TOBACCO BOARD OF TRADE FAVORS GOOD ROADS.

ADOPTS RESOLUTIONS ON THE SUBJECT.

Requests Senator and Representatives to Enact Bill Permitting Greenville Township to Vote on Bond Issue.

Greenville, N. C., Oct. 15, 1910.

Editor Reflector:

I herewith enclose you for publication resolutions passed by the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, copies of which I am mailing to the three gentlemen that will represent Pitt county in our next legislature. If our county will make a strong and determined effort for good roads within the next two years, we will not only make Pitt county the leading county in the east, but we can put her among the leading counties of North Carolina, and increase the value of our farming lands 50 per cent.

Yours truly,
E. B. FICKLEN.

A Resolution.

Whereas, the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade recognizes the great necessity for good roads over the entire county of Pitt, and

Whereas, they are desirous of aiding in every legitimate way the movement for good roads in the county, and

Whereas, they are of the opinion that good roads should be constructed from the town of Greenville in every direction to the extreme limits of the county; now, therefore be it resolved:

1st. That we favor good roads for the entire county of Pitt.

2nd. That we favor a bond issue of sufficient amount for Greenville township, with which to construct and maintain a system of good roads in said township.

3rd. That we hereby petition the senator and two representatives, to be elected from Pitt county to the next legislature of North Carolina, to cause to be prepared a bill authorizing a bond issue for the purpose of constructing a permanent system of good roads in Greenville township, with a provision in said bill submitting the question of issuing bonds for said purpose to the qualified voters of said township.

4th. That a copy of this resolution be sent to The Reflector with a request to publish the same, and that a copy be mailed to the gentlemen nominated for senator and representatives from Pitt county to the next legislature.

E. B. FICKLEN,
C. W. HARVEY,
Secretary. President.

WHAT OF AUTOMOBILE MANIA?

Time Savers May be Time Wasters Unless Wisely Employed.

The automobile excitement, as distinguished from the automobile industry, is typical of the present state of disorder, says David Graham Phillips, in the Delineator. The argument is, "The automobile enables one to get about so quickly and easily."

Yes—but get about to what? To a larger income? To better health than walking about gives? To more intellectuality than could be got from reading, thinking and rational conversation? Or is it simply a time-waster—a deceptive filler-in of hours that thus seem not to be spent idly? More motions is not progress. Having one's body wheeled about is not exercise. Fixing one's mind on a triviality is not concentration. Glancing at landscapes and saying, "How lovely! How artistic!" is not seeing scenery.

Sometimes it seems to me that the masseur is the true, perfect type of what seems to be regarded by so many people as civilization. According to that idea of civilization, to do nothing oneself but spend money and issue orders, to have everything done for one, is man's end and aim. You take your massage—moral or mental or physical; you squander your money in that useless, that stupid luxury, disguised as a useful health-giver; you go your way with a lighter pocket and with a foolish false glow of pride that you have done something elegant, something refined, something scientific and useful.

The New York Supreme court has decided that a man can change his name without legal or legislative sanction, as was generally believed to be necessary. Sometimes it is easy for men to have their names changed by the people without their consent. For instance the name of Republican candidates will be Dennis after the 8th of November.—Wilmington Star.

WALTER WELLMAN START ON DARING TRIP

ATTEMPT TO CROSS ATLANTIC IN AIRSHIP

Leaves Atlantic City Early this Morning—First Wireless Message Says all Well and Machinery Working By Wire to The Reflector.

Atlantic City, Oct. 15.—Walter Wellman, the newspaper correspondent and aeronaut, and crew of six men sailed away from Atlantic City today for Europe in the monster dirigible balloon, America, starting on the most daring, perilous and spectacular trip in the history of aviation.

At three minutes after eight o'clock the America sailed out in a fog which hung over the coast and in a brief space had passed from view, although the hum of the motor could be heard for some time. One thousand people had gathered about the shed and witnessed the start. They stood with bared heads as the airship passed out of view. Unless dangerous winds compel the return to land, it is believed their trip will be a long one.

Atlantic City, Oct. 15.—The first wireless dispatch from the balloon America was received at 11.20. It was as follows: "Headed northeast; all well on board; machinery working fine. Good bye." The message was signed by Irwin who is the wireless operator accompanying Wellman.

Atlantic City, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Walter Wellman received a message from her husband at noon stating that the America was well on its way to Europe, making 20 knots an hour and with coast land east by northeast.

It Might be Worse.

Misfortunes are thick in this valley of tears the moans of the sorrowful come to our ears; the law of hard luck seems the governing law, and a package of grief is the prize that we draw. But if we would cut out the weeping and sighs and quit pumping brine from our water-logged eyes, we'd soon find our sorrows and troubles disperse; for there's nothing so bad that it couldn't be worse. It's well to reflect, when you're burdened with care and trouble comes down with his feet in the air, that others have suffered as deeply as you and raised just as much of a hallabalo, and—others have found that a bundle of woe is easy to lose if you only think so. From the day you are born till you ride in a hearse, there's nothing so bad that it couldn't be worse. One day I was ranting around, pretty gay for a felon was holding the fort on my thumb; the surgeon came in with his saw, and ewowed, that I was a baby for yelling so loud; "I sawed off the leg of your neighbor," he said, "and never a whimper came out of his head." Oh! it's true as you live, that—excepting this verse—there's nothing so bad that it couldn't be worse.—Ex.

CANDIDATES AT GRIMESLAND

Congressman Small Also Makes a Speech.

There was a great gathering of Democrats at Grimesland today to hear the county candidates speak. Congressman John H. Small was also there and made an effective speech. Just before the speaking an old fashioned Brunswick stew was served, a hundred squirrels forming part of the menu. Democracy is all right in Chocod, and the usual big majority is coming up from that precinct in the election.

Honesty may be the best policy, but just look at the big dividends some insurance companies pay

MONEY IN THE BANK.

How The Tables Have Turned for the Farmer.

A few years ago when money to the farmer was the scarcest article that was known to his needs, and he had none to put away for a rainy day, it was occasionally a joy to him to go to the bank with a check and draw from the institution of other people's savings. It was one of the longings of some of them to be able to write a check on the local bank for the small obligations, but was denied because he had no money to check against. Tables have turned, however, and it would be surprising to the average citizen to know of the great volume of business now transacted by the farmers through the means of banks. Nearly every farmer who has been able to save, and they are few who have not, when they pay for their paper and little articles sent out by mail to them send a check with the order. To deposit money in the banks is wise. It not only prevents robbery, but it is a savings institution that beats everything else, unless it be the building and loan association, and it is very gratifying to see this protection taken by the industrious farmers of this section.—Mooreville Enterprise.

Young Girl Takes Poison.

Disappointed at being frustrated in an attempt to run away and get married, Miss Mary Norton, the young daughter of Mr. Yancey Norton of John's Station, Tuesday, took an over dose of strychnine from which she died a few hours later.

Miss Norton was only seventeen years old and Monday she and the young man she was to marry set out to drive to Lumberton to be married. Her parents soon heard of it and with a fast horse overtook the runaway couple before they had gotten half way. The young lady was carried home and Tuesday, disappointed and humiliated, she took the poison. Medical assistance was rendered as soon as possible, but too late to save her life.—Rockingham Post.

In tendering his resignation Mr. Harding thanked the board for its uniform courtesy to him. The resignation is accepted with regret. Mr. Harding has made an excellent commissioner. Little Items too Short for a Head, but Interesting.

The Baptist choir will meet at the church for practice tonight at 7.30.

Political speakings in two parts of the county today made the Saturday crowd in town smaller than usual.

Tomorrow Rev. R. C. Deal will hold his last services as pastor of the Presbyterian church here.

Have you seen if your name is on the registration book?

October has reached midway, and so far it has given pretty weather. No frost yet, but soon.

The street was full of cotton today.

On either cotton or tobacco Greenville gets there as a market.

Bigger Corn Crop.

The National Department of Agriculture has made public a report setting forth the yield of some of the principal crops, which shows that while the condition of corn is much above 1909, and exceeds the average for the past year, oats also showing a big gain, the total of wheat and barley fell considerably below last year. As a rule the quality was above that for 1910. The yield per acre of wheat this year has been generally less than in 1909, barley pressing a similar condition. The corn crop, according to the report, was 80.3 per cent. of normal on October 1, or at time of harvest, as compared with 73.3 a year ago and 78.4, the 10-year average.

The Charlotte Observer makes editorial comment on the fact that 764 ladies visited a Wilmington store on a single day to look at and try on new hats. For a similar purpose a Greenville store had 605 visitors on a single day, and Greenville is hardly more than one-fifth as large as Wilmington.—Greenville Reflector.

Undoubtedly a good showing for the live and progressive town of Greenville, but when thinking about a comparison, remember that Wilmington probably has about ten times as many stores of the type mentioned as Greenville.—Wilmington Dispatch.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1910.

Wilmington has come in the line with a highway robbery.

President Taft has given approval to the plan to raise the Maine.

If all the occupants pledges were fulfilled after the election what a great country we would soon have.

It is noticeable that none of the others are making any fun at Charlotte over that census figure, not even Greensboro.

The census returns are about to complete the 25,000 class without naming any other North Carolina town.

Gulfportites must be dry too, as the Greensboro News says the best patronized attraction on the mid-way at the county fair was the near-by saloon.

If every man who lands on the board of aldermen would resign as soon as he gets his street paved it would give the rest of us a better chance.—Durham Herald.

A man would not do the junketing the Mr. Roosevelt is doing, unless he was after something. And the biggest vision before his eyes is that sect in the white house.

Some of the hardest licks Butler gets are from Republicans themselves. One in this county sent The Reflector an article about him that was absolutely so rough and denunciatory that we could not afford to print it.

Building and Loan Insurance.

The Chronicle a few days ago noted the fact that some of the large insurance companies had devised a plan for using depositors in building and loan associations. That is, a plan whereby, if a man paying for his home should die, the insurance company would pay the mortgage and give his widow a title to the home. It seems that this new feature sprang from a meeting of the United States League of Building and Loan Associations in Charlotte last May and from the speech of Mr. O. B. Eaton, of Winston-Salem. He said:

"There is only one dark spot in the grand work of this co-operative savings and home-building movement and that one is easy to overcome. I refer to the contingency of death, which comes to all of us. The struggling father and his family bend every energy to rebuild the home. In case of his death, there should be no cessation of payments to the association. At present a progressive and reliable insurance company has now offered to building and loan association member's insurance which can be paid for on the installment plan, so that these payments will fall easily upon the borrower. I cannot imagine a more pitiable sight than when a board of directors must order a foreclosure on the home of the poor bereaved widow and her family. On all applications for loan blanks of building associations of the U. S. League should appear the question, 'What protection do you carry in case of death? the 'dark spot' will be removed and another strengthening bond made in this great co-operative work."

The first company to respond to the suggestion was the Equitable Life Assurance Society. It decided to place its facilities at the service of the building and loan associations and to co-operate with those activities so nearly allied to its own. Under the supervision of a special branch, a plan has been devised which will enable the man of moderate means who is paying for his home to protect his family in case of his death and to provide for this insurance by small monthly deposits made at the office of his own building and loan association. The plan in brief is as follows: The head of the family is to become a member of the Equitable Society (whether the home is in his own name or that of his wife is not material the protection is through the income producer whose earnings are paying off the mortgage). To do this, he must pass satisfactorily medical examination. He takes a policy equal to the amount of the mortgage and assigns it to the building and loan association. This, at age of 30, on the ordinary plan, requires a deposit of $2.24 per month per $1,000 of insurance upon which dividends will be paid annually. In case of his death the Equitable would pay to the association the remainder of the amount due on the loan.

Fat Frying Possibilities.
It is reported that the Republican congressional campaign committee is suffering for want of funds, while its text-book is found impossible of popular digestion.

But it will not do to take such reports too tragically. It is true enough that more money is needed than ever before in a congressional campaign for the reactionary members who voted for the Payne-Aldrich bill, as well as for the other candidates who tell the voters that this is the best of Republican tariffs. Yet the multimillionaire, McKinley, chairman of the committee, still has means of frying a good deal of fat out of the tariff beneficiaries. Some of the trusts would doubtless be willing to make liberal contributions on the assurance that they would not be put first in the hopper under President Taft's plan of revising the tariff into a schedule at a time. Following the president's persistent example, Chairman McKinley says that he treats insurgents the same as the regular Republican candidates for congress in distributing financial aid.

By all accounts, however, the financial contributions to the congressional campaign of the insurgents are no more lavish than the distribution of government spoils. Fortunately for them, as well as for the public cause which they champion, they have as little need of the money of the trusts as of the patronage of the Taft administration, which Senator Dooliver says has converted the great executive departments into "bucket shops" of small politics.—Philadelphia Record.

Bathing Without a Bathroom.

We, who are not so fortunate as to have a bath room have a very good substitute in the following method, which has the advantage of not taking gallons and gallons of water, yet using a fresh supply constantly.

First, place a large wash tub in a convenient room.—In winter the kitchen can be utilized while still warm after cooking a meal. Have ready a pitcher of hot water and one of cold, soap and towels near and a basin or bowl on a table right by the side of the tub. Fill the basin, step in the tub and you are already to begin. As the water from the basin is used, let it run down into the tub and replenish from the pitchers. When the upper portion of the body has been bathed, dry by rubbing briskly, clothe to prevent chill, and drawing up a chair to the side of the tub seat yourself and bathe and dry the feet. This can be accomplished in a few minutes—a complete and refreshing bath.—Mrs. James H. Henley, in Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

MY DOCTOR MIGHTY FINE
Mrs. Hattie Cain of Carrsville
Thinks all the More of Her Doctor Since He Advised Her to Take Cardui.
Carrsville, Ky.—"My doctor," writes Mrs. Hattie Cain, "who advised me to take Cardui, for my troubles, is a mighty fine doctor, and I say God bless Cardui and the people who make it."
"Before I took Cardui, I suffered with female troubles for sixteen years. I would have to send for a doctor every three months, and oh! how dreadfully I suffered!"
"I would cramp and have convulsions and it looked like I would die. At last I took Cardui and oh! what a surprise! I found it was the medicine for me!"
"From the first bottle, I began to mend and now I am well, can do more work, can walk and go where I please and it don't hurt me, and I owe it all to Cardui."
Cardui helps sick women back to health. It has been doing this for over 50 years. It is not a laxative, or a heart or kidney medicine—it is a woman's medicine.
If you are a woman, try it.

LOW CASTE MANGS.

Hindus Not Only Despise Them, They Fear and Hate Them.

By his fellow Hindu the Mang, one of the lowest of all Indian castes, is not only despised, but even feared and hated. A writer in the Times of India says: "To be cruel is to be 'Mang hearted,' to fly into a passion may be expressed in Marathe idiom as having a Mang within one. When on the occasion of an eclipse fears are awakened for the safety of the sun or moon, it is the Mang whose help is sought. He goes among the people claiming their propitiatory gifts, saying: 'Give your gifts that the grasp may be removed. For are not Rahu and Ketu, the enemies who have laid evil hands on the heavenly bodies, themselves Mangs?' Similarly, to their recognized relation with 'dark' worship and with subterranean and demoniac influences is to be traced the making of offerings to Mang women on Dasera day and the sinister fact that there are few great buildings erected in pre-British days in this part of India that have not—whether they be temples or forts or palaces—Mang victims built into their foundations.

"The peculiar place that these popular superstitions have given to the Mang community is seen especially in the ceremonies that are sometimes performed for the removal of disease. Frequently when some one has fallen ill a Joshi is consulted and explains the illness as due to the influence of some evil spirit. The one effective prescription in such a case is to call a Mang and give him a dinner. This is not by any means an act of friendliness toward a despised community, but has as its object apparently the propitiation of the demoniac power and the removal of the source of the disease from the sick man to its proper habitation.

"With this end in view practices of sympathetic magic, which can be paralleled in the folk lore of many peoples, are employed. Portions of the finger nails or, it may be, fragments of hair of the invalid are secretly mixed with the food to be given to the Mang, and before the sugar water of which he is to partake is given to him the sick man must see his face in it. In this way the evil is supposed to be passed back to where it properly belongs and the disease removed.

STAGE REALISM.

Why Jefferson Didn't Have a Dog Schneider in the Flesh.

It was the privilege of the writer years ago to attend a reception at which Joseph Jefferson spoke on the drama. His treatment of the subject was interesting, the utterance of a man who knew the art of which he spoke. But the most interesting part of the hour came after the completion of the formal address, when an opportunity was given to the audience to ask any questions they wished of Mr. Jefferson. Soon the familiar topic was introduced, the effect of the modern elaboration and realism in stage setting. Mr. Jefferson at once rose to the question: He spoke somewhat rapidly, with a quaint humor and sympathetic charm that were irresistible. He characterized the modern fashion of stage setting as "a tribute to the weakness of the human imagination." "I am often asked," he went on, "why I do not have a real dog Schneider. But if I did none of you would be satisfied. You would go home saying, 'Well, Schneider never looked like that dog!' You love Schneider because you have made him out of a piece of your own heart. And then," meditatively, "if I had a real Schneider some one in the gallery would probably whistle to him at the critical moment, and he would bark and spoil the play, while if he knew his part perfectly and did just what Schneider ought to do—pausing and with his delightful smile—'Schneider would be the hero and not Rip!' Then, with a twinkle of the eye, he summed up the whole matter with the quiet remark, "Realism with a tail to wag in the wrong place is a dangerous thing."—New York Post.

Debbling de Crabs.

In the service of a Baltimore family is an old negro cook known as Aunt Sally, and not the least of her achievements is the preparation of sea food.

In the kitchen one day Aunt Sally's nephew, a nine-year-old lad from a point where crabs are seldom seen, was watching in breathless interest the old lady's deviling of a dish of such crustaceans.

"Aunty," asked he after much reflection upon this mysterious point, "does debbil crabs come from de debbil?"

"No, chile," promptly responded Aunt Sally, "but dey is de debbil to make."—St. Louis Republic.

The President's Oath.

The oath of office taken by the incoming president of the United States is the shortest and the simplest required of any ruler on earth. It is prescribed by the constitution and is as follows:

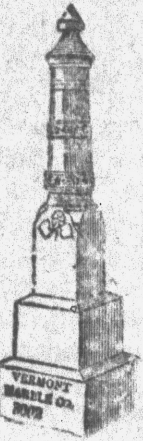

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and, to the best of my ability, protect, preserve and defend the constitution of the United States."

Her Cooking.

—that while other machines run hard with no ball bearings or only 2 sets—The FREE runs as lightly as the wheel of a suspended bicycle with its 8 sets of Ball Bearings.

—that while other machines run slowly with noise and shaking on account of their long shuttles, or else are always getting out of order on account of their rotary shuttles, The FREE has a "Rotating" movement which makes it faster than a round bobbin and simpler than a shuttle.

—that while other machines when broken by accident are ready for the scrap heap—The FREE is insured for 3 years against any kind of accident.

—in short, that while other machines are full of annoyances, imperfections and worries—The FREE is perfect, absolutely perfect.

It does BETTER work, and lasts LONGER, because it is simpler, has fewer working parts, and they are made of better materials.

An Anecdote of Bach.

The Duke of Saxe-Weimar once invited John Sebastian Bach, the Nestor of German music, to attend a dinner at the palace. Before the guests sat down to the feast Bach was asked to give an improvisation. The composer seated himself at the harpsichord and straightway forgot all about dinner and everything else. He played so long that at last the duke touched his shoulder and said, "We are very much obliged, master, but we must not let the soup get cold."

Bach sprang to his feet and followed the duke to the dining room without uttering a word. But he was scarcely seated when he sprang up, rushed back to the instrument like one demented, struck a few chords and returned to the dining room, evidently feeling much better. "I beg your pardon, your highness," he said, "but you interrupted me in a series of chords and arpeg-gios on the dominant seventh, and I could not feel at ease until they were resolved into the tonic. It is as if you had snatched a glass of water from the lips of a man dying of thirst. Now I have drunk the glass out and am content."

A Fair Proposition.

A popular comedian and playwright was praising the humorous value of suggestions. "It is funnier to suggest a thing," he said, "than to say it out.
Playwrights should remember this.
Suggestion—pregnant suggestion—is what makes really funny the little boy's remark to his father, 'Pa, if you help me with my arithmetic lesson tonight I'll tell you where ma hid your trousers.'"

"The Laocoon."

The famous work "The Laocoon" was modeled by the great artists of Rhodes about A. D. 70. It represents the death of the Trojan hero Laocoon priest of Neptune, and his two sons, as described by Virgil. It was discovered near Rome in 1506 and purchased by Pope Julius II. It is now in the Valican. "The Laocoon," like "Hamlet," has provoked a world of comment, but all agree that it is one of the master pieces of artistic expression.—New York American.

New York, Oct. 15.—Cotton opened easier today, nine to seventeen points lower. Opening: October 14.75; November (offered) 14.71; December 14.74; January 14.80.

New York, Oct. 15.—Prices continued to move upward with rapid strides at the opening of the market today. Steel common continued a factor, quoting a gain of 5-8 of a point.
This marked a high record, price of the present movement at 75 5-8.
Steel preferred was also strong with a gain of 1-2. Leading railroads were strong, but there was a reaction and many gains were wiped out. The market continued strong, however,
with industrials also strong.

Chicago Oct. 15.—All grains were up this morning. Corn was strong, oats uncertain, provisions and hogs both higher. Opening: Wheat, December, 95; corn 47 1-8; oats 30 7-8.

A Prison Ship.

"The prison ship is not a thing of the past," says a letter from Germany,
"but the one which I have discovered has no resemblance to the Jersey of Revolutionary times, where American patriots suffered martyrdom. This one is maintained by the city of Luneberg.
There are usually from thirty to forty offenders of the minor class confined there. At night they are locked in cells, and in the daytime they work under overseers on the dikes. The ship looks like one of our American canal-boats, and the interior, while it contains no fancy furniture or decorative features, is light and well ventilated and probably more comfortable than the habitations which the inmates call home."—New York Tribune.

Welsh Red Indians.

Eight or nine hundred years ago a band of adventurous Welshmen landed on the American coast and planted a colony. They never went back, but according to Mr. James McLaughlin in "My Friend the Indian" "became in some sort the ancestors of a tribe of Indians, for the Mandans are thought by some writers to be the descendants of the lost Welshmen. Some philologists have endeavored to prove this to their own satisfaction, and it is said that the Mandans to this day retain in their vocabulary a great many distinctly Welsh words. And for hundreds of years they maintained physical and mental characteristics that have raised them above their fellows."

For Visitors Only.

A young southern woman who moved to Buffalo sent to her mother for a cook who had been brought up in the family. Aunt Venetia's first public trying out was at a luncheon. The fish course was to be crabs; hence the necessity of a lecture on ptomaines
and food poisoning. "Now, be sure, Venetia," said the young woman, "to see that the crabs are alive and healthy before you put them on the fire."

The day the luncheon came, bringing with it the crabs, which looked all that could be desired as they were brought to table. Pinned to one of them was a note from the cook reading:
"Miss Florence—They was all kicking alive except this one. Don't eat it yourself."—Buffalo Express.

His Terrible Accident.

Admiring Young Listener—And how did you lose your leg?
Old Salt—Well, young man, one night in the dogwatch, while I was carryin'
the baby jib, I stepped on a starboard, tack and blood pisin ensued.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Her Status.

Ella—Nothing very serious about her.
Stella—I should say not. If that woman knew the world was coming to an end next week it would be just like her to write to a newspaper asking what to do for blackheads.—Harper's Bazar.
