MANY SOULS MAKE PROFESSION

SUNDAY AN INTERESTING DAY IN BLACK MEETING

FIVE SERVICES HELD THAT DAY

Scores of People Profess Conversion—Brief Notes of the Excellent Sermons—Conviction Carried to Hearts of Hearers and Greenville in the Midst of Great Religious Awakening.

Saturday and Sunday were both attended by much interest in the evangelistic meeting which Dr. William Black is holding in the Methodist church.

For Saturday night the congregation was remarkably large, the main auditorium of the church being nearly full, Dr. Black's sermon that night was from the text: "Strive to enter in at the straight gate." He showed that there is no other way to be saved except to enter the way Christ has given. The text says strive to enter this way. It means a struggle against sin, against the love of sin, against pride, against covetousness and worldliness, against the evil spirits that are continually around to prevent you from going this way. But Christ is ready to help all who earnestly ask Him for help to enter and keep in this way.

There was an immense congregation Sunday morning and again Sunday night, many occupying seats in the annex. The text of the Sunday morning sermon was "Consider your ways." This was spoken by the prophet Haggai to the children of Israel in calling attention to their idolatry, but it applies with equal force to the people and sins of today. So many are lost because they do not consider their ways. They are indifferent to their duties and neglect them. To consider your ways is better even for this world, to say nothing of the world to come. People are so busy with the cares of this world that they do not stop to consider the future. So many church members engage in the same things practiced by the people of the world that they cannot be told apart. They do not consider their ways.

There were three services at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, all of them largely attended. In the Methodist church Dr. Black spoke to men and boys over 15 years of age. In the Baptist church Prof. C. W. Wilson spoke to women and girls over 15 years of age. In the Christian church Rev. J. H. Shore spoke to children. All of these services were interesting.

The text used by Dr. Black Sunday night was the question of the young man who asked Jesus: "Good Master, what good thing must I do to have eternal life? What lack I yet?" Almost! He was a good young man, but not a Christian. He was a moral young man who said he had kept the commandments, he was a ruler in the synagogue, but he lacked Christ. You may be good morally as tried by the standard of the community in which you live, but one thing of importance, are you a child of God? The young man asked Jesus what he must do and Jesus told him, "Sell what you have, give it to the poor, and come follow me. He understood it, but did not obey. Giving away his property would not have been sufficient, he must follow Jesus. To be saved you must put away your sin, whatever it is, and come to Jesus.

All of the services Saturday night and Sunday there were many professions, showing that the seeds sown by Dr. Black in his forceful sermons are bearing fruit. It is hoped that this is but the beginning of a great gathering of souls before the meeting shall close.

There will be services again to night at 7.50.

WHAT WOMEN ARE READING.

In the Last Forty Years One Magazine Has Made Important Discoveries.

Charles Hanson Towne's review of "Noted Contributors to The Delineator" in the anniversary issue of the magazine, proves in what a wide field of thought the modern woman roams. The list of writers who have made The Delineator successful for forty years, includes men and women that have held foremost places in the last half century.

In the seventies the literary pages of the famous fashion magazine contained special articles on kindergarten, employment for girls, and similar subjects; but following the waning interests of women the Delineator in later years has touched all lines of progress. Up to 1905, a magazine outside of its practical fashion end, had been one of entertainment. It had always been intended that it should be so, but its publishers and directors began to have visions of greater usefulness—a magazine, no less, which should be as practical and as forceful and inspiring on its literary as on its fashion side. In fact a literary leadership in great practical usefulness for the home, the state and the nation was conceived and a cautious careful effort to appropriate this ideal begun.

Among the earliest things undertaken under the new theory was a general discussion of marriage and divorce which was looming large at this time. The most noted authorities were approached, and in a series of papers distinguished for their sanity and wisdom, different phases of the problem were presented by Cardinal Gibbons, Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch, Francis L. Potter, LL. D., Bishop William Crosswell Doane, P. of Charles A. Ellwood and Ida Husted Harper.

The publication of this series of papers on this big and timely subject demonstrated conclusively that there was room in the field of intellectual and social endeavor for a magazine like the Delineator. Other topics were undertaken and with the growth of this real interest on the part of our readers, the magazine finally felt justified in seizing a very large and vital topic—namely, "The Delineator Child-Rescue Campaign."

In the spring of 1908 the Delineator began the publication of a series of articles entitled "What is the Matter with the Public Schools?"

It was the shifting of public interest temporarily from the schools to the churches that brought about the next discussion and in preparing the data for the latter topic "What is the Matter with Churches?" some of the greatest religious thought of our time was introduced into the pages of the magazine.

FUNERAL OF MR. T. W. SKINNER.

Body Laid at Rest Today in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

Owing to some members of the family who were on the way to Greenville being unable to reach here until this morning, the funeral of Mr. T. W. Skinner, who died Friday night, was deferred to 11 o'clock today. The service was conducted at the grave in Cherry Hill Cemetery by Rev. J. H. Shore. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. L. Coward, E. B. Ficklen, T. A. Person, C. E. Bradley, J. L. Wooten, T. M. Meade, W. P. Edwards and M. H. Tribby.

Mr. James W. Skinner, sr., of Danville Va., father of the deceased, arrived Saturday evening, and his brothers and one sister came Sunday evening and this morning. They were Mr. James W. Skinner, jr., of St. Louis; Mr. S. R. Skinner, of Lexington, Ky.; Mr. C. R. Skinner, of Roxboro, N. C.; Messrs. B. C. R. R. and E. G. Skinner and Miss Gertrude Lee Skinner, of Danville. The aged mother was so prostrated at the death of her son that she could not come from Danville to the funeral. Those relatives who came found among our people many sympathetic hearts in their sorrow.

SON OF PITT COUNTY IN TEXAS

DR. DAVID R. WALLACE CELEBRATES 85TH BIRTHDAY

HAS BEEN AWAY FIFTY-SEVEN YEARS

Venerable Pitt Countian Passed Three Score Years and Ten—Like Others of Our Dispersed Sons, He Rises to Prominence in His Adopted State.

It gives The Reflector pleasure to print the following extract from the Waco, Texas, Tribune, about a former Pitt countian:

"The Tribune is glad to join with his friends and neighbors in tendering congratulations to Dr. David R. Wallace, venerable and honored citizen of Waco. For on Thursday, November 10, Dr. Wallace completed eighty-five years of life and has entered on his eighty-sixth year. The anniversary found him in what may be called good physical health, his advanced years considered, and as bright and robust as to mentality as in any year of his life—and there are few men in Texas who rank with Dr. Wallace in intellectual attainments, in learning and in the full, rich experience and judgment of a busy and useful life. He spent the day quietly at his home on Austin avenue, with his estimable wife and other members of his family and from many friends here and elsewhere he received congratulations and affectionate esteem. Dr. Wallace, a North Carolinian by birth, has resided sixty years in Texas and a half century of that time in Waco. May he be with us as long as life is pleasant to him."

There are now very few people living in this section who remember Dr. Wallace, as he left Pitt county in 1853. We have heard some of the older people speak of him many times, and we know those of his companions yet living will join in extending congratulations upon his long and useful career. His robust age is more remarkable from the fact that he left Pitt county on account of lung trouble, as we were advised by one of his old pupils and admirers, Mr. R. H. Rountree, of New York. Dr. Wallace taught school in Greenville before the war.

Premier Stolypin and other high officials have expressed open regret at the count's death. The body is being shipped back to his home at Yasnaya today and the funeral will be tomorrow.

One Home for Both.

The Observer cordially sympathizes with the proposal that need and infirm women of the Confederacy be cared for at a State home. But we are not so sure that to provide a separate home is the best way. In Mississippi there is one establishment for both men and women. Thus husband and wife are not kept apart, and expenses of administration are economized. Why not simply admit women to the existing soldiers' home at Raleigh, providing such additional buildings, accommodations and funds as may appear necessary? This would be primarily the legislature's concern, but it would not preclude gifts from individuals, either to maintenance or to foundation at the state. We think that all Southern States should provide a home for their Confederate women and that Mississippi's plan has decisive advantages over any other formulated thus far. Charlotte Observer.

TROOPS HELD IN READINESS.

To Restore Order on the Mexican Border.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Washington, Nov. 21.—Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff U. S. A., today telegraphed Brigadier General Ralph W. Hoyt, commanding department of Texas to hold his forces in readiness to act in conjunction with Governor Campbell, of Texas, should he find it necessary to use United States troops to insure neutrality on the border. The situation continues serious in Mexico. Revolutionists are active. A number of army officers have been arrested for connection with the revolution.

Man's hindrance occurs when he has opposition.

DIFFICULTIES.

Step boldly over difficulties. One brave step makes the next one easier. True, the road seems more piled up with obstacles as one goes along; but, then, one is made stronger and more capable with every step, so that relatively we have an easy road always before us. At least if not exactly easy it becomes more interesting. One feels less inclined to grumble.

EDUCATIONAL GATHERING

ANNUAL MEETING IN RALEIGH DEC. 1ST, 2ND, AND 3RD

PRIMARY TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Large Attendance Expected—Many Strong Speakers of National Reputation to Discuss Important Subjects—Co-operation of Superintendants Asked.

The Primary Teachers' Association will hold its sixth annual meeting in Raleigh, December 1st, 2nd, and 3rd. As so many strong speakers have been secured it is hoped that the attendance will be the largest that this association has yet had.

Miss Naomi Norsworthy, Ph. G., Columbia University, has been secured to make two, and probably three addresses. Dr. Norsworthy is professor of Psychology in Teachers College Columbia University. Her research work in psychology and child study have made her a recognized authority in this department. She is also a woman of delightful personality and a magnetic teacher.

Miss Laura McAllester, a graduate of the Boston School of Gymnastics, will speak on play—a factor in the school-room. Miss McAllester was formerly connected with the city schools of Rochester, New York, as physical director. She is now physical director of the State Normal and Industrial College.

Prominent primary teachers of the State will also give talks.

Drs. Rankin and Tucker, of Raleigh, have consented to give talks on subjects relating to the health of school children. These gentlemen are too well known throughout the State to need any introduction.

The primary teachers of Raleigh are making every effort to entertain the teachers royally.

Any one who expects to attend is asked to notify Miss Mary Arrington, Person street, Raleigh, N. C., a week in advance. Superintendents recognizing the benefit their teachers received have often given a holiday during the days that they are absent. Any superintendent is gladly welcomed at the meetings.

MRS. SCHENCK ARRAIGNED.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Laura Schenck, under indictment for the attempted murder of her husband, was arraigned in court this morning. The court room was packed to its capacity. The woman's lawyers said they had decided to file special pleas to each of the five counts in the bill indictment. The notice showed that she will make a hard fight for liberty. It was asked that the trial be set for December 19th.

DAY OF THANKSGIVING.

Governor Kitchin Issues a Proclamation.

Governor W. W. Kitchin has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

"During the past year peace and order have prevailed in our State and we have had bountiful harvests and great material progress, for all of which we should be duly thankful. A state no more than an individual should live not by bread alone and we should likewise be thankful for the spread of knowledge and the quickening of the public conscience which has been vouchsafed to us.

Therefore, I, W. W. Kitchin, governor of North Carolina in pursuance of custom and in accordance with law, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November the 24th, 1910, a day of Thanksgiving, to provide special opportunity for the people to lay aside their accustomed work and render thanks to Almighty God for His manifold blessings. Charity to the needy and kindness to all, better even than prayer and songs of praise will exemplify our appreciation of the blessings which have come to us.

In witness hereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed, this 19th day of November, 1910, and in the one hundred and thirty-fourth year of the American Independence.

W. W. KITCHIN, Governor.

MONDAY NOVEMBER 21, 1910.

The colonel is crawling out of his after election shell but has not yet done any talking.

Uncle Sam goes on doing his share of holding down the census by blowing up something and killing a bunch of his soldiers now and then.

Count Leo Tolstoy, the noted Russian novelist and reformer, died Sunday morning at the advanced age of 82 years. A great man has gone in his passing away.

In Washington a few nights ago the home of Mr. R. D. Walls was robbed of $136 which he kept in a trunk. If the money had been deposited in the bank it would be there now.

Ex-Congressman W. A. B. Branca died Friday night at his home in Beaufort county. He was 63 years of age, and was the representative of this district in congress for four years.

A Two-Party Country Still.

If the presidential election had been held last Tuesday week, and if the voters had voted as they did, the Democratic candidate would have received 267 electoral votes, or 27 more than are necessary to elect. The electoral vote of four states, aggregating eighteen, would have been divided, with the Democrats probably receiving the major part. We freely concede that the Democratic party might not have done quite so well with a presidency at stake; it has usually been strongest in the so-called off years. At the same time, Democratic majorities in big pivot States like New York and Ohio were so decisive and the popular desire to counter upon the Republican administration was so manifest that Democratic success would have remained probable.

Republican spokesmen are now seeking consolation in the professed belief that this year's defeat will unite their own party and give the Democrats an appreciated opportunity to break each other's heads. In this as it may, the continued existence of two fairly well-matched parties is evident enough. The Democratic party's ability to take punishment and survive has been more impressively demonstrated since 1892 than ever before.—Charlotte Observer.

Is of the Morally Stunted.

An interesting visitor to Lexington last week was Mr. Phillip Sowles, eighty-seven years old and as spry as a cricket. He owns 4,400 acres of good land lying in Davidson and Rowan counties and he was in the city on business connected with his Davidson county estate. He is enjoying the best of health, sleeps well and eats better. His digestion is as good as it was when he was thirty. His eye-sight is better than that of many men of forty and he does not have to wear glasses. He chews tobacco and has been chewing the weed since the day whereof memory of the majority of men runneth not to the contrary and he takes a drink whiskey or corn "likker" whenever he feels like it. May he live to pass the century mile post and many years beyond.—Lexington Dispatch.

"Remember, my son" says Ro J. Burdette, "you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or a wheelbarrow or set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work. If you look around you, you will see the men who are most able to live the rest of their lives without work are the men who work the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with overwork. It is beyond your power to do that, on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes, but it is because they quit work at 6 p. m., and don't get home till 2 a. m. It is the interval that kills, my son. The work gives you an appetite for your meals, it lends solidity to your slumbers; it gives you a perfect and grateful appreciation of a holiday.

"There are young men who do not work, but the work is not proud of them. It does not even know their names; it simply speaks of them as 'old so-and-so' boys. No body likes them. The great, busy world does not know that they are there. So find out what you want to be and do, and take off your coat and do it. The busier you are the less harm you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays and the better satisfied will all the world be with you."

And we may add, the greater honor will you be to your God who made you, redeemed and sanctified you, if you will apply the above advice not only to your earthly calling, but also to the work of the church.

Do something for God.—Ex.

Where He Made His Money.

Years ago a gentleman settled in the south of England and became very popular in the neighborhood. The county families could never discover how he had made his money, but were satisfied by his solemn assurance that it was not in trade. Nothing could exceed the ordinary gravity of his demeanor, which indeed caused him to be placed on the commission of peace, but now and then, without any apparent provocation, he would burst into such a laugh as no one ever heard before except in one place. Where they could have heard it puzzled the county families for five and twenty years, but at last he was betrayed unconsciously by his own grandchild, who, after a visit to a traveling circus, innocently exclaimed, "Why, grandpa laughs just like the clown!"—James Payn.

Her Conclusion.

"I've got my opinion of a woman that can't cook," growled William De Kikkur, glaring at his better half. "I suppose that if our cook would get married I'd starve to death!" "You needn't worry about that, William," said Mrs. De K. gently. "Our cook has been married once, and I don't consider it at all likely that she would care to—"

But her irate spouse had slammed the door behind him.—Cleveland Leader.

The Why and Wherefore of Many Army Customs.

HAND AND SWORD SALUTES.

The Origin of the Former Goes Back to the Time of the Borgias and the Latter to the Knights of the Crusades—Funeral Volleys and Taps.

Why does a soldier when saluting a superior raise his hand to his head covering? The beginning dates back to the time of the Borgias, if not to an earlier date. In those days assassination was in vogue, and in order that an inferior might not have a superior at advantage the inferior was compelled when coming into his superior's presence to raise his right hand, palm to the front, to show that no dagger was concealed there. From this old custom our hand salute has come down.
The salute with the sword was not done that way in the beginning without any reason. When knights of the crusades received their orders it was the custom for them to call upon God to witness their assumption of the orders given. To do this the sword was raised to the front so that the hilt reached the lips, when the cross formed by the hilt and blade could be kissed and an oath registered to carry out the orders faithfully. The dropping of the sword, point to the front, indicates submission.

Why in the funeral cortege of a mounted officer or soldier is the horse, saddled and equipped, with the boots of the late rider placed heels to the front in the stirrups, led to the place of burial? To show by reversal of the boots the owner's march has ended.

We must go back to the days of the Romans for the reason why in the service three volleys are fired over the open grave of a comrade. Among the Romans the burial consisted of the throwing of earth three times on the coffin. Three times was the dead man called by name, which ended the ceremony, and as the friends and relatives departed each said "Vale!" three times. So as a farewell to our dead comrades we fire three volleys over the grave. Then the service called taps is sounded, this closing the ceremony.

Why should the call taps be sounded in preference to any other? Because "taps" is the call for "lights out," and the lights of life are out in the comrade who has "joined the silent bivouac of the dead." This ending of a service funeral dates back to the early forties, but did not become a fixed custom till late in the civil war.

There was a reason for causing all witnesses before a military court to remove the glove from the right hand before taking the oath. The raising of the hands and eyes toward heaven when taking an oath is of great antiquity. When the Bible was printed the bare hand was laid on the book, which was afterward kissed. But the Bible was not always at hand when needed. So the custom of raising the right hand and uncovering the head has grown into general practice. In olden days the criminal was branded in the palm of the right hand, and for this reason the custom of requiring the removal of the glove came into vogue in order that the hand might be inspected.

The colored silk sash long worn by officers of our army, which for many years has ceased to form part of the uniform, except for general officers, was not adopted simply because it looked pretty. It was originally intended that this sash, which was very strong, woven of silk and could be stretched out to over a yard in width, should be used as a hammock in which wounded officers could be carried off the battlefield.

And likewise the gaudy colored horsehair plume that flowed from the helmet was not placed there because it looked so well. The original hair plume hung down on the shoulders of the wearer, and it was intended that it should be a safeguard against a saber cut aimed at the back of the neck, for the long thick hair would turn the blow and save decapitation or an ugly wound. Today the little hair tuft seen on the headress of mounted soldiers is the result.

There is a reason why the flag at half staff, as an indication of sorrow, must always be hoisted to the top of the staff before being lowered. The flag is saluted when raised and lowered only when it is at the peak of the staff. So when it is necessary to display it at half mast it must be raised to the top before being finally lowered, for at this time the gun fires its salute, and either the band or the trumpeters are sounding appropriate music or call.

Twenty-one guns, the number fired in the international salute, were not selected at random. The number was chosen by our government because it was the number long used by the British for their international salute. Why the British used twenty-one guns was no doubt due to an early custom which had for a warship salute seven guns.
A fort was allowed to fire three times as many guns as a warship, because in those days it was difficult to keep powder in good condition at sea. It could be kept in good condition on land, and consequently the shore battery was allowed a larger number, or twenty-one.
When the time arrived that better powder was made and it could be carried at sea without deterioration the warship was allowed the same number of guns as the shore battery, and the twenty-one of today are the result.

Robbers of Naples as Daring as They Are Resourceful.

SCHEME OF ONE LONE THIEF.

Masterly Manner in Which This Audacious Rogue Pilfered a Church Furnishing Shop and Corded Up Its Too Confiding Proprietor.

His name was Signor Domenico Doctor Dolcibnetti, and he was host in Rome. For a scholar with a degree he enjoyed his meals rather unrestrainedly, but after the spaghetti and capretto had disappeared he used to slow his pace over the flocchio con vino and to straighten his back, wipe his mustache and begin his stories.

"Napoli! Si, si! Naples? Bella citta, beautiful, beautiful! And what thieves are they in Naples! It is the one city where you cannot lead a donkey through the streets."

There did not seem to be much connection between these, and our puzzled looks said so.

"Perche? You dare not lead. You must take him by the tail, for when the unsuspecting peasant leads an ass laden with panniers or onions or wood into Naples before long he happens to glance back, and, behold, all is gone—produce, panniers, pack saddle, all sliced. Thereafter he takes the ass by the tail and steers him through the streets that he may watch constantly.

"Pol—it is all organized. Some years ago the leader of the robbers was the captain. Everybody knew him. When anything was stolen from one, one went not to the police, but to the captain.

"There was a little music master came home one day and found his piano gone, a whole piano, and no one in the house could say how, when or where it went. The little man was distracted.

"Then he took heart and went to the captain and stood before him with his hat in his hands. He was just a poor music teacher. His piano was all he had in the world. He—"Go," said the captain. "At 6 this evening you have your piano." And about the time of the service that afternoon a wagon came to the little man's door, and four men heaved out a piano, which they set in its accustomed corner; then they drove off without a word.

"Pol, the music man, went again to the captain's house and began to thank him and to fumble about in his pocket-ets, saying that he did not have much, about 20 lire, all his savings—22 lire perhaps. "What—twenty-two lire!" yelled the other. "I, who am rich, whom men call the captain—22 lire to me! You poor!—And he kicked him down the stairs.

"But the most remarkable robbery was done not by the hand, but by a Neapolitan single handed.

"One day there drove up to a church furnishing shop an equipage with two prancing horses and a liveried coachman and halted before the big windows full of precious finery. A beautifully dressed little signor alighted and asked to see the proprietor. He said he had a cousin who would the next day be ordained bishop and he desired to purchase appropriate gifts.
First he would see a crozier. The proprietor fetched a superb crozier of silver, the crook of it gold, wonderfully chased and overwrought with carving.
"How much?" asked the well dressed man.

"Five thousand lire, signor."
"Good! Tie it up and put it in the carriage. And let me see also a miter. And again he chose the costliest, one frosted with silver arabesques and beaded with pearls. He sat down to write a check for 8,000 lire altogether. But, no; he would see also a bishop's ring. "How much was this one?"

"Two thousand lire, signor."
"Good! And that, too, went into the carriage with the mitre and crozier.
Finally this princely customer would buy a complete vesture and decided on a figured alb brodered with cloth of gold from shoulder to foot. "Only," he doubted, "will it fit? But stay," he said to the shopman; "you are a big man, almost as large as my cousin.
See if the garment will fit you." So the proprietor put it on and stood clothed in magnificence from cravat to ankle.

"Good! Beautiful! Only the waist.
My cousin happens to be enormous of girth. Suppose you put your arms at your sides, and I shall fix the girdle to include them. That will about equal my cousin's waist." So he buckled the belt tight about the proprietor's wrists and moved back to survey the effect.
"Boun! Bellissima! Most beautiful!" he cried. "And now, signor—buon giorno!" He skipped through the door, into his carriage and whirled downtown.

"At that 'Good day' the proprietor let out one awful yell and bounded into the street. "Thief!" he screeched.
He crashed into astounded people, tripped in his golden skirts, rolled and could not get up again.

"People would not touch him, kicking and frothing and trying to point —Thief, thief!—would not even look in the direction of the vanishing carriage.
Finally the police grabbed him, discovered that he was insane and a robber and hustled him to prison. Pol—they let him go next morning."—Philadelphia Ledger.
