THERE IS MONEY IN FARMING RIGHT

WHAT ONE PITT COUNTY MAN HAS DONE SINCE THE WAR

"THE ETERNAL FITNESS OF THINGS"

Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse Buys Farms and Makes Them Bring Ten Times Their Original Cost—Avon Farm Advances Fifty Per Cent. in Five Years.

There are people who say there is no money in farming, but Pitt county has a man who has proven quite to the contrary.

Between the age of 16 and 17, Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse served one year in the civil war, and before the close of that conflict in recognition of his valor he was made captain of a company, having the distinction of being the youngest commissioned officer in the army from North Carolina. Coming home at the close of the war he clerked for two years and then worked a year in the shingle business.

In 1869 his father's landed estate was sold, and young Laughinghouse bought it at $14,500, going in debt for most of it. Many thought at the time he had made a big blunder, as he had only about $2,000 to stock and run the farm. His conduct had been such as to merit him all the credit needed, and being possessed of plenty of energy and determination he had plain sailing. In the course of time he paid for his farm, and made much improvement on it from year to year.

He married in 1870, and raising a large family was among the other good things he did for his county.

A few years ago Mr. Laughinghouse sold this farm for 25,000. He had purchased another small farm near his in 1891, paying $1,000 for it. He kept this, improved it, and worked it until this year, and sold it recently for $10,000. In 1905 he bought the famous Avon plantation for $25,000, and he sold this also on the 15th inst., for $37,500. This leaves him with one small farm yet, and for that he has been offered ten times its original cost.

When he was actively engaged in farming, his tobacco crop alone for many years was from 150 to 200 acres. He farmed successfully, knew how to manage his hands, and believed in having good buildings for his tenants.

After he came into office Governor Kitchin appointed Mr. Laughinghouse superintendent of the State prison and State farms, these being under one department of the State government. We see by his official report that he has practically doubled the earnings of the farms, and has made more improvement in buildings and teams than were made in ten years previous. He is now putting the dykes back and hopes to have the farms in extra fine condition by the expiration of another year.

Governor Kitchin certainly made no mistake when he put Mr. Laughinghouse in charge of the State's farming interests. The Reflector said something about it at the time of the appointment, and can repeat it now, that there is truth in "the eternal fitness of things." When people are sick they want a doctor, when they need legal advice they want a lawyer, when they go to build a house, they want a carpenter, and when there is farming to be done they want a farmer.

The career of Mr. Laughinghouse is conclusive proof that there is money in farming when the man who goes at it knows how to farm.

WILD WEST HOLD UP.

London Gets a Touch of American Ways.

By Cable to The Reflector.
London, Dec. 17.—An American wild west hold-up on the streets of London today resulted in the death of two policemen who were riddled with bullets and the serious wounding of three others by burglars who were caught trying to get into a goldsmith shop. The criminals are believed to be Americans and were as unerring in their gun play as was ever demonstrated upon the plains. The policemen, five strong, entered the building and every one was wounded by the burglars who got away.

MR. GRIMES' REPORT.

Report to Governor Kitchin of the Affairs of His Office.

Secretary of State J. Bryan Grimes has made public his report to the governor for the two years ending November 30, 1910. The report is an interesting document, containing much information and valuable suggestions. We cannot give the entire report here. It treats of public lands, supreme court reports, permanent roll of registered voters, need of administration building, corporations, etc.

Under the head of need of an administration building, the report says:

In the report of the secretary of state two years, I said:

"For more than a quarter of a century each secretary of state has called attention to the need of a proper place for the storage of the many thousands of dollars worth of books belonging to the state. The books have been placed in piles in various rooms about the city and subject to damage and danger of many kinds. The laws and supreme court reports are now stored on the fourth floor of the Uzzell building, in a hall 60x100 feet, for which the state is paying a rental of $240 a year. The number of books is annually increasing and the state should make provisions for properly caring for the same.

"The Board of Public Buildings added the large room on the third floor of the northeast side of the capitol, formerly occupied by the insurance commissioner, to the rooms of the state department, but this is now more than full of old manuscript journals, laws and valuable documents of many kinds. The secretary of state now shares that room with the Historical Commission.

"The large room on the southwest side of the third floor of the capitol was some years ago made a part of the offices allotted to the department of state. This room is filled with official records, maps, manuscripts, priceless documents, old bills and acts of the general assembly, etc. During sessions of the general assembly it is used as an enrolling office. In the old closets of the capitol there are many thousands of valuable papers that should be properly filed if space permitted.

"There is no space in the capitol to arrange for the books and documents that are now overflowing every department, and a fire proof hall of records should be built to care for the highly perishable property that the state has now on hand. Many manuscripts, papers, books and historical relics would be donated to the state if a proper repository was provided for their safe keeping.

Conditions are now worse and we are even more crowded than ever. In addition to the Uzzell building, I have rented the second story of the Commercial Printing Company's building for storage purposes at a cost to the state of $25.00 a month. In the cramped surroundings of the various offices, the state cannot secure as satisfactory and efficient service as would be possible with better facilities and more room and more up-to-date conveniences. In my opinion it would be to the advantage of our people and an economy for our state to acquire the two blocks bounded by Edenton and Jones, Wilmington and Salisbury streets, and erect thereon a modern, up-to-date fire proof administration building that would meet the needs of the state for forty years. These two blocks conjoined would then form a public square 420x516 feet, the same width as Union Square, on which the capitol stands."

Under railroads, the following is given:

The following seventeen railroad companies have filed certificates in this office according to chapter 61, of the Revisal of 1905: For the year ending November 30, 1909, Sanford & Glendon Railroad Company, Piedmont Railway Company (re-organized), name changed from Carolina Valley Railroad Company; Northampton & Hertford Railway Company, (re-organized), Sanford & Glendon Railroad Company (amendment), Ashe County Railroad Company, Carthage & Pinehurst Railroad Company (amendment).—Raleigh Times.

COWARD-CANNON.

A Pretty Marriage at Ayden Wednesday Afternoon.

Ayden, N. C., Dec. 16.—One of the prettiest and most brilliant marriages ever witnessed in Ayden was solemnized in the Christian church Wednesday afternoon when Mr. John Holliday Coward, a prominent business man of this city, led to the altar Miss Blanche Winnifred Cannon, the beautiful, accomplished and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Cannon.

The church was beautifully decorated in pot plants and ferns. The bride and groom stood beneath the arch of mistletoe and the bridal party forming a semi-circle before the altar stood against a back ground of ferns. The whole decorations under the direction of Miss Alice Hodges of Kinston, were most complete and perfect.

Just before the bridal party entered Miss Mary Moye, of Farmville, sang in her usually sweet and charming way, that beautiful love lyric, "Oh, Perfect Love." Then as the gentle strains of the wedding march burst forth from the piano under the touch of Miss Vivian Roberson, of Robersonville; the bridal party entered as follows: The ushers Messrs. J. C. Noble and C. W. Howard, Jr., the bride's maids and grooms man Mr. Roy Turnage, Miss Minnie Coley, of Hookerton, and Mr. Allen Cannon; the dame of honor, Mrs. H. V. Staton, of Bethel, Miss Sudie Mae Cannon, sister of the bride.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. C. V. Cannon, and met at the altar by the groom on the arm of his best man, Mr. Wm. Darden.

The bride wore a handsome tailored travelling suit of navy blue broad cloth and carried white bride's roses. The bride's maids wore white and carried white carnations.

The ring ceremony was used, Rev. C. Manley Morton, pastor of the Christian church, Wilmington, officiated.

Immediately after the ceremony, amid a shower of rice, congratulations and good wishes of a host of friends, the happy couple boarded the north bound train for a tour of northern cities and points of interest.

Carr, cashier of the Greenville Banking and Trust Company, met in the office of the Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Company, and in the presence of a large number of farmers who had gathered to witness the distribution of the prizes proceeded to carry out the details of the contest.

The office force of the Consolidated has been so busy since, that we have not been able to get a detailed report of the lucky ones.

This will be published in Monday's paper. The capital prize of $50 was awarded to Mr. W. R. Summerell, of Contentnea township.

AGAINST THE "WAR SCORE"

President Does Approve Secretary's Report.

Washington, Dec. 17.—The administration is still scrapping over the suppressed "war score" in the report of Secretary Dickinson. The president is in a rage about the matter and has called down the secretary who it is rumored may resign. Major General Wood has been talked of by the president for his share in the fiasco. General Wood is a Roosevelt protégé and no love is wasted for him by the administration. Excellent relations hitherto existing between the white house and the war department have been severely strained. President Taft is unwilling to appear as an advocate of increased military appropriations at this time.

Dickinson Will Not Reply.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, Dec. 17.—Secretary Dickinson today sent out a letter to the house in which he informed the members that he would make no reply to the McLakeland resolution, because public interest forbade that publicity be given at this time to the condition of our national defense.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—After 18 hours deliberation the jury in trial of Charles E. Ernststein, accused of "ar-ranging" the jury to acquit Lee O'Neil Browne in the latter's second trial for bribery in connection with election of William Lorimer to the senate, disagreed today and was discharged.

A Boys' Spending Money.

With only a little money to invest, you can get only a few things, therefore be sure to get the things you most need and desire. Compare the value to you of the different things you can get before deciding on any one of them. This is one rule you will do well to remember, and there are two others which I believe to be of equal importance.

The first of these is: Do not spend all your money. Keep a little on hand always. There may, of course, be times when you can not do this, but they will be few and far between, and you never know when you may need your money more than you do at the present.

The other rule is: Learn to distinguish between spending money and investing it, and be sure to invest some. When you pay out your money for things to eat or wear or amuse yourself with, you are spending it, because these things bring back no financial return. When you buy something which you expect to sell for more money or to help you earn more money, you are investing. It took me a long time to learn the difference in these two cases. I have seen lots of full-grown men who seem never to have realized it. They do not see at all the essential difference for example, in buying a suit of clothes to wear out and in buying a new plow to enable them to make better crops. It is the men who realize this difference, and who invest part of their money, so that it will help them to make more, who get ahead.

Of course, it is just as necessary, oftentimes, to put money into things that bring in no return as into those that do. It is perfectly proper for you to spend money just for pleasure; but it is a great mistake for you to spend all your money in such a way that none of it will be helping you to make more.

Keep this idea always in mind, and see that a fair part of the money you

When Will Humanity Learn?

When will humanity ever be so firmly impressed with the common sense way of putting their money in the bank for safe keeping, instead of hiding it around the house or keeping it bulging in their pockets? The lesson has been learned by a great number, and more are being added to the enlightened list about daily, but there is still a wide field for this realization to cover. There is certainly not wisdom in trying to hoard money by keeping it in house or in pockets, and more often there is absolute personal danger. Instances where money secreted in the home is stolen are of frequent occurrence, but it is not a rarity to hear of some person being killed just by reason of having kept large sums of money around the house. In fact no later than yesterday the reading public beheld news of what might be termed a wholesome tragedy over in Kansas the deed being done by some person or persons bent on robbery, and who went to rob the house by reason of the fact that it had long been known that the inmates kept large sums of money in the house. So there was a case where people met death simply by their unwise idea of not putting their money in the bank. In the bank it would have been safe, the depositors would have been drawing interest, and they would have, in all probability, have been living today.—Wilmington Dispatch.

The Greenville Daily Reflector has had a birthday. It is "sweet sixteen," numerically speaking, but it has always been "sweet sixteen" and will always be, as long as Whichard is at the helm. The Reflector is indeed a bright paper and it is doing a fine work for its city and for Eastern North Carolina. May it live long, continuing its useful work in behalf of progress and its charming ways for its many readers.—Wilmington Dispatch.

The next legislature will be asked to establish new counties. All aspiring new counties should be made to show that they can support themselves and help to support the state and its great institutions and not act all get back from the people's taxes more than half-hammered counties pay to the State treasury. A county which holds out its paws for a State pension ought to be a township in some real county.—Wilmington Star.

Indeed, this is one investment I believe every boy can well afford to make. Nothing will give you bigger returns than will the preparation to do better work. That is one of the things you should be most eager and earnest in doing for largely as you train yourself now will be your chance later in life of earning and accomplishing.—Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

"Goodmen" and "Goodwomen."

A pleasing form of address that was common in the seventeenth century has gone quite out of use, probably because of its restriction to "inferior persons." The "Mr." was then a prefix to which only gentlemen were entitled, and among the puritan fathers of New England the deprivation of the right to be so addressed was indicted as a punishment. "Goodman" or "Goodwoman" by contraction "Goody" was the address of those in the social scale. The term is resurrected in some old songs.—London Family Herald.

Some Interference Wireless Operators Cannot Overcome.

Few are the steamer passengers who fail to visit the wireless office aboard ship to watch the operation of the instruments and to question the operator. Needless to say, the technical understanding of the well meaning visitors is a variable quantity. The operator must listen to wondering exclamations, original suggestions for the improvement of the service, discourses on the relations between wireless telegraphy and spiritualism and other doubtful topics with uniform courtesy. At times, however, the strain is too great. It was a lady passenger with an eye for details who came to the wireless room and looked wonderingly in.

"Oh, here's the wireless! May I come in? Isn't it wonderful to think of sending those—those waves—you call them waves, don't you? How fascinating to work at this! Are those jars filled with water?"

"Those are condenser jars, madam, quite empty."

"Really? I don't believe I could ever understand it. That coil of wire looks like a birdcage."

"That is the inductance helix."

"What are those things over your ears?"

"The receiving telephones."

"Then you have telephone connection too. One can hardly keep up with the times these days. What does that coil do?"

"That is the receiving tuner and interference preventer."

"Wonderful! Does it keep out all interference?"

"Not all," replied the operator wearily. "Some kinds of interference can't be tuned out; we just have to stand it."—Youth's Companion.

EIGHT CENTS A DAY.

Workers' Pay in England When Board Was a Shilling a Week.

There was a time when a workman in England received 8 cents a day as an ordinary wage, when skilled artisans commanded 12 cents a day and when women worked in the field at such tasks as reaping straw, hoeing, planting beans and washing sheep for 2 cents a day, and a wise student of the subject has expressed the opinion that the British workman of that day was better off than he has ever been since then.

That sounds paradoxical. But the explanation is this: The workman who sold his services for 8 cents a day could buy good beef or mutton for 1½ cents a pound. Wheat cost him on the average only 18 cents a bushel. He could get board for 12 to 16 cents a week. The pay he would receive for fifteen weeks' services would suffice to purchase a supply of suitable foodstuffs, according to the standard of his time (consisting of wheat, malt and oatmeal), to maintain his family for an entire year.

Under these circumstances 8 cents a day—increased to 12 cents in harvest time—was a fair wage, and "times were good" for the average workman. —McClure's Magazine.

Opera in Dumb Show.

The late Clara Novello in her reminiscences tells how Malibran once appeared in "Sonnambula" without uttering a note. She had taken cold and was prevented from singing at the last moment, though crowds of early comers already filled the house. "On the manager telling her, in despair, that, besides loss of money, these disappointed people would be dangerous she said, 'I can't speak above my breath; I should have to do it in dumb show!' Bunn at once caught at this outburst as if seriously meant and on his knees begged her to try this, and she, fired by the novelty, did so. The grateful public raved in praise of this surprising tour de force, and the sensation it made filled the papers."

Bathing Machines.

Somebody has inquired why "bathing machines," the comfortable privacy of which for ocean bathing has never attracted bathers in this country, are called machines, remarking that there is nothing of a machine about them except the horse which draws them to the beach. The answer has been found in the new Oxford Dictionary. It appears that a "machine" was originally a "structure of any kind, material or immaterial," and has nothing to do with machinery, a later word. Ships were called machines, and it would have been proper to speak of a pulpit as a machine. —Argonaut.

Laughter and Death.

He can be said to have won the game of life who at the last can laugh. That final speech of O. Henry, the short story writer, was finer than any story he ever wrote. Just as he was dying he turned to the doctor and said: "Pull up the curtain, doc. I'm afraid to go home in the dark." The speech had in it wide courage and a sense of values. One forgives the royal Charles much frivolity for the sake of his dying speech, "Gentlemen, I fear I'm an unconscionable time a-dying." —Harper's.

A Completed Case.

"Of course, doctor, German measles are seldom serious?"

"I never met but one fatal case."

"Fatal?"

"Yes. It was a Frenchman, and when he discovered it was German measles that he had mortification set in."

Philosophy is nothing but discretion.

The Farmer and the Price.

The annual report of Mr. James Wilson, secretary of Agriculture is a document that The Chronicle always goes over carefully each year. We have already given some of the data from the report for 1910, but there is more to it, which we think worth publishing. For instance, Mr. Wilson declares in behalf of the farmer that "the conclusion is inevitable that the consumer has no well-grounded complaint against the farmer for the prices that he pays. The farmer supplies the capital for production and takes the risk of his losses; his crops are at the mercy of drought and flood and heat, and frost, to say nothing of noxious insects and blighting diseases. He supplies hard exacting unremitting labor. A degree and range of information and intelligence are demanded by agriculture which at hardly equaled in any other occupation. Then there is the risk of over-production and disastrously low prices. From beginning to end the farmer must steer dextrously to escape perils to his profits, and indeed to his capital, on every hand. At last the products are started on their way to the consumer. The railroad generally speaking, adds a percentage of increase to the farmer's prices that is not large. After delivery by the railroad the products are stored a short time, are measured into the various retail quantities, more or less small, and the dealers are rid of them as soon as possible. The dealers have risks that are practically small, except credit sales, and such risks as grow out of their trying to do an amount of business which is small as compared with their number." Mr. Wilson might have rung in just here, a word for the Farmers' Union, for that organization is trying to bring about the end which he seems to be aiming at—co-operation in the marketing of the products.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Aiding Good Roads.

The government seems to have been diligent in the matter of aiding the work of good roads building in the country. From the report of the secretary of agriculture we quote that instruction in the methods of road building has continued through the medium of object-lesson roads, built at local expense, under the supervision of an engineer of the office of public roads. More than one million square yards of road, equivalent to about 14 miles of road 15 feet wide, were completed during the year. Viewed as a construction record alone this would constitute an excellent showing, but when it is considered that this mileage was made up of 55 object lesson roads each constituting a miniature school of road building, comprising 10 distinct types of construction it must be evident that this feature of the department work is a powerful factor in the promotion of the movement for the betterment of the public roads. An inspection last year of 22 object lesson roads, aggregating about 22 miles, showed that their effect upon the different localities had resulted in the building of 730 miles of additional roads according to the same methods and had brought about the expenditure of public roads. More than one million square yards of road, equivalent to about 14 miles of road 15 feet wide, were completed during the year. Viewed as a construction record alone increase of about 70 per cent. over the amount of like work performed during the preceding fiscal year.—Charlotte Chronicle.

When President is Elected by House.
If no person shall have a majority of the electoral vote for president, the election of president goes into the house of representatives. In the house, the vote is taken by States, each State having one vote, to be cast by the delegation. In case of an equal division of the delegates from a State and their inability to agree upon a candidate, that State would lose its vote. In an election by the house, Nevada, which has one representative in congress, and a population about as great as that of a good sized county, would count for as much as the great State of New York.
It is barely within the realm of possibility that the election of the next president will go into the house. Such a thing has not happened since the election of John Quincy Adams, in 1824. But if the electoral colleges which will be chosen in 1912 should fail to elect, the election would go into the house of the sixty-second congress and a deadlock would probably ensue. A majority of all the states is necessary for a choice, and in the new congress neither party has a majority of the States. In the present congress, the Republicans control the votes of 28 States, the Democrats, 16, while two States—Maryland and Nebraska—are equally divided. In the new congress elected last month the delegation from 29 States are controlled by the Democratic party, and those of 21 States by the Republican party. Three delegations—those of Maine, Nebraska and Rhode Island—are equally divided—Baltimore Sun.

"The O'Teak."
The late Prince Francis of Teck was known in royal circles as The O'Teak. The story goes that when Prince Francis was making his arrangements for hunting in Ireland he wrote to a forage dealer in County Meath with reference to the necessary supplies for his stud.
The man was greatly puzzled by the signature and at length, after anxious consideration, addressed his reply to Francis O'Teak, Esquire.—London Graphic.

Her Auto Duster.
Mrs. Kean wasn't exactly satisfied with her new maid.
"Don't you ever use your duster, Pauline?" she sternly inquired.
"Oh, yes, ma'am," replied Pauline absently; "I always-use it when my chauffeur beau takes me riding!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NEW YORK AND CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago Markets

December wheat	91 1-8	91 3-4
December corn	45 1-2	45 3-4
January ribs	10.20	10.17
May ribs	9.65	9.60
January lard	10.30	10.25
May lard	10.02	10.02
Greenville cotton	14 5-8.

By Wire to The Reflector. Cotton.

New York, Dec. 17.—Firm cables and strength here caused cotton to open steady one to six points higher. There was good demand with business fairly active. Cables were favorably affected by the Ellison report which estimates a weekly increase of 10,000 bales in Great Britain's consumption. Opening: December 14.84; January 14.85; March 15.15; May 15.37.

Stocks.

New York, Dec. 17.—With the exception of Interborough Metropolitan stocks, and National Biscuit there was but little changes in prices of stocks in early trading. National Biscuit was exceedingly strong, moving up more than a point. Price changes in most of the railroad stocks were confined to fractions.
Steel Common advanced 1-8 at the end of the first half hour. Almost complete stagnation ruled throughout the general list.

Grain.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—Wheat opened tame and listless with trade small;
corn was a shade firmer; oats about steady; provisions slow and easier.

Opening: Wheat, May, 95 3-4; corn,
December, 45 3-4; oats, December 31
1-2; pork, January, 19.20.

Another Quick Adjustment.

Mr. C. L. Wilkinson, Agent,

Dear Sir:
Please accept our thanks for the quick and satisfactory adjustment of our damage on our new brick buildings on Dickinson avenue sustained by fire Sunday morning. We like the way you handle a loss. We had just taken this insurance late Saturday evening, and we are glad you come to us and prevailed with us to "take."
