NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

Gathered From Our Exchanges Today of Events Just Happened.

Norman Lewis, the negro who fired upon Chief of Police Stallings on Sunday night at Spring Hope and gave him a wound in his chest that will prove fatal so physicians believe, was taken in Henderson this morning after having been hunted by posse of a hundred men for two nights and a day. Blood hounds were used on the negro's trail and the upper end of Nash county and a goodly part of Franklin was gone over in an effort to find the negro. The negro was taken shortly after eight o'clock this morning as he was attempting to board an outgoing freight from Henderson. The negro had about forty-five dollars in money on his person at the time of his capture. A telephone message received shortly after the noon hour states the negro has confessed that he is the person wanted, but now claims that it was his wife that fired upon the officer. His wife is in Spring Hope and will no doubt be detained.—Rocky Mount Record.

Washington, Sept. 20.—Considerable uneasiness has been occasioned both in this city and in the town of Plymouth, N. C., over the probable fate of the gas boat "Bettie C," which left here last Monday night, September 12 at twelve o'clock, bound for Plymouth and since that time no tidings have been received either here or in Plymouth concerning her whereabouts.

Statesville, N. C., Sept. 20.—Deputy Sheriff Wm. Clendin of Elmwood, and Mr. John Webb, of Chambersburg township, had an exciting experience with a bad negro and his dog Sunday afternoon. Mr. Clendin has for some time had a warrant for Will Crawford, a negro whose home is near Elmwood, the warrant charging him with disposing of mortgaged property, but the negro had always managed to evade the officer. Sunday afternoon it was learned that the negro was at his home and Mr. Clendin, accompanied by Mr. Webb, went to the house to make the arrest. Mr. Webb remained in the biggy while Mr. Clendin called the negro to the door. When Mr. Clendin told the negro that he had a warrant for him, the latter turned and rushed back into the house with the officer at his heels. The negro attempted to knock the officer down by slamming the door in his face but failed, and when the officer got inside the house the negro who is a powerful man, seized him and tried to choke him, at the same time reaching for a gun which he kept on a rack near the door. Hearing the commotion in the house Mr. Webb left the horse and rushed to Mr. Clendin's assistance. Mr. Webb is also a powerful man and it took him but an instant to pull the negro from the officer, and no sooner than this had been done, Mr. Clendin drew his pistol and covered the negro, threatening to kill him if he moved. The negro finally cooled down and after being kept under guard Sunday night he was brought to Statesville yesterday and lodged in jail.

MOB AFTER MURDERER.

Say He Will Never be Brought to Court House Alive.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Louisville, Miss., Sept. 21.—A band of men armed with Winchester rifles thronged the streets here today awaiting leaders to discover and storm the jail where a young man named Permynter, a member of a prominent family, is detained on the charge of attacking and brutally murdering Miss Janie Sharp, a pretty 18-year-old girl. Threats were made so freely that Permynter was hidden by the authorities. Friends of the girl say he will never be brought to the court house alive.

Lost.

Last Tuesday night, Sept. 13, somewhere on the road between the homes of Mr. Henry Chapman and Mr. Roach Corey, in the neighborhood of Coxville, a gold handle was lost off an umbrella. On the knob of the handle is engraved "Novella," and "1910." Finder, please return to this office and receive reward.

New Brokerage Firm.

The Carolina Brokerage Co., composed of J. D. Smith and W. J. Turnage, is a new firm that has just started business here. For the present they will have temporary quarters in the law office of Mr. C. C. Pierce.

THE TRAINING SCHOOL.

Now Down to Regular Work of the Second Session.

Everything is now moving smoothly on the second session of East Carolina Teachers' Training School that opened last week. The preliminaries of registrations and class arrangements incident upon the first few days of a session have all been completed, and the students have entered eagerly and earnestly upon the work of the school year.

It is certainly an inspiration to see the school, especially when all gathered in one body for chapel exercise. It was our pleasure to see them this morning, and the two hundred young ladies and twenty young men there made a picture not soon forgotten. After the formal exercises conducted by President Wright and some explanation of classes, he introduced ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis, who addressed the school. In presenting Gov. Jarvis, President Wright truly said "He loves you and your interest better than any man in North Carolina." Governor Jarvis spoke of "Building a Good Foundation," and emphasizing the necessity of laying here in school a good foundation upon which to build their life work. He urged them to strict attention to every duty, using several forceful illustrations in his remarks. The students listened eagerly to the good words of advice from this noble man, and expressed their appreciation of all he said.

GRADED SCHOOL OPENS.

Largest Opening Attendance in Its History.

The Greenville graded schools opened this morning with an enrollment of four hundred and fifteen children. The total enrollment last year was four hundred and fifty; from this it would seem that the total for 1910-11 will exceed by quite a good number, the enrollment of any previous year. Some of the grades are overflowing and steps will have to be taken to provide for their accommodation.

The teachers are as follows: First grades, Misses Irvine and Herndon; second grade, Miss Hampton; third grade, Miss Knight; fourth grade, Miss Gray; fifth grade Miss Turner; sixth grade, Miss Sherindoff; seventh grade, Miss Keeter. High school, Mr. F. C. Brewer and Miss Cox, drawing, Miss Lewis; music, Miss Gaston; The superintendent tells us that he has the school organized better than he has yet been able to organize for the opening, and everything points to a good year.

TROUBLE IN VIRGINIA.

Threatened War Between Oystermen and The Authorities.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 21.—With a battalion of soldiers, detachment of light artillery with heavy guns, three armored cruisers held in readiness today to quell violence, war between the oystermen along James river and the Virginia fish commission over restrictions imposed on fishermen by authorities, is imminent this afternoon. The commission hopes a truce may be effected but the oystermen are ready to defend what they term their rights with bloodshed, if necessary. Word was brought here this afternoon that 4,000 oystermen are arming.

GRAFT PROBING.

New York Committee Has Sensational Evidence.

By Wire to The Reflector.
New York, Sept. 21.—With the promise of the most important and sensational evidence yet discovered, the legislative committee which is graft probing in New York state resumed its session here today with several new and untried issues before it. The committee is ready to go into the books of J. S. Bache & Co., which they had so much trouble in getting.

San Sonei Club.

There will be a call meeting of the San Sonei club, at the residence of Mrs. Haywood Dail, Thursday evening at 5 o'clock. All members are requested to be present and bring the name of some new books.

WINTERVILLE CORRESPONDENCE.

Items of Interest From our Hustling Neighbor, About Its People.

Winterville, N. C., Sept. 21, 1916. Mr. Allen Cannon and Miss Jimmie Davis, of Ayden, were in town Sunday.

Don't forget the furniture and nice felt mattresses at A. W. Ange & Company's.

Misses Helen and Elizabeth Adams visited the Training school at Greenville Monday evening.

Plenty of lime, cement and paint at A. W. Ange & Company's at the right price.

Miss Lillian Barker, a student at W. H. S., was called to her home at Shelmerdine Monday evening. We hope there is nothing serious.

A word to the wise is said to be sufficient, but one look in A. W. Ange & Company's store will convince you that they have a nice line of dress goods at the right price.

Our men's pants are the best for the money we ever had. Come and get a pair or two.—Harrington, Barber & Company.

Mr. A. D. Johnson, of Kinston, spent Tuesday in town.

Subscribe to The Reflector, through the Winterville agent.

If you have corn to house get one of A. G. Cox Manufacturing Company's carts with a large box body.

We have just received a nice lot of boys' and youths' clothing and prices the lowest. Give us a trial.—Harrington, Barber & Company.

Miss Magdalene Cox went to Conee Tuesday to visit Miss Lula Cobb.

Mr. Jeter Jackson came in Monday night from Tennessee to spend a few days with his mother.

If you wish to keep your horse fat, drive him to one of A. G. Cox Manufacturing Company's Hunsucker buggies.

Mr. A. O. Beddard has purchased the stock of merchandise of G. T. Tucker and will be pleased to have his friends give him a call.

Our ginny is in good condition and we are giving each and every patron perfect satisfaction.—Pitt County Oil Company.

Mr. J. L. Jackson, of Greenville, spent Monday night in town.

Mr. F. A. Edmondson, ex-cashier, was in town Saturday.

Miss Pear Nelson who has been visiting Misses Pattie and Evelyn Sutton, returned Saturday to her home in Grifton.

We are now asking every farmer within hauling distance of our plant to stand up and take notice that we are ginning cotton for 30 cents per hundred. If the price is not right, come talk with us about it, or phone 13-3.—Pitt County Oil Company

Messrs. M. B. Bryan and A. D. McLawhorn went to Greenville Tuesday night.

Mr. J. L. Rollins spent Sunday night at Hotel Blount, Ayden, N. C.

The True Home.

This is the true nature of home—it is the place of peace; the shelter, not only from all injury, but from all terror, doubt, and division. In so far as it is not this, it is not home; so far as the anxieties of the outer life penetrate into it, and the inconsistently minded, unknown, unloved, or hostile society of the outer world is allowed by either husband or wife to cross the threshold, it ceases to be home; it is then only a part of that outer world which you have roofed over, and lighted fire in. But so far as it is a sacred place, a vestal temple, a temple of the hearth, watched over by household gods, before whose face none may come, but those whom they can receive with love—so far as it is this, and roof and fire are types only a nobler shade and light,—shade as of the rock in a weary land, and light as of the Pharos in the stormy sea;—so far it vindicates the name, and fulfills the promise, of home.

And wherever a true wife comes, this home is always round her. The stars only may be over her head; the glow-worm in the night-cold grass may be the only fire at her feet; but home is yet wherever she is; and for a noble woman it stretches far round her, better than ceiled with cedar, or painted with vermilion, shedding its quiet light far for those who else were homeless.—John Ruskin.

SOME FACTS ABOUT RALEIGH.

Her Chamber of Commerce Pushing the State Capital Forward.

A very attractive leaflet is issued by the Raleigh chamber of commerce and industry concerning the Capital City of North Carolina, containing much information of interest to the entire state. Raleigh, like Washington, is publicly owned; that is the streets and parks are the property of the state. This is because the state through a commission, selected the site and bought the land, laid out the streets and parks and sold building lots; in two or three cases the same family having held the property since the original sale, 118 years ago. Raleigh in this respect is the most unique of all the state capitals. The value of the state buildings and their contents is $2,500,000, exclusive of land, which is worth more than half million. The leaflet shows the capital is growing rapidly, the value of building and street improvements in progress totalling $1,115,000. The value of city property has in three years increased 25 per cent., and now amounts to $12,000,000. The $125,000 municipal building and auditorium the latter to seat 4500 persons, will be done January 1st. The street railway and power company is expending $250,000 in doubling the capacity of its plant. The Country Club, with hundreds of acres of land and very attractive buildings, is a notable feature. Raleigh is the educational centre of the state, having 28 schools, and a larger school population in proportion to the entire population than any other place in this country. It has two hospitals and, a third one, for the negroes, is being built. Here is the largest school for negro blind and deaf-mutes in the world, and the largest Baptist and Episcopalian schools for negroes. The Raleigh post office pays the 1233 R. F. D. carriers in the state $1,111,000, which is $487,000 more than four years ago. The money order division hauled $1,360,000 this year.

ROCHDALE ITEMS.

"Uncle Tommy" Tells The News of His Neighborhood.

Rochdale, Sept. 20.—Mr. Joe Smith left one day last week for Richmond to attend a medical college.

Miss Trilby Smith returned home from Snow Hill last week.

Several of our people went to Farmville to attend the show Thursday night.

Mrs. Pattie F. Smith, who had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Flanagan, for a few weeks, returned home Tuesday evening.

Mrs. C. L. Tyson and three children, of Renston, who have spent a week visiting relatives in our community, returned home Sunday evening.

Miss Gertie Smith spent last week visiting Mrs. A. J. Flanagan and returned home Sunday.

Greenville was well represented at the yearly meeting at Tyson's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Laughinghouse spent a portion of last week at Cobdale.

Not knowing all their names we will just say that a good many of his friends and relatives of Greenville were visiting B. P. Cobb, at Cobdale Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Robert Jones returned to the E. C. T. School at Greenville last week.

We told you something about some large pepper last week, and now we will tell you about a long gourd vine. The same lady, Mrs. C. E. McLawhorn, has a gourd vine that had to run about eight feet to reach a pear tree and then it ran up to the top of the tree, which is about twenty feet high, and run back down the tree about fifteen feet. It has several large gourds on it. So you see the tree is bearing gourds.

Mr. R. F. Pittman, of Johnston county, is holding a protracted meeting in the Free Will Baptist church at Arthur this week. There have been two additions up to date.

Mr. J. P. Woodard, one of the E. C. T. S. students, came up Saturday evening and preached a very good sermon at Arthur Saturday night. He returned to Greenville Monday morning.

Mr. W. F. Walters, of Ayden, came Monday evening and attended the meeting at Arthur. He returned this morning.

When a man's religion is on his sleeve it is usually part of his cloak.

PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The People Who Come and go on Our Trains.

Miss Lena Matthews came over from Kinston Tuesday to visit friends.

Misses Lillian and Gladys Waldrop of Hendersonville, who have been visiting their sisters, Mrs. Frank Wilson and Mrs. Zeno Brown, left Tuesday.

Mr. Mercer Tyson left Tuesday for Baltimore to study pharmacy.

Mrs. F. G. Hartman, of Alabama, is visiting Mrs. Lula Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Williams, of Henderson, Ky., arrived in the city yesterday, and are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. David C. James. Mr. Williams is the general agent for the Oliver Typewriter and they will probably make Greenville their headquarters. Mrs. Williams is a fine musician and will be quite an addition to Greenville social circles.

Misses Bettie and Mollie Manning returned this morning from a visit in Wilson.

Mr. S. J. Everett returned this morning from Greensboro. He heard Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, speak there last night, and says it was a fine speech.

Mr. J. S. Norman, went to Rocky Mount today.

Mr. R. L. Humber went to Palmyra today.

Mr. R. J. Cobb went to Kinston today.

THE TOWN WON.

Property Owners Appeal to Supreme Court.

The contention over widening Fifth street west of Pitt, that was up before Judge Ward in the Superior court Tuesday, on the question of the town's right to remove shade trees where necessary to widen streets, was decided in favor of the town. The property owners who are contesting the matter took an appeal to the Supreme court. As that court will not reach the case before next February, the improvements on that portion of Fifth street will stop for the time being.

CONSERVATION DELEGATES.

Delegates Appointed to the Conservation Congress.

Governor Kitchin has appointed the following list of delegates to attend the Southern Conservation Congress, which meets in Atlanta on October 7th and 8th:

W. N. Hutt, Raleigh; D. C. Parks, Hillsboro; E. L. Marley, Lumber Bridge; J. Q. Gant, Burlington; W. E. Moore, Webster; W. C. Dowd, Charlotte; S. T. White, Greenville.—Raleigh Times.

Principal of Graded School.

Prof. F. C. Brewer, of Arcadia, La., arrived Tuesday evening to take the position of male principal in Greenville graded school. Prof. Brewer graduated from the college at Lebanon Ohio, and later from Yale. He was a classmate at Yale with Prof. L. R. Meadows, one of the teachers in East Carolina Teachers' Training school. He comes to Greenville with the highest of testimonials, and we are sure that his work here will be of great help to the school.

Killed in Runaway.

Mr. S. W. Rouse was killed Tuesday night near Hagg, Lenoir county, in a runaway. He had been to Kinston and was returning home. About a mile from his home his mule became frightened and ran away. Mr. Rouse was thrown out of his cart and sustained injuries that resulted in his death.

Mr. Rouse was a farmer, about 45 years of age, and leaves a widow and several children.

Brought Here for Burial.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Clark, Lella Belle, aged about one year, who died in Farmville Tuesday night, was brought here on the morning Norfolk Southern train for burial.

The funeral services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Clark at 2.30 o'clock. The interment following in Cherry Hill cemetery.

GRAND STAND COLLAPSES.

Hundreds of People Are Buried in The Wreck.

By Cable to The Reflector.
Madrid, Spain, Sept. 21.—During a gull fight; at Mejordad; today the grand stand collapsed, burying hundreds of occupants, and is feared scores more have been killed. Rending of the timbers gave a warning and while the mighty structure sagged men, women and children arose from their seats and attempted to fight their way to the exit. Many were badly injured by being trampled on before the building completely toppled. Soldiers were rushed to the rescue.

BMACK TO JAIL.

Crippen Will be Tried For His Life.

By Cable to The Reflector.
London, Sept. 21.—Following the police court hearing of Dr. Crippen and Ethel LeNeve charged with the murder of Belle Elmore, today the doctor was committed to jail to await trial for his life before the central criminal court. Miss LeNeve was also remanded. Crippen will be formally charged with murder when arraigned and the girl with being an accessory after pact.

POLICEMAN STALLINGS DEAD.

His Murderer Taken to Raleigh for Safety.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Raleigh, Sept. 21.—Chief of Police Stallings, of Spring Hope, died early this morning at Richmond hospital. The negro, Norman Lewis, who shot him, was brought here last night for safe keeping. Feeling is said to be high against him in Nash county and lynching was feared.

My love of God is wrong unless it makes him more lovely to others.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1910

The fellows who are saying Cavaliere is the most beautiful woman in the world, need to come to Greenville and take a look.

The mayor of Durham has ordered the police to put a stop to rubbernecking when a company of show girls come to town and go to cafes for their meals. Now, boys, go home to your mothers.

If Marion Butler and his gang could get hold of North Carolina once more, they would bankrupt the State paying those fraudulent bonds. And Butler would get a rake off in commissions of several millions. That is what he is working for.

From the coast towns come the reports that the fishermen are catching more mullets than have been landed in years. That particular branch of eating ought to be cheaper than. We are glad something gives prospect of checking the beef trust, for nobody who could get good corned mullets would eat beef.

The Reflector never did like the idea of the town entering into a controversy with property owners along any street upon which improvements were desired. We had that opinion in regard to paving Dickinson avenue and we have that opinion as to other streets. When improvements are made on any street, those deriving the most benefit are the people living on such street. If those people are not willing to co-operate with the town for the enhancement of their own property, then the town should let them alone. Some of the streets are too narrow to look well in comparison with streets of the standard width, yet widening and improving such streets would be more advantageous to the property owners on them than to those of other sections of the town. Hence if such property owners would not submit to these streets being widened without controversy and law suits, then the town ought not to spend money for improving such streets and only do enough work on them to keep them open for passage. There are plenty of improvements needed in sections of the town where it is desired, so why waste time and money in contention over giving improvements to those who do not want them.

A new rule has just been put into effect by the United States post office department, whereby a receipt for a registered package will not be returned signed by the addressee unless specially requested by the sender. If such receipt is wanted, the package or letter must bear the words "receipt desired."

Booker T. Washington is now also on the staff of The Outlook. Se he and Roosevelt can discuss matters over their cigars and coffee after their meals together.—Wilmington Dispatch

Last week a bride up in Newport wore a gown that cost $50,000. It was probably Parisian made, which meant that $50,000 in American coin was spent abroad, with the tariff paid going to help defray the president's traveling expenses for political speech-making, to help keep official autos for "joy rides," and to other wise aid in creating the government's big deficit.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Dying Hard.

An instance of the ruling passion strong in death has just come to light in Mecklenburg Republican circles. The key note of North Carolina Republicanism has been and is "office." It has no higher aim than that in the procurement and control of official jobs and it is this very characteristic that has retarded the growth of the party in this state. How less is the obsession for office in the Republican breast is shown in the recent action of the machine committee in practically commanding McNinch in the event of his election to congress, to take instructions from them and to make no appointments to office that are not endorsed by the county machine. Of course this action is audacious, and it goes to show why a Republican is a Republican in this State. The reply of Candidate McNinch was to the effect that in the matter of making appointments he would not be dominated by the machine, but that he would follow the plan of Chairman Morehead. The old pie counter crowd seems to be unable to understand the new order of things. It is a hard death. We are a little bit surprised that the Charlotte machine hands should have made a public spectacle of it.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Insuring B. & L. Members.

What seems to us to be a new departure with all the elements of merit in it is being made by some of the more enterprising life insurance companies, chief among them the Equitable. These companies are using a life policy for building and loan members. The building and loan associations always require fire insurance to protect their interests. This new move is to furnish life insurance to protect the widow and family in case of death. It will be another addition to the beneficial features of the building and loan associations. The principal feature of this new policy is that the premiums may be paid in monthly installments, thus making the policy easy to carry.—Charlotte Observer.

The Republican party in North Carolina has long been a close corporation. It has been capitalized for a billion dollars, and but two dollars and thirty cents have been paid in. It has been playing a large bluff on a small capital, and it played its policies like one might play a slot machine—per centage. Duncan is just now overboard. He has not fallen from the ship, he has simply been lowered, and the deck hands are exulted over their new captain. Next year John Morehead will be the subject of the gaff and the harpoon. The captain of today becomes the deck hand of tomorrow—because pie is the one thing in sight in the Republican politics in North Carolina.—Everything.

The long, dull summer has nearly passed. Nearly everybody has returned from their vacations with a more or less grim determination to get down to business as soon as they can adjust themselves to the traces again. The warehouse bells are again ringing for daily sales on all the markets, and the voice of the tobacco auctioneer is again heard abroad in the land. Just how much energy each man can install into his business, depends on the business and the man, and it is plainly conjectural, but with everybody pulling towards the same end and all together business is bound to be better than it has for several months past. The point is for every man to do his own level best, and hope and believe that every other man is doing the same thing. During the last three or four months there have been too many business people worrying about other people's business. This business of other people is sometimes one thing and sometimes another. What really happens to man's own business is mainly and generally what he makes happen to it. The time is now at hand to make everything good happen to business that can possibly be made to happen.

The outlook is not without encouragement. The best thing about it is that even before the summer months have passed, and while still there was uncertainty about some of the crops, and while still the vacation season was on, there came a distinct improvement in business, nothing to become very much elated over, but enough to make things fairly good for the fall trade.

We are convinced so far at least as the tobacco business is concerned that the situation warrants healthy optimism, with every man doing his best in his own particular line without worrying over what may happen to the other man.—Winston-Salem Journal.

CATARH GERMS.

Move Out When Hyomei Moves In. No stomach dosing. HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-mey) is made from the highest grade of eucalyptus, taken from the eucalyptus forest of Australia, and combined with the excellent antiseptics employed in the Listerian system.

In inland Australia the atmosphere is so impregnated with balsam thrown out by the eucalyptus trees that germs cannot live, and in consequence, catarrh and consumption are unknown. Breathe HYOMEI and get the very same pleasant, healing, germ-killing, air as you would get in the eucalyptus forests and kill the germs.

HYOMEI is sold by Coward & Wooten and druggists everywhere, at $1.00 a complete outfit.

An outfit consists of a Lottle of HYOMEI, a hard rubber pocket inhaler and simple instructions for use. The inhaler will last a lifetime, but bear in mind if you need another bottle of HYOMEI you can get it at druggists for only 50c at any time. Guaranteed to cure catarrh, croup and throat troubles, or money back. Trial sample of Hyomei free to readers of The Reflector. Address Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

RESTAURANTS.

They Really Had Their Origin in the First French Revolution.

The restaurant of the present time had its origin in the first French revolution, toward the close of the eighteenth century. And the reputation of the French for good cookery and the delicacy of taste in eating as well as in producing toothsome dishes and morsels dates practically from the same time.

That revolution meant ruin to many noble families, and their downfall meant ruin also for their chefs, so some of the latter hit upon the idea of opening houses where dainties prepared by their skilled hands could be obtained. If the experiment succeeded the chefs would be as well off as when in service. The idea was pleasing to the public, the restaurants did a large business, and the proprietors had no reason to regret the revolution from a monetary point of view.

Then it occurred to others that the people might appreciate being educated up to this fine cookery, and many books on the culinary art were published and sold well. One of the most noted of these was "The Gourman Almanack," which appeared in 1798.
Restaurant really means "restoring"
and was applied to these places because you went there to have something to revive or restore your falling strength.

MAKING NEEDLES.

Various Processes Through Which the Steel Wire Must Pass.

Needles are made from steel wire,
which is first cut by shears from coils into the length of the needles to be made. After a bath of such bits as have been cut out they are placed in a furnace, then rolled until perfectly straight. Next the needle pointer takes up a dozen or so of the wires and rolls them between his thumb and finger, with their ends on a turning grindstone, first one and then the other being ground. The little steel bobbins are next fed into a machine which flattens and gutters the heads, after which the eyes are punched.

They are now complete needles, but rough and easily bent. Careful heating and sudden cooling gives them the necessary temper, and nothing remains but to give them their final polish. On a coarse cloth needles are spread to the number of 40,000 or 50,000. Emery dust is strewn over them, oil is sprinkled on and soft soap daubed over the cloth, which, rolled tightly, is thrown into a pot with others, where it rolls about for twelve hours or more.

When taken from this friction bath the needles require only rinsing in clean hot water, when they are ready to be sorted and packed. — Chicago Tribune.

Fulton and the Clermont.

The first trip of Robert Fulton up the Hudson river in the Clermont was thus described in the American Citizen of Aug. 17, 1810:

"Mr. Fulton's ingenious Steam Boat, invented with a View to the Navigation of the Mississippi from New Orleans upwards, Sails today from the North River, near the State Prison, to Albany. The Velocity of The Steam Boat is Calculated at four miles an hour. It is said that it will make a progress of two against The Current of The Mississippi, and if so it will certainly be a very valuable acquisition to the Commerce of the Western States."

According to Edward Hagaman Hall's history, the Clermont made the trip to Albany in thirty-two hours.
The state prison referred to stood on the block in New York now bounded by Washington, West Tenth, West and Charles Streets, in old Greenwich village.

Vessels That Failed.

There was a time when it was believed possible to prevent seasickness
by means of specially constructed vessels, says the London Chronicle. The Calais-Douvres, a twin ship, was used on the channel service for many years.
Great things were expected from this,
but she proved a slow boat, and her passengers were by no means immune from seasickness. Another attempt in this direction was the Castalia, in which the saloon was suspended like a hammock with a view to minimizing the pitching and rolling. This turned out an utter failure. If the rolling was less than in ordinary vessels the pitching was quite as bad and, moreover, the swinging mechanism occasionally stuck. After a very few trips across the channel the Castalia was taken off the service.

Easy Figuring.

Ascum—I suppose you haven't had time to figure out yet how much your cashier took?

Bank President—Oh, yes. We knew in a very short time.

Ascum—Why, I thought he took a great deal.

Bank President—Exactly. We merely had to count what he left.

Why He Resigned.

"So you resigned?"
"Yes. I couldn't stand the way the firm treated me."

"What did they do?"
"Took my name off the pay roll."—
Exchange.

Beginning.

Be always beginning. Never think that you can relax or that you have attained the end. If we think ourselves more than beginners it is a sign that we have hardly yet begun.

Man thinks and at once becomes the master of beings that do not think.—
Buffon.

DIFFERENCES IN FOGS.

Sea Mist and London Gloom Have Nothing In Common.

The fog of London and the fog of the sea alike discompose traffic, and omnibuses and steamships alike have had to lay to for safety. But while the London fog gets into your nostrils and settles even the electric light
—though the candle comes out triumphant curiously—the densest fog at sea does not disturb the saloon or the stateroom. Why is that?

The word "fog" has not been traced farther back than the sixteenth century, but the thing was known in the early years of the fourteenth. The commons, with the prelates and nobles visiting London for the parliaments and on other occasions, united to petition Edward I. to compel the burning out of dry wood and charcoal, as the growing use of sea coal corrupted the air with its stink and smoke, to the great prejudice and detriment of health. In 1308 the king prohibited the use of coal. Heavy ransom and fines were inflicted for disobedience.
In the case of recalcitrant brewers, dyers
and other artificers the furnaces and kilns were destroyed. But the restriction was evidently removed, for in 1308 $250—probably equal to about $4,000 now—was paid from the exchequer for wood and coal for the coronation of Edward II. — London

MODERN BUSINESS.

The Big Jobs Demand Hustlers Who Are Gentlemen.

A notable change has taken place in American business methods within the last decade. Increasingly men of large affairs are asking when a young man is recommended for a big job, "Is he a gentleman?" This is significant in two ways. It means that the big business men are themselves gentlemen and like to deal with men who speak their own language and that American business methods have grown to be such that the gentleman has an advantage.

There was a time when a man who was a hustler could be a cad if he liked and it did not hurt his chances much.
But that time has passed. The big business men of today want young men who are tactful, intelligent, independent, yet unassuming; who would know how to talk to a diplomat and be at home in a good club; who could be trusted to behave kindly, honorably and discreetly in any situation of life;
who, in short, have as their ideal the old, never changing ideal of the gentleman. Not everybody can define it, but everybody knows it at sight.
The gentleman, in short, can work along the line of least resistance, and that is why he is wanted.—Bookkeeper.

An Open Giver.

Harold's father was in the habit of giving $1 a Sunday to the church.
This was put in a numbered envelope in the collection plate and the amount credited to him on the church books.
Mr. T. was away for the summer and on his return inclosed his arrears in the envelope and intrusted it to Harold to put on the plate. When the little boy came home from church he said proudly, "I put an awful lot of money on the plate this morning—more'n anybody else, I guess."

"You got the envelope there all right?" asked his father carelessly, for Harold had been almost afraid to carry so much money.
"Oh, yes," he said, "but I took the envelope off when I got there and just put the money on the plate in my hand. Nobody'd have known how much I gave if I'd left it in the envelope."

Elephant Threnodies.

The natives of certain portions of south central Africa, says the Duchess of Aosta in Harper's Weekly, look on the death of an elephant as an event.
They attach an almost religious aspect to it. "As soon as the animal stalked is stretched out on the ground the hunters climb upon the huge, still warm body and there perform a dance, gesticulating and shaking their guns, accompanied by a sort of litany, in which they extol the animal and his qualities, his strength, his size, his cunning; then they praise the skill of the hunter, his prompt eye, his accurate shot. And this song is just murmured, as if they were afraid that if they raised their voices they would attract the curse of the spirit which has just left the animal and is still floating round him."

How Parchment Came to Be Used.

When the literary jealousy of the Egyptians caused them to stop the supply of papyrus, the king of Pergamos, a city in Asia Minor, introduced the use of sheepskin in a form called,
from the place of its invention, pergamon, whence our word parchment is believed to be derived. Vellum, a finer article, made from calfskin, was also used. Many of the books done on vellum in the middle ages were transcribed by monks, and often it took years to complete a single copy.

Proof.

"I'm after the gas bill."
"Gee! My husband forgot to leave the check—he's just gone."

"Are you sure he forgot to leave it?"
"Yes; he told me so just as he went."
—Cleveland Leader.

nent place in her heart?"
"I'm just a notch on her parasol handle; that is all."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

IMPALED BY AN ARROW.

Pinned Through the Neck to a Tree,
Yet He Survived.

It was in the summer of 1859 that George Wainwright and Ben Spencer, each in charge of a train of freight wagons, were headed for the Missouri river to bring supplies back to Colorado points. The Indians were very troublesome in those days, and these two outfits always camped together for protection. One night they had arranged the camp, with the wagons forming a circle, and everybody but the guards was to be inside. Wainwright preferred to sleep in a clump of cottonwoods about a quarter of a mile off, and there he fixed himself with his negro servant as a bodyguard.
Neither the camp nor Wainwright was disturbed during the night, but early the next morning while Wainwright was sitting on the ground with his back to a tree drinking his tin of coffee an arrow from an unseen foe entered his neck at the right of the jugular vein and was driven with such force as to impale the victim to the tree. The negro, believing his master was killed, ran to Spencer's camp and gave the alarm.

Spencer and some of his men rushed over to Wainwright. Instead of being dead Wainwright was not even seriously injured. Spencer cut the arrow off close to the point of entrance and then gently drew Wainwright's head forward until he was released. The victim suffered but little inconvenience from the wound, and by the time the trip was completed it was entirely healed.—Los Angeles Times.

THE WAY OF THE SWISS.

Foreigners Regarded as Egyptians and Treated Accordingly.

A foreign resident in Switzerland was fined 10 francs because his little girl had plucked three buttercups growing on a piece of land on which she and some half dozen Swiss children had for years been accustomed to play. The land had recently changed hands, and its new owner had put up a notice forbidding the plucking of flowers. A passing gendarme had found the children flagrante delicto and had forthwith instituted proceedings against the little foreigner, while letting the little natives go scot free.
The child's father appealed against the sentence and by dint of hard fighting,
which entailed, of course, expense, forced the higher court to reduce the fine from 10 francs to 3—1. e., 1 franc for each buttercup.

When I tried to learn the whys and wherefores of this case I was told by a Swiss that one-half of every fine levied goes to the gendarme who reports the offense for which it is levied, and also that Swiss gendarmes cannot fairly be expected to be quite so alert in taking proceedings against their own country people as against foreigners.

Further, I was told by an American that in Switzerland all foreigners rank as Egyptians and that the one Scriptural injunction that is faithfully obeyed there is that which ordains that Egyptians shall be spoiled.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Famous Opal.

The most famous opal in history was that which was worn in a ring by the Roman senator Nonius in the day of the triumvirate. Its size equaled that of a medium sized hazelnut, yet its beauty and brilliancy rendered it marvel among the dilettanti of Rome especially when it was known that the goldsmiths and money changers had set its value at $1,000,000. Mark Antony made overtures to Nonius for its purchase, intending, it is thought, to present it to Cleopatra, but the senator refused to part with it and for fear that it would be taken from him by sheer force sought safety in flight.
Here history loses all trace of this famous gem, there being no record of its transference from Nonius to any of his family.

Limes and Oranges.

A favorite drink in the south sea islands is made of a mixture of limes and oranges.

A Crazy Compliment.
The superintendent of a lunatic asylum was strolling round the grounds a few weeks after his appointment when one of the inmates came up to him and,
touching his hat, exclaimed:
"We all like you better than the last one, sir."
"Thank you," said the new official pleasantly. "And may I ask why?"
"Well, sir," replied the lunatic, "you see, you are more like one of us!"

"SAITO"

How seldom it is that one can purchase for a small figure a fabric that will give entire satisfaction, both in looks and wear. Brilliant in colorings and will not fade, though in contact with either sunshine or shower, in fact a beautiful SILK that will wash like white linen, retaining its beauty of color and quality.

"SAITO"

is the only Silk that will do this. Have you seen this

The Salon.
The French academy was originally a junction of the drawing rooms of the Marquise de Rambouillet and her daughter, Julie d'Angennes, Duchesse de Montausier. The salon as a meeting place for conversation and the production of beaux esprits and writers hardly existed before, these ladies opened that of the Hotel de Rambouillet. Prior to this social event women of tiptop quality and rich bourgeois received their company in their bedrooms. There was nothing answering to the English parlor or the Italian hall of conversation. The bed, as in the sleeping room of Louis XIV., was surrounded by a balustrade, outside of which gentlemen who had dropped in to visit remained standing. It would have been shockingly unmannerly of them to step over the barrier. The lady of the house, dressed in her best dishabille, sat on the edge of the bed. Ladies calling went within the balustrade and sat on folding stools, or hassocks, according to rank and age. Mme. de Lafayette painted from life in describing in "La Princesse de Cleves" a conversation on love, in which the dauphiness took the lead, reclining on her bed.—London Truth.

Guilty Anyway.
The most striking instance of a vanished man coming again to light to take part in legal proceedings is that which occurred in a case where Daniel O'Connell was defending a man indicted for murder. The case for the prosecution seemed as clear as possible, and O'Connell contented himself with fewer questions than were to have been expected of so eminent a cross examiner. When the case for the crown had closed he announced that he had but one witness to call, but that witness was important to the case. He was the murdered man, very much alive. There was no doubting the man's identity—everybody knew it. The judge therefore turned to the jury and directed them to acquit the prisoner. To his amazement, however, they returned a verdict of guilty. Asked for an explanation, the foreman observed that they had no doubt that the prisoner was innocent of the murder. "But," he added, "we find him guilty of stealing my old gray mare three weeks ago."

Who He Was.
The "cub" reporter is the greenest reporter on the staff of a newspaper. When anything particularly stupid happens on the paper he is the one first to be accused, and he is usually rightly accused. The only salvation for him is to improve, which he does in nine cases out of a dozen. The Boston Journal told recently of an amusing "break" of a wholly innocent nature which a certain cub made. The reporter had been sent to a suburb to report a sermon. He arrived late, near the close of the service and took a seat near the door. When the last hymn was over he asked his neighbor, an elderly gentleman:

"What was the text of the sermon?"
"Who art thou?" answered the parishioner.
"Boston reporter," replied the other. The man smiled. Subsequently he told the preacher, who next Sunday told the congregation—at the cub's expense.

Jewelry Store Romances.
A wedding ring whose scratched and dulled surface bespoke years of hard service at wash tub and dishpan lay on the jeweler's work table.
"Why has it been laid up for repairs?" a visitor asked. "Has marriage proved a failure?"
"On the contrary, it has turned out a great success, and the ring has been brought back to bear witness," said the jeweler. "See this new inscription, 'Ten years of fidelity and love. That sounds pretty good, doesn't it? No failure there. Five or ten years from now, if they are both alive, somebody will probably add another postscript, and so on at regular intervals to the end of the chapter. Jewelers meet more of these little romances than the unsentimental person would dream of."—New York Sun.

No Right to Live.
Beggars—Wou't you give me some money, professor? My money is all gone, and I can't live.
Professor—How old are you?
Beggars—Forty years, sir.
Professor—Forty years! Don't you know that according to the latest mortality tables the average age of the male population of Europe reaches only thirty-four years and five months? Statistically you have no right to live any longer anyway!—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Two Faults.
"You hunt too much," said Louis XV. to the archbishop of Narbonne. "How can you prohibit your curates from hunting if you pass your life in setting them such an example?"
"Sire," said Dillon, "for my curates the chase is a fault; for myself it is the fault of my ancestors."

Politeness.
Politeness is a sort of guard which covers the rough edges of our character and prevents them from wounding others. We should never throw it off even in our conflicts with coarse people.

Capacity Diminishing.
Mrs. Guzzler—Aren't you ashamed to come home in this condition? Mr. Guzzler—Mortified to death, my dear. I find my capacity isn't what it used to be.—Philadelphia Record.

Mirth is too often but melancholy in disguise.—Leigh Hunt.

A Tip on Oats.
According to the Saturday Evening Post, a man who had a country place on Long Island came to New York one morning to do a little speculating. He was a great believer in tips.
On the ferryboat it came to him that he had had somehow a tip on oats. He couldn't remember just what it was, but somebody had told him to buy oats. So when he reached his broker's office he looked into oats a bit and bought some. Oats were active. He pyramided skillfully and by the close of the market was $7,000 ahead.
Of course such luck as that had to be celebrated, and it was. As the celebration went on the oats buyer told the story several times and each time took on importance in the recital as an oats buyer until he finally became the oats king. He reached his railroad station somewhat late and found the stableman waiting for him with a trap.
"By the way," said the stableman, "did you remember to order that five bushels of oats I asked you to buy this morning?"

Not Safe.
The negro on occasions displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words.
"Who's the best whitewasher in town?" inquired the new resident.
"Ale Hall am a bo'nd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered the colored patriarch eloquently.
"Well, tell him to come and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow."
Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Ah don't believe, sah, Ah'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah."
"Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?"
"Yas, sah, a pow'ful good whitewasher, sah, but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah, mighty queer!"—Human Life.

Her Revenge.
A little girl had been so very naughty that her mother found it necessary to shut her up in a dark closet—in that family the direst punishment for the worst offense. For fifteen minutes the door had been locked without a sound coming from behind it—not a whimper, not a snuffle. At last the stern but anxious parent unlocked the closet door and peered into the darkness. She could see nothing.
"What are you doing in there?" she cried.
And then a little voice piped from the blackness:
"I thipt on your new dress, and I thipt on your new hat, and I'm waiting for more thipt to come to thipt on your new parasol!"—Philadelphia Times.

He Made Good.
Lord Lansdowne once had a remarkable prophecy made concerning him while he was an Oxford graduate. Jowett, his tutor at Balliol, greatly admired him and always said that he would do great things.
"There goes a man," remarked Jowett, "who is as certain to be foreign secretary in due time in whichever party he chooses as tomorrow's sun is to rise."

Of course at that time Lord Lansdowne had not the least idea of filling such a distinguished post, and yet in 1900, after a brilliant political career, he found himself at the head of the foreign office.—London M. A. P.

Her Lost Chance.
Mrs. B.—I wonder why Miss Singleton refused the curate when he proposed to her?
Mrs. D.—All a mistake, my dear, a sad mistake; you know she has grown a little deaf, and she did not suspect he was at all "gone" on her. She actually thought he was asking her to subscribe to the new organ fund, so she told him she was sorry, but she had promised all her money in another direction.

Mrs. B.—Then what happened?
Mrs. D.—The curate felt himself insulted and departed in dudgeon, and she's lost the only chance she ever had.—London Telegraph.

Sense of Humor Declining.
"Do you think Americans have a great sense of humor?"
"Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "I'm afraid it isn't what it used to be. The folks out home are becoming so interested in economic issues that they don't seem to care whether I tell them any funny stories or not."—Washington Star.

Wrong Trail.
First Professor of Chemistry—What are you working at now? Second Professor—I'm trying to ascertain the cause of baldness. First Professor—Oh, stop it! You're wasting your time. What you ought to be doing is trying to ascertain the cause of hair growth.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Ready Demonstration.
"Do you think you can make my daughter happy?" asked Miss Thirsty-Smith's father gravely.
"Why, I have already, haven't I?" replied Spooner. "I've asked her to marry me."—Smart Set.

His Lost Leg.
A mendicant approached a man on the cars the other day and said, "Dear sir, I have lost my leg," to which the man replied, as he hurried away, "My dear friend, I am very sorry, but I have not seen anything of it."

A Disagreeable Reception.
Weary Wiggles—I don't like the reception I got at that house. Bleating Harry—Who came to the door? Weary Wiggles—The dog.—Judge.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Sept. 21.—There was a big demand for September cotton on the call from brokers who frequently represent spot houses and the price jumped 29 points following opening of cotton market today. October options were up three to five points, notwithstanding poor cables. September declined 18 points after the call on offerings credited to leading bulls. Opening: September 13.73; October 13.20; December 13.08; January 13.01.

New York, Sept. 21.—Union Pacific was again the moving spirit in the market in Wall street today, leading with an advance of 5-8 of a point above the closing of yesterday. Other standard railroad shares and a few industrials scored fractional gains at the opening. These were wiped out, however, by the first 15 minutes of trading during which a recession occurred. Again there was a bullish movement, but prices were wiped out, and fractional gains substituted. Early trading displayed fair amount of activity but later the other markets become stagnant.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Wheat opened today three-eighths to three-quarters lower on disappointing cables. Corn opened very weak on fine weather and receivers report of a big run of corn coming in. Oats were off with corn. Provisions were easier for the whole list. Opening: September whe t. 96 1-4; corn, 54 1-4; oats, 35; per.; January, 1830.
