E. C. T. I. SCHOOL WORK

THE ONLY SCHOOL OF ITS KIND IN THE STATE

GREAT WORK DONE TO THE PRESENT

Marvelous Enrollment of 691 in Less Than Two Years—Meeting a Long Felt Need in North Carolina—Destined to be a Powerful Factor in Educational Uplift.

Believing that the people of North Carolina will be interested in knowing what their educational institutions are accomplishing, The Reflector will give some facts regarding East Carolina Teachers' Training school, which have been gathered from the records of that institution.

This State school, located in the town of Greenville, is the only school of its kind, public or private, in the State. The school has the one purpose to better prepare young men and women for the profession of teaching. It was established by an act of the general assembly, ratified the 8th day of March, 1907.

The object in establishing and maintaining said school shall be to give to young white men and women such education and training as shall fit and qualify them for teaching in the public schools of North Carolina.

The school first opened its doors for the reception of students Oct. 5th, 1909. Since that time to the last of December, 1910, it has enrolled 691 students, as follows:

Oct. 5, 1909 to May 20, 1910... 172
May 24, 1910 to July 30, 1910... 332
Sept. 13, 1910 to Dec. 23, 1910... 187

Total 691
Of this number between 350 and 400 are now teaching in the public schools. Such a record as this has never before been made by any other school in North Carolina.

These facts show two things: First, that there is a growing demand for trained teachers in the State. Second, that the school in Greenville is meeting this demand.

The work that is being done here is certainly by far the greatest for the cost to the State of any which we have ever known. At the close of this one-and-a-half years of work we find the following: A school plant which we believe, at a low valuation, is worth $200,000. In this school the town of Greenville and county of Pitt have put $98,000. The State of North Carolina has in it $65,000. It will thus be seen that up to this time the State lacks $33,000 of having invested as much as the town and county, and yet the plant is owned in fee simple by the State.

With the character of work being done here the State will get results, will get them where they are most needed—in the rural schools of the State. In Eastern North Carolina, and in fact in all the State, there are thousands of people now teaching public schools who have never had any special training for the work. These teachers are to do the work largely for the next eight or ten years. The graduates of all the colleges in North Carolina if they were to enter the teaching profession, could not more than supply the increase of the teachers every year.

As we see it, the work of the State at present is to give opportunity to the teachers now in the school room so that they may become more efficient. This is just what this school is doing. Its work is already being felt in a number of schools, and we believe that in the near future it will be a power in the educational uplift of the State.

At present those seeking admission cannot be accommodated. Last summer many students, at least one hundred, were forced to find boarding places in the town at additional cost. This should not be, especially when we think of the salary paid these faithful servants of the State.

The State owes it to itself to make a sufficient appropriation for this school to meet more fully the demands made upon it, if the teacher of the school is to be given an opportunity to prepare for more efficient service.

PROPOSED RATE SUSPENDED.

Railroads Charged With Concealing Their Profits.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, Jan. 11.—It is practically assured that the proposed advances in freight rates, now under investigation by the Inter State Commerce Commission, will be suspended to some date beyond February first. The possible suspension of the proposed rate has been under consideration for several weeks. In the hearing today charges were made affecting the truthfulness of statements made to the commission by Attorney Francis B. Jones, representing the railroads, as to the financial condition of the railroads, in effect that the railroads concealed their profits and their statements did not tell the whole truth.

Schenck Was Poisoned.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 11.—Dr. Lupp, who attended Schenck after the family physician gave up the case, was on the witness stand this morning. He said Schenck's symptoms were unmistakably those of poison. He said Schenck continued to grow worse until he was removed to the hospital, and then immediately started to get better.

No Prayer Service.

On account of the absence of the pastor, there will be no prayer service in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church tonight.

Business Transacted at Last Monthly Meeting of the Board—Amounts Drawn on Treasurer—County Borrows $5,000—R. Williams Appointed County Auditor.

The board of county commissioners meet in regular session on the first Monday with all the members present, and continued in session three days.

The board passed upon some official bonds deferred from December meeting.

R. Williams was appointed auditor at a salary of $200 per year. Spellman Flood, Hagar Flood, Theophilus Tyson and Louisa Hardee were added to the pauper list to receive $1.50 per month.

The general county fund being nearly depleted, the board authorized borrowing $5,000 for sixty days from W. E. Proctor.

The opening of bids for the bonds to be sold for the purpose of building a court house and jail, coming before the board, was decided by unanimous vote to open and consider the bids. Upon examination it was found that eleven bids had been submitted, and after due consideration by all the members of the board assisted by the building committee, it was unanimously agreed and decided that it would be to the best interest of the county and tax payers to sell the $75,000 worth of bonds to run 20 years at 5 per cent interest, to bear date Feb. 1st, 1911, and of the several bids submitted the board held the unanimous opinion that the bid submitted by Woodin, McNear & Moore, of Chicago, is the highest and best, it was accepted. This bid was $77,525 and accrued interest to the date of delivery, the buyer to furnish necessary blanks free to the county.

Plyler Reprived by Governor Kitchin—Man Found Dead in Bed in Salisbury—General Merchandise Company Chartered for Ayden—Fire in Fayetteville.

Nashville, Jan. 9.—Some unknown person or persons placed dynamite under the brick store of N. B. Finch at Spring Hope early Sunday morning. The explosion aroused most all the people in town. The rear wall was almost totally destroyed and the windows in the building of W. W. Richardson & Co. nearby were shaken out. A cat in the Finch store was killed. Nothing was taken from the store.

Fayetteville, Jan. 9.—Three fire alarms at different times today called the firemen of Fayetteville to fight for the preservation of eight buildings, seven dwellings and one store. Five tenement houses and a store on Ramsey street were burning at one time.

Raleigh, Jan. 10.—An order is made by Governor Kitchin relieving Chas. E. Plyler to February 17. He was to be electrocuted in the state prison here January 20 for murder in Union county. The reprieve is on recommendation of the solicitor who prosecuted Plyler.

Salisbury, Jan. 10.—C. A. Frank, aged 40 years, an employe of the Antiseptic laundry in Salisbury, was found dead in his bed at a Salisbury hotel early this morning. He had not been well for several weeks and was but seldom seen away from his room, which he had forbidden anyone to enter and when he failed to a call from the milkman, an officer was called and the door broken open. The dead body was found with one hand over his heart and had been dead for several hours.

STATE UNIVERSITY NEEDS MORE FUNDS

Several of the Faculty Lost Because of Higher Salaries Offered Elsewhere—University in The Civil War—Two of the Faculty Marry During the Holidays.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 11.—The University is now smoothly started on the spring term. The registration figures are some 40 less than for the corresponding term last year.

At the chapel exercises Thursday morning Dr. Venable gave an account of the alarming financial condition of the college. He disclosed the fact that the University is now in debt for the sum of $53,000, and that a debt of ten or twelve thousand would become due in the course of another year. He said that every retrenchment possible had been made but that it was impossible for the institution at its present site, to subsist on the support now accorded it by the State. One instance of the necessary expenditure of more money had come before the trustees at their last meeting. Nine of the professors had been drawn away from the service of the University by higher salaries offered by other institutions and eight or ten more had received such offers and were on the point of leaving. The guardians of the University's future realized that the University of North Carolina is too small an institution to allow one-third of its faculty to leave and then expect to go on without a serious hitch. A proper and necessary increase in the salary of certain members of the faculty had been made and a further debt of $6,000 had been incurred.

Dr. Venable said that this was a serious situation which the present legislature faced in regard to the University, but that he had no doubt it would meet it properly as it had met such situations in the past.

The current issue of the University Magazine contains an article on the University of North Carolina in the civil war by Dr. Stephen Beauregard Weeks of the class of 1886. Dr. Weeks tells of the practice and brilliant part the sons of the University took in the struggle. Of the 1331 men who matriculated at the University in the decade before the war, 759 went into service and 234 lost their lives. The freshmen class of the year the war opened numbered 80 men and every one of them pressed into service with the impetuosity which is a worthy characteristic of North Carolina youth.

During the holidays two of the members of the faculty bid farewell to their bachelor days. Dr. Dey was married to Miss Alice Old, of Norfolk, and Dr. Chase to Miss Lucetta Crum, of Logansport, Indiana.

At the meeting of the association of American Pharmacologists at New Haven during the holidays, Dr. W. De B. McNider, of the department of pharmacology and bacteriology was elected a member of the national council, an office which says an editorial in The News and Observer "is a high honor worthily bestowed."

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1911.

Greenville is great, but we want to see a greater Greenville.

The Raleigh Times is complaining about the bricks and cobble stones lying in the streets. Get some of the Masons in town to lay them for you.

The Home Building and Loan Association is not yet four years old, but it has some over $76,500 distributed in loans among the people of the town. It is doing good work, both in helping the people and in the volume of business. Every meeting of the directors there are more applications for loans.

Men of Greenville, you business men the new year is young yet and it is not too late to make a good start. If among your good resolutions was one to do something for your town and section this year, show it now by attending the next meeting of the chamber of commerce which is to be held soon. Some matters of importance to Greenville and Pitt county are to be considered and your presence is needed. Stop your business long enough to attend this meeting for it means bringing you more business in the long run.

Newspapers say many things that are intended to benefit those who read but it is not every time they are even given credit for trying to help the people. The newspaper talks for good roads, and there are some folks who say the paper wants good roads just to help the town. Again the paper advises people to put their money in bank instead of hiding it around the house where it may be stolen or burned; and up bobs somebody who says that talk is just in the interest of the banks. And when the newspaper argues for longer and better schools, there are those who say it is just to make the people pay more taxes. More of the same character of examples might be given, as there are people who do not see any good motive in anything. But sometime they may realize that the newspaper is the best friend they have.

A School House a Day.
Now and again it is profitable to take stock of what has been accomplished, not for the purpose of piling ourselves upon our achievements but as an incentive to get greater endeavors. Material for such stock-taking is to be found abundantly in State Superintendent of Education J. J. Joyner's recent biennial report, but it is no part of the document will be felt livelier satisfaction than in its record that for the last two years North Carolina has maintained the boast of a school house a day. In detail Mr. Joyner's figures are 725 new buildings—564 white and 161 colored—erected at a cost of more than $509,000. The people of North Carolina would have to be very cold blooded to repress a feeling of intense gratification over this advance. There is possibly no other line of progress which will mean quite so much to the happiness and prosperity of the coming generation as this educational on-sweep.

School houses without pupils are of very little significance and it is necessary to examine another portion of the report before the exact situation can be grasped. "The increase in the school census during the years 1908-1910 was 19,452—13,162 white and 6,290 colored. The increase in the school enrollment was 22,638 and the total increase in daily attendance was 22,347. This shows that the increase in enrollment had average daily attendance is more than keeping pace with the school population." Sifting the two apparently unrelated items of new school buildings and increased average attendance, it will be found that both are primarily due to the same cause—the fact that North Carolinians are alive to the necessity of education of all sorts as never before, and what this spirit has accomplished in the past decade is in no way comparable with what it bids fair to work in the years that are ahead.—Charlotte Observer.

Cotton in a Weevil Field.

Mr. James B. Allen, a farmer of Port Gibson, Miss., has been experimenting with the cultivation of cotton in the boll weevil belt. Through intensified cultivation, fertilization and the use of powdered arsenate of lead, he claims to have put the weevil out of business. Mr. Allen furnishes The New Orleans Picayune with a detailed report of his experiment, which was made on land where previously the weevil had made all cotton cultivation unprofitable. The Picayune says that the cotton in which thirteen varieties entered into the experiment, was planted under ordinary conditions, in well cultivated and highly fertilized soil, and after the squares commenced to form the plants were treated with the powdered arsenate of lead, after as many of the weevils as possible were picked off by hand. The good results which these experiments show in pounds of lint and seed per acre and the excellent money returns, hold out high hopes that if other farmers in the weevil belt districts adopt the same measures they will achieve similar success. It shows that some advancement has been made in the problem of growing cotton and weevils at the same time.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Says Farmers Buy too Much.

In the supplementary bulletin just issued from the State department of agriculture and gotten up by State Agronomist J. L. Burgess, very valuable and significant estimates are made of food products shipped into North Carolina that ought to be grown by the farmers of the State. It shows that not less than $0,500 tons of mill feed valued at $1,368,000 came into the State; $4,227,636 worth of wheat and flour; $1,123,166 worth of corn and oats; $221,875 worth of hay; $49,655 worth of butter. The conclusion reached in this special investigation, as expressed by Agronomist Burgess is that every farmer should make it a point to at least raise his own home supplies, no matter what special crop his lands and sections may be especially adapted.—Raleigh Times.

Right You Are.

J. Milton Johnston, of the Greenville Reflector force, has a decided talent for taming animals. His latest effort is to train an old gander to see-saw, jump through a hoop, and follow him around. This is not the first time a newspaper man has taught an old goose new tricks.—Durham Sun.

Every few days we read in newspaper dispatches of people losing in fires money that should be in the banks. Why people should prefer to hoard their money in their homes and run the double risk of fire and burglary rather than to trust it to the care of some good bank has always been a mystery to us. The following dispatch sent out the "other day from Macon, Ga., tells of a case of that kind: "It develops that the fire which destroyed the store and dwelling of J. D. Noble, and said to have been of incendiary origin, also burned $2,000 in paper money which was forgotten in the rush to escape. Mr. Noble was not at home at the time and the members of the family did not remember that the money had been left in the house until this morning."—Winston-Salem Sentinel.

Who Was There That You Knew?

If the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the War Department for $3,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. This remarkable set was discovered by a New England collector. J. J. Brown, a collector of the collection of the President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler, said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review of Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the only accurate, impartial history of the Civil War for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of hitherto unknown phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

sent. The directors will arrange for a meeting of the full chamber at an early date to consider some very important matters. Every member should watch for the announcement of that meeting and be on hand when it is called.
