gray hair in my head. Today my hair is almost white and I attribute this largely to be worry of selecting postmasters." Notwithstanding the worry may turn the hair gray, the job of State chairman is the center of interest to the North Carolina Republicans. On account of it there is much crimination and recrimination, much washing of dirty linen in public.—Statesville Landmark.

A Large Volume.

The biggest book in Washington is not in the Congressional Library. It is in the reference room of the geological survey on F street, where its huge bulk reposes on a stand made especially for it. It is a dictionary and consists of half a dozen volumes bound under one generous cover that must have taken several calfskins to provide the leather binding. It contains 7,085 pages and weighs as much as a high school girl. By contrast the fat Webster's Unabridged that lies alongside this great Jumbo of a book looks like a pocket edition of the "Rubaiyat."

So Does Sore Throat, Bronchitis Croup and Asthma.

You can easily tell by reading the symptoms below, whether you have catarrh or not:

Offensive breath, frequent sneezing, discharge from the nose, stoppage of the nose, huskiness of the voice, tickling in throat, dropping in throat, a cough, pain in chest, loss of strength, variable appetite, spasms of coughing, low spirited at times, raising of mucus, difficulty in breathing, loss of vital force.

Coward & Wooten has a sensible remedy (money-back if it fails) for catarrh, called Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) which is a vaporized air, so antiseptic, that when it is breathed over the inflamed and germ-infested membrane, it kills all germ life, gives relief in two minutes, and cures catarrh.

The price, including hard rubber inhaler, is only $1.00. The hard rubber pecker inhaler will last a lifetime, so that should you need a second bottle of Hyomei, you can get it for 50 cents.

CHICKEN RACES.

The Ridiculous "Hen Derby" Instituted by Sir John Astley.

It is said that the crowning triumph of Sir John Astley, that inventor of absurd contests, whose forte it was to arrange races between animals which nature apparently had made most unsuitable for the purpose, was the institution of the only races that ever took place between chickens.

The story is that the idea came to Sir John during a visit to a friend who kept a large number of hens. He noticed how rapidly the chickens used to scurry to their mother when food was thrown to her. "This furnished the ingenious Sir John with a clever notion, and at mess, he then being quartered at Windsor, he accordingly unfolded to his brother officers his plans for a great chicken race.

He bought from a farmer a hen and a brood of chickens. Each officer was to choose a chicken and mark it with a ribbon, so that he could easily recognize it. The chickens were to be placed about fifty yards away from their mother, and whichever of them reached her first in answer to her cackle when food was thrown to her was to be adjudged the winner.

And so this ridiculous "hen Derby" came off in the barracks at Windsor and was witnessed by nearly the whole brigade of guards, who traveled down from London especially to see it.

The race was such a success that it was arranged to repeat it the following week. It might possibly have become a regular institution and a racing stable of chickens might have been added to the attractions at Windsor had not Sir John's chicken won on each occasion with such ease as to cause suspicion in the minds of his competitors. Indeed, it was found, it is said, that in both races Sir John had selected a sturdy young cockerel who was much too speedy for his sisters. When victory was a certainty for one particular competitor the contest, of course, lost interest, and so the chicken race at Windsor came to a sudden end.--New York Herald.

TURNER'S AMBITION.

The Great Painter Achieved It by Years of Self Sacrifice.

Turner could not bear to sell a favorite painting. He was always melancholy after such a transaction. "I lost one of my children this week," he would sadly exclaim. At a meeting at Somerset House it was decided to purchase his two great pictures, the "Rise" and the "Fall of Carthage," for the National gallery. A Mr. Griffiths was commissioned to offer £5,000 for them. "A noble offer," said the painter, "a noble offer; but, no, I cannot part with them. Impossible." Mr. Griffiths, greatly disappointed, took his leave. Turner ran after him. "Tell those gentlemen," he said, "that the nation will most likely have the pictures after all." Long before this Turner had matured a purpose which continued to be his dominant idea while life lasted. This was to bequeath to his country a Turner gallery of pictures and to amass £100,000 to build and endow an asylum for decayed artists. It was for this great object that he denied himself all pleasures that cost money, all luxuries. His resolve, once made, could not be shaken. On one occasion he was offered £100,000 for the art treasures locked up in the "den." "Give me the key of the house, Mr. Turner," said a Liverpool merchant, "and here is the money." "No, thank you," replied Turner. "I have refused a better offer." And that was true. By his will he bequeathed £140,000 to found an asylum for poor artists born in England and a magnificent art collection to his country. This latter bequest was, however, coupled with the condition that his "Rise and Fall of Carthage" should be hung in the National gallery between Claude's "Seaport" and "Mill."--London Graphic.

THIS IS CERTAIN.

The Proof That Greenville Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.

Mrs. T. S. Norman, 911 Evans St., Greenville, N. C., says: "I gladly give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement, as they have proven of greater benefit to me than any other remedy I ever used. I suffered severely from a dull ache through the small of my back. There was also a soreness across my kidneys and I was hardly able to get around on account of sharp, darting pains through my loins. Upon arising in the morning, I felt tired and languid and had but little ambition or energy. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wooten's drug store, the backaches and pains have disappeared, I do not suffer from backache and that tired, languid feeling has disappeared."

THE ANDORRANS.

All the Inhabitants of the Little Republic Are Related.

The inhabitants of Andorra, the little republic which is wedged in between France and Spain and which has existed since the year 782, are very proud of their blue blood and ancient lineage. In their eyes a gavage (foreigner) of any description or nationality is merely an inferior being, a sort of laughing-room upstart in comparison with themselves. During 1,200 years they have continually married and intermarried to such an extent that at present all the inhabitants are practically cousins, yet, strange to say, neither their physical, mental nor moral qualities seem to have suffered. Both sexes are strong limbed, broad shouldered, bright eyed, hardy and long lived, retaining their hair and their teeth to a green old age. They are also keen witted and intelligent, alert and happy hearted, sober, industrious, hospitable and devout. The feminine Andorran has not a vestige of coquetry about her. She is just the female pure and simple. She is a thrifty housewife, a helpmate to her husband in the most literal sense of the term--ready and able to trudge off across mountain and valley beside him with a pack of smuggled goods on her back in case of need.--Wide World Magazine.

PROMOTED THE COOK.

An Error Made Him a Professor of History in Russia.

Some years ago the minister of education in St. Petersburg was appealed to by telegram for a cook, to be hurried to Moscow. The operator got his dashes and dots mixed, but by next train a man arrived and was ceremoniously conducted to the university, where he was introduced to the assembled faculty and students as the new professor in history.

The unhappy fellow protested that, while he might be a professor of pots and pans, he knew nothing about history. But in Russian official life it is harder far to correct an error than to make one, so for several years the cook has held his professorship, though no one attends his lectures.

Another laughable story comes from the Suwalki school for boys. A door-keeper there who could scarcely read or write had grown so untidy and slow that he was no longer useful, but as the headmaster did not want to set him adrift he promoted him to a teacher's post and had him transferred to a distant school. He, too, will be a professor some day.--Moscow Letter in New York World.

Didn't Want It Flattened.

This story is told of Jerome K. Jerome, the humorist. Returning from abroad one time, he fell into good company, with the exception of one man, who was what is known as "a walking encyclopedia." This man persisted in giving all sorts of information, much to the annoyance of Mr. Jerome and others. One morning, as the travelers leaned over the rail, admiring the rising sun, the man with the information turned to them and said almost solemnly:

"Gentlemen, if the earth were flattened out the sea would be two miles deep over the whole world."

Mr. Jerome turned around, seemingly stunned. Then he grew indignant, and, walking over to the other man, he said, shaking his finger menacingly: "Look here, man, if you catch any fellow trying to flatten out the earth shoot him on the spot. I can't swim."--Philadelphia Times.

London's Town Hall.

The guildhall is an important public building in London, which may be regarded as the town hall, and is the place of assembly of several courts, as the court of common council, the court of aldermen, the chamberlain's court and a police court presided over by one of the aldermen. The construction of the building was begun in 1411. It was partially destroyed in the great fire of 1666, but was soon restored, and in 1789 it was altered to its present form. The hall proper is 153 feet in length, 48 in breadth and 55 in height. It has been famous for centuries for the magnificence of its civic feasts. The first time it was used for this purpose was in 1500, when Sir John Shaw, goldsmith, who had been knighted on the field of Bosworth, first gave here the lord mayor's feast.

The Miserable Villain.

Low Comedian--After all these years Eggbert has at last succeeded in making a hit with the audience.

Soubrette--So? How does he do it? Low Comedian--You know he has always played villain roles.

Soubrette--Yes. Low Comedian--Well, in the last act of a new play the author allows him to repent and say, "I've been a miserable villain." That confession invariably brings down the house.--Boston Post.

"Ya'as."

"Goin' to lose yer darter, eh?" "I reckon, but not to Lem. Zeb Higgs Mondayed, Tuesdayed, Wednesdayed and Thursdayed with us. I judge Zeb is the lucky man."--Success Magazine.

No Danger of That.

Mrs. Stubbs--John, no true man will smoke up his wife's curtains. Mr. Stubbs--I should say not. Anybody that smokes curtains would be a freak. I prefer cigars.--Chicago News.

THE UGLY LEOPARD

He is a Cattle Thief and Even a Human Being Thief.

WORSE THAN LION OR TIGER.

Seizes Its Prey by the Throat and Clings With Its Claws Until It Breaks the Spine of Its Victim or Strangles It.

Less in size, but even more ferocious, the leopard has a worse character than the tiger or lion. Living mainly in trees and very nocturnal, this fierce and dangerous beast is less often seen than far rarer animals. It is widely spread over the world from the Cape of Good Hope to the Atlas mountains and from southern China to the Black sea, where it is sometimes met with in the Caucasus.

Any one who has frequented the zoo for any time must have noticed the difference in size and color between leopards from different parts of the world. On some the ground color is almost white, in others a clear nut brown. Others are jet black.

Wherever they live leopards are cattle thieves, sheep thieves, dog thieves and human being thieves. Though not so common as tigers, they are immensely strong, and it is not unusual for them to turn man eater. Both in India and in Africa they have been known to set up in this line as deliberately as any tiger. They have four or five young at a birth. The cubs can be kept tame for some time and are amusing pets, but it is extremely dangerous to have them about.

In Hongkong an Englishman had a tame leopard. It was brought into the dining room by a coolie to be exhibited to the owner's guests. Excited by the smell of food, the leopard refused to go out when one of the women, who did not like his looks, asked that it be removed. The coolie took hold of its collar and began to haul it out. It seized him by the neck, bit it through and in a minute the coolie was dying, covered with blood, on the dining room floor.

The Chinese leopard ranges as far north as the Siberian tiger and, like the latter, seems to grow larger the farther north it is found. The color of these northern leopards is very pale, the spots are large and the fur is very long.

The natives of all countries are unanimous in declaring that the leopard is more dangerous than the lion or tiger. They have no fear of the lion, provided they are not hunting for it, for it will not attack unless provoked, but a leopard is never to be trusted.

In Africa a number of natives were firing the reeds along a stream. One of them, a boy, being thirsty and hot, stooped down to drink. He was immediately seized by a leopard. The boy's brother, with an admirable aim, hurled his spear at the leopard while the boy was in his jaws. The point separated the vertebrae of the neck, and the leopard fell stone dead. But the boy could not recover. The leopard's fangs had torn open his chest and injured the lungs. The latter were exposed to view through the cavity of the ribs. He died during the night.

Leopards are essentially tree living and nocturnal animals. Sleeping in trees or caves by day, they are seldom disturbed. They do an incredible amount of mischief among cattle, calves, sheep and dogs, being especially fond of killing and eating the latter.

They seize their prey by the throat and cling with their claws until they succeed in breaking the spine or in strangling the victim. They have a habit of feeding on putrid flesh. This makes wounds inflicted by their teeth or claws liable to blood poisoning. Nothing in the way of prey comes amiss to them, from a cow in the pasture to a fowl up at roost.

In the great mountain ranges of central Asia the beautiful snow leopard is found. It is a large creature, with thick, woolly coat and a long tail like a fur boa. The color is white, clouded with beautiful gray, like that of an Angora cat. The edges of the cloudings and spots are marked with black or darker gray. The eyes are very large, bluish gray or smoke colored. It lives on the wild sheep, ibex and other mountain animals. In captivity it is far the tamest and gentlest of the large carnivora, not excepting the puma. Unlike the latter, it is a sleepy, quiet animal, like a domestic cat.

The West African leopard skin is more handsome than the Asiatic, the spots being very distinct and clear. He and she—they usually go in couples—are fond of hunting cantonments and around native towns, where they pick up a goat and now and then a baby.

One night I was camped in a native town and after I had retired the natives, as was their custom, were sitting about a great fire asking my caravan all sorts of questions, for the African savage is the greatest gossip in the world. Suddenly a child's cry rang out, followed by a great clamor, rushing out to discover the cause of alarm. I was informed that a leopard had stolen from the darkness and quick as a flash had grabbed a four-year-old child and made off with it. The child was seated in the midst of the grown men and women. The latter could only lament their loss. They knew it was useless to try to pursue the beast into the dense bush.

The leopard is so bold that even in daylight he will wander about a town or a white man's premises. It is not at all unusual to get a good shot at a leopard from a bungalow veranda or a mud hut door.—Pittsburg Dispatch

A WITTY PASHA.

He Told the Missionary a Story to Fit the Occasion.

Official bribery is common in the east, and it is a tender subject there, as a humorous story told by the late Rev. H. H. Jessup, D. D., in his book, "Fifty-three Years in Syria," bears witness.

One day in 1873 Dr. V. Dyck, manager of the press in connection with the work of propaganda of the Syrian Protestant college at Beirut, was sent for by Kamil Pasha, the governor, to come to the serai, as he was about to shut up the press for a violation of the press laws. Dr. Van Dyck proceeded to the serai and asked the pasha what he meant.

The pasha, holding up a little tract, said, "Was this printed at your press?" "Yes."

"Then it must be confiscated, as it contains an attack on the Turkish government."

"Wherein," asked Dr. Van Dyck, "does it attack the government?" The pasha pointed out several passages which criticized the bribery and corruption everywhere prevalent, perjury and lying among witnesses and public officials and the fact that "truth had fallen in the streets and equity could not enter."

"Are not these statements true?" said Dr. Van Dyck. "Your excellency ought to put a copy into the hands of every government official in your pashalic. Is it not so?"

"Have you never heard the story of the Cadl el Ah War?" asked the pasha. "And what is that?" queried the doctor.

"Well," began the pasha, "once there was a famous one eyed cadl (judge). One day a man came to court and addressed him as follows:

"Good morning, O one eyed cadl! May your day be blessed, O one eyed cadl! I have heard of the noble character and justice of the one eyed cadl, and I would ask the distinguished and revered one eyed cadl to do me justice, and—"

"Stop!" interrupted the cadl. "Supposing I am one eyed, do I want to be everlastingly reminded of it? Get out of my sight!"

"And so," concluded the pasha, "we know that these reflections on our country and our courts are true, but we don't want to be publicly reminded of it!"

ANCESTRY.

Some Famous Personages to Whom It Meant Nothing.

The making famous of the expression "I am my own ancestor" is usually credited to Andoche Junot, for a time a marshal of France. Junot had risen from the ranks and became the Duke of Abrantes and an important figure at Napoleon's newly formed court. One day a nobleman of the old regime asked him what was his ancestry. "Ah, sir," replied the spirited soldier, "I know nothing about it. I am my own ancestor." Probably he had never heard of the similar remark made by Tiberius about Curtius Rufus, "He seems to me to be descended from himself."

Napoleon's reply to the emperor of Austria was in a kindred vein. The Austrian when Napoleon became his prospective son-in-law would fain have traced the Bonaparte lineage to some petty prince of Treviso. "I am my own Rudolph of Hapsburg," said Napoleon. Under similar circumstance Napoleon silenced a genealogist. "Friend, my patent of nobility dates from Montenotte," his first great victory.

When Epichrates, the Athenian general, had it cast up in his face by a descendant of Harmodius that he was a shoemaker's son he calmly replied, "The nobility of my family begins with me; yours ends with you."

Almost the same words were used by Alexander Dumas when asked if he were not descended from an ape (covert sneer at his negro grandmother). "Very likely my ancestry begins where yours ends."

Voltaire in his "Merope" says: "The first to become king was a successful soldier. He who serves well his country has no need of ancestry."

Conquered the Orchestra. In his early days Herr Arthur Nikisch, the famous conductor, was appointed to conduct a performance of "Tannhaeuser" at the Leipzig opera. He was but a young chorus master at the time, and the orchestra absolutely refused to play under so youthful a conductor. They were only induced to do so when a director said that if they were of the same mind after the overture had been played they could then and there hand in their resignations. The overture was a veritable triumph for Nikisch, and with profuse apologies the orchestra offered him their congratulations.—London Tit-Bits.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Aug. 3.—The cotton market opened firm, 10 to 15 points higher. Cables were strong. Opening: August 15.37; September 14.20; October 13.75; December 13.63; January 13.56.

New York, Aug. 3.—Although there was a good deal of irregularity in price changes during the first few minutes of the stock market, a majority of issues showed fractional losses. Toward the end of 15 minutes a steadier tone, recovering part of the losses.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—There was a strong under current in the wheat market today, and prices were up 3/4 to 1c. Corn sold off 1/8 to 3/8. Oats were easier and steady.

Wropped in on the Bears.

The removing of the polar bears at the zoo recalls that some years back a visitor dropped in on these bears. A hat fell into the pit, and its owner at once jumped in after it. He alighted on a bear who was enjoying a doze in the sun. The bear made him welcome. It seized him by the shoulder and waltzed him round and round. Luckily the visitor kept his feet until a keeper opened a side door and pulled him into safety. But the hat was left behind. On the following day the man sent to the society a letter in which he claimed the cost of a new hat.—London Tatler.

A Vicious Fish.

In South America there is a small fish that not only attacks its fellows of the sea and river, but is greatly dreaded by the natives, who during certain seasons have to ford the streams in which the caribos are found. Bathing is often attacked by them, the sharp, chisel shaped teeth taking a bit from the flesh wherever they attack. They are perfect scavengers, eating the animals that float down the river—dead or alive.

The Deduction.

"There's a proverb that fits every man."
"What one fits me?"
"To whom God gives office, he also gives brains."
"But I have no office."
"Well, don't you see how it fits?"—Cleveland Leader.

This Explains It.

Of course horses are afraid of automobiles and some farmers are not at all pleased with the manner in which drivers of these machines dash by, seemingly without notice of the fact that lives and vehicles are endangered by so doing. We have heard it remarked that it's a little strange that horses and mules will turn things over and leave the road in spite of everything that can be done when they meet an automobile and pay no attention to buggies and wagons. But an old negro woman explains the matter this way: "I guess if you were to meet a pair of briches comin' down the road with no man in 'em, you'd be scared too." And it's real good logic.—Our Home, Marshville.
