SPIRITING PRISONER AWAY FROM MOB

WEST VIRGINIA NEGRO AS- SAULTS YOUNG LADY

OFFICERS HAVE TROUBLE WITH MOB

The Negro is First Locked in Vault, Then in Express Safe, Then in Jail, and Finally Landed in The Penitentiary—Mob Angered and Attacks Soldiers When They Discover Prisoner is Gone.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 23.—Wm. Furby, a negro, charged with attacking a girl at Weston yesterday, was safely landed in jail here this morning. He is in the lock-up under guard of two companies of troops. More soldiers have been called and the town has been declared under martial law to save the negro from lynching. Furby, who was locked in a vault of Weston railroad station yesterday to prevent being lynched, had another narrow escape when the special train on which he was being brought here was held up by fifty men who searched every car. This time the negro was saved by being locked in the express safe and telling the mob he had escaped.

Landed in Penitentiary.

Moundsville, W. Va., Dec. 28.—William Furby was brought here and landed in the penitentiary. The mob became so menacing that it was feared that even with soldiers on guard, his life was not safe at Clarksburg. He was shipped away dressed in woman's clothes, and brought here on a special engine. When the mob at Clarksburg learned that they had been tricked, they attacked the soldiers and several were hurt.

LOEB REFUSED MEMBERSHIP.

Union League Club Draws the Line Against Jews.

By Wire to The Reflector.

New York, Dec. 28.—A sensation was caused here today when it became public that the Union League club had denied membership to Wm. Loeb, Jr., collector of the port. It was positively learned that the opposition of the club to Jews caused this action, though political animosity also figures in the case. This is the second time in the history of the club that an applicant has been denied membership, the other being one of the Seligmans. George B. Cortelyou is said to have led the opposition to Loeb, being influenced by political reasons, though the matter of race was advanced as the reason.

DUEL OVER SWEETHEART.

One Man Seriously Wounds His Rival.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Millington, Tenn., Dec. 28.—Polk Wilson, wealthiest young man in West Tennessee, was critically wounded in a fight today by Charles Douglas, an old school-mate. Both men are in love with the same girl. Douglas, who lives in New York, came back to spend the holidays with his old sweetheart. The men met at the depot and Wilson demanded that Douglas take the same train out of town. He refused and a fight followed. Douglas escaped.

MONOPLANE SMASHED.

Two Aviators Caught and Fatally Injured.

By Cable to The Reflector.

Paris, Dec. 28.—A passenger carrying monoplane with Aviator Lafour and Mr. Paula, fell 250 feet today and both men were fatally wounded. The crew had just started on a 36-hour round trip flight to Brussels, for a $20,000 prize. The motors went wrong and the machine was smashed. The men were caught under it, but were alive when taken out.

Hog Cholera Epidemic Around Durham—Give The Drunkards Christmas Presents In Asheville—Child Run Down and Killed by Automobile in Wilmington—Holiday Accident in Nashville.

The death of a number of the hogs of the county during the past few months has caused some of the hog raisers of the county to investigate the cause of the seeming epidemic. In fact, the department of agriculture at Raleigh has been called on to look into the matter and one of the members of the department has made a visit to this city and made an examination of some of the dead hogs and declares that the swine died from hog cholera.—Durham Herald.

Nashville, Dec. 27.—Yesterday near Castalia, this county, Joe Dickens shot and perhaps fatally wounded David Braswell. Both are young white men about 21 years of age, and were at the home of Ed. Hollingsworth for dinner. Braswell was shot in the head. Dickens was lodged in jail, but has been released, as a witness testified that the shooting was an accident. Both were drinking.

Wilmington, Dec. 27.—While on her way across the street to show a play-mate what she had gotten from a Christmas tree, Adell Rowan, the four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Rowan, was instantly killed in front of her home at Delgado, shortly after five o'clock yesterday afternoon, by being struck by an automobile owned and driven by Mr. N. B. Rankin, a banker of this city, who was returning with his wife and daughter and a friend from Wrightsville Sound. The front wheel of the automobile struck the child in the back of the head, splitting it in twain parts of the brain being scattered here and there for some distance.

Asheville, Dec. 27.—Judge Junius G. Adams in city police court this morning gave "Christmas presents" to 30 "drunks and drunk and disorderlies" by ordering a nol pros taken in each case. The court said that since it was the Christmas season those who had fallen by the wayside should be dealt with leniently and consequently each and every one of the 30 walked out of the court room without having to pay the usual fine of $5 and costs. The arrest of 30 drunk men during Saturday night and Sunday was almost a record-breaker.

He has had a big stock trade this season.

Bethel, N. C., Dec. 27, 1910.

One of the most beautiful home weddings of the season, and one of much interest to a wide circle of friends, was celebrated at the home of the bride on Tuesday, December 27th, at 8 o'clock, a. m., when Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Jones, and Dr. Vernon A. Ward, a well known and popular young physician, formerly of Wilson, plighted their troth in the presence of a number of relatives and friends.

The ceremony was impressively performed by Elder Andrew J. Moore, of Whitakers.

The bride was handsomely attired in a blue traveling suit with hat and gloves to match and carried a white Prayer Book. The bride's sister, Miss Lucy Estelle Jones, was her maid of honor, and wore white Pointe desprite over taffeta, and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Money Wasted in "Programs."

Did you ever in your life get back from the advertising itself the money you spent on an announcement in a program? Often they are well printed and attractive in appearance, but the advertisements do not seem to carry the conviction that they do when inserted in a regular newspaper or periodical. When you consider the small circulation, the few that are read from cover to cover, you pay more for what you get from program advertising than for almost any other form of publicity. The one plea of the solicitors is to "do help our church" or help our society." They do not realize that advertising is as much a business proposition as buying sugar or salt. They would not think of asking you to buy church sand for sugar and missionary mud for salt. The same amount spent in a novel window display or in some novelty that you could give away to your customers would produce results. The merchant who encourages the program graft is making trouble for himself. If he "goes into" one, he must go into all, or displease those who are not favored.—Merchants Journal.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1910.

Just a week from today the legislature will meet.

Time to cheer up and get ready for the new year.

New year resolutions are in preparation. They should be all to the good.

After the Christmas you had, don't put up a plea of hard times when the bill comes.

Do not be hasty to criticize the other man until you are sure you are right yourself.

Bob Phillips says his foot was too big for the stocking. Get 'em knit larger next time.

A regular advertisement in The Reflector should be the business man's first new year resolution.

Greenville has very nearly finished her record for this year, and we want to see the new year a big one for the town. Everybody bend his energy to that end.

Missourians are noted for wanting it to be proven, and they should also be ready themselves to give what they demand. Hence the report from Kansas City of one bandit single handed going through a train and robbing seventy people, needs more proof than being merely in the press dispatches.

The disposition of good men to evade jury duty is not the best way for justice to be done in the courts. When the hearing and weighing of evidence is left to any kind of men that can be picked up, any kind of verdict may be expected. If good men want the law enforced they must do their duty in helping to enforce it.

A good start for the new year would be some shares in the building and loan association. The small weekly deposits there accumulate much faster than you think until you try it and be convinced. In addition to this the association is helping the community more than any other institution here. It is good for the investor and for the man who wants to secure a home.

Why Cleveland Chose White.
Judge White was appointed to the Supreme court while a senator from Louisiana in 1894 by President Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland had previously nominated W. B. Hornblower, who was not confirmed, and then named Senator White, who, being a senator, was at once unanimously confirmed, even without reference to the judiciary committee of the senate. The appointment was a gratifying surprise. David B. Hill, then a senator from New York, and William F. Chandler, then a Republican senator from New Hampshire, opposed the confirmation of Wheeler H. Peckham, and so did George F. Edmunds, chairman of the judiciary committee and senator from Vermont. Mr. Peckham, as a Democrat, had opposed Hill in this State. Mr. Chandler, as a Republican, opposed W. H. Peckham on party grounds. Mr. Edmunds, however, went on record with the statement that Wheeler H. Peckham lacked the requisite judicial temperament. Mr. Edmunds, however, favored the nomination of Mr. Hornblower, but the latter was rejected by the influence of Hill and Chandler, and it was then that Chandler, in a speech, said he did not believe "Mr. Cleveland could name any man for the Supreme court whom the senate ought to confirm." The very next morning Mr. Cleveland nominated Senator White, whose unanimous confirmation instantly followed, beyond the power either of Hill or of Chandler to prevent it. Mr. Cleveland's grim comment on Chandler then was: "I knew I could pull out the sting of that nasty little wasp and make him jump." Months afterwards R. W. Peckham, brother of W. H. Peckham, was appointed. But that is another story.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Christmas and Fireworks.

The man from a northern state who comes into our midst seldom fails to find a cause for amusement in the fact that we expend our stock of fireworks in celebrating Christmas instead of the Fourth of July, as is the custom in the region whence he came.

Our own private opinion is that fire works in the hands of the small boy and irresponsible grownup is a source of annoyance and often a real danger, but if we must have this annoyance and this danger once during the course of the year we see no special reason why Christmas time should not be selected as the time of the cracker and the rocket.

Logically considered, it might perhaps be said that fire works should be used to celebrate a military or certainly a civil holiday in preference to a religious festival. But who ever stops to consider this phase of the question? The ordinary use of fire works is not of any special significance. It is simply a way that the small boy has of amusing himself by the indulgence of the making of noise, that is dear to every small boy's heart.

It is certainly a local custom, and that, we think, is sufficient for its justification. There may be no logical ground upon which it can be upheld, but we have little patience with the iconoclast who is always poking around looking for logical reasons for local customs.

On general principles we are against fire works, but if we must have them, then let it be at Christmas time as well as at any other time.—Greensboro News.

An Analogy.

A correspondent in the Marion Progress has illustrated most aptly the principal reason for the shortage in good teachers by casting his observation into the form of a hypothetical advertisement. "How many answers," he asks, "would be received to the following advertisement: Wanted—Governess in private family to attend to the mental, moral and spiritual wants of children and to take the responsibility for their bringing up. Must be well educated, refined, good-tempered; should dress well and be willing to obey one thousand rules of the home. Only fifty children in the family. Salary, $7.50 a week without board. Thirty-six weeks holiday, without salary."

This is intentionally a parable, drawn from extreme, but that it is matched item for item in many a North Carolina school is not open to question. The overcrowding of the rooms is an evil least approximately as great as the underpaying of the teacher. That the State has made tremendous strides in education within the last decade or so, is one of our most cherished causes of pride. The points touched by the sentence just quoted will furnish ample scope for this advance to continue during many years.—Charlotte Observer.

REGENERATION.
Despise not the obliquities of younger ways nor despair of better things whereof there is yet no prospect. Some negroes who believe in resurrection think that they shall rise white. Even in this life regeneration may imitate resurrection; our black and vicious tinctures may wear off and goodness clothe us with candor. Good admonitions knock not always in vain.—Browne.

Who Was There That You Knew?

IN the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked from a pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector, J. Pierpont Moran tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review of Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

RUBBING UP THE ARMS.

Said to Have Excellent Results in Cases of Fainting.

When my wife faints, which is miserably often, says a writer in the London medical journal, the Lancet, I do not apply friction in the usual absurd way—rubbing backward and forward, which must alternately check and accelerate the passage of the blood—but, taking hold of one of her hands with my left hand, I place the thumb and finger of my right hand tight round her wrist and then pass them firmly up toward her elbow.

Having brought them back loosely to the wrist, I pass them firmly up again, and when I have repeated the operation two or three times, sometimes on both arms, I have the pleasure of hearing the ejaculation, "I feel better now." When I first had recourse to this means of resuscitating my lady she exclaimed instinctively on two different occasions, without being at all aware that I had had any particular intention, "Oh, that is what I seem to want!"

From the invariable and immediate effect of this mode of friction I flatter myself that it is not unworthy the notice of the medical practitioner in the friction of cholera patients, a process which should be much oftener resorted to and more energetically persisted in than it generally is.

GERMAN RED TAPE.

A Lesson in Picking Up Things in the Streets of Berlin.

Take care how you pick up a thing that is lost in Berlin. The other day one of our deputies going through the Prussian capital on his return from a convention at Frankfurt noticed a key at the edge of the sidewalk. He picked it up to hand it to a police agent. The representative of the city police refused to take it, saying, "You should take this key to the special bureau of things that are lost."

"Very well. Where is it?"
The agent named the street.
"Is it far from here?"
"A half hour, three-quarters of an hour if you don't walk rapidly."

The deputy replaced the key on the pavement. "Some one else will pick it up," he said.
"Not at all," said the agent in a commanding tone. "You should have left it where it was, but now you are obliged to go to the bureau. If you don't I'll make a complaint against you and you'll be fined, perhaps given a day in prison. That's the law."
The deputy was compelled to obey orders. Since that day he carries his hand in his pockets.—Cri de Paris.

Give Her a Nickel, Went on Happy.

If you know of anybody who is really in needy circumstances, this is a good time to remember them.
However, it is sometimes right hard to know who should be considered charitable objects. But, if the giving is prompted by right motives, the donor always receives his blessing, whether the recipient be worthy or not. So don't stand back too much on that account. We are right here reminded of a gentleman from this community who was in the city of Charlotte one time, and on being approached by an invalid woman and asked for help, he consumed a considerable amount of time asking questions in regard to her people and other things relative to her condition. After an elaborate series of interrogations, which were promptly and intelligently answered, he was thoroughly convinced that her cause was a worthy one. But fearing that she might be tricking him, he proceeded to give her a lecture something like this: "Now, madam, I believe you are telling me the truth.
I don't know. But I am going to help you some anyway and leave the matter for you and God to settle." He then handed her a nickel and went on his way rejoicing.—Our Home.

A lie travels by aeroplane, while truth trudges along with lagging step, and yet it finally arrives.
To possess information is an important matter. It is desirable even for a fence to be well posted.

One Lesson of the Election.

Through all the political cross-currents, one clear tendency, one strong desire of the people, can everywhere be made out. It is the strengthening movement to tone up government generally, to make it better in purpose, cleaner in personnel, and more efficient in method. If any party or any leader is looking for the real elections of 1910, it may be found in this. There has been much talk of the determination of the citizens to pronounce for or against certain policies and to approve or condemn one personality or another. All this is in the realm of certainty. What cannot be questioned, however, is the manifest intent of the voters to rebuke degradation of the public service, and to sustain all who are working to make office holding signi-fically honest and capacity. The verdict of the highest court of appeal on election day may have brought discouragement to one party and hope to another, joy or depression to candidates, but it yielded only good cheer to those who have all along contended that the people will always rise to intelligent leadership, and that their deepest wish is to pluck their government from the hands of the spoilsmonger and the trafficker.—January Century.

Parent and Teacher.

A recent issue of The Gastonia Gazette, in a column devoted to school affairs, puts its finger upon one of the greatest difficulties faced by teachers in our secondary schools,
"When a parent receives a special report on his child," says The Gazette, "he should thank the teacher for the interest that sent it. It seems sometimes that the kind of interest which tries to urge the pupil to higher endeavor is not appreciated. Patrons sometimes put a premium upon indifference and lax requirements by failing to show appreciation for the teacher who is after the lazy or indifferent boy or girl. The parents often have no idea of how inattentive to duty their children may be."

The trouble arises largely from a mistaken conception of the profession of teaching on the part of the parent. When he calls in a doctor or a lawyer he leaves the case entirely in his hands, and there is a very wide spread disposition to treat the child's education after the same fashion.
The teacher is supposed to "know her business" and the parent washes his hands of his child's education at that point. The truth of the matter is that the proper education of the child cannot be brought about except through close and harmonious cooperation between parent and teacher.
Neglect of duty on the part of either is sure to have deplorable effects on the pupil. An ounce of interest taken in the home circle is equal in power to many pounds of effort to the teacher's desk.—Charlotte Observer.

Why One Boy Got Ahead.

"Our junior partner," said a business man, "came to us as a boy. We ly promising, but one of these boys has since risen only to be a junior clerk in our shipping department while the other has now become our junior partner. How did we come to know which was which? I will tell you.

"When I came down to the store one morning I found one of the boys sweeping the sidewalk and he was sweeping against the wind. Dust and litter blowing back over the space he had swept, and he going back to sweep it up again. Nice boy and Forgetting the Past.

Because a man has failed in achieving success, or because he has gone even further and wilfully wrecked the life that once promised so much, it does not follow that he can never get up again. Yet there are men everywhere who believe that certain incidents in their lives have placed them beyond redemption and that it is useless to try and begin again. Sometimes they become impatient for the success that seems so far away and frequently give up just before it comes within their grasp.
Repeated failures seem only to convince them that they can never hope to accomplish anything because of their former mistakes and yet the miracle may be performed when least expected. It is wise to forget the past, whatever it may have been, and to train ourselves to live only in the present. Sometimes the past projects its shadows across our path and for a time we feel helpless and think it but natural that we should move in its gloom. It is possible, however, to leave the shadow behind and step out into life which spreads all about us. No man can hope to make any headway in his business career who goes about with the remembrance of an unworthy past hanging like a millstone about his neck.
Its weight will bear him down if he undertakes to begin the new life with the memory of the old still clinging to him.—Charleston News Courier.
