MOST DANGEROUS TRIP IN AVIATION.

CHAVEZ ATTEMPTS TO CROSS THE ALPS.

After Completing Most Hazardous Part of Journey Meets With Prob- ably Fatal Accident.

By Cable to The Reflector.

Rome, Sept. 23.—After completing one-third of the most hazardous airplane journey in the history of aviation, George Chavez, a Peruvian aviator, was probably fatally injured today in his attempted flight over the Alps. His monoplane was caught in a gush of wind and buried against rocks. The aviator had made the most dangerous part of his journey, soaring over a wilderness of craggy peaks when he attained the site of the accident. He had flown over high mountains, walked across snow, copped ridges and dangerous tree top crests, and the rest of the journey would have been nothing but lakes and plains.

London, Sept. 23.—Two reports were received here from Rome this afternoon, one saying that Chavez had been dashed against rocks and the other that he has made the trip in safety. The report also says that Weyman, American aviator, is engaged in the same flight.

Rome, Sept. 23.—Chavez was badly hurt according to authentic reports. He had made about one third of the distance and was about 8,000 feet in the air when he became so cold that he lost control of his machine and was dashed to the ground. Both his legs were broken. Aviator Palliet made the flight successfully to Milan, Weyman made only a short flight.

RACER BADLY INJURED.

Thrown From Car While Going at a High Speed.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Sept. 23.—George Roberson, who won the Vanderbilt cup race in 1908, and was the winner of many record breaking automobile contests, was probably fatally injured today, when a racing machine in which he was speeding 60 miles an hour turned turtle on Long Island motor park way. Roberson was taking a trial spin for the Vanderbilt cup race, Saturday. Stephen Reynolds, a newspaper man, was with him at the time of the accident. He was hurled 26 feet from the car but was uninjured. Roberson's right collar bone and right arm were broken and it is thought his skull is fractured. Doctors later say he is not fatally hurt, though his injuries are serious.

"BLIND BOSS" DEAD.

Rhode Island Political Leader Passes Into World Beyond.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 23.—General Brayton, known as the "Blind Boss," of Rhode Island, died this morning. He was seventy years old and totally blind. He had been active in politics for thirty years and for twenty years of that time was credited with controlling the legislatures of Rhode Island completely. He was the political confidant of Aldrich and did the work in Rhode Island that Quay did in Pennsylvania and Platt in New York, but kept in the background, holding no political honors.

BATTLESHIP GUN BURSTS.

No Injury Was Done to Any of Her Crew.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, Sept. 23.—One of the 12-inch guns on the battleship Georgia burst during battle practice yesterday afternoon, but no one was injured, according to a wireless message received at the navy department today from Rear Admiral Schroeder, commanding the Atlantic fleet. No damage other than to the gun was done. Inquiry has been ordered by Admiral Schroeder.

Dr. Hyatt Coming.

Dr. H. O. Hyatt will be in Greenville at Hotel Bertha, October 3rd and 4th, Monday and Tuesday, for the purpose of treating diseases of the eye and fitting glasses.

THE ITEM WAS MISLEADING.

Impossible to Overtax Buyers on the Greenville Tobacco Market.

The editor of The Reflector, as everybody who comes about the office knows, is a very busy man and while he keeps more or less in close touch with all departments of the plant and the paper, it is impossible for him to closely scrutinize every day each item that finds its way in the paper. For tobacco market news he has been depending mainly on a local reporter, as the editor himself has but little opportunity to go out on the market and for only brief trips when he does go. In this way a story about the market was printed Thursday that ought not to have appeared owing to the fact that it can be misconstrued. The item said in substance that so much tobacco is coming in that it is overtaxing the capacity of the buyers to properly care for it. The item was misleading, as it is a fact if there ever was a market whose buyers were fully prepared to properly take care of all the tobacco that can come, that market is Greenville. Every buyer here has such ample steam plant and storage facilities at their command as to make it impossible to overrun them. The warehouses might be filled to overflowing everyday in the week without giving the buyers more tobacco than they could care for. It is possible to overtax the warehouses, though not probable, but the buyers are in shape to properly take care of all that comes, even if it should be a half million pounds a day.

TRADE REPORT.

General Conditions Show Some Im- provement.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 23.—Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity: Trade conditions generally show some improvement, the most favorable feature being usually slow collections in all lines, this is attributed to the backwardness of crops, especially cotton. The wholesale dry goods market shows improvement; orders for immediate and fall delivery being satisfactory. Wholesale sales of shoes report satisfactory sales. Lumber is in poor demand and building is less active. Produce is in good demand. The apple crop in Virginia is reported better than in any recent years, in some sections a perfect crop being reported. In North Carolina tobacco is being marketed at fairly satisfactory prices, little as yet being offered on the Virginia markets. Trunk and bag manufacturers are running at full capacity and report orders equal to their output. Retail trade is quiet, but improvements is noted with the approach of the fall season.

MIGHTY HAAG SHOWS COMING.

Advance Advertising Car Here Bill- ing for Friday, October 7th.

The first advertising car of the Mighty Haag circus, in charge of Mr. Victor Stout, arrived here this morning over the Norfolk Southern road, and the crew of fourteen men is billing the town and surrounding country for the coming of this show to Greenville on Friday, October 7th, for two performances, afternoon and night. This circus is a Southern aggregation, not in the trust, and is one of the best on the road. It carries many marvelous features, and its free attractions—airplane exhibit and gorgeous street parade—are alone worth 200 miles to see. Everybody get ready to come to Greenville on the date of this big show, Friday, October 7th.

People Should Know Better.

The Reflector does not know who "Big Four" is, hence the items from Pictolus with that signature take their usual route to the wastebasket. It is a waste of time, paper and stamps to send items for this paper without the name of the writer coming along with them.

Old Coins.

Mr. L. R. Whichard, a merchant of whichard, was in town today and showed us two very old British coins. They were coined in 1739, making them now 171 years old. They are quite a curiosity, and one of them was left with The Reflector if anyone wishes to see it.

We learn that the Republicans are offering to nominate two of our prominent business men for sheriff and register of deeds for the November election. Oh! What will the harvest be? We don't want to be misunderstood, these gentlemen are not sore Democrats, but old time Republicans.

Miss Annie McGlohon returned from a visit to Grifton Tuesday morning.

Mr. J. Carl Jones, the man who owns the "pony" made a business trip to Kinston Thursday evening.

Mrs. C. A. Blount left yesterday for Murray.

We saw a letter from Mr. John B. Tripp last week, who is a Pitt county boy, but now president of a large corporation in San Francisco, Cal. By close application and assiduous toil, he has forced himself to the front, as all Pitt county boys do, and has made quite a fortune in the golden west. In the death of Mrs. Laura Cox, of Winterville, he fell heir to one half of a valuable farm adjoining Ayden, worth several thousand dollars.

Mr. R. P. Bradley, of Hobgood, spent Thursday night in town.

Mr. James Worthington a son of T. J. left Tuesday to enter Horner Military school at Oxford.

Miss Delle Braxton returned Thursday from Orphan Heights, where she had been to take her little brother. She reports a full school.

Mr. Joseph Cox, of Winterville, was in town Wednesday.

Miss Agnes Dixon, our efficient central girl, is off to New Bern for a few days rest.

Your Ayden correspondent received a nice write-up from Hope Well with request to publish it, but as no name was signed to it, it had to rest with all unsigned manuscript, as The Reflector will not publish anonymous letters.

If you need any repairing for your mill, gin, or anything like mill supplies, belting etc., see J. R. Smith Company.

How would a gasoline launch look playing between Ayden and New Bern via Vanceboro? Don't laugh, for such a thing is possible when Swift creek and Clay Root swamps are canaled out. If others can, why not you, only keep the thing in view, try, try again. Mr. Lorenzo McLawhorn is building an annex to the Cole residence, and when completed and painted it will be occupied by Mr. Elias Leslie Turnage.

Mr. Jesse T. Hart tells us his crop is at least three weeks later than last year. Mr. Hart makes most all his supplies on his farm besides a large money crop, and by industry and economy is among Contentne's most substantial citizens.

Odd Fellows meet next Monday night. Inflationary degree work to do.

MR. AMOS E. BROWN DEAD.

Quickly Follows His Aged Sister to the Better World.

Mr. Amos E. Brown died Thursday afternoon at the home of his nephew, Mr. J. B. Latham, in Washington. The remains were brought to Greenville on the Norfolk Southern train, and taken out to Mount Pleasant church, four miles from town, for interment there, Rev. C. W. Howard, of Kinston, conducting the funeral service.

Mr. Brown was 83 years of age, and an excellent man. While a deaf mute, he possessed remarkable intelligence and information, and was an interesting conversationalist in the sign language. He was a native of Pitt county and spent the greater part of his life on the old homestead near Mount Pleasant church. He was a member of the Christian church and always a regular attendant upon the church services.

Mr. Brown and his aged sister, Mrs. Martha Latham, she being two years younger than he, were almost inseparable companions through life, she being both sister and mother to him. Her death ten days ago was his greatest grief and, no doubt, hastened his passing to join her in the better world. He expressed himself as resigned to death, and was glad to leave this world for the happier one beyond.

After the breaking up of the Latham home by marriages and death, Mr. Brown and Mrs. Latham went to make their home with the latter's daughter, Mrs. Jesse Quinley, near Grifton. A few months ago they went to the home of her son, Mr. J. B. Latham, in Washington, intending to remain with him for a year, and it was there that death claimed them both so near together. Inseparable in life, even death did not keep them long apart.

Now Ready to go Before The Public for Sale.

Mr. Henry T. King has received prospectuses of his sketches of Pitt county, the same being a history of the county from the earliest settlement down to the present. The prospectus shows a book of about 200 pages, nicely illustrated.

Among the illustrations are several Indian scenes, the Colonial court house, Bloants Hall, the Williams house, the Brickhill, Cannon, the new steel bridge at Greenville, a pioneer tobacco barn, William Plant, Dr. G. Hagan, General Grimes, Governor Jarvis, and many others, with maps of Indian locations in this section. NINETEEN YEAR OLD.

Greenville's First Tobacco Sale was September 23, 1891.

Just nineteen years ago today, the Greenville tobacco market had its first sale. During the summer of that year a stock company was organized and the old Greenville warehouse was built on the site now occupied by the Norfolk Southern R. R. as a depot. The house was ready for the first sale which took place September 23, 1891. Only two men now connected with the market were here at the beginning, Mr. G. F. Evans and Mr. J. L. Joyner. Mr. Evans is not actually engaged in the tobacco business, but has been made an honorary member of the Tobacco Board of Trade.

CUSTOMS COURT RESUMES.

Enough Cases Ahead for Several Months.

By Wire to The Reflector. Washington, Sept. 23.—After a recess of three months during which time sumptuous quarters have been prepared for its new court of customs appeals, it began its first session today, with a full bench and the docket numbered 471 cases, most of them from the port of New York. It has enough work to keep it busy for months without any new cases.

Wait for The Big Sale.

C. T. Munford is to have another big sale beginning on Wednesday, the 28th and continuing for sixteen days. During this special sale his prices will be slaughtered as never before, and the people will get the benefit of the bargains. NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

Gathered From Our Exchanges To- day of Events Just Happened.

Durham, N. C., Sept. 2.—George W. Watts, multi-millionaire, and large stockholder in the American Tobacco Company has begun at a cost of $100,000 two new buildings to be added to the hospital group that he finished December 1909, and for the support of which institution he has already given $200,000 endowment with a necessary additional $50,000 to endow the increase needs of the Watts Hospital.

Mr. Albert A. Lynch, who lives a short distance south of Mebane while hammering on some iron had a small fragment to strike him in the eye, cutting deep in the ball. After vainly trying to extract it he was compelled to go to Raleigh to see a surgeon who after examination of the eye decided the only remedy to do was to remove ball, which he did.—Mebane Leader.

Little Russians.

The Little Russians—those of the south—are said to be cleverer than the Russians of the north, but they are lazy—just how lazy may be gathered from this quotation from Mr. Maurice Barling's book, "Russian Emigrants and Stories."

"The Little Russian," said a Little Russian gentleman to me, "is so lazy that he will say to his wife, 'Little wife, say who is my horse. I have a pain in my tongue.'"

A hundred good deeds are forgotten in the presence of one bad one.

The Odd Fellows in Atlanta are giving the city a chance to show herself.

They fall out with each other one day and deny it the next—Bill and Teddy.

The worst scared crowd on the list are the Republicans. The prospect of being prized away from the pie counter gives them a shiver.

We have not heard a Pitt county farmer say he was getting anything ready for exhibit at the State fair, as much as the county has that could be exhibited creditably.

The March of the Telephone.

There are 5,500,000 telephones in use in the United States and this represents a gain outlay of over five hundred million dollars. A big investment truly, and this large capital, together with the tremendous number of phones in use shows well the importance of the service. And yet all this will, unless signs fail, be greatly increased within the next several years. There will likely be more than the usual proportionate increase because the telephone is bounding forward in popular vote in the rural districts. Folks in the country have commenced to realize not only the pleasure and convenience of a phone, but that it stands them well in hand financially; it aids them in their work, and substantially in a business way. We are glad to note such realization, because it means further progress in all lines, and brings the city and country closer together. With the telephone and the rural mail service country life becomes more attractive and farming can be conducted on a more prosperous plane.—Wilmington Dispatch

One Camp-Fire for Blue and Gray.

The suggestion of the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic that henceforth there should be one annual national encampment for all the veterans of the civil war, Union or Confederate, is so well in keeping with the spirit of the times that there should be no question of its adoption. Next year will occur the semi-centennial of the outbreak of the war. The men who fought its great battles in blue or gray are now bent in years. How better can they celebrate the anniversary and to what better use can they put their remaining brief span of life than by fraternizing with their old foes around the same camp-fire? The old issues that drenched the land in blood are part of a great past in which all have their share. The country long ago decided to let bygones be bygones. It is now the opportunity of the veterans to put a final seal of completeness on the new Union which knows no sectional lines.—New York World.

"Goose pie is the favorite Democratic dish," asserts the Greensboro Daily News. Wind pudding is the favorite dish of the Republicans just now, although they will have to change to crow pie after the November election.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Facts About Winter Cover Crops.
1. A winter cover crop largely prevents loss of soil fertility by washing (erosion); some lands suffer greater loss than others by washing, but all lands are more or less injured by it.
2. Soils without cover lose considerable fertility by evaporation during the fall and winter. A winter cover crop reduces this loss to a negligible quantity.
3. Such crops, to some extent, prevent the seeding of the land to foul weeds.
4. They increase the prosperity of the soil, and add the humus so essential to fertility.
5. They make a valuable crop while the lands would otherwise be idle, which is a net gain to the land. We must increase the vegetable matter in the soil to an amount sufficient to enable the soil to retain a much larger portion of the rainfall than at present and to greatly increase the mechanical conditions of the soil.
6. A very important consideration in the winter cover crop is the large amount of grazing that can be secured from it at a time when it is especially valuable for young stock, and its value is not limited altogether to the mere supply of food. It adds to the health and vigor of the stock. On an average from 2 to 2 1/2 months grazing can be secured at a nominal cost of a little labor in preparing and seeding the land.

Why should any Democratic in North Carolina now desert his old party and join the Republicans?
Is it because the Democratic party disfranchised the ignorant negro voters?
Is it because the Republican party opposed and bitterly fought the adoption of the suffrage amendment?
Is it because the Democratic party has built so many school houses and extended the term of our school terms?
Is it because the Democratic party has increased the appropriation for Confederate pensioners from $100,000 (the amount appropriated under the fusion rule) to half a million?
Is it because the Democratic party has largely increased the appropriations for the support of our unfortunate insane?
Is it because the Democratic party has largely increased the appropriations for the deaf and dumb and blind children?
Is it because the Democratic party has made the penitentiary not only self-supporting, but a source of revenue, instead of being an expense of over a hundred thousand dollars a year, as it was under Republican rule?
If not, why (we repeat) should any Democrat in North Carolina now desert his old party and "jine the radicals."—Pittsboro Record.

A subscriber to The Scottish Chief had his feelings hurt by reading some editorial remarks on Mr. McLeod, and forthwith gave the editor a piece of his mind, including: "Do me a favor by stopping your paper this week. For I would not allow it in my fowl house any more." If any man wants to call his own home a fowl one, it's none of the editor's business. What is his business, however, is indicated by the three suggestion to the writer that "if he had thought to have sent the $1.80 he owes the Chief, his letter would have had a better ring." But these people who get mad and stop their paper are generally conveniently absent minded.—Charlotte Chronicle.

It is gratifying to note that a number of our citizens who have heretofore affiliated with the Republican party have seen the error of their way, and have announced that their lines will be cast with the Democrats this year. They know that the Republican party has shamelessly failed to redeem its pledge to the people, and they are disgusted with such duplicity and such utter disregard of solemn pledges. They turn to the Democratic party which has always been a friend to the people and from which only will they get relief from the burdens and conditions imposed upon them by the Republicans.—Concord Tribune.

Many persons think the election will be on the first Tuesday in November, but in this they are mistaken. The election is always on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, and, as next November begins on Tuesday, the first Tuesday after the first Monday will be the second Tuesday and the 8th day of November. So, bear in mind that election day is on the 8th of November.—Pittsboro Record.

Good Way to Use Hyomei for Catarrh.
Besides breathing through the inhaler a few times a day, many catarrh sufferers write that they find inhaling HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) from a bowl of steaming water each night before retiring a great aid in curing stubborn cases.
Try it; it's very simple; gives quick relief and makes you breathe easier.
Fill a bowl half full of boiling water; pour into the water a teaspoonful of HYOMEI, cover head and bowl with a towel, and breathe through nose and mouth the pleasant, medicated, antiseptic and healing vapor that arises.
This method relieves that stiffness at once, and makes your head feel one.
You can get a bottle of HYOMEI at druggists everywhere or at Coward & Wooten's for only 50 cents. Ask for extra bottle HYOMEI Inhaler.
But bear in mind that a HYOMEI outfit which includes inhaler and bottle of HYOMEI costs $1.00.
But, as stated before, if you already own an inhaler, a bottle of HYOMEI costs but 50 cents.
HYOMEI is guaranteed by Coward & Wooten and druggists everywhere to cure catarrh, sore throat, coughs, colds, asthma and croup, or money back. Try it on that generous basis.
Sainthood and sanity are both a happy balance between self and society.

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

SUCH SHALL NOT INHERIT THE KINGDOM OF GOD.
Galatians 5:15-26.—September 25.

"If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit."

ST. PAUL was a practical man, not merely a theorist; he brought his teaching down to a practical level which his readers could comprehend. Today's Study is one of these. Like all of St. Paul's epistles and treatises, it is addressed to the Church, to those who have turned aside from the broad road of selfishness and worldliness, to walk the narrow way, in the footsteps of Jesus, and thereby to become joint-heirs with Jesus in his Messianic Kingdom, which is shortly to bless the world. Nevertheless, many who are not saints, many who are not wholly consecrated to God, may draw valuable lessons from the Apostle's words in this lesson, as well as in others. Many lessons of life specially applicable to those who have made a consecration to be the Lord's followers are valuable also to the remainder of mankind. The Christian has, so to speak, stepped out of his old self and become a New Creature, a Spirit being, which merely resides in the flesh and has interests that are distinctly separate and often antagonistic thereto. The Apostle urges these to walk in the spirit; that is to say, to let their daily course of life be in accord with their new nature. So doing, they will resist and not fulfill the desires of the flesh. Why? Because they will realize that there is an antagonism of interests as between the desires of the flesh and their desires as New Creatures. The two are at warfare, the one desiring against the other. There may be a truce for a time, but there will never be peace between them. Our interests as New Creatures are along spiritual lines, while our depraved appetites and tastes go in the opposite direction. Hence the Apostle said, "Ye cannot do the things that ye would." As New Creatures you would follow in the footsteps of your Master, perfectly, but having fallen flesh, you cannot do this! You can only hobble after him at very most. But if we take this position and become his followers, we will be no longer under judgment according to the flesh, but will be judged as New Creatures, perfect in will—rendering the best obedience to righteousness we are capable of, under our handicap of imperfect human organism.

In order that none might make a mistake as to what would constitute the desires of the flesh, the Apostle recites them and declares that they are manifest or openly discernible, namely: "fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, strife, jealousies, wraths, factions, divisions, heresies, envyings, drunkenness, revellings and such like, of the which I forewarn you, that they which practise such things shall not inherit the Kingdom of God." These are works of the fallen flesh and antagonistic to righteousness. All of God's people are to resist them, if they would not lose his favor. They have the seeds of all these iniquitous things in their flesh, received by heredity; but their minds, their wills, have been changed, converted, turned around, to righteousness—to the doing of the will of God. As New Creatures they must not practise the fleshly things, else they will not grow in the fruits and graces of the holy Spirit and will not be fit for the Kingdom.

The Apostle does not here say that if anyone were overtaken in a fault and lost his temper, for instance, and got into strife, that this would bar him forever from the Kingdom. He might, indeed, through tears and prayers and Divine forgiveness, come back into harmony with God and subsequently become a valued soldier of the Cross and follower of the Lamb. But if any practise such things they should know that they are developing and strengthening a character contrary to the one which God will approve—they are going backward and not forward. Let us note the difference between an accidental slip with a penitent recovery, and a wilful practising of a wrong course. Alas! how many Christians have the evidence in themselves that they will not inherit the Kingdom of God—unless they make a fresh start and reverse the order of their living!

If the Apostle led us into a tangled wildwood of human selfishness, thorns and thistles, as a specimen of the fruitage of the fallen flesh, he next leads us in the opposite direction, and shows us the fruits and flowers of sweet odor which belong to the Garden of the Lord. He tells us that these delightful fruits of the Spirit should more and more be cultivated, and should be developed to perfection in our hearts, and, as far as possible, should overrun and cover and choke out the imperfections of our flesh. The fruits of this garden are all the fruits of the Spirit of God—all such as he originally planted in man and which have become vitiated through sin—all such as he now has implanted afresh and would develop in the hearts of his sanctified ones. The fruits of the Spirit, which should be manifest in all of the followers of Jesus in more or less perfection are these: "love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law."

The Apostle explains that those who have become Christ's followers have crucified the flesh with the passions and desires thereof. They have voluntarily agreed that they will live contrary to the emotions and desires of the fallen flesh. He urges, if we live by the Spirit, by the Spirit let us also walk! It is the Spirit of God which has quickened us and which ultimately is to perfect us. But it can perfect us only if we are led by it and walk in its ways. Otherwise we will not be fit for a place in the Kingdom, whatever other place in God's arrangements we may have. One of the most dangerous besetments of the Christian is vanity. It leads to more trouble, provokes more quarrels and envyings than is generally supposed. If we are walking after the Spirit of our Master, it will mean that instead of being vainglorious we will be meek, humble, teachable. And only such will eventually be ready for the glory, honor and immortality which God will bestow upon the faithful at the Second Coming of our Savior.

Robbed of Her Happiness.
"You are not looking well, Mrs. Wiltington."
"No; I haven't slept well lately."
"What's the trouble? Has the weather affected you?"
"Oh, no, it isn't that."
"I'll tell you what it is. You ought to give up the practice of drinking coffee at night. I know a lot of people who toss awake all night after they have been out to a late dinner and finished with coffee. I had to quit it myself."
"I'm sure that isn't the cause of my trouble."
"Have you seen a doctor?"
"No. A doctor couldn't help me any."
"But how can you tell until you go to one and let him examine you?"
"Well, if you must know, I'm worrying about my husband. He hasn't kicked at the size of the bills lately, and he's been so kind and even tempered right along for a month or two that I feel almost sure he must be leading a double life. Ah, if he would only get to grumbling and making it disagreeable around the house again!"
—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Waiter With Two Cars.
A Cleveland party recently sojourning in a Toronto hotel decided to take an automobile ride about the city. They approached the extremely self-conscious clerk and asked him where they could secure a car.
"Our head waiter has two, don't you know," he replied.
It took some little time to recover from this shock, but presently one of the party ventured to ask the price.
"Three an hour," was the answer.
That was voted satisfactory, and at luncheon one of the Clevelanders turned to the nearest waiter.
"Who is the chap that owns two automobiles?" he asked.
"I am the chap," the waiter replied, and he threw such a freezing emphasis into the word "chap" that it was fairly frost cracked.
They finished their luncheon before they had enough courage to ask the price.
"Four dollars an hour," the waiter replied with haughty indifference.
Then they went uptown and hired a very good car for $3 an hour.

A Banquet For Horses.
Banquets prepared exclusively for animals are not altogether unknown in England. The aged inmates of the Home of Rest for Horses, Westcroft farm, Cricklewood celebrate each New Year's day with a sumptuous repast. The menu for the last banquet consisted of lumps of sugar, chopped carrots, apples, brown and white bread and biscuits. These were mixed together in a wooden box and placed outside each stable door.—London Family Herald.

Still in the Ring.
"I hear your engagement with young Gotrox has been broken off," said the first fair daughter of Eve.
"Well, you are entitled to another hearing," rejoined fair daughter No. 2 as she held up a graceful hand on which a solitary sparkled. "You can see for yourself that I am still in the ring."

Hard Luck.
Chief—Tell me, sir, why you have so utterly failed to get a clew to this crime. Detective—"Tain't my fault. The reporters are down on me, an' they won't tell me nothing!"—Cleveland Leader.

His Exact Weight.
Angler (who is telling his big fish story)—What weight was he? Well, they hadn't right weights at the inn, but he weighed exactly a fatiron, two eggs and a bit of soap.—Punch.

A Real Need of The State.
At this time when candidates for the legislature are before the people it might be well if the Torrens System of land titles were brought to their attention. The Torrens System, first adopted by South Australia in the year 1857, has since found adoption by the other Australian provinces of Queensland, New South Wales, Victoria and Tasmania. Following them came the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Manitoba. In the United States Illinois, taught by difficulties growing out of the great Chicago fire, was the pioneer. Then came Colorado in 1893, California in 1897, Massachusetts in 1898, Minnesota and Oregon in 1901, and New York in 1907. Everywhere this system has given the most entire satisfaction. It is so immense an improvement over the old lack of any system that where it once takes root it holds unquestioned sway.

As outlined by President Witkowski before the North Carolina Building and Loan League at Raleigh last year the Torrens System possesses these features: The state appoints for each county an officer known as a registrar, and any landowner wishing to avail himself of the Torrens title applies to the registrar, who looks up all records from the original grant downward, charging a :—therefor. When the landowner receives from the registrar under his seal of office a certificate that his title is clear he holds indefeasibly comes from the fees which all land-claimant appear at any time thereafter, the state defends the title, and if the claim is establishing the State ascertains the money value of the claim and pays it in money while leaving the owner's title absolutely unaffected. Money for this purpose Among the more obvious advantages availing themselves of the privilege have paid. come clouded—and, as happened ages attending the Torrens System are avoidance of the expensive necessity of having the same titles repeatedly looked up with no conclusive assurance then that the report as made will stand. Once a piece of land goes through the Torrens System its status is definitely fixed. The many means whereby a title may become clouded—and, as happened some years ago in Montgomery county belated assertion of a widow's dower rights may upset a whole town—are rendered negligible. Moreover, Torrens title makes land as negotiable as a bond. Alike to buyer and seller, to borrower and lender, the various benefits are indisputably great.

In North Carolina the building and loan associations, that they may carry on their immeasurably beneficent work to better advantage, have been advocating the Torrens System for some time. With them stand the organs of the farmers, the press generally, and all public spirited people who have given the matter intelligent attention. The last legislature passed a resolution authorizing the governor to appoint a committee of five who should report at the session of 1911. We understand that this committee, with Mr. R. R. Cotten of Pitt county as its chairman, will make a unanimously favorable report. Aside from a certain amount of interested but silent and merely passive opposition and the inertia which every new proposal must encounter, there is nothing to hinder action next year. The Torrens System is purely permissive; no one who does not so desire need have to do with it at all. We have never heard a single argument against it, and certainly none comes from any state where the actual trial has been made. Thus the legislature can, if it will, confer an indubitable benefit upon the state. And, as we said at first, a good time to begin stirring the matter is now.—Charlotte Observer.

The Unhumbled Valet.

The Duke of Cambridge was once about to visit Lord Stratford, who had been appointed ambassador to Turkey. At an early hour on the morning of his expected arrival the ambassador went, in slippers and dressing gown, to see if the rooms were in perfect order. He found that the duke's valet had arrived and was arranging his master's trunks and portmanteaus. Stratford gave some directions how they should be placed. The man left off working and stared at the intruder. "I tell you what it is," he said, "I know how his royal highness likes to have his things arranged better than you do. So you just be off, will you, old fellow?"

Lord Stratford left in a towering passion. Calling one of his attaches, he ordered him to go in and tell the man whom he had addressed in such language. The attaché returned with twinkling eyes.

"What did you say?" asked the ambassador.

"I said to him, my lord, that the person he had ventured to address such language to was her majesty's representative to Turkey."

"Ah, quite right. And his answer?"

"He answered, my lord, that he never said you wasn't."—With Lord Stratford in the Crimean War.

Wise Men of Gotham.

A "wise man of Gotham" is a fool, but the phrase arose through the real wisdom of the people that lived in the English town of Gotham. The story goes that King John of England once visited the town with the intention of seeing a castle that he thought of taking for himself. But the Gothamites did not care for the nearness of royalty and the expense they would be put to if the king should have a house there, and so they cooked up a scheme to drive him away. When the king arrived with his company of followers and rode through the town he saw all the inhabitants of Gotham going through the most foolish of tasks, each person with a silly smile on his face. The king was disgusted with them. He would not live among crazy people, and so he rode on through the town and did not stop for the castle. Then the wise men of Gotham, still smiling, but not in a silly fashion, told one another that there were more fools that passed through Gotham than remain in it.

Not What He Seemed.

Lieutenant General J. M. Grierson tells an amusing story of some maneuvers in which he took part. Only a small body of troops were being actually employed, and "skeleton forces" were the rule—in other words, small bodies of men represented whole divisions. General Grierson with his staff was riding along a lane when he suddenly came upon one of the enemy's pickets sitting calmly by the roadside. Quickly the general rode up to him and said:

"You are my prisoner; you had better surrender."

The man grinned and pointed to a flag beside him.

"Beg pardon, sir," he said, "but I am a brigade of infantry, so you are all my prisoners."—London Mail.

Christians in Old Roma.

Religious persecution as such was unknown under the Romans. The Christians were regarded as seditious. In denying the divinity of the Caesars and the Roman gods they were guilty of high treason in Roman eyes and were accordingly punished. But their punishment had no religious significance whatever. The Christians were persecuted not because they were Christians, but because, in the opinion of the authorities, they were disturbers of the peace and safety of the state. Religious persecution was a thought that never entered the Roman mind.—New York American.

Wounds of the Heart.

In wounds of the heart itself the escape of blood is never in large quantity, and the lethal consequences are due to the fact that the escape of blood from within its cavity or cavities into the surrounding sac of the pericardium mechanically interrupts the alternate contraction and expansion by which its pumping action is maintained. Accordingly the results of the wound of the heart are usually identical with those of gradual suffocation.

Cutting.

A Scotch lawyer was well reproved when, seated by a lady fully aware of her own plain looks, having bowed to his hostess in giving the toast, "Honored Men and Bonnie Lassies," she rejoined, raising her own glass, "We may both drink that toast, since it refers to neither of us."

Similar Tastes.

Belle—But do you think you and he are suited to each other? Nell—Oh, perfectly! Our tastes are quite similar. I don't care very much for him, and he doesn't care very much for me.—Paris Figaro.

Willing to Piss.

"How do you like the new oatmeal soap?" inquired the barber. "Seems nourishing," replied the customer, "but I've had my breakfast."—Washington Herald.

The Long Arm.

Jenny—I consider the fellow was quite impudent. He put his arm round me twice. Rose—Did he? What a long arm he must have!

We shouldn't be too niggardly in our praise, for men will do more to support a character than to raise one.—Colton.

A CASK OF GLYCERIN.

The Admiral Had to Prove That It Was Harmless.

Life in Ireland is never devoid of the humorous, and when Admiral, then Captain, John Moresby was stationed at Queenstown, in 1850, he had his full share. He narrates in "Two Admirals" that it became his duty to survey a damaged ship laden with casks of glycerin. For purpose of repair he directed a portion of the cargo to be landed and stored and thought no more about it.

What was my astonishment next day, he says, to find the whole town in a panic and to be informed that every life was in danger from the deadly compound stored under one of the principal offices of the place.

The town council assembled and sent their health officer to stop all discharge of cargo and to remove the vessel to the outer anchorage, and the people gathered at the street corners in agitated crowds to meet their doom in comfortable companionship.

I vainly contended that it could be nothing but pure glycerin.

"Pure glycerin, is it?" said the chairman. "Well, there's mighty little difference between pure glycerin and impure glycerin, and the ship must be off before we have the place blown about our ears."

All I could say was: "Well, gentlemen, if it is nitroglycerin a blow will explode it. I propose that a cask should be put in a field, and I will fire a shot at it. Will this satisfy you?"

After much deliberation this handsome offer was accepted. I shall never forget that procession nor the agonized countenances of the bearers who lifted the cask to a cart as softly padded for its reception as if it had been an invalid in the last stages of disease. "Patsy and Jim Dempsey had great courage entirely," was the comment of the crowd as they followed at what they believed to be a safe distance.

We wended our way into the country attended by the prayers and blessings of all the old women of both sexes whom we met en route, and the gilded pinnacle was put on the terror when in lifting the cask into the field, far from all human habitation, one of the bearers stumbled and almost fell. He turned a face of wan appeal to heaven as he recovered himself.

But we got it there. I can still recall the town council crouching among the brambles of a distant hedge and watching with expectant eyes and manifest intention of instant flight.

The shot hit the cask fair and square, and amid an awful silence a few slow tears of glycerin oozed out and trickled down its side. That was all.

A MAN AGAINST A NATION.

The Most Curious European War That Was Ever Waged.

The most curious European war ever waged was that which in the sixteenth century, the period of the reformation and the renaissance, was carried on single handed for between five and six years between a bankrupt grocer of Berlin and the elector of Saxony, who was the most powerful German prince of the period. The grocer's name was Hans Kohlhaase, and the immediate cause of the quarrel was the arresting of two of his horses in the elector's territory, he being a subject of the elector of Brandenburg. Failing to get redress, he adopted what was then a perfectly legal expedient and declared formal war on the realm of Saxony. The declaration was accepted in due form, and the war began.

The extraordinary part of the story is that the grocer kept the war up for nearly six years practically single handed and even went to the extremity of declaring war on his own sovereign in the meantime before he was caught. He burned farms and even villages, employed mercenaries after the fashion of the times and made himself the terror of the district. He was finally influenced to stop hostilities by Luther, and after he had taken the sacrament from his hands he was betrayed into a further act of hostility by treachery and, being captured, suffered death on the wheel after refusing an act of grace which granted him the painless and honorable death of the sword. The story is perhaps the strangest of all the romances of that romantic age.—Westminster Gazette.

For Body and Soul.

Here is a curious advertisement, republished in the Cornhill Magazine from an eighteenth century paper: "Wanted—For a family who have had health, a sober, steady person, in the capacity of a doctor, surgeon and apothecary. He must occasionally act in the capacity of butler and dress hair and wigs. He will be required to read prayers occasionally and to preach a sermon every Sunday. The reason of this advertisement is that the family cannot any longer afford the expense of the physical tribe and wish to be at a certain expense for their bodies and souls. A good salary will be given."

Truth Will Out.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Sept. 23.—The cotton market opened today with September six points lower and other months from three points lower to three points higher. There was little trading, each side seemingly awaiting a movement on the part of the other. Cables were steady. Opening: September 13.79; October 13.13; December 13.25; January 13.26; March 13.31.

New York, Sept. 23.—Steel, Union Pacific, Reading, St. Paul and Amalgamated copper were the leaders in the decline of from one to 1-4 points at the opening of the stock market today. The market continued irregular with prices in almost every issue showing declines, ranging in fact from one point or more. After the first fifteen minutes the market resumed a better tone and prices began to recover.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Weakness in Liverpool following on return forecasts of liberal shipments and continued fairly liberal receipts, caused easier wheat with prices off 1-4 to 3-8. Corn was firmer, oats a shade higher, provisions easier. Opening: September wheat 93 3-4; corn 54; oats 34 3-4.
