Over and above the regular schedule of votes will be given each candidate for every $20.00 turned in on New Subscriptions to The Daily Reflector or The Carolina Home and Farm and The Eastern Reflector, before Wednesday night January 25, at 8 p. m. L. Best, Jeweler.

A Second Thought.

One of the young ladies who was entered in the contest of The Reflector on first thought decided to have her name withdrawn, after she had learned of her nomination.

The contest manager explained that she had as good a chance to win as others and on second thought she decided to remain a contestant.

Second thoughts generally are the best. A few days ago she called on the contest manager to express her gratitude for the suggestion to stay in the contest and her determination to do all in her power to get one of the prizes.

The count of the ballots Thursday placed her among the leaders.

List of Candidates and votes counted at 8 a. m. January 5.

PITT COUNTY BOY PROMOTED.

Becomes District Commercial Manager of W. U. Tel. Co.

It gives us much pleasure to read in a recent copy of the Charleston, W. Va., Mail the article below about a Pitt county boy. The writer has long felt a strong attachment for Mr. King, for it was under him that "Sam" got his first practical work in a telegraph office, and his career and subsequent promotions have been watched with much pride. The Mail says:

Promotion has come unexpectedly to Manager S. V. King, of the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company. He has been selected to fill the office of district commercial manager for the company with his territory covering the whole of West Virginia and a part of Western Maryland. He will assume his new duties as soon as he can crack into the position from which he is retiring his successor, who will be V. L. Brooks, at present chief operator in the local office.

In Pittsburg recently all the office managers to the number of 23, as well as a number of the officials of the Western Union, met in the office of the district commercial superintendent's office and had a conference, at which all present were made acquainted with the new order of conduct of the business of the company. Mr. King was one of those present and the record he has made in his office here merited him the promotion he was tendered and which he accepted. The managers present were from the State, from Pennsylvania and part of New York State.

Mr. King will likely retain Charleston as his home, but his new duties will require him to spend a great deal of his time out of the city. He will be given a much bigger salary than he has received here in the old position.

NORTH CAROLINA LEGISLATURE

Senator Cotton Gets Good Committee Assignments.

While the legislature is now down to business and some bills have been introduced, the work so far is preliminary in getting ready for what is to follow. The first day was devoted mainly to organization, and the second to hearing the message of the governor. The session of Friday was only about an hour long. Some bills were introduced, but they were all more or less of a local nature. The president of the senate announced the standing committees for that branch. In these appointments senator R. R. Cotten, of Pitt, was made chairman of the committee on penal institutions, and was also assigned to the following other committees: Appropriations, insurance, finance, education, propositions and grievances, agriculture, pensions and soldiers' home.

Can't Settle Dog Case.

The law is a great institution but has its defects as is demonstrated by a case now pending in the courts in this county, in which Will B. Roberts is charged with the killing of Jack, a dog of good character and the property of sheriff J. S. Mitchell, of Carroll county, Va. The defendant was bound over to court for killing a dog that afterwards proved to be very much alive and the prosecution failed to show up at court. The strange part of it is that Mr. Roberts still stands indicted and there seems to be no law by which he can clear himself of a crime that every one knows he did not commit.—Mount Airy Leader.

Amuzu Giving Good Shows.

The patrons of the Amuzu were highly pleased with the pictures, and also the Violin Solo by Dr. L. G. Schaffer Friday night. The projection apparatus of the Amuzu has been carefully remodeled and in the hands of Mr. Taylor Martin who has been in the motion picture work for several years. The pictures are perfect and no better amusement than to spend a few moments at the Amuzu.

Pitt County Firm Files Petition

BIG BANK FAILURE IN NEW YORK

CARNEGIE TRUST COMPANY
CLOSED BY BANK SUPT.

HAD NEARLY $9,000,000 DEPOSITS

The Company in Unsound Condition—When Failure Became Known Depositors Storm the Place, But None are Admitted.

New York, Jan. 7.—The Carnegie Trust Company, with about $8,900,000, according to its last statement, was closed by State Superintendent of Banks Cheney today. State bank officials immediately took charge of the institution. The company was chartered in 1906 and had paid up Capital of about $1,500,000 and surplus and profits of about $730,000. J. T. Howell is president of the company. Superintendent Cheney says the company is in unsound condition and it is not safe for it to continue business. No other statement was given out. The company has had a stormy career since its birth. During the panic of 1907 it was feared it would have to close, but J. P. Morgan's aid kept it going. As soon as the failure was known hundreds stormed in the place but no one was admitted.

TO EQUALIZE TAXATION.

Senator Brown is Going After So-Called Pauper Counties.

Senator J. A. Brown, of Columbus, who is named by President Newland, of the senate, as chairman of the finance committee, declares his intention to go in for a material reformation in the North Carolina method of tax assessment with a view to equalizing taxation among the counties and ridding the state of the forty-eight "pauper counties" so-called because they receive from the state for schools and other purposes more money than they pay into the state treasury in taxes. He proposes to undertake getting through the legislature an act that will create a separate state tax commission, relieving the corporation commission of this duty, and requiring of this commission that it equalize taxation by counties. He would have the commission completely removed from politics, possibly appointed by the governor. He would have these commissioners confer at the beginning of each assessment period with the county authorities, meeting the officers of the group of counties in convenient railroad centers and explain just what is expected of them in the light of existing conditions. And he would clothe them with final authority to say just what the assessments must be. Where there are differences between the property owners and the local assessors, he would have appeal go to an intermediate board, composed of, say five men, one from each of a group of five counties. In this way no one county could be left alone to "juggle" its assessments so as to deprive the state of its equitable share of revenue. After this composite board has passed on the difference the state tax commission would have final say as to all assessments in all counties. Mr. Brown declares that he sees no reason why Buncombe county, for instance, should have her farm lands assessed at $17 per acre and Robeson county, one of the biggest agricultural counties in the state, assessed at only $6. And he sees no reason why counties like Cumberland, Chatham, Henderson and others—forty-eight in all, according to the report of the state treasurer and the state tax commission—should be a burden to the other progressive counties. They had best be given to some other state, he says, or consolidated with others for economy in operating expenses.—Raleigh Times.

HUSBAND AND WIFE PART

Another Man Causes Home to be Broken up.

A telephone message to the Reflector tells of a serious trouble that occurred not far from House station. The message says that Mr. Tobe Fleming went to his father's, Thursday, to assist in killing hogs, and upon returning to the home found a man named Roney Everett there. Fleming ran Everett away with a gun, but was prevented by Mrs. Fleming from using the gun. Friday night Fleming went to House, and he and Everett got into a difficulty in which Fleming was badly hurt. The trouble has led to the separation of Fleming and his wife, both of them returning to the home of their respective parents.

Even until now there are some who forget and write it 1910.

There is an old saying that "what goes up must come down," therefore the aviators may look for a drop.

Now Wilmington is being solicited to raise a purse to tempt aviators to go there and risk their necks.

Some years ago The Reflector had King Edward on its subscription list, but you know he died. Yet Jefferson Davis is one of our readers.

The News and Record both estimate that what Greensboro lacks in population, according to the census, she makes up in business. That's right, talk it up.

If the New Jersey women succeed in getting the law to compel married men to wear rings on their fingers (thumbs) they might complete the job with bells on their toes.

Just about all of them have taken a fall out of Greensboro, not that they had any spite against that town, but because of overmuch bragging in advance of the census returns.

When you hear a man going around talking about prohibition being a failure, he is apt to be one who wants to see it a failure and would place every obstacle he could in the way of the law being enforced.

Mr. G. B. Ford who since it started last spring has been editing the Farmville Enterprise, has leased the paper from the publishing company and assumed entire control of it. He is making the Enterprise a good paper.

The Durham Herald says: "If the legislature does not put the clubs out of business it might as well allow the near-beer stands to remain." Quite true, but we think the legislature will bolt the door against both these evils.

N. C. Labor Act is Void.

Says The Wilmington Star: Lawyers and others in this city read with much interest the Associated Press dispatches in yesterday's papers announcing the decision of the United States Supreme Court in declaring unconstitutional the "contract labor law" of Alabama, because North Carolina has a law on its statute books very much like the one which has been enforced in Alabama.

Many lawyers here have for some time had their doubts about the constitutionality of the North Carolina law and have been expecting some such opinion from highest court in the land.

Trade Mark. In 34 hours. At all Drug Stores. Don't accept any substitute. A. S. OLMSTED, Le Roy, N. Y.

The question of the constitutionality of the law in Alabama was raised in the case of Alonzo Bailey, a negro laborer. Bailey made a contract to labor as a farm hand for one year, received $15 advanced pay to be returned at the rate of $2.25 a month during his service, but quit work after a month and a few days. He was arrested, convicted and assessed a fine twice the amount of the advanced pay, one-half of which was to go to his former employer and one-half to the state. The Supreme court of Alabama upheld the constitutionality of the law. The Alabama law is very similar to that in force in North Carolina and many other Southern states. The North Carolina law is as follows, the same being Section 3431 of the Revisal: "False pretense; obtaining advances under promise to work. If any person, with intent to cheat or defraud another, shall obtain any advances in money, provisions, goods, wares or merchandise of any description from any person or corporation upon and by color of any promise or agreement that the person making the same shall begin any work or labor of any description for said person or corporation from whom said advances are obtained, and said person so making said promise or agreement shall unlawfully and wilfully fail to commence or complete said work, according to contract without a lawful excuse, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding $50, or imprisoned not exceeding 30 days. And evidence of such promise or agreement to work, the obtaining of such advances thereon and failure to comply with such promise or agreement shall be presumptive evidence of the intent to cheat and defraud at the time of obtaining such advances and making such promise or agreement, subject to by other testimony which may be introduced by the defendant."

"The Supreme Court today," read the dispatch, "held that the law in operation furnished a convenient instrument for the coercion, which the constitution and the act of Congress forbid; and that it was an instrument of compulsion peculiarly effective as against the poor and the ignorant, its most likely victims."

"The provisions of the constitution and laws designed to secure enduring prosperity, which depend upon freedom of contract 'would soon become a barren form,' said Justice Hughes, who announced the opinion of the court, 'if it were possible to establish a statutory presumption of this sort and to hold over the heads of laborers the threat of punishment for crime under the name of fraud, but merely upon evidence of failure to work out their debts.'"

This Takes the Peel Off

In the state of Washington, in the town of White Salmon, an editor's family were scared out of their wits by some potatoes that were baking in a range exploding and blowing the door off. That is easily explained. The potatoes were anxious to see the editor's wife cook in her new hobble skirt, and their eyes popped out in the strain to behold her. That editor had no business having potatoes cooked in their jackets. He should have been living on the promises of his delinquent subscribers.—Durham Sun.

Clinton, Miss.—"Thanks to Cardui," writes Mrs. Lena Gresham, of this place, "I have been greatly relieved."

Just try Cardui. That's all we ask. It speaks for itself. It has helped so many thousands, it must be able to help you.

We hope the legislature will "get busy" as soon as it convenes with a view to relieving the body of much of the local and private business. It is called upon to consider and then proceed to dispose of the really important matters that need attention. The legislature will have a large number of such matters to consider and the session will doubtless be a most important one. In discussing the meeting of the legislature the Raleigh Times says: "The coming legislature should be the most important one from the stand point of good laws passed of any that has ever been convened in this State. There is much to be done and we hope that the first month of the session will see many of these bills introduced and passed, without waiting until the last minute to rush them through.—Winston Sentinel.

How can we be expected to correct our own faults when it takes so much of our time to look after the shortcomings of others?

As a rule, it is not safe to judge people solely by appearance, but as a rule we do, just the same.

The Oldest Epitaph.
The oldest epitaph in English, which is found in a churchyard in Oxfordshire and dates from the year 1370, to modern readers would be unintelligible not only from its antique typography, but from its obsolete language, the first two lines of which run as follows and may be taken as a sample of the whole:

"Man com & se how schal alle dede be; wen yow comes bad & bare; noth have ven we awy fare; all ye werines t ve for care."

The modern reading would be: "Man: come and see how shall all dead be when you come poor and bare; nothing have when we away fare. All is weariness that we for care."

Tired of it. "What's your name?" the three other men asked him.

"John Potter," answered the stranger, who had accepted an invitation to take the fourth hand in a game of cards.

"That's all right. We'll call you"— "No, you don't! The first galoot that calls me Jack Potter will get the map of his face changed!"—Chicago Tribune.

The "Conquest of The Air."

At the end of the year, viewing a list of thirty-five men who have been sacrificed to man's alleged "conquest of the air." The Citizen sees no reason to change its opinion expressed over a year ago, and several times since, that man was not made to fly, and that the day is still far distant when aerial navigation, as now contemplated and attempted, will become an accomplished fact, or put to practical purpose. Daring aviators have gone miles into the air, and others have covered long distances overland, but death has already claimed the majority of these. The Grim Messenger has waited a long time in some cases, but he has always been an easy victor at the end. Here it might be remarked that the Wright brothers, the real inventors of the flying machine, still believe that walking is good and they are seldom found afloat.

In most of the accidents that we read of the responsibility is laid on "treacherous currents." Since such conditions are liable to be found anywhere and at any time, can it be said with a full show of truth that man has "conquered the air?" It seems that "Old Man Death" has his busy days above as well as below, and it matters not to him what his agencies are. A rotten tie or a cross current are one and the same to him--as he means to his ends.
The world's record for height and distance remain, but Missant and Hoxsey are dead; they will not know or care anything about them. Poor Chavez, too, is powerless to hear his plaudits still ringing.

God created the birds of the air and gave them wings wherewith to travel. He gave man a pair of feet with which he could walk the earth, intending that (man) being peculiarly a creature of the earth should stay on it. True, the Almighty gave man a brain with which he could invent fast moving conveyances, such as ships, trains, and automobiles, but these still obeyed the laws of gravity and remained below. Even those who have left the earth for the longest time and have been lost to view in the silences of immeasurable space have come back to earth--some never to leave it again. You see, they must come back; they cannot stay up, for man, as we have said before, is of the earth, earthy. We see him today invading the realms of the Almighty, proud and defiant, tomorrow we gaze upon him thrown back to earth, broken and crushed like an eggshell. Conquest of the air! "It is to laugh."--Asheville Citizen.

Auto Vs. Horse in Fire Service.

The automobile has scored a distinct triumph in fire department service. Today all progressive fire departments are adopting or are considering motor-driven apparatus, which finds application not only in the largest cities, but in the rural and suburban districts, where anything like adequate fire protection hitherto has been impossible. Thus from New York, where most of the heavy hose wagons in the territory covered by the high pressure system soon are to be motor-driven, to the suburban town where a chemical engine or a combination fire engine and hose wagon can be sent over country roads at a speed of thirty or forty miles an hour, the automobile has established itself on the score of efficiency and economy.

Displacing the horse, with a surprising saving in the cost of maintenance, automobile apparatus is now working many innovations in modern fire department practice, for at the same expense vastly increased protection is possible, and more units and men can be concentrated at the scene of fire in much shorter time than previously, making it often possible to bring a fire under control before it develops to serious dimensions. Thus with increased speed for all classes of apparatus, it seems probable that larger and more powerful machines can be used, for the size and power of fire engines, extension ladder trucks, and water towers hitherto have been limited principally by the weight that three horses could draw at reasonable speed.

The economy of motor-driven apparatus is of course apparent without horses to feed, shoe, and otherwise care for, and with fuel and lubricating oil consumed only when the machine is in actual use, the saving in the score of maintenance is extraordinary. Added to this there is the gain in space in the fire-house due to the elimination of the horses with their forage and other stores, so that two pieces of apparatus, if desired, can be kept in less space than was formerly required for one, while the quarters of the firemen are much pleasanter and more sanitary. As a result of these many economies many towns and suburban villages are now able to install really effective fire apparatus capable of affording a large measure of much-needed protection to the surrounding country, where previously the expense of keeping the necessary men and horses for a limited field of operation would have been prohibitive. So universal is the tendency to acquire self-propelled apparatus that some consideration of the leading types already developed is not without interest.—From "The Automobile in Fire Service," by Herbert T. Wade, in the American Review of Reviews for January.

Will Help the Cause of Good Roads.

The government through the postoffice department has taken vigorous steps in behalf of the rural service that will also tend to build-up the country. This with special bearing on good roads. Fourth Assistant Post master General DeGraw has issued an order, coupled with a number of recommendations, or suggestions. The recommendations are more for improving the landscape, so to speak, though such is timely and really beneficial, but the former is what rings the bell. The order is for postmasters to keep tabs on the rural routes going out from their respective offices, and report as to the condition of the roads, if the roads are not kept-up, are not fit the government will discontinue the rural route that lies along them, rather than be placed at great annoyance and extra expense and impose hardships on the rural carriers. The idea is an excellent one. It is also fair in every way. It should and will tend to promote the cause of good roads building. The rural service is a great pleasure and benefit to the people of the country, and also aids city folks. It keeps the country and city in close touch. Hence, good roads should be kept up, not only to aid in this service, but to help build-up the country. The counties should not expect the government to do everything perfect every county should help itself.
—Wilmington Dispatch.

High License Don't Work.

Griffin, Ga., is trying high license for near-beer, having fixed the license fee at $5,000 a year. One dealer planked down the money and thus secured a monopoly of the business, as a high license shuts out the small dealers and places the traffic in the hands of the man who has big money and is willing to pay it for a monopoly. The one man will sell as much stuff as a dozen would and the town gets less revenue from the one than it would from several dealers.
The price of a license doesn't regulate the traffic, and, as for that matter, the license of the sale of near-beer is a trvesty on prohibition and a legalized farce.—Wilmington Star

MUSTARD AS AN EGG-GETTER

Of old, we have heard of the tiny rain of mustard seed that sprang up and flourished until the fowls of the air found lodging among its branches.
But now come tidings of greater wonder still performed by this same mustard among the fowls of the earth.
An English poultryman, whose chief delight lies in promoting the happiness and usefulness of his hens, has discovered that small portions of mustard mixed with their food will increase their laying capacity from fifteen to twenty-five per cent.

The triumph is described by the London Globe, in part as follows:

The experiment began on October 1, 1909. At the end of six months, the birds fed with ordinary food laid three hundred and sixty-nine eggs, whereas the birds fed with the mustard addition to their food had laid five hundred and thirty-two eggs. At the end of the year the birds fed on the ordinary food had laid nine hundred and fourteen eggs as against one thousand and twenty-three eggs laid by the mustard-fed birds.

Viewed from the present price of eggs in the state, the significance of such a discovery is great, indeed. The true fancier however, will be more keenly interested in the scientific than in its financial aspects. As to the exact manner in which mustard heightens the hen's productivity, we are giving no clue. Perhaps it adds zest to her appetite or aids her digestion, as in the case of human beings.
It is said once to have been custom-among certain poets to write with their feet in hot mustard baths. Thus, according to the belief of those times, an excess of blood was kept from their brains, so that their rhymes and metaphors hatched more safely.

Whether hens are susceptible to the same influence as poets we know not, but it is certain that mustard is a most stimulating substance where-ever placed, and there is no reason for doubting that it can stir and warm the ambition of a hen.—Atlanta Journal.

Time to Wake Up.

North Carolina should appropriate not less than a million dollars to aid the different counties in the state to build good roads. About thirty-five of the states have granted financial aid in road building, and they have done it on a large scale. These states are the most progressive and show from twenty to seventy per cent. increase with population during the last decade. It is time for North Carolina to wake up.—Asheboro Courier.

Market.
New York, Jan. 7.—The closing of the Carnegie Trust company caused a slump in the market shortly after the opening and heavy selling caused several standard stocks to shade off fractionally from opening prices which were below the close. Union Pacific was the leader of the standard railroad groups, opening at 173 and moving up 3-8, but lost nearly all of this gain later. Steel common sold at a decline of 5-8. Canadian Pacific lost 1 1-2 points and Missouri Pacific two points.

New York, Jan. 7.—The effect of closing the Carnegie Trust company was extended to the cotton market, causing it to become nervous and irregular after opening steady. Demand from Liverpool and local longs seemed to strengthen the market. Opening: January 14.60, February 14.75, March 14.88, May 15.02.

There are a great many things that
