WHEN GRADED SCHOOL OPENS.

Superintendent Smith Gives Some Timely Suggestions.

The Greenville graded schools for white children will re-open on Wednesday, September 21st. The school for the colored children will open on Monday October 3rd.

All persons living within the confines of the graded school district between the ages of six and twenty one years are entitled to attend the schools free of all tuition charges. For non-residents of the district the tuition charges per month are as follows: Primary grades, $1.50; intermediate grades, $2.00; High School grades, $2.50.

The school of music will be maintained at the white school, as heretofore. The charges for music will be three dollars per month per pupil; families in which more than one pupil registers for lessons will be granted a rate of $2.50 per month per pupil.

While we have no vaccination ordinance as a part of the conditions for entrance into the schools, parents will do well to consider the advisability of having their children vaccinated before the opening of school, provided their children have not been vaccinated within the past three or four years.

Authorities tell us that one out of every three children has adenoids a disease that makes children dull and listless and hard to teach. We are also told that defective vision is nearly as common as adenoids. Bad teeth, defective vision, adenoids, deafness, throat troubles, and the large number of other diseases that are common in every school, retard seriously the work of the school and the progress and growth of the children.

I suggest that parents have their children examined by their physicians and dentists before school opens, and have them treated if there is need of treatment. It would be immensely helpful to us, and the greatest possible service to the children and the school if there is need of treatment.

I am very hopeful that we shall have a large attendance in the high school department this year. The board of trustees has made a greater effort to furnish the best advantages to the high school than it has yet been able to make. I should like to see every pupil who was in the high school last year enrolled again this year. It is one of the greatest mistakes that a young person can make to drop out of school at the end of the seventh or the eighth grade. Not more than ten per cent. of the pupils who enter the graded schools graduate. This is very unfortunate, and a very great mistake. It is bad enough for a person not to take a college education, and to drop out of the secondary schools prior to graduation is a mistake that is well nigh inexcusable.

Supt. Greenville Graded Schools.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26.—Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity: Trade in general is irregular, some lines showing fair activity, while others are quiet and beneath all there appears to be a slight feeling of uneasiness without apparent cause. Fair orders for future shipments of rubber goods, shoes, hats, caps, clothing and kindred lines are being received. Drugs and chemicals are active. Naval stores are firm at recent prevailing prices. Produce and fruit are plentiful but the demand is dull. Dry goods are quiet. Building continues active, giving good demand for hardware and builders' material. Retail trade is quiet and "mark down" sales are noted to be numerous. Collections are slow, and banks find ready demand for available funds.

Crop Report.

Cotton continues in fair condition, but a full crop is not expected, since the early unfavorable weather. Tobacco is being marketed in North Carolina at fair prices, the corn crop is reported improved. Vegetables are unusually plentiful and of excellent quality.

Buggies Added.

J. E. Winslow has added the sale of buggies and other vehicles to his business at both Greenville and Ayden. His advertisement in this paper will give fuller particulars. Be sure to look it up and call on him when needing anything in his line.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

Gathered From Our Exchanges Today of Events Just Happened.

By consent an issue was submitted to the jury as to the will of the late Mrs. Nannie Moye Hostetter, Wednesday. The jury decided that it was not a valid will. This action was taken by agreement with the legatee and settlement was arranged out of court. Mr. R. W. King, of Greenville, has been made administrator of the estate to settle it up for the heirs at law.—Kinston Free Press.

While en route from this city to Wilmington yesterday morning and when near Northeast, a small station between this city and that place, the eastbound passenger train which leaves this city shortly after 9 o'clock ran over a large black bear and killed him. The animal was attempting to cross the track when he was killed, and one of his feet was severed from his leg. This trophy was presented to the writer by Mr. L. J. Piner, baggage clerk on this train.—New Bern Journal.

PINCHOT ISSUES STATEMENT.

Criticizes Certain Senators and Representatives

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington Aug. 26.—In a statement issued today by Clifford Pinchot in his capacity as president of National Conservation association, he urges the need of increased appropriation by congress for the work of the forest service, and severely criticized Senators Heyburn and Carter and Representative Mondell. He says these men, who have made light of efforts of the forest service to prepare itself to prevent just such a calamity as these forest fires, have in effect been fighting the side of fires and against general welfare. The fires, he contends, were largely the results of lack of means to provide against them.

ROOSEVELT IN THE WEST.

Greeted on the Route as the "Next President."

By Wire to The Reflector.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Col. Roosevelt is today speeding across the western plains to Cheyenne, where he will arrive tomorrow morning. He got an ovation all along the route yesterday, and was well pleased. Many greeted him as the "next president," and "we want Teddy in 1912." An effort to get some expression from the president as to a third term proposition was futile. All inquiries were turned away with a wave of hand and "this is not a political trip." His trip is regarded as significant, however, because of the demonstrations that are being made indicating that his popularity has not waned.

COTON MILL STRIKE.

Battle Between The Strikers and The Police.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 26.—A pitched battle between two hundred strikers and police was fought in the streets here today, the police finally firing on the strikers and wounding several of them. The strikers marched on the Shary cotton mill where the strikebreakers were at work. Fifty police were rushed to the mill, reaching it first and firing on the strikers as they approached. A number went down at the volley and the police charged the remainder with clubs.

Fires Continue in Oregon.

Portland, Aug. 26.—Forest fires are still rampant in Oregon. Other states report greatly improved conditions but this state is still in the throes of desperate conditions. More troops were ordered out today to help fight the flames. Portland's watershed is on fire and the city's water supply is threatened.

Ship Lost in Mid Sea.

By Cable to The Reflector.
Foy al, Azores, Aug. 26.—The crew of the British ship Harvest Queen, has been rescued in mid sea by the liner Kosmigen, of North German line, according to a wireless dispatch received today. The Harvest Queen was abandoned in a sinking condition.

AYDEN CORRESPONDENCE.

News Items About the Town and Its People—Progressive Community.

Ayden, N. C., Aug. 26, 1910.
Hon. John H. Small will deliver an address to the people of Ayden and vicinity, September 14th, on the subject of drainage of Swift creek and Clay Root swamps. Everybody come and hear him.

Mrs. G. W. Prescott and sister, are visiting in Farmville.

Two more voters are added to our population, one at Mr. Enoch M. Davenport's and one at Mr. Clarence V. Cannon's.

Sept. Dr. G. B. left Tuesday for Fayetteville.

Let us make you a cart body, any kind you want.—J. R. Smith Co.

Uncle Joe Haddock, of Winterville, passed through Ayden Thursday. Under ordinary circumstance we would have taken him for a mountaineer. He had two fugs lashed on behind and three in the foot of his baggy, filled with the water from St. Abram's Spring.

Mrs. T. E. Peden, on West avenue entertained on the evening of the 24th, between 3 and 6 o'clock, in honor of her guest Miss Ruth Cashwell, of Dunn. The little folks spent a merry evening.

Mr. John O. Cox since selling his house near the Seminary to Mr. Jesse Braxton, has moved his family on East avenue.

Daily arrival of new goods at J. R. Smith Co.'s store, especially at bargain table.

The meeting at Rountrees closed with twelve additions to the church.

Mr. Elmer Worthington has a position in Dr. M. M. Saul's drug store. Dr. J. H. Mewborn, eye specialist, of Kinston, will be at J. R. Smith Co.'s store September 5th and 6th, to examine your eyes, correct astigmatism, which causes so much headache, and fit you with a pair of Hawk's glasses. Don't fail to see him.

Miss Martha Manning, one of the daughters of Mr. Henry D. Manning, who has been down so long with pellagra, died Wednesday. The other one is very low. This family needs help as well as simple pity, and needs it now.

Miss Mamie Dawson, of Grifton, is visiting at Hotel Blount.

We are no politician, but Zeb Vance said: "The horse that pulled the plow should eat the fodder." We hope the party will not fail to remember past services, when they pass the cake.

The Baptist and Methodist Sunday schools, colored, spent Thursday in Washington. They had a special car to themselves. Robert Dawson was master of ceremonies. Good behavior prevailed.

Mr. Augustus Lilly returned Tuesday from an extended trip through South Carolina.

Mr. Major Smith, of South Carolina, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Sack Smith, on Third street.

Belting, lubricating valves, steam gauges, a full supply of mill fittings, at J. R. Smith Company's.

The fall is approaching. Now is the time to put your ad in the Ayden department of The Reflector.

BOTH FOUND GUILTY.

Forbes Gets Seven Years, Johnson Five Years.

The trial of Frank Forbes and Joe Johnson for murder in the second degree, for the killing of Luke Harris, ended Thursday evening, just at the adjournment of court, in a verdict of guilty as to both. The case occupied the whole day of the court. When the case was given to the jury they were only four minutes in reaching a verdict that both were guilty. Judge Ward passed sentence of seven years imprisonment in the penitentiary on Forbes, and five years on Johnson.

GOOD ROADS ARE CHEAPEST.

Bad Roads are Extravagant and Wasteful.

Good roads are cheaper than bad roads. That fact alone, if constantly hammered into the public mind by the advocates of good roads, is a sufficient argument for the construction of good roads.

Bad roads are extravagant and wasteful, and the farmers are the chief losers in this extravagance and wastefulness. B. F. Yoakum, a practical man first of all, a great figure in the railroad and business world, told the National Good Roads Congress at Niagara Falls last Thursday that he had estimated how much the farmers of the country would have saved if the roads over which they hauled their products had been good roads instead of bad roads.

What did he estimate their savings would have been? The snug little sum of two hundred and twenty-five million dollars.

Commenting on this fact, the Philadelphia Press says:

"This is not a blind guess. The government shows that the average haul to get farm products to market or railroad shipping point is nine miles, and difference in cost of hauling products over bad roads as compared with good is over 15 cents a ton a mile. This does not include the back haul of supplies over the same soft roads. The farmer needs smooth, hard roads of easy grade. Such roads would bring him rich return in the saving of time and of much of his money, now expended in repairs to harness and wagon and in the purchase and maintenance of more draught stock and equipment than would be necessary if good roads surrounded him."

At the outset, when the construction of good roads is being considered in any given locality, their cost seems very high. After a few years experience changes that seeming high cost into economy.

Let the people keep in mind this fact: in the long run, the good road is the cheapest.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

The Cases That Have Been Disposed of Since Last Report.

Frank Forbes and Joe Johnson, murder in second degree, both guilty; Forbes sentenced to penitentiary for seven years and Johnson five years.

John Chance, larceny in second degree, guilty; sentenced one year on roads.

James White and Will Joyner, robbery, both guilty; sentenced five years each in penitentiary.

Robert Hanrahan, assault with deadly weapon, plead guilty; sentenced two months on roads.

George W. Dudley, larceny, guilty; sentenced one year on roads.

Clude Thrower, larceny, guilty; sentenced one year on roads.

Henry Best, larceny, guilty; sentenced one year on roads.

Will Barnhill, housebreaking, guilty; sentenced two years on roads.

Roland Barrett, carrying concealed weapon, noto contendere, sentenced three months on roads or pay a fine of $10 and costs.

Delightful Sail.

On Thursday evening Mr. William Patrick gave a delightful sail complimentary to Miss Lillian Burch's company, Misses Susie Perry and Hazel Mitchell of Kinston.

The boat left the wharf at 8 o'clock, going down to Grimesland. The lunch was served by the young ladies. It was an ideal night for sailing, and on arriving home every one assured Mr. Patrick that the evening was spent very pleasantly.

Among those in the party were: Frank Wilson with Miss Hazel Mitchell, of Kinston.

Willie Wilson with Miss Susie Perry of Kinston.

Jim Hackney with Miss Mary Shelburn.

Tom Dupree with Miss Lillian Burch.

Bascom Wilson with Miss Mary Smith.

William Patrick with Miss Vernesa Smith.

Chaperones—Mr. and Mrs. R. C. White.

HOME CARE FOR ORPHANS.

The New Philanthropy Seeks to Abolish Asylums.

Friends of the Delineator Child-Rescue Campaign will be gratified to know of the substantial progress that has been made in the propaganda to secure for the dependent child his birthright—an opportunity to be loved and cared for in the family home. Since the campaign was started, there has been much discussion as to the advantages of the family home compared with the old-fashioned orphan asylum. At the great conference of charity workers recently held in St. Louis, and attended by more than twelve hundred men and women who are devoting their lives to philanthropic work, it was considered unnecessary even to discuss this question. Indeed, the unanimous conclusion of those who attended the White House Conference on the Care of Dependent Children has effectually settled the question in favor of the family home.

Miss Jane Addams, the president of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, in her opening address at St. Louis, strongly urged for consideration the wisdom of boarding dependent children with their own mothers or near relatives rather than paying for their support in an institution or in some other person's home. This plan was urged by many other prominent speakers, and one entire session, under the leadership of Miss Alice L. Higgins, Secretary of the Associated Charities, of Boston, was given up to the discussion of the practicability of pensioning dependent mothers in order that they might care for their own children. It was shown that in many communities notably in Massachusetts, this plan is developing successfully.

Few persons realize that but a very small proportion of the children cared for by the institutions or other child-helping organizations are orphans. The great majority of them have one or more parents living. Quite a proportion of these children have worthy mothers who have either been made widows by disease or accident to the father, or, worse still, have been deserted by worthless husbands. Too often in the name of charity the community robs the mother of her only remaining source of comfort by committing her children to some institution where ordinarily she is not permitted even to see them except for a short time at great intervals, and yet this is being done in the name of "charity."—The Delineator for August.

In Memoriam.

On Friday, the 19th day of August, at 12 o'clock, noon the spirit of Mrs. Henrietta L. Moye, took its flight to the Spirit land.

If the angel of death was seeking one who was prepared for the summons, a better selection could not have been made.

For over fifty years she had been a devoted follower of her Lord and master, a consistent, loyal member of the Christian church.

She never tired of doing for those she loved, her whole life being characterized by deeds of Christian love and charity.

She leaves three children, A. J. Moye, Moses L. Moye and Mrs. Josephine Flynn, and quite a number of grand children, all living near Farmville, N. C. At the time of her death she was in her eightieth year, and has left a blessed memory, honored and revered by all who knew her.

As she lived, so she died, with an unswerving faith and trust in God, and she hath gone to her reward, a home with her Saviour.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 1910.

A brother of Dr. Cook says he knows where he is. Well, nobody cares.

While we all know Greenville is a good town, there is plenty of room to make it better.

The big gains some cities are showing in the census reports may make certain North Carolina towns more hopeful.

The committee having decided that the convention made no nomination, they can have it all over again in the sixth district.

The Durham Herald has run up against a libel suit, but it does not seem to be a bit upset over it. Must have its facts on straight enough to feel that the ground is sure.

The National Farmers' Union will hold a convention in Charlotte beginning September 6th, and one feature of the program will be the entertainment of six hundred delegates for one night in country homes around Charlotte. This will show the delegates what country life in Mecklenburg is.

It is an exception and not the rule when an enterprise of any kind gets all the business it wants, and it is something extraordinary when a newspaper can make such a claim. Yet that is the fortunate condition of the Roanoke-Chowan Times at Rich Square. That paper says it gets all the advertising patronage it can handle, does not solicit any more, and frequently has to turn down much that is offered. We wish every paper in the State was as fortunate as the Times and was surrounded by as liberal advertisers as are in its field.

One man remarked that he hoped he would never find a hotter place than the court room during the present term of court. The court has certainly been held under much disadvantage and discomfort, for in addition to being in a small room, yet the best that could be had under the circumstances, the weather has been oppressively hot and the crowded room was almost unendurable. While there was much personal discomfort to all who had to be present the court run its regular hours each day and a large amount of business was done.

This was Judge W. G. Ward's first court in Pitt county and our people are most favorably impressed with him. He is a good judge and keeps the work of his court moving as rapidly as possible. Solicitor Abernethy proved an excellent assistant, as usual, always doing his utmost to keep the court busy.

The Legalized Primary for Parties.
Eight years ago the editor of the News and Observer suggested in the Democratic platform favoring a legalized primary in North Carolina, which was adopted. In the legislature that followed, Senator Cameron Morrison introduced a bill providing for a legalized primary, and The News and Observer stood with Mr. Morrison in behalf of that reform measure, but many of the leaders of both parties opposed it, and others doubted its wisdom for the whole State. It was defeated. Since then Mecklenburg under the leadership of Heriot Clarkson, passed a legalized primary act with what result? Its Democratic majority has grown until it is the banner Democratic county in North Carolina. The legalized primary did not give this majority, but it proves that such method of ascertaining the will of the voters tends to strengthen rather than to weaken the party. Durham, Guilford, Wake and half a dozen other counties have adopted the legalized primary and no bad results have followed. There are objections to the primary, undoubtedly, but there are more objections to the mass meeting and the county and precinct conventions. In the old times when precincts were wont to send their best men uninstructed to the county convention, that was the best system ever devised. But times have changed and the voters generally instruct their delegates, and we have very few of those old time deliberative conventions. The nominating conventions of the old style must pass as did the electoral college, and we must come to the primary—and that means a legalized primary for all parties to be held on the same day regulated by the State authorities.

At the last meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee, Mr. A. J. Field introduced a resolution calling upon the General Assembly to enact a State Legalized Primary law. There was opposition to it, and upon the motion of the editor of this paper who stated that the time had come when the State should have a legalized primary, the resolution was not acted upon, but it will come up for consideration at the next meeting of the committee. Since then Beaufort, Wilson and other counties have passed resolutions in favor of a legalized primary, and the long drawn out conventions have emphasized the danger of counting a system having the seeds of producing such friction and trouble.

There is but one legalized primary law to be considered—it is the one in operation in Wisconsin, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas, Iowa and nearly all the Southern states a law requiring primaries to be held on the same day by all parties, the cost of the same to be paid by the state just as the cost of holding a regular election. The laws in these states are not exactly alike, but the principle is the same, and the legislators should study them all and give North Carolina the best one.—News and Observer.

According to a journal published by a life insurance company in New York no fewer than 12,500 persons committed suicide in this country last year. While this number is a slight decrease from the official record from 1908, it is appalling since the previous year was a record-breaker. The explanation for the great number of self-inflicted deaths in 1908 was the panic of 1907. The explanation for last year's great number simply appears to be that many persons were tired of living and ended the struggle. It has always been a moot question whether suicide is the act of a brave man or a coward. The man who takes his own life is undoubtedly a moral coward, and the only question that remains for discussion is his physical bravery. The analysis made by the insurance journal would seem to clear up this last remaining point. It is shown in the report that the larger number of suicides resorted to poison, while many employed asphyxiation. Poison is admittedly a coward's weapon. Asphyxiation is closely related to it. From the figures given by the insurance journal, it would seem that the persons contemplating suicide, or a majority of them, hunt around for the easiest way of ending their lives. Not a great number, comparatively use a revolver. A bullet, it would seem, hurts too much; and would be suicides who are trying to escape the stings and arrows of outrageous fortune do not want to inflict any more pain on themselves than they can help. Few of them hang themselves or cut their throats or jump off roofs. They are not so desperate as to be indifferent to physical pain. Most of them are as cowardly physically as they are morally. They are quitters—and they can't come back.—Washington Post.

The reason people are coming to eastern North Carolina to live is that they can raise two or three crops a season on the same land and live easier and better than they do anywhere else. Even yellow leg chickens get more to eat and make better gravy than any other people's chickens.—Wilmington Star.

Philosophy is what you want the other fellow to have.

Fooled the Critics.

"Beerbohm Tree," said a Philadelphia critic, "at the beginning of his career undertook the part of the blind Colonel Challice in 'Alone.' Tree was a very nervous man in those days. He was always forgetting his lines. But as the blind colonel he seemed destined to be particularly nervous, and therefore he arranged with the prompter that on the first night, whenever he forgot a speech, he should snap his fingers as a signal for help.

"The first night came, and Tree forgot his lines continually. His fingers snapped all through the show like an unending package of firecrackers. He thought his career was doomed, but the next morning all the critics said of him unanimously:

"Mr. Tree's artistic study of the blind Colonel Challice was a revelation. Never before have the habits and thoughts of the blind been so carefully analyzed and so faithfully portrayed. The entire study was perfect, even down to the nervous twitching of the fingers and the anxious listening, as though loss of sight made hearing all the more dear."

No Wonder He Was Disgusted.

It was on the Peary north pole expedition that an Eskimo came into possession of a piece of wire. Never having seen wire before, he asked Professor D. B. McMillan what it was for.

"White men string it on poles struck into the ground, and by talking into an instrument at one end the voice can be heard on the other," he was told by Professor McMillan. The next morning somebody called to Peary and the other members of the expedition to come out and watch the Eskimo. He was sticking some forked poles into the ground and hanging his piece of wire on top of them. He next held one end of the wire to his mouth and talked to it at the top of his voice. Then he hurried to the other end and held the wire to his ear, expecting to hear his own words repeated. When he failed to hear any sound he looked at his white friends in disgust.—Chicago Tribune.

Snails Are Queer Creatures.

The snail is found everywhere, over 3,000 species being known. Some of the large tropical snails, as bullsnails, form nests of leaves, their eggs being as large as a pigeon's. The snail is extremely skillful in mending its shell, and some curious experiments may be made with them. Thus I have seen a helix of a yellow species attached to another shell of a reddish hue by cutting off the top whirl of the latter, when the snail will proceed to weld the two shells together and occupy both, using the addition as a door and possibly wondering at this sudden extension of its house. In the winter some of the snails hibernate or lie dormant until warm weather. A snail of the Philippine Islands has a faculty of throwing off its tail when seized. This is also true of a West Indian variety, stenophus.—London Telegraph.

A Brougham Pun.

John Brougham was celebrated for his ready wit, and a story is told of him and Pat Hearne, who was the Canfield of his day. Hearne was a big man and addicted to flashy waistcoats. In one of his parts Brougham made up to resemble Hearne and wore a particularly loud and gaudy waistcoat. Hearne's friends persuaded him to go to see the play, anticipating considerable amusement at his expense. As they were coming out of the theater he was asked what he thought of Brougham's performance. "Not a bit like me. Why, I wouldn't own such a waistcoat." Brougham, hearing this, said, "I see; he wouldn't acknowledge the Pat Hearne-ity (paternity)."—"Recollections of Lester Wallack."

Dead as a Doornail.

The phrase "dead as a doornail" originated in this way. In early days, when door knockers were common, the plate upon which the knocker struck was sometimes called a nail. In the course of years it was struck so often that all life was supposed to be knocked out of it; therefore when it became necessary to refer to anything hopelessly lifeless it was merely an emphatic expression to say that it was "as dead as a doornail."—Home Notes.

Headed For the White House.

The small newsboy was leaning up against the wall, sobbing bitterly. "Cheer up, my little man," said a passerby. "What's the use of worrying? You may be president some day." "S-s-say," sobbed the little fellow. "It s-sure do look as if I wuz h-headed dat way; somebody's allers a-roastin' me!"—Chicago News.

He Wasn't It.

"My dear Miss Billmore," sadly wrote young Hankinson. "I return herewith your kind note in which you accept my offer of marriage. You will observe that it begins 'Dear George.' I do not know who George is, but my name, as you know, is William."—Chicago Tribune.

Witty.

The following epigram was written on Dr. Isaac Letson, a once well known English physician:

When folks are sick and send for me I purges, bleeds and sweats 'em.
If after that they choose to die
What's that to me? I Letson.

A Come-back.

"Honesty, my son," said the millionaire, "is the best policy."
"Well, perhaps it is, dad," rejoined the youthful philosopher, "but it strikes me you have done pretty well, nevertheless."—London Tit-Bits.

MOTHER'S VISIT.

The Old Lady Meant Well, but She Got a Severe Shock.

An old fashioned woman from the country recently packed some fried chicken, bread and doughnuts in a market basket and went to see her daughter, who lives in a big city. She was scandalized when the family stayed up till 11 o'clock and decided that she wouldn't tell pa about it when she wrote home next day. "He might think we have fallen into evil ways," she said to herself as she was going off to sleep.

She awoke at her usual time, 4 o'clock, and the house seemed strangely quiet. "Town folks do get lazy," she thought, "and they probably don't get up till 5." She dressed and went downstairs and watched the clock until 6. Not a sound. Then she waited till 7, and at 7, between hunger and alarm, she was almost crazed. "They've been murdered in their beds!" she yelled at 8 o'clock from the front steps. And soon the house was filled with people rushing in to see what had happened.

The family were surprised and indignant when police, market gardeners, newsboys, etc., rushed into their bedrooms and woke them up. And this explains why the old fashioned woman came home that day. "I never expected," she sobbed to pa, "that any girl would talk to her ma as Jane talked to me."—Athenian Globe.

HAWAII'S BIG VOLCANO.

Curious Relics of Lava It Has Left in the Forests.

Hawaii possesses one of the greatest natural wonders of the present day world—a live volcano as high as Vesuvius and twice its diameter.

Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, stands thirty miles from the sea in a mountain range in which are three dead volcanoes and one partially alive. This last, called Mauna Loa, from time to time sends streams of lava down its slopes. In 1883 three streams burst forth from the sides of this mountain, and one of them came within three-quarters of a mile of Hilo, the chief city of the island. There have been several outbreaks of Kilauea in the last hundred years. In 1840 there was a brilliant eruption of lava, the light of which, it was said, could be seen a hundred miles away, while at the distance of forty miles one could read print at midnight.

Where the lava flowed through the forest it has left curious relics in lava arches, bridges and great vases. These vases were formed by the lava piling itself about some lofty tree trunk, burning away the wood within and killing the upper part of the tree. In the course of time seeds were deposited in the open top, filled with decaying bark, until now there is a gigantic lava vase, holding ferns and flowers and vines.—Exchange.

A Coin Worth Millions.

Somewhere in the world—possibly among the relics kept by some lover of the great Napoleon—there is a fortune, perhaps unsuspected. Among the coins Napoleon had minted were some millions of five franc pieces, and he determined to popularize these in an extraordinary way. In one of the coins, folded to a tiny size, was inclosed a note signed by Napoleon and promising the sum of 5,000,000 francs to the finder of that particular coin. Naturally everybody who changed a large piece demanded the new five franc coins in exchange and, as a rule, probed and dug and sounded the metal in eager search for the hidden note. But the years went on, and yet the note did not appear. Napoleon's plighted word is a sacred trust to the French nation, and today the government stands ready to pay the debt, which, with interest, is now worth many millions.—London Answers.

A Grand Rout.

It is not always the largest foe who can make the greatest disturbance and cause the most confusion. In his "Hunting Grounds of the Great West" Richard Irving Dodge tells of a little incident of the Mexican war which proves that it is quality, not quantity, which is most effective.

While General Taylor's little army was marching from Corpus Christi to Matamoras a soldier of the flank of the column fired at a bull. The animal charged, and the soldier, taking to his heels, ran into the column. The bull, undaunted by the number of the enemy, followed him headlong, scattering several regiments like chaff, and finally escaped unhurt, having demoralized and put to flight an army which a few days after covered itself with glory by victoriously encountering five times its number of human enemies.

Leigh Hunt's Grave.

In the serene silence of Kensal Green cemetery, London, Leigh Hunt's body lies at rest. A visitor, reaching over the iron fence to part the tombstone shrubs that shadow the tombstone, reads these words:

"Write me as one who loves his fellow men."

It was his own cheerful philosophy of life that Leigh Hunt expressed through the lips of his Abou Ben Adhem, and the sentiment is very touching come upon in this way.

ONE WEAK SPOT.

Most Greenville People Have a Weak Part and too Often It's the Back

Everyone has a weak spot. Too often it's the back. Twinges follow every sudden twist. Dull aching keeps up, day and night. Tells you the kidney needs help—For backache is really kidney-ache.

A kidney cure is what you need. Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidneys. Cure headache and urinary ills. Good proof is the following statement:

Jackson Baxter, 424 Bonner street, Washington, N. C., says: "I suffered from kidney and bladder trouble for a long time. The kidney secretions were scanty at times, while at others profuse, and the passages were attended with pain. I had severe backaches and constant, gnawing pains through my kidneys. I was feeling miserable when I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and began their use. They gave me such great relief that I obtained a further supply and since using this, pains across my back have disappeared. I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone troubled by kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Patted Her on the Back.

Tennyson on one occasion on board the royal yacht, at the request of the then Princess of Wales, read "The Grandmother." "I read it," said Tennyson, "in a cabin on deck. The princess sat close to me on one side and a young lady whom I didn't know on the other. The wind came through an open window, and the princess whispered, 'Put on your hat, but I said I ought, if possible, to make myself baldier than ever before so many royalties. She said again, 'Oh, put it on!' so I did, and I heard afterward that the king of Denmark's court fool, who was in the background (they really kept a court fool, remarked, 'He may be laureate, but he has not learned court manners.' When I was done the ladies praised me, and I patted the unknown one on the back by way of reply, and presently I found out she was the empress of Russia!" "Had you any talk with the czar?" "Hardly any. He said he couldn't speak English. Perhaps he was disgusted at my patting his wife on the back. His head was up in the cabin ceiling as he walked about below."—London Gentlewoman.

Hydrocyanic Acid.

The distilled essential oil of almonds, which when diluted supplies the popular flavoring for sweets and confectionery known as "ratalia," contains in its strongest form a sufficient percentage of hydrocyanic acid to make it highly dangerous. A young man who was executing an order by pouring it from a large bottle to a smaller one noticed that he had not put the label quite straight on the smaller bottle and took it off again. Before replacing the label he licked it to make sure of its sticking properly. But while pouring he had inadvertently let a drop or two trickle on the outside of the bottle where he had affixed the label. Then when he touched the label with his tongue he felt as if something shot along that member and also a jump of his heart. So he rushed to a tap, which was fortunately close at hand, and put his tongue under the running water. Never as long as he lived, he said, would he forget that poisoning sensation.—Chambers' Journal.

A Way Man Has.

A man who will sit up all night and display marvelous agility of the fingers in operating a pack of cards finds that he has hands like an elephant's feet when he is asked to hook up or button up his wife's gown. This fact is observed time and again and is one of the popular bits of philosophy to be served in connection with a dressmakers' convention desiring public attention. That it is a more difficult undertaking to shuffle the deck and deal a poker hand—merely as a test of digital cleverness without taking into consideration the more important item of dealing a satisfactory hand—than to hook up a gown even when the eyes are hidden in the lace must be admitted. That a man will undertake the one cheerfully and the other churlishly must be ascribed to the survival of the Old Nick in most male humans.—Chicago Tribune.

A Nice Distinction.

He was hurrying for the train, somewhat impeded by a clumsy crate containing a large live turkey. As he approached the gate the guard stopped him with a gesture. "You can't take that through here," he said. "That'll have to be checked or go by express." "But I can't stop," declared the passenger. "I've got to get this train." And he tried to push through again. The guard held him back. "That is baggage," he said firmly, "and it must go in the baggage car." "Oh, no," replied the other, with a charming and confident smile; "it's luggage. Don't you see I'm lugging it?" And he had slipped before the astonished guard had caught his breath.—Youth's Companion.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Even the clearest and most perfect circumstantial evidence is likely to be at fault, after all, and therefore ought to be received with great caution. Take the case of any pencil sharpened by any woman. If you have witnesses you will find she did it with a knife, but if you take simply the aspect of the pencil you will say she did it with her teeth.—Mark Twain.

Ultra Practical.

"I notice," said a husband who was reading a lengthy letter which his wife had written and had handed to him for perusal, "that you have made a stupid mistake. You have written 'mirage' instead of 'marriage.'" "Either will do," replied the lady. "They both signify an illusion."

Sure Thing.

"So Jack and Tom proposed last night. Which did you accept?" "Why, my dear, I was so excited I can't remember. But whichever came tonight must be the one."—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Painfully Frank.

Miss Oldgirl—Here are some new pictures I had taken, but they are perfect frights. The photographer I went to is no flatterer. Miss Pert—No, but he is conscientious.—Baltimore American.

Taking Her to Task.

Mrs. Plymouth Rock—Yes, we are very proud of the fact that our ancestors came over in the Mayflower. Mrs. Many Rocks (severely)—In the first cabin?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Oh, life! An age to the miserable, a moment to the happy.—Bacon.

THE 'OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

A Drink From the Well That Was Not Appreciated.

The girl accepted the glass of ice water with a fervor in her words that went away beyond the manner of ordinary politeness.

"Yes," she confessed, "I am deeply grateful. You don't know what a blessing it is to be able to get a drink out of a refrigerator—just open the door and take it out. You see, I've been visiting at one of those houses in the country where the poetic old oaken bucket still is on the job. Every time I wanted a drink I had to get a knife and a weight and a rope and a bucket and a cup. I dug the lid of the well up with the knife. Then I adjusted the weight on one side of the bucket so it would tip over and take in water when it hit the bottom. Then I drew up the bucket, took a cupful of water, coiled the rope, shut down the lid and put the knife away again. All that for just one little drink!"

"Once we went out driving. We found one well where we couldn't get the lid up. We found another where the rope was too short. I was just dying for a drink by that time, so one of the boys held another upside down in the well—by the legs, you know—and we dipped out a drink that way. Thank you, I'm very comfortable where I am. No oaken buckets for me, except in songs."—Kansas City Star.

Saving Time.

"How much is that?" asked the man who was in a hurry.

"Dollar ninety-eight," replied the saleslady.

"Would you mind calling it $2 even?"

"I'm sorry, but it's against the rules."

"Would you consent as a favor to retain the change?"

"Certainly not! I do not receive tips."

He turned sadly away. Then a bright idea struck him. He went to the door, called a passing newsboy and took him to the counter. He reached for the article desired and regardless of protest shoved it into his pocket. Laying down a two dollar bill, he said to the newsboy:

"Now, son, you wait for that 2 cents change, no matter how long it takes, and here's half a dollar for your trouble."—Washington Star.

Milly—Is this picture like your father? Tilly—Of course not, silly! It is like father when he has his picture taken.—Puck.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Aug. 26.—Following a dull and irregular opening, the stock market today gathered some strength and prices of leading stocks advanced fractionally, in some cases as much as a full point. The early influence at work apparently was the report that a cold snap in the west had not invaded the corn belt. Brokers who sold yesterday expecting this to come into the market to cover today and this contributed a firm tone to early trading.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Corn led the market in decline at the opening, trading straggling. Wheat dropped 3/8 to 1/2c. Oats followed other grains in the decline—1/4 to 1/2c. Provisions steady with hogs. Opening: September wheat 99 1/2; corn 60 1/2; oats 34 1/2.

New York, Aug. 26.—Liquidation by small holders produced 21 point break in August cotton today, but otherwise, the market opened steady, three points lower to 3 higher. New crops gained most. Opening: August 16.25 offered; September 14.10; October 13.45; December 13.36 offered; January 13.37.
