LITIGATION OVER STREET.

Aldermen and Property Owners Taken in a Turn in Court.

Some time ago the board of aldermen, in carrying forward the street improvements, passed an ordinance that Fifth street, on which work was being done, be increased in width to 49 1-2 feet, that addition to measure an equal distance from each side of an established centre. That portion of Fifth street west of Pitt street is much narrower than the other streets of the town, and to get it the required width as provided for in the ordinance would necessitate the removal of a row of shade trees on the north side of the street.

This is where the hitch in the proceedings came in. Some of the property owners did not want the trees removed and they had the aldermen enjoined and the work for the time being stopped. The matter is being heard today before Judge Ward, in the Superior court, both property owners and the town being represented by counsel. The question at issue is whether the town has the right, in carrying on improvements to remove the shade trees and make the streets wider where they are less than the standard width.

AFTER CHANLER'S PROPERTY

Receiver Asked for to Take Charge of Estate.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Sept. 20.—A receiver for the estate of Robert W. Chanler, will be demanded by his creditors, it was learned today when their claims against the husband of Mme. Lina Cavaliere came up before Judge F. B. Delcharty, in the city courts. Attorney Redin, for one of the creditors, said that in addition to seeking the receivership of Chanler's property the creditors would ask for attachment. Mr. Redin said that eventually the Cavaliere-Chanler anti-nuptial agreement would be attacked on the ground that Cavaliere was given power of attorney without value received.

GRAFT AND IMMORALITY.

New York's Police Commissioner to be Removed.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Sept. 20.—New York is to have a new head for its police department. Acting Mayor Mitchell announced today that Mayor Gaynor had endorsed his recommendation that Police Commissioner Baker be removed. This action follows charges of municipal graft and gross immorality now under investigation. Mayor Gaynor will return to the city hall within a few days when Baker will be officially removed. This was decided at a conference between Mitchell and Gaynor today.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Sept. 20.—Captain Thomas Baldwin, pilot of Clifford B. Harmon's big balloon, landed Sunday evening. He was surprised when informed his balloon was almost given up for lost and had not been reported. All thirteen balloons are accounted for now, two others missing having been reported this morning, one at Midvale, W. Va., and one at Showalter, Va.

NOTES FROM THE UNIVERSITY

Good Work of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 20.—The University of North Carolina is now well started on its years work and the students and faculty of the institution are once again conscious of their debt to the Young Men's Christian Association which has taken such a prominent part in getting things to running. Freshmen more than any other people, perhaps have a tender feeling for the association for it was the information bureau which was run by Y. M. C. A. members which enabled them to see some semblance of order in the chaos of red tape which seemed to confront them on their arrival here.

The association had sent each prospective new student a hand-book during the summer, which contained all the information that could be composed into the small space, in regard to the new country into which the men seemed to themselves to be journeying. The association engineered college night, when a mass meeting in Gerrard hall brought together for the first time all the new students, old and new—the men for an introduction to the custom and unwritten laws of the life of the University community, the old men for a noisy cheering, gathering with everybody clapping everybody else on the shoulder, glad at the realization that he is back. At this meeting talks were made by Mr. C. L. Williams on the Educational Value of the Literary Societies; Mr. Archie Dees on the Honor System, by which the student body govern itself; The Function of Athletics in a Symmetrical Education by Mr. S. E. McIntosh; Mr. W. Turlington, the president of the Y. M. C. A., for the coming year spoke of the Achievements and Aims of the association. Turlington who is also the first scholar of his class and who won the Bingham medal in debate at the last commencement, told of what the Bible study groups conducted by the association had meant last year. The groups had included 400 men or half of the entire student body. A startling attainment of the Bible study enthusiasts in the eyes of many, was organization and successful year's work of a class which consisted of members of the football team only. He told of the various ways the association had made itself a part of the life of the college.

According to its time honored custom the association held its welcome meeting on the first Sunday of the session. Dr. Edwin Mims, Professor P. H. Winston, and Rev. R. W. Hougue made short talks. Dr. Mims told of what the association had meant to him in his student days at Vanderbilt and during the many years he had been a teacher at Trinity college. Professor Winston warned the new men against five evils which the man who lives the life of the college successfully must shun—laziness, drunkenness, gambling, immorality and profanity. Mr. Hougue, the pastor of the Episcopal church here pointed very forcibly the necessity for development among spiritual lines—a necessity which he considered more stringent than any other and one of which he feared college men are prone to neglect. The one thought which ran through all three of these talks was that the work of the association should appeal and does appeal to the strong men of the student body.

Mr. Ed. P. Hall, the newly elected general secretary of the association, had an active part in the engineering of these various meetings of the association. Mr. Hall graduated at the University of Georgia last spring, where he was a member of the honor board and president of the Y. M. C. A. He has already made a very pleasant impression on the large number of students who have become acquainted with him.

Take the Afternoon Paper.

Take a careful look at this copy of The Daily Reflector and you will find items of news in the press dispatches that will come to you in other papers tomorrow. This shows that when you get today's news today you must look for it in the afternoon paper. The telegraph service of The Reflector is right up to the time of going to press, and it gives you the news far ahead of any other paper. Strong argument it is that everybody in reach ought to be a subscriber to The Reflector.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

Gathered From Our Exchanges Today of Events Just Happened.

Raleigh, Sept. 19.—Albert Richardson and Milton Nowell, well known farmers of the Wendell section of Wake county, were bound over to the next term of the Federal court today by United States Commissioner Nichols to answer the charges of operating a blockade brandy still on Richardson's place. Nowell is a brother of the sheriff of Johnson county.

Wilmington, Sept. 19.—Alderman J. B. Fales and Policeman J. H. Davis had a lively fight near the city market this afternoon, but before many blows were passed both were arrested and marched to the city hall where they were recognized to appear before the recorder tomorrow. The alderman although smaller than the policeman, said to have got the best of the fight. The trouble grew out of a dispute concerning an account.

Wilmington, Sept. 19.—John R. Turrentine, Jr., a well known broker of this city, was arrested today upon a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $228 of funds belonging to the wholesale firm of S. P. McNair & Co. The warrant was sworn out by A. B. McNair, a member of the firm. Turrentine was released under a $250 bond to await preliminary trial before Justice of the Peace George Harris, Wednesday.

While attempting to round up a bunch of disorderlies, who infest Heritage street, in the vicinity of the Farmers warehouse Officer Kilpatrick Saturday night, probably had a "close call" from a pistol shot from one of those, whom he was after. The bullet did pass through the officer's hat and was fired from such close range that the report deafened him in one ear. Officer Kilpatrick ran around the wall which was between him and his aggressor, and opened up firing, but without effect, so far as is known.—Kinston Free Press.

They are telling a good joke on a good mother of the city. It appears that a few days ago she was expecting a visit from a nephew whom she had not seen in several years. A young man walked up to her front door and she proffered him a kiss. The young man was visibly embarrassed and turned his head away. The good lady affectionately tapped him on the cheek, saying: "You know you are going to kiss your auntie!" The young man resisted no further. Three handsome daughters had made their appearance by this time prepared for osculatory stunts when the bashful young man tremblingly made known the fact that he had called to sell a map.—Reidsville Review.

Messrs. J. F. Horner Caswell Rouse, Sam Taylor and Kincaid Irvine returned to this city, Sunday night, from Norfolk where they remained over from excursion Friday night to give testimony in the Norfolk court against a man, who was implicated in robbing excursionists at the Park Street station, as they were boarding the train to return home Friday night. The gentlemen named were among the victims robbed by a crowd of negroes and lost, Mr. Horner $10, Mr. Rouse $15, Mr. Taylor $5, and Mr. Irvine about $20. One of the negroes was recognized and captured by the police. A preliminary trial was given him Saturday and the victims remained over to give testimony against him. He was bound over to the October term of the circuit court.—Kinston Free Press.

Spring Hope, Sept. 19.—Last night at 8:30 Norman Lewis, a negro shot and fatally wounded Chief of Police J. M. Stallings. The officer, accompanied by Bob Wrenn went to Lewis' home to arrest him on a warrant charging retailing. Wrenn went to the rear and from the front door Stallings called to the negro to come out. Lewis replied that he wasn't coming out and said he had not sold whisky. A second later he called to his wife to put out the light and open the door. Instantly a gunshot rang out and Stallings fell, the load of shot in his breast. Only his badge saved him from instant death, the greater part of the load striking it. Wrenn ran to the assistance of Stallings and caught him in his arms. Lewis ran off but turned and fired the other barrel of his gun at the two men.

Several days ago Mr. Joe Brown, one of the most progressive farmers in this section, arose at the usual early hour in the morning, and after feeding his stock, went to the smoke house to get the usual portion of soured buttermilk for his swine. He was in the act of pouring the milk

A TRUE FISH STORY.

Wadesboro People Competing for Mendacity Medal.

Mr. J. C. Carpenter, well known citizen of Lanesboro township, has a bull dog which he prizes very highly not only because he is a good watch dog but because he is developing extraordinary sagacity as a fish catching canine. Last Sunday a number of Mr. Carpenter's sons went bathing in Lane's creek, near his home. They were having a good time in the water splashing and swimming around when suddenly a large trout, apparently scared out of his wits, rose to the surface of the water and jumped into a small bateau that was in the lake in which they were bathing. No sooner had the fish landed in the boat than the family bull dog, which was sitting on the bank looking on, made for it. The fish, the instant the dog jumped in the boat made for the water. The dog did not hesitate a second, but dived from the boat into the water at the point where the trout disappeared and in a second or two reappeared on the surface with the fish in his mouth. The dog swam to the bank with the trout and the boys triumphantly carried it home and had it cooked for breakfast Monday morning. The fish was so big it made a good meal for the entire family.—Wadesboro Messenger-Intelligencer.

Cash Forfeited.

United States Commissioner King failed to have a court today. Some time ago he issued a warrant for Ed. Mills, colored, of Shelmerdine, for retelling Deputy marshal served the warrant yesterday and Mills put up cash for his appearance today here. But he did not appear and a phone message from Shelmerdine said he "burnt the wind" last night.

Miss Verna Whichard, head stenographer for Whitehead & White, architects, Charlotte, who has been spending her vacation at home, left this morning to resume work.

from a crock into the slop pail, when the thumb on his left hand was seized by something which held and clinched its teeth in the flesh and nail. Mr. Brown jerked his hand away, but brought forth a wriggling, heavy substance, thinking it was a snake, of course, and fung it to the ground with considerable force, tearing the flesh from his thumb. He called for a light and to his horror and mixed anxiety he found a big rat lying at his feet gasping and in a dying condition. In some way the rodent had slipped into the buttermilk, but the whey was so scarce and the milk so thick it could not drown. The pest was despatched in short order. The cut place on Mr. Brown's hand is healing nicely.—Moorville Enterprise.

Rocky Mount, Sept. 19.—The oldest person perhaps that there was in Eastern Carolina or the State died in this city on Saturday afternoon, at the age of 113 years. "Aunt Maria" Simmons, who is familiarly known in Rocky Mount and Eastern Carolina, died on Saturday afternoon in her small hut near the western boundary of the city. "Aunt Maria" was perhaps as well known as any colored person in the eastern part of the State, and up until about three or four weeks ago she was able to be upon the streets, and though helped along with crutches, she always appeared of a sunny disposition, and was an interesting talker to those who might take the time to converse with her.

Mr. John W. Waller, of Providence township, was in the city this morning and reports that lightning killed two cows in his neighborhood yesterday afternoon. One of the cows was Mr. Waller's, the other belonged to Judge Council who owns a farm in the township. The animals had their heads through the wire fence picking grass when the lightning struck a fence post, splintering it, and killing them.—Salisbury Post.

Mr. M. M. Sims, who lives on route 3 from Concord, showed us on last Saturday a biscuit that he has had in his possession for 15 years. He attended a party one night and put the biscuit in his pocket and on going home threw it in his trunk, forgetting all about it until he was looking in the trunk several years afterwards he found it, and it brought such pleasant recollections to mind that he decided to keep it. He has had it for 15 years, and it is in a remarkably well preserved state for its age.—Concord Tribune.

PLAYED A SHREWD GAME.

Politicians Know How to Play Other Things Besides Politics.

Messrs. E. J. Justice, Andrew Joyner, W. R. Land and one or two others journeyed to Madison Saturday in an automobile, where Mr. Justice made a speech that woke up the Democrats of that county. It was a great day. The party arrived in good time, but coming back they did not have such good luck. Some miles beyond Stokesdale a tire of the machine bursted with a report like a rifle. The man in charge knew his business, however, and soon repaired it, but it would not stick and down it went again. Then he solemnly announced that they would have to foot it to a telegraph office or some phone and have another machine sent after them. Feathers fell and faces grew solemn, but just at this juncture a freight train was heard coming up a grade, puffing and snorting.

A wink is generally as good as a nod to a blind horse, but in this case Mr. Joyner said to the others "play tame; I'll flag that freight."

Freight trains are not permitted to carry passengers. Out on the track he ran and with the aid of two handkerchiefs he brought the train to a stop.

"Sorry, my friend to stop you, but our automobile was wrecked just back there, and some of the occupants are hurt, can't you take us on to Greensboro?"

Full of sympathy, the conductor told him to come ahead and he would at least take them to Stokesdale and wire for orders. The others were called and came limping up, badly hurt, of course, and boarded the train at Stokesdale permission was obtained from Greensboro to bring them on to town, where they arrived at seven o'clock.

Not a man was hurt! Mr. Joyner, however, said the expert who was driving the machine came near spoiling everything, but when yelled at to come on, he started on a run; but the others were ever so lame.—Greensboro Record.

War on Big Hats.

Copenhagen has a milliner who succeeded in making successful war on the big hat, says the Chicago Daily News. Her establishment was the headquarters for the best in the line of millinery, and her business was prosperous until a rival from Paris appeared on the scene, whose hats were larger, and more attractive. She saw bankruptcy staring her in the face, and to avert it resorted to a desperate measure.

She sent a friend to the Paris shop and purchased twenty of the most elaborate hats and had them distributed among the basket women in the public market. The gifts were accepted with thanks, the hats being not only showy, but good protection against the sun.

The joke soon spread through Copenhagen, and every one laughed except the fashionable woman. Overnight the style was changed. Customers returned to the native milliner, and the French woman closed up.—Charlotte News.

Good Breaks Everyday.

It is the daily occurrence now for the tobacco warehouses to have large breaks. Farmers are bringing in much of the weed and the market is very active. Prices continue good and it is seldom that any dissatisfaction is heard.

Good Show.

The Amuzu Theatre has opened under new management, Monday night being their first night. Everybody was pleased with the Markil sisters, and the films were exceptionally good. The management promises equal of last nights performance every night.

Boy Breaks Arm.

Willie Gray Lang, son of Mr. J. A. Lang, broke his left arm Monday afternoon. He was driving a mule to a wagon when the animal ran away and threw him out of the wagon. In the fall his arm and two or three fingers were broken.

Bears! Bears!

Bears are reported plentiful down about Vanceboro. Many farmers losing hogs by them and bear dogs are in demand.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Little Items too Short for a Head, but Interesting.

Odd Fellows meet tonight. The boys and girls will gather at the graded school tomorrow.

Civil court does not attract many people, and the crowd in attendance is not like at a criminal term.

The Amuzu Theatre has added clean and refined vaudeville and you, your wife and all your children should come and enjoy a good wholesome 45 minutes entertainment every night. Price of admission, 10 and 15 cents.

See, it's getting warm again. After today you will not see many children on the streets, except as they are going to and from school.

The vaudeville at the Amuzu drew a crowd last night.

Don't forget the Amuzu Theatre will give a matinee on Wednesday and Saturdays of each week. Let the little ones come.

The Farmer.

We are inclined to agree with The Monroe Enquirer in its estimate of the brain power of the farmer. "The talk and this writing so much of it, about now the farmer is coming up the ladder socially and intellectually and about how the farmer is climbing into those realms" says The Enquirer, "gives one a pain. The time never was when farming was not as respectable, as honorable as any other business or profession on the earth and the time never was when there was not just as much brain-power driving farming operations as was engaged in pushing any other business along. The time was when some little egg-shaped, headed fools thought that farming was away down the ladder and they looked on the farmer as a clod hopper—but the little thoughts bubbling up in their little think tanks did not make it so. It is not that the farmer is changing from a fool to a business man of energy and sense, but the little fools, some of 'em, are realizing that they have been fools in sizing up the farmer when they put him down below the very top in the business world and in every department of life where good sense and manhood counts." We can hardly remember the time when the farmers were not able, when willing, to lend money to town people, or when town people looking about for somebody to go on their bonds, would check off first of all, their list of farmer friends. The farmer always has been and always will be, a man to look up to.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Daughters of the Confederacy.

The meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy with Mrs. T. J. Jarvis, Wednesday afternoon, is one of importance to every member. In addition to the election of officers for the coming year and the appointment of delegates to the State convention, we understand there is also, to be some discussion of plans for the erection of a monument. The meeting will be held at 3 o'clock, instead of at 4 as first announced.

THE PAY ROLL COUNTS.

The Reflector has long been advocating the establishment of such manufacturing enterprises as have good weekly pay rolls. They are what count most in the business of a town. The capitalist may have his investments in stocks and bonds from which he can draw his dividends, yet but little of his income finds its way into the channels of business. He spends enough for the necessities of his family and for occasional pleasure trips, any residue he may have goes into other investments. It is not so with the wage earners. They draw their weekly wages and it at once finds its way into the money drawers of the merchants. The merchants may have stores well filled with goods, but unless there are wage earners with some money to spend there is not much business for them. Hence several manufacturing enterprises with good weekly pay rolls are worth more to the business of a town than many times the number of capitalists.

Take The Reflector establishment, for instance. While not given to much boasting, we do take pride in the fact that it is worth something to the business of Greenville. It does not begin to have the largest pay roll here, but the employees of this one plant and those dependent upon them spend an average of a hundred dollars a week with the merchants of Greenville. This being so, it is the duty of the merchants in town to give their business to the establishments that patronize them. What they pay for printing goes back to them in trade.

This is mentioned for illustration. The same thing is true of any other enterprise whose employees receive and spend their wages weekly. They are helping the business of the town and are entitled to the patronage of those with whom this money is spent. It is the way to make business. Every enterprise with a pay roll should be supported, and additional ones should be encouraged. Greenville needs a waking up in this particular as the town has not as many manufacturing enterprises as it ought to have. Give employment to wage earners, encourage the enterprises that employ them, and you will have an increased number of people with money to spend.

The Wilmington Dispatch, the bright afternoon paper of the "city by the Sea," had so outgrown its former quarters that it erected and recently move into a large and handsome new building. Immediately following the change also came a change in the size of the paper, and The Dispatch is now eight pages of seven columns, instead of six pages of six columns as before. The increase in size carries further the good quality that has all along marked The Dispatch.

The greatest difficulty in winning the esteem of others lies in our foolish estimates of ourselves.

PITT HAS NOMINATED GOOD MEN

When any party puts out good, honest, capable men for the various offices to be filled, that party has the right to expect every man who pretends to be its adherent to support the ticket. Now we believe that when a party does not consider efficiency and normality, but just simply nominates men because they happen to have a pull with certain class of people, and nominates inefficient men, there is some excuse for a strict party man to scratch.—Roxboro Courier.

There is good reasoning in the foregoing. In the case of Pitt county, a ticket composed of good, capable men has been nominated, hence it is the duty of every Democrat in the county to support the ticket. Some of the men on this ticket have been tried in office for several years and have fully met every requirement. The new men nominated are equally good and worthy of all confidence. Of course the entire ticket in this county is going to be elected, but every Democrat should vote and make the majority as large as possible.

Did you ever? The Orange, Va., Observer has already blurted in with "now is the time to do your Christmas shopping." And this before the ice man lets go. Always somebody to be suggesting trouble.

We wonder what has become of the real good apples. Some that are fine enough looking are shipped to the merchants, but they do not seem to have that fine flavor that they used to have.

Dispatch Cowan intimates that News Patton and Reflector Whichard are color blind. Thinks we don't know a pumpkin when we see it, eh? That's the limit. Sic 'im, Patton.

James C. McGrew, who claimed to be the oldest ex-congressman in the United States, died Sunday at his home in West Virginia. He was 98 years of age.

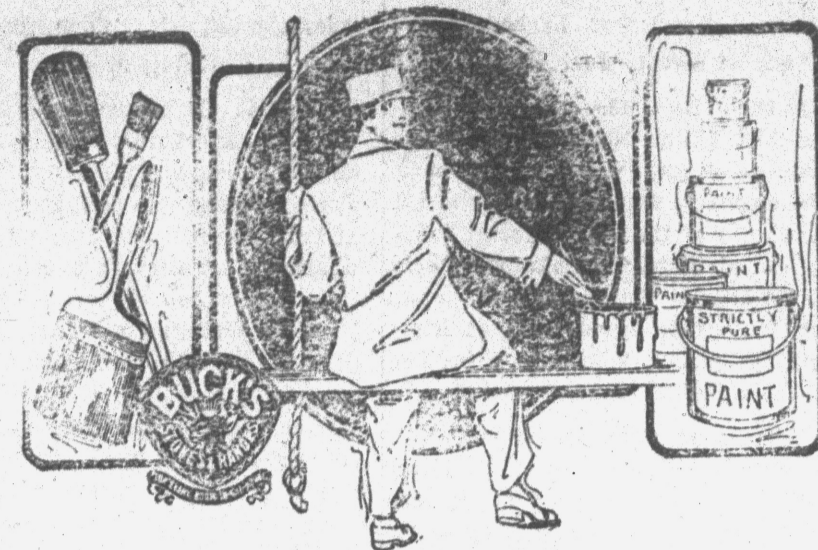

Becoming Rich.

Too often the fact that a man is growing rich is first announced to his neighbor by a wider spread and a finer show in his style of living. His wife and daughters begin to resemble the lilies. They neither toil nor spin but Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of them. Next come a coach and span. Then, of course, a new house. The old one was ample. There is no increase of family but without a grander mansion, how is the world to know that the man has made a fortune? So architects and painters and decorators in due time install the household in a palace fit for a duke and they take their rank among "the upper ten." All the humble walks of life are abandoned, old friends are dropped, the hearts once often cheered, and the poor helped, looked no longer for their coming. The cloak of selfishness is tightly drawn and the heart closed to the appeals for charity. How true, when blessings come in the way of great prosperity, they are wholly appropriated for self, and the good they were intended to do never speed on missions of mercy, but are tightly held, dwarfed and thwarted altogether and they are not known to have become rich by the many blessings bestowed or good done, but only by an outward dazzling show that a few years will obliterate.—Louisburg Times.

Says the Wilmington Dispatch: "By summer the Greenville Reflector shied bricks at us, on account of the bathing girl, and by fall the Charlotte Observer is harping lemons at us about our alleged love of the hobble skirt, so indeed like a breath of fresh air breaking through the foul atmosphere and like a straw tossed before the eyes of the drowning man, at least our optics behold something we can show our better half without fear or trembling. We return most grateful thanks to the Greenville (S. C.) News for the following: "The Greenville Reflector and Wilmington Dispatch are again quarreling about red hair—and the hair doesn't belong to woman, either.

CARRIED OFF BY A LION.

Thrilling Experience of a Ranger in the Transvaal.

Two men at least have given accounts of their sensations when they were carried off by lions—the great explorer Livingstone and a man named Wolhuter, a ranger of game preserves in the Transvaal. Wolhuter's adventure is not secondary in interest to Livingstone's experience. His story, which was attested by the certificate of the magistrate of the district, was substantially as follows:

He was riding along a Kafir path about an hour after sunset. It had been a long march, and he had pushed on ahead of his companions. His dog barked at something, and a moment later Wolhuter saw a lion crouching close to him on the right hand side.
The ranger turned his horse sharply, a circumstance that no doubt caused the lion to miss the spring.

Wolhuter was unseated. At the same moment he saw another lion coming from the opposite direction. The horse rushed off, with the first lion in pursuit, and the second lion picked Wolhuter up almost before he touched the ground and gripped him by the right shoulder in such a position that he was face up, with his legs and body dragging underneath the beast. The lion trotted down the path, uttering a loud, growling, purring noise.

Wolhuter's sensations were not those of Livingstone, who said he was in a state of apathy, with entire absence of pain during the time the lion had him.
The game ranger suffered terribly, both mentally and physically, and saw no possible way of escape. The lion took him nearly 200 yards.

Suddenly Wolhuter bethought him of his sheath knife, which he carried in his belt behind his right hip. On reaching a large tree with overhanging roots the lion stopped, whereupon Wolhuter stabbed him twice in the side with his left hand. It was ascertained afterward that the first stab touched the bottom of the heart and that the second one slit it down for some distance.

The lion immediately dropped Wolhuter, and again the game ranger struck him, this time in the throat, severing an artery.

The lion jumped back and stood facing him, growling. Wolhuter scrambled to his feet, shouting at the top of his lungs. He expected the beast to come at him again, but it did not. Instead, it turned slowly and, still growling, went a few paces. Soon its growl turned to moans. These, in turn, ceased, and the ranger knew that the beast was then dead.

Wolhuter got up the tree as fast as his injured arm would permit, and hardly was he seated when the first lion, which had been after the horse, came back on the trail of blood. By this time the plucky ranger was so faint that he tied himself to the tree to prevent himself from falling out.

He was found by his companions, who took him to a place of safety. The lion he had killed was an old male, and the weapon used was an ordinary sheath knife.—New York Tribune.

Peculiarities of Lichens.
The lichen is remarkable for the great age to which it lives, there being good grounds for believing that the plants endure for 100 years. Their growth is exceedingly slow, almost beyond belief, indicating that only a little nourishment is necessary to keep them alive. In a dry time they have the power to suspend growth altogether, renewing it again at the fall of rain. This peculiarity alone is enough to make the lichen a vegetable wonder, as it is a property possessed by no other species of plant. Another interesting fact about lichens is that they grow only where the air is free from dust and smoke. They may be said to be a sure indication of the purity of the air, as they are never found growing in cities and towns where the atmosphere is impregnated with dust, soot, smoke and other impurities.

Tingling Ears.
If your ears burn, people say, some one is talking about you. This is very old, for Pliny says, "When our ears do glow and tingle some do talk of us in our absence."
Shakespeare in "Much Ado About Nothing" makes Beatrice say to Ursula and Hero, who had been talking of her, "What fire is in mine ears?" Sir Thomas Browne ascribes this conceit to the superstition of guardian angels, who touch the right ear if the talk is favorable and the left if otherwise. This is done to cheer or warn.

The Advice Seeker.
"When a man asks me for advice," said the good natured person, "I always find myself getting into a discussion."
"Well," replied Mr. Sirius Barker,
"most of us ask for advice because we would rather argue than work."
—Washington Star.

Unpeeled.
Mr. Recentmarrie (who has plunged a spoon into dish preparatory to helping to the pudding)—Why, Mary, I feel some hard, smooth, round things in the dish. I wonder what they can be. Mrs. Recentmarrie—Why, they're eggs, John; there are six, just as the recipe says.—Chicago News.

Happiness is reflective, like the light

HIS TWO BAD DAYS.

Lord Byron Had a Positive Dread of Fridays and Sundays.

The belief in palmists and sooth-sayers is not, as is sometimes supposed, confined to the ignorant and the credulous. Lord Byron was not a skeptic in these matters. Just before his death, as recorded in "Byron—The Last Phase," by Richard Edgecumbe,
"he said he had reflected a great deal on a prediction which had been made to him when a boy by a famed fortune teller in Scotland. His mother, who firmly believed in chiromancy and astrology, had sent for this person and desired him to inform her what would be the future destiny of her son. Having examined attentively the palm of his hand, the man looked at him for awhile steadfastly and then with a solemn voice exclaimed, 'Beware of your thirty-seventh year, my young lord, beware!' He had entered on his thirty-seventh year on Jan. 22, and it was evident from the emotion with which he related this circumstance that the caution of the palmist had produced a deep impression on his mind, which in many respects was so superstitious that we thought it proper to accuse him of superstition. 'To say the truth,' answered his lordship,
'I find it equally difficult to know what not to believe. . . . You will, I know, ridicule my belief in lucky and unlucky days, but no consideration can now induce me to undertake anything either on a Friday or a Sunday. I am positive it would terminate unfortunately. Every one of my misfortunes—and God knows I have had my share—has happened to be on one of those days.'"—London Gentlewoman.

FAMOUS SWORDS.

The Monster Weapon Used at Welsh Eisteddfods.

The largest sword of which there is any record is the seven foot ceremonial sword that was made for Edward III.
and is now preserved in Westminster abbey. Next comes the "sword of ceremony" that is used at Welsh es-teddfods. This weapon if placed in the hands of a modern Godfrey de Bouillon, who, it will be recalled, with a two handed sword cleaved a Turk into halves from the shoulder to the hips, would be quite long enough for any one who wished to put it to practical use. It is six feet two inches in length.

Of gorgeous swords which are not so much weapons as settings for precious stones the most valuable in English is said to be the one presented by the Egyptians to Lord Walseley and valued at $10,000. This sum is comparatively insignificant for a bejeweled sword if the value of the sword brought over to Europe some years ago by the then shah of Persia—namely, $50,000—be taken as a standard of what a diamond hilted weapon ought to cost.
Competent authorities on the subject familiar with that famous weapon of the Persian ruler are rather skeptical as to the existence of the gaeckwar of Baroda's gorgeous blade, which is supposed to be worth more than twenty swords of equal beauty and value to the shah's, but it is popularly supposed that the diamonds, rubies and emeralds with which it is thickly incrustured bring up its value to about $1,000,000.—Exchange.

How Thackeray Worked.
If ecarte is to be held responsible for Thackeray's appearance as an author, his erratic methods of work contributed equally to his early death.
He wrote invariably with the printer's devil in attendance.

"I can conceive nothing more harassing in the literary way," wrote Motley to his wife in 1858, "than Thackeray's way of living from hand to mouth. It mean in regard to the way he furnishes food to the printer's devil. Here he is just finishing the number that must appear in a few days. Of course whether ill or well, stupid or fertile, he must produce the same amount of fun, pathos or sentiment.
His gun must be regularly loaded and discharged at command. I should think it would wear his life out." Motley's fears were realized within a few years.—London Chronicle.

The Homeric Controversy.
It was about the year 1795 that the "Homeric controversy" began. About that date F. A. Wolf, in his Prolego-mena, argued that the Homeric poems were composed of independent epic songs, collected and arranged by Pel-sistratus about 650 B. C. Wolf's theory created a great stir among scholars and poets and inaugurated the fight which enlisted most of the learned men of the day. Mr. Andrew Lang, in "Homer and the Epic," 1893, vigorously defended the "one author" theory, as opposed to the idea of Wolf that the famous poems were composed through ages by many different persons.—New York American.

A Love Passage.
"Love! Ah, love!" cooed the sentimental maiden. "I feel as if I could live on nothing but love."

ed the ardent youth at her side.—Bos-

JUVENILE BLOCKHEADS.

Stupid Boys Who Developed Into World
Famous Men.

There is quite a long record of famous men who in their boyhood were regarded as fools and dullards. Sir Walter Scott was called a "blockhead" by his mother. The mother of Brinsley Sheridan despaired of teaching him the simplest elements. Her death aroused him to activity and he became a scholar, philosopher, poet, wit, statesman and orator. Dean Swift, the keenest wit of his age, was "plucked" at Dublin university. Newton, Shakespeare, Michelangelo and Oliver Goldsmith all come in the category.

One day a slatternly woman rushed out of a little grocer's shop gripping an unkempt boy by the ear, and as she pulled him along she shouted to her neighbor:

"My heart is fairly broke with that brat, Tammy, and he is so stupid he can learn nothin'!"

That stupid brat Tammy became the poet Tom Moore.

In a country schoolhouse in Queen's county, Ireland, a boy with a blunt knife cut in the desk "A. W.," the initials of his name. The teacher, who caught him in the act, cried out:

"Stupid, you are better at cutting letters and destroying desks than you are at learning your lessons!"

That boy was Arthur Wellesley, known to fame as the Duke of Wellington, hero of Waterloo.

In the middle years of the last century, in St. Malachy's college, Belfast, a boy carved the letters "C. R." in the wood. The French professor reported him and declared that he "was besides a worthless boy, who would never amount to anything."

"I will amount to more than you!"
returned the youth.

He did, for he became lord chancellor of England—Lord Russell of Kil-lowen.—London Graphic.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Greenville People Know How to Save It.

Many Greenville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. S. A. Simmons, 504 Heritage
St., Kinston, N. C., says: "I found Doan's Kidney Pills to be an effective remedy for kidney trouble and headache. My back pained me for a long time and my kidneys were much dis-ordered. I happened to read about Doan's Kidney Pills, and procuring a box, I began using them. They benefitted me in every way and I am now free from backache and am able to rest well; in fact, I feel better in every way. I am glad to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.,

A Varnishing Tip.
When varnishing wood the work must be done in a warm room at a temperature of at least 75 degrees F.
At a lower temperature the moisture in the air will give a milky and cloudy appearance to the varnish. On the other hand, at the higher temperature the moisture is not precipitated until the alcohol of the varnish has sufficiently evaporated to leave a thin smooth film of shellac. The durability and gloss are dependent on this.

OLD FAMILIES.

Some in Europe and in the Orient That Are Really Ancient.

In Great Britain and on the continent those families pride themselves that count their ancestry through ten generations, but their claims to really ancient lineage seem insignificant when compared with those of certain houses in the orient.

We read that the oldest family in Great Britain, the Mar family in Scotland, may trace its pedigree to 1003. Then, too, we have the Campbells of Argyll, whose date is put down at 1190. The Grosvenor family, that of the Duke of Westminster, refers its origin to the same year that the Conqueror "came over"—i. e., 1066. The Austrian house of Hapsburg goes back farther than that, its date being 952, while the Bourbons proudly mention 804 as the date of their origin.

But none of them is to be mentioned in the same breath with the emperor of Japan, whose office has been filled by members of his family for a period of over 2,500 years, the present ruler being the one hundred and twenty second in the line. The first emperor of Japan sat on the throne about the time when Nebuchadnezzar was flourishing—that is, in 650 B. C.

Another oriental branch, the descendants of Mohammed, presents claims not to be dismissed. The prophet was born in 570, and a list of his descendants has been carefully retained, being duly set forth in a volume kept in Mecca. Little or no doubt exists of the authenticity of the long list of names of Mohammed's descendants as registered in this sacred book.—Harper's Weekly.

WANTED NO FUSS.

Any Old Thing Would Do For Dinner, So She Said.

Mrs. Betsy Baxter was the last person in the world to want anybody to make trouble on her account. When she "dropped in" on Mrs. Doolittle unexpectedly for dinner one day she made her position on this point quite clear. "Don't you go to a mite of bother on my account, Mis' Doolittle. You know that I'm a person for whom you can just lay down an extra plate and set before me anything you happen to have in the house.

"If you just fry a chicken same as you would for your own folks, an' make up a pan of your ten biscuits that no one can beat, an' open a glass of your red currant jelly, an' have a dish of your quince preserves, an' some of the pound cake you most always have in your cake jar, you do that, an' have some piping hot apple fritters with hot maple sirup to go with 'em, an' some of your good coffee, an' any vegetables you happen to have in the house—I like sweet potatoes the way you fix 'em mighty—but, la, just have anything else you happen to have.

"I'm one that expects an' is willing to eat what's set before me, an' no questions asked ner fault found when I go visiting. So don't you put yourself out a mite for me. If you have what I've mentioned an' anything else you want to have I'll be satisfied. I ain't one that cares very much about what I eat anyhow. As the saying is, 'any old thing' will do for me."—Puck.

Recipe For a Flower Garden.

Take twenty square yards of sand and pebbles, stir in sufficient clay to make a compact water tight mass, ram down hard and score the surface with a rake. Add carefully ten packets of seeds of the most magnificent flower known that will grow anywhere and under any conditions, throwing up a continuous succession of enormous flower trusses from March to November, each about five inches across and of the most common of all flowers. This is the commonest of all flowers and will be found listed on any page of any florist's catalogue. Set the whole out to rise, keeping it moist and warm. After allowing the mass to rise four months sprinkle red spiders and green aphides plentifully over the top and soak well with tears. The net result may be preserved in a small bottle of alcohol for future reference.—Philadelphia North American

An Open Air Hotel.

A man from the west was looking for a friend in New York who had gone wrong. He heard his friend had been sleeping on the benches in Bryant park and went over there to look for him. There were a good many unfortunate on the benches, but the particular friend the westerner wanted to find was not there. However, the westerner did find another man from his own town whom he knew and who knew the man for whom he was searching.

"Where's Jones?" asked the westerner, prodding the man he knew. "Aw," replied the hobo sleepily, "he ain't come in yet."—New York Sun.

Nothing More to Be Said.

"My wife always lets me have the last word," remarked the meek looking man.

"Indeed!" exclaimed his friend in tones which implied a doubt of the other's veracity.

"She does, really. Whenever I say 'Yes, my dear, you are quite right,' she stops talking immediately.

Her Little Joke.

"When Harold proposed to me," said Maud, "I told him to go and ask papa." "But you don't really care for him!" said Maymie. "Of course not. But I do so love to play little jokes on papa."—Washington Star.

Nothing is little that is our duty, and a common life with homely surroundings is the best discipline for most of us.

A BAG OF GOLF CLUBS.

They Picture in a Way the Various Phases of Human Society.

"Devotees of the links will be interested to learn that, in the opinion of a philosophical student of their ancient game, a bag of golf clubs is a symbolical epitome of human society.

In the front rank you have the driver, smooth, polished, elegant, the aristocrat of the circle, to whose lot falls the showy role in the day's performance, who disdains to play his part on the level of his fellows, and must have his sphere of operations artificially raised above the plane of the common earth. The brassy is your rich commoner, substituting a barrier of metal for the tee that confers rank on his social superior. After these come the humbler cleeks, lofters and mashies, the common herd, who, like the butchers, shoemakers, and tillers of the ground among human beings, have the bulk of the work to do, and can afford no polish save what comes from keeping themselves clean, which at times is no easy task. Apart from them all stands the niblick, the good Samaritan of golf, resorted to only when the player is in a serious difficulty. The function of the niblick is to aid the golfer in the day of trouble, and his destiny, after having done his duty in that state of life, is to be relegated to the limbo of forgetfulness.—Argonaut.

AN ALGERIAN HOTEL.

The Attempt to Describe Its Attractions in English.

Things are not always as they seem, even in an advertisement. This truth dawned upon Robert Crawford when he was in Algiers, and he tells of the reason for his conclusion in "Reminiscences of Foreign Travel." Mr. Crawford, not being satisfied with his lodgings, procured a copy of the Journal des Etrangers and proceeded to look up a hotel.

After a patient investigation the choice seemed to lie between two. One, according to the notice, possessed "every English comfort" and had "large" as well as small apartments. The other—and I was strongly drawn to it—advertised as follows:

Fir Glass House.

O. Full South. Mis of larg Parc. Tramways to and from town every 10 minutes.

I found the place. To my surprise there was no conservatory or glass house of any kind and no fir trees. As I pondered over the fact the solution suddenly came to me—it was a "first class house," of course. What of the rest of the advertisement? The hotel had a southern aspect and was situated in a park. As for the tramway, that was pure fiction.

Such a Bore to Dress.

A belated traveler who was compelled to stay all night in a backwoods cabin says that soon after the frugal meal a tall, gaunt youth of eighteen and an equally sallow and gaunt girl of seventeen, both barefooted, took their hats from wooden pegs in the wall and prepared to go out, whereupon the mother, taking her pipe from between her teeth, said reprovingly:

"Go 'long an' wash your feet, Levi—you and Looly, both! Hain't you 'shamed to go off to an evenin' party without washin' your feet?"

They obeyed, but as Levi took the washpan from a bench by the door he said with a grumble:

"I'd 'bout as soon stay home from a party as to have to fix up for it."

Diving Birds.

Water birds which are ordinarily able to float high on the water can also sink at will by expelling the air which is inclosed, within the film of feathers surrounding their bodies, thus making them heavier than water. This mechanical trick on the part of diving birds is probably familiar to all who have watched the kingfisher at close quarters and have noted the sudden contraction in the bird's apparent size as it takes the plunge. This is much more easily observed in the case of the starling, which sometimes imitates the kingfisher by plunging into water for food. The shrinkage of the bird in apparent size is very apparent when, after hovering above the surface, it turns downward to dive.—Zoologist.

The Telltale.

A college girl told how she had been cured of the ugly habit, when a little girl, of sticking out her tongue when writing. She was working on a writing lesson one day when the teacher called to her the full length of the room:

"Mary you are making capital L's when I asked for capital P's."

"How did you know that I was wrong?" the little girl asked.

"I could tell," said the teacher, "by your tongue."—Detroit Free Press.

A Stop Order.

Maud—Tom had me talk into a phonograph so he can hear my voice while I'm away. Clara—How lovely! And he can stop the machine!—Puck.

The Aim of a Woman.

The police records show that some women who can't hit the side of a barn with a stone have remarkable aim with a flatiron.—Exchange.

New York, Sept. 20.—Union Pacific with advance of one point, Reading with a gain of 1 1-4 points and steel averaging 2-4 point, were the principal factors in the upward movement on Wall street today. Trading was brisk in all departments, both street, railway and industrial issues showing gains of from 1-4 to 1 1-4 points in almost every instance. At the end of the first half hour stocks showed better prices than for many days past. Union Pacific was a strong feature of the market with American smelting with a gain of 1 1-8 points, leading the industrials.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Sharp advances in Liverpool caused higher market in wheat today, it being 1-2 to 5-8c higher. Corn was slow but fairly steady. Unprejudiced Juror.

In a southern county of Missouri years ago, when the form of questioning was slightly different from now, much trouble was experienced in getting a jury in a murder trial.

Finally an old fellow answered every question satisfactorily; he had no prejudices, was not opposed to capital punishment and was generally considered a valuable find. Then the prosecutor said solemnly:

"Juror, look upon the prisoner, prisoner, look upon the juror."

The old man adjusted his spectacles and peered at the prisoner for a full half minute. Then, turning to the court, he said:

"Judge, juried if I don't believe he's guilty!"—Kansas City Star.
