CREAM OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE EXCHANGES.

Sold Whiskey With too Much Water In It—Commissioners in Charlotte—Suicide in Raleigh.

Raleigh, Aug. 10.—John Mitchell was brought here from Franklin county today and held by United States Commissioner for the November term of the United States court on the charge that he was a "blind tiger." It developed in the trial that one of the witnesses "squealed" on him because he sold him whiskey with too much water in it. He was doing business at Youngsville.

The county commissioners are today in full force, coming from the seacoast and the mountains, the middle counties and the foothills and forming a most representative assemblage of Tar Heels of the good old English stock, men who in large measure are well acquainted with hard work, and who in the majority of cases have been raised on the farm.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 10.—The governor orders a reprieve of 30 days from August 5 in the case of Will G. Wilkins, under sentence in Nash county to pay a fine of $250 and serve one year on the roads for selling whiskey. The reprieve is ordered without statement of reason other than that the trial judge requests it.

Raleigh will be shocked this morning to hear of the sudden death last night of Mr. Charles W. Young, at his home. He had been in bad health for some time and last night suffering from a spell of despondency, it is supposed, fastened a window cord around his neck and by stepping from a chair hanged himself from a door transom in his home, while his family were at supper. Dr. A. W. Godwin and Herbert Haywood, Jr., were summoned and upon arrival administered artificial respiration, but upon examination found Mr. Young's neck broken.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Durham, N. C., August 10.—Editor A. L. Fletcher, of the Durham Daily Sun, has tendered his resignation to take effect about the first of September.

A telegram from Fayetteville this afternoon announced that the Grand Encampment I. O. O. F., had selected Raleigh as the place for the next annual meeting. The date is set for the third Tuesday in August, 1911.—Raleigh Evening Times.

Wilmington Aug. 10.—Following a fire supposedly of incendiary origin early this morning at Rock Spring Hotel, conducted by J. C. Halley, Edward Cromwell, an orphan boy employed by Halley, was found to be suffocated. When dragged from the room by a fireman the boy was dead. Investigation today by the chief of the fire department revealed evidences of arson. Oil saturated the bed clothing, and a can of gasoline was found. Halley had insured the boy's life only two weeks ago for $2,500. Cromwell came from an orphan asylum at Charleston, S. C.

WENDLING TRIES TO ESCAPE.

Bolts Upon Leaving Train, But is Recaptured.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Olney, Ill., Aug. 11.—Joseph Wendling made a desperate and nearly successful attempt to escape here today. Chief Carney, of Louisville, who had charge of the prisoner, taking him back for trial for murder of Alma O'Kellner, left the train at this place to take an automobile back into Kentucky. When they came out of the train Wendling suddenly bolted. Carney and two or three others overtook the fleeing man. He fought furiously and knocked one of the men down and was finally subdued and handcuffed.

ROOSEVELT FARMING THIS TIME.

Working on Movement Started When in White House.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Oyster Bay, Aug. 11.—Theodore Roosevelt is inspecting Long Island farms and farming conditions today and gathering material for a farm uplift movement, which he started while in the White House. He has planned to spend the entire day visiting model farms.

STRIKE ARBITRATION.

Benefits More Than 40,000 Railway Employees by Recommendations

The general industrial interest, due to steadily rising prices, has been settled more successfully this year by railway workers than by any other class of laborers. All over the United States, Boards of Federal Commissioners, provided for under the Erdman Act, have been arbitrating strikes and threatened strikes, and they have recommended, for over forty thousand brakemen, engineers and firemen, an immediate increase in wages because of the rapid rise in the cost of living.

Of all these railway cases settled by arbitration the one which has the most human and economic interest is that of the Brotherhood of Switchmen. In January of this year, three thousand men, working for thirteen great railroads which have switching yards in Chicago, demanded, among other concessions, a raise in wages of five cents an hour. This demand was submitted to the Illinois State Board of Arbitration, and the decision was rendered upon the testimony of working men's wives.

The main interest in this trial is centered not around labor bulletins, nor statistics, nor in the evidence of the men to the hazards and fatiguing hours of their trade, but in the testimony of the wives and mothers of the switchmen themselves. These witnesses offered first-hand proof of the unprecedented and overwhelming increase in the cost of all the necessities of life, and the effect of this increase on the workingman's home. The ultimate consumer had never before spoken. Probably for the first time in a great labor case the wives of working men the women behind the purse, were summoned into court to tell of the privations and tragedies wrought in the home by scanty wages, of the exhausting hours of woman's labor, to prove to the commissioners the actual cost of living in human values of flesh and blood.—The Delineator.

SODA FOUNTAIN ALTAR.

Young Couple Have Proprietor of Drug Store to Marry Them.

Athens, Ga., Aug. 10.—A drug store was the place chosen by Adolphus Bradley and Miss Smith, of this city, in which to be married.

All the clerks were busy when Miss Smith and Mr. Bradley entered and seated themselves at a little table. Miss Smith told a waiter she would like to see the proprietor. The store is kept by the Rev. H. C. Compton and when he appeared, she asked him to bring two glasses of soda water. Rev. Compton complied and as the glasses were drained, his customer said: "Will you marry us?"

A wedding license was laid on the table to back up this request. Rev. Compton is known in this section as the "drummer parson," and when the license appeared, he justified his sobriquet by changing from business man to dominie in approximately two moves. He reached for his coat and put it on.

The young people stood up, and so quickly and quietly was the ceremony performed that not even all the customers in the store realized what was transpiring.

WANT TO ABOLISH LAW.

For Capital Punishment of Would-be Assassins.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Aug. 11.—Demand is going up here today for the passage of a law prohibiting capital punishment as a penalty for an attempt on the life of any public official. This is the first general result of the shooting of Mayor Gaynor. Policeman Hock, accused of saying Gaynor would "get his" fourteen hours before the Mayor was shot, was arraigned this morning and formally protested his innocence. He has been suspended.

GETTING ALONG NICELY.

New York Famous Mayor Thought to be Past Danger.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 11.—Mayor Gaynor passed a good night, and his condition was splendid this morning. It is believed that all danger of blood poisoning is now passed and a rapid recovery is looked for.

A GOOD LEGISLATIVE TICKET.

Let The People Have a Say About It.

Editor Reflector:

The people themselves ought to have a say about who shall be candidates for the legislature, and not leave it alone to the candidates. As one of the people I suggest the following ticket:

For the Senate—A. L. Blow, of Greenville.

This in my opinion will be a wise arrangement, and I suggest that the people vote for this ticket at the primaries on the 10th day of September. Mr. Blow is already in the Senate, he is well acquainted with the rules and methods of the Senate and he can render good service to the county and the State in that body. He should be returned by all means.

Mr. Cotten is already a member of the house and he is well acquainted with the rules and methods of that body, and he can render his best service to the county and State in that body, and should by all means be sent back.

Dr. Cox, Mr. Cotten's Colleague, does not wish to be returned, I understand, and I suggest in his place Mr. G. M. Mooring, of Carolina township. Mr. Mooring has been sheriff of the county and for many years a county commissioner, and he understands the needs of the county and the wishes of the people. He will make a very excellent representative.

Now, with Blow in the Senate and Cotten and Mooring in the house, the county will be well represented, and we suggest that the people take charge and nominate this ticket on the 10th of September. Let the people say to these gentlemen this arrangement creates no friction or strife. It keeps Mr. Blow in his place and Mr. Cotten in his, and puts Mr. Mooring in the place of Dr. Cox. With this arrangement we can have complete harmony in the party, and I can't see a reason why any one should object to it. If the people are like minded with me, we will soon let these gentlemen know we are going to have it this way, and no other.

ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

CAUSES DISEASE.

Infant Paralysis Caused by Soothing Syrup.

Infant paralysis and other maladies of children are caused by the use of soothing syrups containing opiates, according to Dr. L. B. Kebler chief of the division of drugs at the bureau of chemistry in the agricultural department.

"They are all baby killers," declares Dr. Kebler, who has just completed an analysis of the patent soothing syrups on the market. "Many of these 'Infants Friend,' he said, "may put a baby to sleep for good and also weaken infants so they fall easy prey to any epidemic of any infantile disease."

"The preparations often contain large amounts of morphine and other derivations of opium. Some contain even worse drugs. Cocaine and chloroform are not uncommon, and one drug even contains the deadly hashheesh of India. But most of the baby preparations are mostly opiates. "They are for sale at every drug store that keeps a full line of patent medicines and many are in great demand. Could the druggists agree to stop selling them without the doctor approves, they will be taking hundreds of dollars out of their own pockets, but a little life will be saved for every $10 lost," said Dr. Kebler.

To Sentence Wider To-day.

Erwin John Wider, the $680,000 Russo-Chinese Bank defaulter will be sentenced today by Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions for stealing 100 Baltimore and Ohio Railroad bonds.

This is the only indictment that the District-Attorney has been able to obtain against the young embezzler, not withstanding the fact that he confessed to the theft of other securities.

As matters stand at present he can be sentenced to not more than ten years under the First Offender's act. The District-Attorney, however, still has hopes of obtaining evidence to warrant the Grand Jury in finding other indictments. In that event another term can be imposed.—New York World, 10th.

STATUES FOR WOMEN.

South to Remember Civil War Sacrifices.

Although many years have passed since the Civil war, the South has not forgotten the noble part played by her women, who nursed and cheered their husbands, sons and brothers through the struggle. They are at last to receive recognition.

Gen. George W. Gordon, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, has issued orders for the erection all over the South of monuments to the women of the Confederacy.

The order calls upon all Confederate organizations to make all effort possible to arouse interest in the movement. These monuments are to be erected in the capitol buildings of all the Southern states. The design for a general monument to these women which was selected by Gen. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, chairman of the monument committee, is the work of Miss Belle Kinney, of Nashville, Tenn., whose work as a sculptor has become known all over the world.

The veterans at the recent reunion in Mobile officially adopted Miss Kennedy's design. The work of this young woman, who is only twenty years of age, was chosen over that of a noted Italian sculptor merely upon its merit.

"WASHINGTON'S BARN" GONE.

Fire Destroys Building Where He Used to Keep His Horse.

"Washington's Barn," the last of the historic buildings in the Bergen Beach section of flatbush, was destroyed by fire early yesterday. The two-story barn at Seventy-second street and V avenue took its name from the fact that Washington often stabled his horse there during the Long Island campaign, and on one occasion the General and his staff ate their dinner there.

The nearest engine company is three miles away and when the firemen did arrive and attempted to reinforce the bucket brigade formed by neighbors it was found that there was no water in the hydrants.—New York World.

TRAIN TO BE TAKEN OFF.

The Last Saturday Excursion August Thirteenth.

Next Saturday, August 13th, will be the last day the Norfolk Southern railroad company will run week-end excursion special to Morehead. This being the last chance there will probably be a large crowd to go from Greenville. These excursions have proven very popular since being put on a few weeks ago and have given lots of our people outings that they would not have had otherwise. Those who have not been to Morehead or Beaufort this summer will miss a fine opportunity to visit these popular resorts cheaply and pleasantly if they do not go Saturday.

THE BRIBERY INVESTIGATION.

Hearings Were Taken at Sapula Today—Gore Not Present.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Sapula, Okla., Aug. 11.—Hearings in the bribery charges were taken up here today. Senator Gore was not expected as he was slated for a speech at the Democratic convention in Oklahoma City. Several Indians have been summoned to appear. Most of Indians believe the hearing is only another attempt of the government to postpone the payment money due them and they are willing to pay lawyers $3,000,000 to effect a speedy settlement.

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC.

Dread Disease Still Spreading in Russian Empire.

By Cable to The Reflector.
St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—The cholera epidemic has invaded higher circles and upper classes are in panic. Hundreds of persons are fleeing from St. Petersburg. The spread of the disease is unchecked and the death list continues around 1,000 a day, 60,000 have died since the epidemic began. Officials are besieged by persons of importance demanding that special efforts be made to safeguard upper classes.

PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The People Who Come and go on Our Trains.

Miss Lela Harris of Enfield, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. W. J. Holmes, returned home today.

Misses Helen and Glenn Forbes left Tuesday evening for LaGrange, where they will attend a house party.

Misses Lillian Burch and Allie Estelle Greene, left Wednesday evening for a few days visit to LaGrange.

Mr. Preston Tyson went to Norfolk today.

Mr. Albion Dunn went to Scotland Neck Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Nancy Coward went to Kinston today.

Mr. J. D. Smith went to Kinston this afternoon.

Mrs. C. B. Hassell, of Williamston, who has been visiting Mrs. Frank Wilson in West Greenville, returned home today.

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Outlaw left this morning for Goldsboro, to be at the bedside of their grandmother, who is very sick.

Miss Mary Johnston returned this morning from Ayden, where she had been to attend the Patrick-Johnson marriage.

"True Blue."

Miss Nannie Johnston, who has been sick several days, is back at the office again. Miss Nannie is "true blue," and every heart from the "devil" up is glad to have her back, for she was greatly missed during her illness, being the first time since she has been out so long in the seven years she has worked in The Reflector printery. She is always at her post on time and has never shown an unwilling spirit in doing anything she is called upon to do.

ANOTHER LAW NEEDED.

No Statute Covers Cursing in Public Places.

In another part of today's paper there is a notice about a case of cursing in Lakewood park on which charge judgment was suspended because no law could be found to cover any save prolonged instances of the use of abusive and obnoxious language. Lakewood park is a place for public amusement, it is a place for the recreation of Charlotte people; it is a resort for children and women to go to spend a few hours at leisure, and according to the law of North Carolina they must submit to the prolonged use of such language before there is any remedy for their wrongs. The supreme Court held in one instance that such conduct might be considered against the statute only after five minutes of duration. How can the Lakewood or any other authorities preserve peace and due decorum unless they are given the right to do so under the laws? This is some thing for the lawmakers of the State to give their attention.—Charlotte Observer.

1807—Robert Fulton's boat, the Clermont, steamed up to Albany. Fulton first became known in the maritime world as the inventor of military torpedoes and submarine war craft. The Clermont, which was to establish steam navigation, was built in New York, but her engine was of English construction. The success of the Clermont was followed by a multiplication of steamboats, and numerous claimants for the honors awarded Fulton as the father of steam navigation were heard from.

WORKING ONESELF TO DEATH.

Belief That Hard Labor Never Killed Anybody Is Disapproved.

There are some men in this world who believe it is possible to work continuously from fifteen to eighteen hours a day, and that the success achieved by such process is worth while. A man died in this city lately who was an exemplar of this philosophy. In physique he was almost perfect, his mental ability was great, while his capacity for sustained labor was enormous, so great that he deceived himself. At 37 he went to a premature grave utterly exhausted in brain power, at an age when normally he should have had most of his best years before him.

Modern psychologists are of the opinion that the personal ego is either man's will power or is controlled by it, certainly it is the will which dominates a human being's life, and it is capable of education. We see many persons with no stamina at all, as we say, meaning a lack of will power, while others have so much that they defy doctors and live in frail bodies to accomplish an incredible amount of work. Yet somewhere there lies a point of equilibrium which must be maintained. Sometimes the forces within the body are stronger than those without; often those without are the stronger, and a man succumbs. But it is coming to be recognized that a man's brain must be given a rest whether it be forsaking mental pursuits temporarily or engaging in others of a totally antipodal character. No man can continue mental processes in the same direction at high pressure for a greatly extended period without danger, and often death ensues.

Professional men are rushing to play golf in these days not because they care much for physical exercise pure and simple, but because it is a form of exercise which any normal man can enjoy and will persist in. It has a psychological phase which fascinates the intelligent man more than the untutored. Men who would not think of going regularly to a gymnasium will neglect business for the golf links. In fact, the great benefit of golf to most men is that it impels them to neglect business. Curiously enough, most men's business is better for being away some of the time. The busy man who says he has no time to play golf or take any other exercise is simply deceiving himself. He has all the time there is, and he prolongs his life and benefits his income by taking up some fad. The man who sticks at his desk all the time is simply making his grave ready in advance of the normal time. President Taft felt this when he said that every man should have from 60 to 90 days' vacation. Success bought at the expense of life is of no value.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

Elsewhere in this paper is a communication signed "One of the People" that contains suggestions that are as timely as ever appeared in these columns. There is no matter before the people of Pitt county in this campaign that concerns them so deeply as who shall represent them in the legislature. We have heard many expressions from people showing the concern they feel about it. At first it was thought the same legislative ticket of two years ago would be returned this time, and that would have been satisfactory. But when it was learned that Dr. Cox, because of his other interests, did not care to be re-elected, and that Mr. Cotten had transferred his ambition from the House of Representatives to the Senate, it left the people much at a loss as to who should be their representatives in the lower house. And with Mr. Blow and Cotten both aspiring to the Senate, it foretold a contest between two good men that the people had rather see avoided. Such a contest can easily be avoided by the people themselves acting upon the suggestion in the communication referred to. It will secure a legislative ticket that will be truly representative of the county, and at the same time be a safeguard against any breach in the harmony of the party.

Mr. Blow in the Senate and Mr. Cotten and Mr. Mooring in the house, would make an excellent ticket. There are no better gentlemen than these, and the interests of the county would be safe in their hands. For the sake of party harmony, and in the interest of what is best for the county, let all the people themselves take this matter in hand and nominate this ticket.

A woman lawyer appeared for a plaintiff in Judge Goff's court in New York, and the judge compelled her to remove her hat before allowing her to proceed with the case. He said she must do just like the other lawyers.

Five hundred deaf mutes are holding a convention in Colorado Springs. There is not much danger of their overdoing the talking act or creating a rough house.

The card now being played to secure the release of Banker Morse from prison, is that one more year of confinement will result in his death.

There is not any take about that Morehead City whale story. Our "old man" was there and vouches for it.

The consumer is well aware of the presence of high prices even if there is no plausible explanation how come.

When it come to price, the hog is about the biggest animal on the market.

Final Settlement in Sight.

The State Democratic executive committee in its recent meeting considered at length the badly muddled condition of party affairs in the sixth congressional district, where two candidates, Messrs. R. L. Godwin of Harnett and O. L. Clark, of Bladen, are claiming the regular nomination and determined to refer the settlement of the matter to a committee of five to be appointed by Chairman A. H. Eller. Some such action had been anticipated and the decision has met with State-wide approval. Chairman Eller has announced his intention of deferring his appointment of this committee until he has had opportunity for the exercise of due deliberation in the matter of selection. In this he is to be commended, but it is earnestly to be hoped that he will name the arbitrators at the very earliest possible moment.

Political conditions throughout the seven counties composing the district are aptly described by the term "demoralized." The bitterness resulting from the struggle for the congressional nomination has gone very deep and until the proper authority passes on the issue no one can determine exactly where the Democratic party "is at." Not only is the seat in the House of Representatives imperiled at a time when Democratic party is knocked at every opportunity, but not a few of the county offices are endangered also. The committee to be named by Mr. Eller should keep the larger interests of the party ever before its eyes, and not allow personal interests of any man or set of men to defer it from making such a decision as, besides being just, shall conduce to the healing of the breach and the reuniting of the sorely torn organization.—Charlotte Observer.

The Winston Sentinel says: "Hereditry" is something that has a greater effect along certain lines than many people imagine. Although science has demonstrated that the theory that people are compelled to have certain diseases merely because their fathers or mothers suffered from these diseases is fallacious, at the same time it cannot be denied that hereditary influences are strong in disease as well as in other things. In the matter of crime also facts brought out by careful research would seem to indicate that heredity has considerable effect. Judge W. R. Allen recently discussed this matter in his charge to the grand jury at Union court and the Monroe Enquirer has the following with reference to his remarks: "In his splendid charge to the grand jury last Monday morning Judge W. R. Allen said among other good things, that no man can know how far-reaching heredity is. None can tell to what an extent the parent leaves an impression on the child, not only in its physical being, but in its moral nature as well. That is a true statement, but Judge Allen brought most interesting facts to support that statement, facts which made every man in the court room stop and think. Judge Allen cited the case of Max Dukes, a drunkard, and a common bum, a noted character for thriftlessness and intemperance. This Max Dukes was born in 1720. Of his descendants 1,200 have been identified and of these 310 were inmates of poor houses, 440 were viciously diseased, 50 were prostitutes, 7 were murderers and 60 were thieves. On the other hand there was Jonathan Edwards, the distinguished minister of the gospel, who was born in 1703. Of the descendants of Jonathan Edwards 1,394 have been identified and of these 295 were college graduates, 65 were professors in colleges, over 100 were preachers, over 100 were lawyers, 60 doctors, 75 in the army and navy, 135 were authors, 18 were editors, 3 United States Senators and 15 were railroad presidents."

A Good Way to use Hyomei.

Besides breathing through the inhaler a few times a day, many catarrh sufferers write that they find inhaling Hyomei from a bowl of steaming water each night before retiring a great aid in curing stubborn cases.

Try it; it's very simple; gives quick relief and makes you breathe easier.

Fill a bowl half full of boiling water, pour into the water a half teaspoonful of Hyomei, cover head and bowl with a towel and breathe through the nose and mouth the medicated antiseptic and healing vapor that arises.

This method relieves that stiffness at once and makes your head feel clear.

You can get a bottle of Hyomei at druggists everywhere or at C. Wooten & Wooten's drug store for only 50 cents. Ask for an extra bottle Hyomei Inhalent.

But bear in mind if you want a Hyomei inhaler you must buy a complete outfit which costs $1.00.

But as stated before; if you already own an inhaler a bottle of Hyomei costs but 50 cents.

Hyomei is guaranteed by druggists everywhere and by C. Wooten & Wooten, to cure catarrh, sore throat, coughs, colds, rose fever, asthma and croup, or money back. Try it on that generous basis.

THE STEEPLE JACK.

He Must Conquer Many Difficulties in His Dangerous Work.

The successful steeple jack must possess determination, perseverance and ingenuity. He must solve many a practical problem in hoisting great bodies aloft. He must know how to fasten a hook over the summit of a skyscraping chimney. He must have the nerve to paint a steeple that sways like a pendulum at the slender top. He must be able to tear down, build up, gild, paint, place electric wires and do many another task that would be difficult enough on the solid earth.

There are many ways of getting up on a steeple, and when all others fail the man will tie a rope around it and then, with a coil on his back, walk round and round it until the entire steeple is covered with rope, and in such case he has probably been round it fully 300 times.

But a steeple is not the most difficult weight to climb. Straight, tall chimneys are the hardest of all. There a man has to work with might and main to lift himself inch by inch from the ground to the top. Sometimes the top is 300 feet high. When it is reached a hook is placed over the edge, a pulley is made fast, the swinging chair is hauled up and work begins.

When the chair is near the top it is easier to work, because the ropes are short, but when they lengthen as the ground is approached there is a tendency to swing, and the wind gives impetus.

The steeple Jack's safety depends upon the hook, and until he has raised himself almost to the top it is impossible for him to see whether or not the hook has been properly adjusted. More than once a steeple climber has seen when within ten feet of the top that corrosion of the iron and the collection of soot have so thickened the wall that the hook is merely balancing on the top, so that the slightest pull in the wrong direction would drag it off. Again, the bricks are often loose at the top, and the hook is likely to tear them away.

One of the natural difficulties to conquer is the swaying of all high steeples and chimneys. In a gale a steeple point will sway a foot and a half. Usually it sways from seven to nine inches. Painting it means reaching for a spot on the right side, and finding it on the left, and when making a dive for it on the left, to see it sway back to the right. Yet in spite of the constant danger a born steeple Jack exists in his work and is at home, like the ironworker on the skyscraper, only when high above the world. He can stand triumphantly at any height, if he can have two and one-half square inches to bear his weight.—Harper's Weekly.

His Other Name.

The candidate for the place of coach had been weighed and was not wanting, according to his new mistress' lights. Then the question of his name, which was Patrick, came up. The mistress objected to it in her heart, so she explained that it was her custom always to call her coachman by his family name. Had he any objections?

"Not the slightest, ma'am."
"What is your last name, Patrick?"
"Fitzpatrick, ma'am."

Old Mosque Legends.

The great Begova mosque in Serajevo is the largest mosque in Europe after those of Constantinople and Selim's mosque in Adrianople. In its courtyard stands an old stone, across the top of which there is a groove precisely the length of a Turkish ell. Tradition says that a pasha placed it there to checkmate the local merchants' habitual use of false measures in defiance of the express commandment of the Koran.

But another of Serajevo's hundred mosques has a much better legend. Before this may be seen the tombs of the seven holy dervishes who were beheaded 200 years ago for a great theft. After the decapitation each body tucked its head under its arm and walked into the mosque. So those dervishes are worshiped as saints to this day.

A Startling Reply.

An English country bookseller sent to London for a copy of a book called "Happy Husbands." The work was out of print, but the wholesale agent certainly might have intimated the fact differently. He replied that "There are no 'Happy Husbands' in London."—London Tit-Bits.

FORCE OF GRAVITY.

How It Would Affect Man's Weight on the Celestial Bodies.

If the planet Mars be really inhabited the people who live there must be an exceedingly agile race. The average weight of a man is about 140 pounds, but the force of gravity on Mars is so much less than on the earth that the 140 pound man would weigh only fifty-three pounds if he were transported thither. With such light weight, and still retaining the same strength, an individual would be able to run with the speed of an express train, go skipping over ten foot walls and do various other extraordinary things. On the moon a man would be even lighter.

But on the sun our 140 pounder would have his troubles. Instead of being an airy individual he would weigh in the neighborhood of a ton and three-quarters. He would probably have the greatest difficulty in raising his hand, for the sun would weigh about 300 times as much.

According to scientific computation, a man who on earth weighs 140 pounds would on the other celestial bodies weigh as follows:

The moon, 23 pounds; Mars, 53 pounds; Venus, 114 pounds; Mercury, 119 pounds; Neptune, 123 pounds; Uranus, 127 pounds; Saturn, 165 pounds; Jupiter, 371 pounds, and the sun, 3,871 pounds.—Chicago Tribune.

A SAD STORY.

The Misfortune That Came With a Terrible Tumble.

Fowling is now very little practiced in the Shetland Islands, although many eggs are secured annually. Many thrilling stories of fowling adventure are told by the Shetlanders. A man who had undertaken to climb a certain steep cliff was neither very experienced nor very brave, although he boasted of being both. He pushed upward, however, briskly without looking behind until he had got up about 150 feet, when he stopped to breathe. The pause was fatal to his self possession, and he called out in tones of terror, "Men, men, I am going—I am going." But he still held on for a little, and it was not till he had shrieked many times "I am going" that he did fall headlong.

His comrades, having thus been warned, moved the boat out of the way so that the poor fellow came sheer down into the deep water. Mighty was the plunge, but at length he rose to the surface, when of course he was instantly caught hold of and dragged into the boat. After many gasps and much spluttering of sea water from his mouth his only remark was: "Eh, men, this is a sad story. I have lost my snuffbox."—"Sketches and Tales of Shetland."

The Last Ditch.

When William, prince of Orange, afterward William III. of England, was elected stadtholder of the United Netherlands in 1672 and found himself in the midst of war with England and France he was asked by the Duke of Buckingham whether he did not see ruin impending over his country.

"Nay," he answered. "There is one certain means by which I can be sure enough to see my country's ruin. I will die in the last ditch." And, rejecting all terms of peace, he checked the invasion of France by opening sluices and flooding every tract of land, drove them from Holland in 1674 and made honorable terms with England and finally after varying effort brought the war to a successful close by a treaty with France in 1678.

Taken at His Word.

The doctor was telling how he came to lose one of his best paying patients. The man was a hypochondriac, who was always imagining that something terrible was about to happen to him, and the doctor, who was a great jollier, was kept busy trying to reason him out of his morbid condition.

"You have worried yourself until you are bordering on a nervous collapse," said the doctor to him one day. "You shouldn't think about your symptoms all the time, but just attend to your affairs as if there was nothing the matter with you."

"All right, doctor," replied the patient. "I'll do as you say. You needn't come to see me any more."—New York Times.

And He Wasn't.

"Victoria," said her husband, "you will not mind it, I presume, if I should happen to be detained downtown late this evening?"

"I shall not mind it," austere answered Mrs. Vick-Senn, "because you will not be detained downtown late this evening or any other evening."—Chicago Tribune.

A Stitch in Time.

Dorothy was visiting her grandparents in the country for the first time. Seeing a quantity of feathers scattered about the henyard she shook her head in disapproval.

"Grandpa," she said gravely, "you really ought to do something to keep your chickens from wearing out so."—Delineator.

ANIMALS THAT WEEP.

While the act of weeping may be peculiar to man, the same is not true of weeping, which, if we are to accept the testimony of a French naturalist, is a manifestation of emotion that is met with in divers animals.

It is said that the creatures that weep most easily are the ruminants, with whom the act is so well known that it has given rise to trivial but accurate expression, "to weep like a calf." All hunters know that the stag weeps, and we are also told that the bear sheds tears when it comes to a consciousness of its last hour. The giraffe is not less sensitive and regards with tearful eyes the hunter who has wounded it. This animal also weeps through downright nostalgia. Dogs also are held to be lachrymose, and the same holds in the case of certain monkeys. Sparrman states the elephant sheds tears when wounded or when it perceives that it cannot escape.

Aquatic animals, too, it appears, are able to weep. Thus, many authorities agree, dolphins at the moment of death draw deep sighs and shed tears abundantly. A young female seal was observed to weep when teased by a sailor. St. Hilaire and Cuvier recount, on the authority of the Malays, that when a young dugong is captured the mother is sure to be taken also. The little ones then cry out and shed tears. These tears are collected with great care by the Malays and are preserved as a charm that is certain to render a lover's affection lasting.—New York Press.

A PROPHETIC JEWEL.

Peculiar Ring That Was Owned by Marquise du Barry.

Marquise du Barry, whose lovely head fell into the basket beneath the guillotine in explanation of her levity, extravagance and folly, had in her possession a stone of which the Paris jewelers were unable to tell the precise nature.

There appeared upon it below the surface and as if under water an outline of a picture containing human figures. Strange to relate, when first the gem was given to its afterward unfortunate possessor this outline was not clear, but after it had been some months in her possession it grew more vivid.

One day the negro servant boy, Lamor, who was afterward instrumental from revenge in the downfall of the Du Barry, declared, looking at the jewel, that he could decipher the figure of a woman with disheveled hair leaning before a scaffold and surrounded by a crowd, while beside her stood the executioner.

A strange but authenticated circumstance is that the negro servant boy precisely described the guillotine. Dr. Guillotine had not then invented his celebrated instrument of death, nor had the horrors of the revolution begun.

Snatching the jewel from the hand of the servant, Mme. du Barry examined it, saw the kneeling woman, the angry crowd, the death knife falling and, with a cry of agony, fell senseless to the floor.

Fly Traps of Spiders' Nests.

Spiders' nests are used in Mexico as fly traps. During the rainy season the villages are invaded by numbers of flies and other insects. To rid a house of these pests the natives hang the branch of a tree bearing a spider's nest to a nail in the ceiling. The surface of the nest enlarges concentrically after each capture of an insect, and it exercises an irresistible attraction on flies. When a spider's nest is opened it is found to be filled with insects. Experiments made with paper nests so manufactured as to be exact copies of the real nests show that flies will not enter them. Though very small and apparently insignificant, the inhabitant of the mosquito attacks insects far more important in size than the largest housefly. The wasp is one of its favorite victims, and the wasp always gets the worst of the struggle.—Harper's Weekly.

A Silk Producing Caterpillar.

In Assam, where the natives call it "eri," a silk producing caterpillar has been used for silk spinning for centuries, but, strange to say, its employment for the purpose has been restricted almost exclusively to that region. One of its advantages is that its cocoons are not sealed like those of the common silkworm. One end of the cocoon is closed only with converging loops of silk. This renders it unnecessary to kill the insect when its silk is used.

Rubbing It In.

"What made the boss glare so at that man who just went out?" said one waiter to another.

"When he paid his bill for a fifty cent dinner he asked if there was any place in the neighborhood, anyhow, where a fellow could go and get a decent meal for fifty cents."—New York Press.

The Remedy.

The Mistress—Bridget, I must object to your having a new beau every night. The Cook—Thin buy better food! One'll never come again wance he's tackled what I have 'r serve him!—Cleveland Leader.

In the Sunken Submarine.

"It's too annoying that we should be stuck down here. I bought myself the most splendid tomb only last week."—Lustige Blatter.

All philosophy lies in two words.

sustain and abstain.—Epictetus.

MODEST VICTOR HUGO.

The Great Master Thought No Honor Too Great For Himself.

It was Theophile Gautier who said something to the effect that if he thought that one line of the great master, Victor Hugo, was bad he would not acknowledge it to himself if he were alone at the bottom of a dark well. On another occasion Gautier spoke of Victor Hugo as "a new Moses fresh from Sinai, charged to deliver the tablets of the law." Decidedly, Victor Hugo was a man who knew how to cast a spell upon those about him. For example, look at the following picture drawn in the "Souvenir sur Turgenieff."

"One evening Hugo's admirers assembled in his drawing room, were competing with one another in the eulogy of his genius, and the idea was thrown out, that the street in which he lived ought to bear his name. Some one suggested that the street was too small to be worthy of so great a poet, and the honor of bearing his name ought to be assigned to some more important thoroughfare. They proceeded to enumerate the most popular quarters of Paris, in an ascending scale, until one man exclaimed with enthusiasm that it would be an honor for the city of Paris itself to be re-named after the man of genius. Hugo, leaning against the mantelpiece, listened complacently to these flatterers out-bidding each other. Then, with an air of one engaged in deep thought, he turned to a young man and said to him in his grand style, 'Even that will come, my friends—even that will come.'"—Bookman.

THE OVARINAS.

Picturesque Barefooted Fish Hawkers of Portugal.

The ovarinas are perhaps the most interesting people in Portugal. They are probably the lineal descendants of the original inhabitants of the land, and now come from a small place called Murtoza (Estarreja), not far from Oporto. As the termination indicates, the ovarinas are the women of these people.

Both old and young, for even young children are thus employed, are exceedingly active and energetic. They go about barefoot, wearing a peculiar costume, and carrying huge baskets of a peculiar shape on their heads. They travel many miles a day and penetrate into every corner of the city, crying their wares in a loud, unmusical shout. They mount even to the sixth floors and bargain with buyers. They go barefoot not because of their poverty, many of them possessing expensive gold ornaments, but because they can thus more easily cover the many miles they run during the day. Attempts have been made to do away with this method of selling fish, but they have all failed. The customers like to deal with these fish girls and can purchase from them very small amounts.

Fish is not purchased by weight, but by the fish or part of fish. The price averages 12 to 15 cents per pound. There are not less than 2,000 ovarinas engaged in selling fish in Lisbon.—Consular Report.

Against His Principles.

"What was that man making such a fuss about?" asked the restaurant proprietor.

"He found a couple of hairs in the food, sir," replied the waiter.

"Oh, is that all?"

"You see, sir, he's a vegetarian, and you can't get him to eat anything but vegetables."—Yonkers Statesman.

Neatly Parried.

A mother of four daughters, one of whom had recently been married, cornered an eligible young man in the drawing room.

"And which of my girls do you most admire, might I ask?"

"The married one," was the prompt reply.—Exchange.

Easier.

"I'm going to the dentist's to have this tooth out. Just mind the baby till I come back." Husband (with alacrity)—You mind the baby, Jessie. I'll go and get a tooth pulled out!

A Lenoir Lady, After Two Weeks Grinding Labor, Feels Better Than Ever.

Lenoir, N. C.—"I am not tired at all, and am stouter than I have ever been," writes Mrs. Kate Waters, of Lenoir, N. C., "although I have just finished a two weeks' wash. I lay my strength to Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken a lot of it and I can never praise it enough for what it has done for me. I can never thank you enough for the advice you gave me, to take Cardui, for since taking it I look so well and am stout as a mule."

You are urged to take Cardui, that gentle, vegetable tonic, for weak women. Its use will strengthen and build up your system, relieve or prevent headache, backache and the ailments of weak women.

It will surely help you, as it has helped thousands of others, in the past 50 years.

The Pardon Paperweight.
Under the headline "A Queer Municipal Gift" a Vienna paper tells this story: "In the year 1890 a private soldier stationed at Suss killed an officer of his regiment and was condemned to be shot. Comrades who knew the extenuating circumstances, friends, priests, relatives—all pleaded in vain for mercy, the colonel in whose hands the matter rested insisting on the death penalty. The day came and the man was taken to the place of execution. Six members of his regiment, armed with rifles, one of which contained a blank cartridge, took their places as executioners. The man's eyes were bandaged and with arms securely pinioned he stood ready for the volley, shouting 'Comrades, aim well!' when a mounted courier dashed into the crowd waving a white flag, crying 'Pardon!' He was Lieutenant Baron du Mont, with the colonel's pardon, which would have been useless had it arrived one minute later. The municipality secured the five bullets from the firing squad, had them silvered and mounted in the form of a tiny pyramid on a silver plate, and this, suitably inscribed, is known as the 'pardon paperweight,' the only one of its kind."

The Useful Crocodile Fish.
In the rivers and lakes of the Mexican state of Tabasco there swims a fish known as the "crocodile fish" which is most useful to man. The skin of the crocodile fish, if properly cured, may be utilized for any of the purposes for which the lighter weights of leather are employed. The oil of the crocodile fish is a perfect lubricant and also used for softening leather. In addition to its qualities as a lubricant and emollient, the oil possesses medicinal qualities for which a superiority to the finest of Norwegian cod liver is claimed. The flesh of the crocodile fish is extensively used by the natives as food and highly relished by them as one of the delicacies of the country. Crocodile fish range in length from ten inches to four feet, and when dried assume an ashen hue, with lighter shadings of a bluish tint.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Poor Human Nature.
The woman who had succeeded in that rather difficult task—making a boarding house pay—was confiding to a friend some of the tricks of the trade.

"While you must never allow your boarders to get too far behind in their payments, it is also true that you will profit considerably by allowing them a little leeway. So long as you are sure of your money it pays a landlady to have her boarders a week or two behind in their board."

"I don't see that," interrupted her friend.
"Well, I'll tell you," continued the landlady. "When a man owes back board you have him at a certain disadvantage. Not one in a hundred under such circumstances has the nerve at mealtimes to ask for a second helping."—New York Times.

The Human Lobster.
The lobster has always appealed to the Englishman as affording a nickname for his fellow Englishman. "Lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among the Elizabethans, though it is only conjectured that an allusion to red faces was conveyed. As signifying a soldier, "lobster" originated in the civil war, being applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers, as Clarendon explains, "because of the bright iron shells with which they were covered." Afterward the allusion was transferred to the soldier's red uniform. But that was the "boiled lobster." The "raw lobster" was naturally the man in blue, the policeman. In earlier days we find Grose explaining that "to boll one's lobster" meant for a clergyman to become a soldier.—London Chronicle.

The Man With the Iron Mask.
The Man With the Iron Mask was a mysterious French prisoner of state, whose identity has never been satisfactorily established. He was closely confined under the charge of M. de St. Mars at Pignerol in 1679, at Exilles in 1681, at Sainte-Marguerite in 1687 and finally was transferred to the Bastille in 1698, where he died on Nov. 19, 1703, and was buried the following day in the cemetery of St. Paul under the name of Marchais. Dumas made him a twin brother of Louis XIV.

"What is a volcano?" asked the teacher.

"A mountain with a fire inside," said one.

A smile of comprehension spread over the puzzled face of the smallest pupil as she asked surprisedly, "Is that a mountain range?"

A Pungent Player.
The comedian had his benefit and thankful for the patronage of "kind friends in front" let off this impromptu, which was applauded:
Like a grate full of coals I glow,
And were I not grateful, too,
A great fool I should be.

MAKE THEM LAUGH.

A Bachelor's Idea of the Way Children Should Be Trained.

"The people who don't have to do things can always do them better than the people who are obliged to do them," said the cynical bachelor. "If you want to know how to invest money, ask a fellow who has never had any to invest. I suppose it's the same with raising children. Nevertheless, I am fond of children, and never having had an opportunity of raising any of my own, I am critical about the way other people, more fortunate than I, raise theirs.

"My brother has a youngster, a boy about six years old, and everything that kid wants he cries for. The minute he begins to cry he gets it, which, according to my reasoning, is all wrong.

"Why not make him laugh for it? It's just as easy for a child to laugh as to cry, and it's far more healthful, besides being much more cheerful for the surrounding populace."

"I've tried the experiment with him, and it works like a charm. If I happen to have anything he wants, and he cries for it, I make fun of him. 'That isn't the way to get it,' I say. 'Don't cry for it. Laugh for it!'"

"It took only about two lessons for him to understand this, and you have no idea what a wonderful difference it has made in the disposition of that kid. Still, I'm only an old bachelor, and I'm not supposed to know anything about such things."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Took an Unfair Advantage.

Mrs. Dorkins — Yesterday I called Mrs. Grundage's attention to the fact that she had left the gate between our back yards open and that her chickens had come through and scratched up our flower beds, and she looked as if she would have liked to bite my head off. How foolish it is for people to get angry when you remind them that they have been careless about something they had no business to overlook!

Mr. Dorkins — I am glad to hear you say that, Maria. You won't mind if I mention that when I came home last night I found that you'd left both the back doors unlocked.

Mrs. Dorkins — Yes; you're always watching to see if you can't catch me in some little fault, and it makes you perfectly happy when you do!—New York Tribune.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Aug. 11.—Prices were quiet and irregular at the opening of the stock market today. An advance of 3/4 was made by Chesapeake and Ohio, while Reading opened with loss of 1/4. A few minutes after opening the market settled down to about closing price, but very little trading was done. Curb market was strong and active in every particular.

New York, Aug. 11.—The cotton market opened easier at a decline of one to two points, influenced from poor cables from Liverpool. After the call new crop advanced here. Later selling movement by bears checked the rally. Opening: August 15.82; September 14.66; October 13.83; December 13.77; January 13.73.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—All grains were up corn and oats following lead of wheat. Provisions also were higher in force of easier hog market.

Something to Live For.

Three little girls were playing. The mother of one came into the room and engaged the children in conversation. "Marian, what are you going to be when you grow up?" she asked. "I am going to be a famous singer," she replied. "And you, Susie, what are you to be?" "Oh, I am going to write stories when I grow up," she answered. "And what is Marjorie to be?" continued the mother. Marjorie, aged five, thought seriously a moment, and then said, "Well, I am not sure, but I think I'll be a widow."—Delineator.

She Was Different.

"John," asked his wife, who was writing to one of her former schoolmates, "which is proper—to say 'I differ from you' or 'I differ with you?'" "Tell her you differ from her. I understand that she lets her husband keep part of his salary to have fun with himself."—Chicago Record-Herald.

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

The Eskimo Takes Advantage of the Animal's Curiosity.

In his frail skinboat it is a difficult and dangerous task for the Eskimo to go out to sea forty to sixty miles and intercept the walrus as he passes on his migration into the Arctic.

One carcass will fill his boat, for it weighs from 1,000 to 3,000 pounds. He hunts the walrus when they are lying asleep on the ice floes in herds from ten to several hundred. Death must be instantaneous, else with a few rolls or the peculiar lumbering, bumping movement (seen of the seal when ashore), he makes the few feet to the water and then is lost, as he has not sufficient blubber and air to float. He has much natural curiosity, and if not scared by shots will come up close to your boat or the ice floe on which you are sitting, spurling, snorting and rolling his eyes; with his gleaming tusks and bristled snout he has an uncanny, goblin, monster-like appearance. A herd of fifty or sixty of them will come up en masse, raise high out of the water to stare at you, then snort, spurt and disappear again, only to come up on the same spot and repeat the maneuver indefinitely. Taking advantage of this the Eskimos hide behind ice hummocks and throw a harpoon into one, then snub the tough rawhide line around an ice cake. He must perform come up to blow, and he is then killed with the rifle. The thick skin and the mass of blubber and meat beneath render him almost invulnerable.—Pacific Monthly.

Title and ancestry render a good man more illustrious, but an ill one more contemptible.—Addison.
