

PRESIDENT DIAZ WILL SOON RETIRE

SAID TO BE ON ACCOUNT OF FAILING HEALTH

MEXICO TO BE INVADDED QUICKLY

American Troops Being Mobilized and State Department Indicate
That the Real Purpose of Sending Troops to the Border is for Invasion.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, March 9.—President Diaz, of Mexico, is expected to announce his retirement in the next two weeks on account of ill health. This statement was made today by a prominent diplomat and it is thought to give motive for the assembling of troops on the Mexican border. Two weeks will find all American troops ordered in the field, and battleships near Mexican port. It is believed that Ambassador Wilson when he returned from Mexico brought confidential messages to the president of the impending retirement of Diaz, and that this message was responsible for the hasty mobilization of troops.

Washington, March 9.—Staff officers here now make no further secret of the real purposes of the government. It is said that Mexico is to be invaded. The State department is only waiting for news of death or resignation of Diaz, or that the revolution is getting further beyond control of the government. They even go so far as to give the plan of campaign and say Mexico will be invaded from four points on the Texas border and from both coasts.

With Libel Suits.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, March 9.—Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher and former Secretary Ballinger had a long conference with President Taft today shortly after the former arrived here. Fisher will assume the office tomorrow. Ballinger reiterated his determination to "go after" his foes, including Gilford Pinchot, with libel suits.

Mumfordsville, Ky., March 9.—Dock Massey, colored, became insane today and barricading himself in his house kept his family in terror. He defied a posse sent after him, and shot and killed George Stuart, one of the members and field. The surrounding country is in terror of the armed maniac.

Atlanta, Ga., March 9.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt was given a cordial welcome when he reached here this morning, but the reception was far different in degree of enthusiasm from those accorded him on previous visits.

Carolina Club Social Meeting.

Carolina Club will hold its monthly informal social meeting in the club rooms Friday night. The ladies are all invited to these social meetings, as are also the teachers who come in to spend the night before the meeting of the Teachers' Association Saturday. While these social meetings of the club are informal, they are very enjoyable.

"THE OLD PLANTATION."

A Book That Inspires The Southern Heart.

Several years ago I purchased and read with a great deal of pleasure and information this book, "The Old Plantation." The author, the Rev. Jas. Battle Averitt, was a minister of the Episcopal church in this State, and I have frequently inquired about him, but only until recently could I get any information concerning him. Some time ago, I saw an article in "The Confederate Veteran" from the author of this book, whose post office address I learned was Cumberland, Md. I thereupon wrote him to ascertain if I could get another copy from him as some friends had borrowed and neglected to return mine, and in answer, he told me that the book was now out of print, and that he had been treated very shabbily by the publishers, who only had derived revenue from the publication of the book, but that he would endeavor to secure a copy for me, which he did, and I received it a few days ago.

The book is written in a highly attractive style, and portrays the manners and customs, and depicts the scenes of the old plantation life in the South before the war. A few years after I had read this book the first time and became so much impressed with its characters and the beautiful imagery of the times, written in the matchless style that only one who has lived amid such scenes can write, I happened to visit the section in which the farm, the model from which "The Old Plantation" was written in Onslow county. As I drove down the road so minutely described in this book, on each side of me, as far as I could see, extended a level plateau or table land, as fine farming land as I have ever seen. On each side of the roadway before the war, there was a very thick row of cedars, so thickly set that at midday the roadway was almost entirely obscured of sunlight, so dense was the shade. The original plantation contained something over 25,000 acres, and while today it has been cut up, and is owned by many people, yet, the passer-by will witness many evidences of the splendor, extent and magnitude of "The Old Plantation Style." No true Southerner can read the book without feeling a deeper interest and kindlier feeling for his country, and for that civilization which must have been one of most enchanting, delightful and fascinating ever lived on earth, and the like of which will probably never be witnessed again.

O. L. JOYNER.

Burning Lime at Home.

Where oyster shells can be had cheaply, the oyster shell lime is, doubtless, the best. But so far as I have observed most of the manufacturers put too high a price on this lime. If you can get shells cheaply (we can get them where I live for about 50 cents a ton), you can make the lime economically on the farm. Put a layer of logs on the ground with an opening between the middle ones to be stuffed with straw for firing. Then put on a layer of shells six inches thick. Then a layer of dry wood and brush. Carry up in the middle an opening like a chimney from the firing opening and stuff it with straw or broomsedge. Then build up the heap in a conical shape with alternate layers of shells and wood till it is about six or eight feet high. Then start the fire from the opening left between the logs, and as soon as the wood seems to be burning well, cover the whole heap with earth and burn it as you would a tar kiln or a charcoal kiln, keeping the chimney open till all is burning well, and then close over with earth. You can make as much lime in this way as you will need, and in sections where there is limestone it can be broken up and burned in the same way on the farm. When well burned, the lime and ashes will go together and be abetter article than you could buy. I have done this and know what I am writing about.—W. F. Massey, in Progressive Farmer.

The Plays Monday Night.

The two plays to be presented by the seniors on Monday evening are both full of human interest, and are thoroughly modern and American in spirit.

"The Kleptomaniac" is a sprightly farce in one act by the popular magazine writer Margaret Cameron.

"The Proposal Under Difficulties" is by John Kendrick Bangs, one of America's unique and most delightful humorists, best known by his House Boat on the Sty.

COAST LINE LEAGUE BASEBALL ORGANIZED

FOUR TOWNS ARE IN THE LEAGUE

Kinston, Grifton, Ayden and Greenville to Have Good Ball.

A meeting was held in the city hall here today, of representatives from Kinston, Grifton, Ayden and Greenville, looking to the organization of a baseball league, composed of teams of the four towns. They were Messrs. Leon Oettinger and S. R. Clary, of Kinston; Dr. W. W. Dawson and Mr. L. J. Chapman, of Grifton; Messrs. M. M. Sauls, J. R. Turnage and C. L. Parker, of Ayden; Dr. E. A. Moye and Mr. J. B. James, of Greenville.

Mr. James was made chairman of the meeting, and the details of organizing the league were fully discussed. The league is to be composed entirely of home players of each town, and the series of games will begin about the middle of June.

The name selected was Coast Line League, and the following officers were chosen:

President, Dr. E. A. Moye, of Greenville.

Vice President, Dr. W. W. Dawson, of Grifton.

Secretary, S. R. Clary, of Kinston.

Treasurer, J. R. Turnage, of Ayden.

Directors—Dr. E. A. Moye, Leon Oettinger, C. J. Tucker, C. V. Cannon and J. B. James.

J. B. James was appointed to draw up the rules and by-laws for the league and Leon Oettinger to arrange the schedule of games.

It means some good ball games for the four towns this season.

AT THE AMUZU.

The Howards Spring a Big Surprise
Last Night.

A crowd was gathered at the Amuzu last night to hear the Howards in spite of the inclement weather. It is said of most vaudeville people that the first show is always the best. But the Howards get better every night. Little Miss Lillian is one of the prettiest and cleverest actresses ever seen on the stage, and her toe dancing is unsurpassed.

Lesley Howard is an attractive, handsome young man and plays his part excellent. The people of Greenville who have not heard the young artists will make a great mistake if they let them get away without hearing them.

SCHOOL BUILDING OVERRUN.

Cannot Accommodate All Who Are Applying.

Applications from teachers desiring to attend the summer school terms of East Carolina Teachers' Training school have been received in such large numbers that he buildings are not going to accommodate near all who wish to attend. Every room in the dormitories has already been engaged, and every day President Wright is receiving more applications that have to be turned down because of the lack of room.

Suicide in Gaston Hotel, New Bern—
Wreck on N. S. at Middlesex—Severe
Thunderstorm at Wadesboro
—Young Newspaper Man Promoted in Baltimore.

Last night the Norfolk Southern passenger train ran into an open switch just this side of Middlesex, plunging into a freight train standing on the siding, knocking off the pilot of the passenger engine and injuring Mail Clerk J. R. Talley. The injured man was brought on to Raleigh and carried to Rex Hospital, where upon investigation, it was learned that a sprained shoulder was about the extent of his injuries.—Raleigh Times.

New Bern, N. C., March 8.—Shortly before 7 o'clock this morning, J. C. Barker, a prominent citizen of Stella, N. C., committed suicide at the Gaston Hotel in this city by shooting himself in the head with a 32 calibre revolver.

Wadesboro, March 8.—A severe thunderstorm passed over this county last night and reports today tell of several instances of houses being struck. On the farm of J. T. Allen northeast of here, the house occupied by Preston Crouch, was struck by lightning and the ten-year-old daughter of Crouch instantly killed. Her clothing was set on fire and her body badly burned. Other members of the families were seriously shocked.

Raleigh, March 8.—Throughout North Carolina there are admiring friends of Edward L. Conn, for a number of years one of the best known and most popular young newspaper men of North Carolina, who are delighted to learn of his steady and deserved advancement in newspaper work in Baltimore, where he has been with the Baltimore Sun for several months. The news comes that he is promoted to a position as telegraph editor as a recognition of his demonstration of talent and ability as a fluent and discriminating newspaper writer and editor. Indeed, North Carolina now boasts of three able members of the Baltimore Sun staff—Mr. Jenkins who was for a number of years in newspaper service in Raleigh, and Mr. Patterson, of Winston-Salem, both shining lights in journalism and reflecting marked credit on the Old North State.

FINE YIELD OF BEANS.

Mr. A. J. Scott of Onslow County, is Delighted With His Success.

Mr. A. J. Scott, of Richlands, is in the city and talked very enthusiastically to a Free Press representative about some remarkable success he has been having with the soy bean on his Onslow county farm.

"I measured off" said Mr. Scott, "45 feet square and put it in soy beans. The land was not manured at all and would not have brought without fertilizer, three bushels of corn to the acre. When the beans were ripe I cut and threshed out 11 bushels from my little patch. I calculate that this yield is at the rate of 225 bushels to the acre, or equivalent to 45 bushels of corn. I have sold every one of these beans at two dollars a bushels and could have sold more if I had possessed them."

Mr. Scott spoke very highly of the work of the State department of agriculture and the work that it is doing in spreading new interest in improved agriculture.—Kinston Free Press.

Springfield, Ill., March 9.—The immense viaduct of the belt line of the Illinois Traction System near here, was wrecked by dynamite early today. A second explosion an hour later wrecked the top works of Capitol mine only recently installed at a cost of $40,000. Workmen are on a strike and are held responsible for the wrecking of the bridges.

INTERESTING NOTES FROM THE UNIVERSITY

BASEBALL AND OTHER EVENTS.

Class of 1901 Preparing for Decennial Reunion.

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 9.—The varsity and scrub baseball teams lined up for the first practice game of the season Friday afternoon. The scrimmage lasted seven innings and came out 3 to 1 in favor of the varsity. The line-up for the first string was Lee and Sloan, pitchers; Witherington, catcher; Calmes, first base; Hasty, second; Lindsey, short; Edwards, third base; Hackney center field; Page, left field; McLean, right field. The prospects are that Carolina will have a fast infield and will be weak on batteries. Clancy has announced his intention to try to develop a team that can win by its hitting and base running, things that he says win the majority of college games.

The first round of the pentangular debate between Carolina, Virginia, Vanderbilt, Tulane and Georgia will come off this spring, probably on April 22. The question is the national income tax. Each college will debate both sides of the query. Carolina has the negative against Virginia and the affirmative against her time honored enemy, Georgia. Carolina won from both Georgia and Tulane last spring and from the University of Pennsylvania last fall. A strong crowd has entered for the preliminary contest that will be held this week and the prospects are that Carolina will be able to keep to the high standard that she has established during the last ten years.

The basket ball team closed its season with a close game on Virginia's floor Wednesday night. Virginia and everybody interested in the outcome expected Virginia to win by a heavy lead. The score was only 24 to 16. Carolina came back in the second half and scored nine points to Virginia's 8. This was the first basket ball team that has ever represented the University and their work is regarded as having been highly successful.

The officers for the Y. M. C. A. have been nominated for next year as follows: J. C. Lockett, president; Fred. Drane, vice-president; G. E. Norman, secretary; W. D. Barbee, treasurer. The officers for the year that is fast drawing to its close are: E. W. Turlington, president; D. B. Bryan, vice-president; H. C. Smith, secretary; George Graham, treasurer.

Bishop Robert Strange of the Eastern Diocese of North Carolina spent last Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in Chapel Hill. He preached in Gerard hall Sunday night and on the following days in the Y. M. C. A. building to receive his friends among the students. His sermon in Gerard hall drew a large crowd of students as his sermons always do.

The class of 1901 is preparing to have its decennial reunion at commencement 1911. The secretary asks those who were members of the class of 1901 at any time during the four years of college life, to please communicate with him, whether they can attend commencement or not. A complete class record for the ten years will be published after commencement. The secretary is R. O. E. Davis, Bureau of Soils, Washington, D. C.

Professor M. C. S. Noble delivered three addresses before the Caldwell Teachers' Association, the teachers and the citizens of Lenoir March 3rd and 4th.

THE BLUE-BACK DEFENDED.

Col. Wade Harris is Anxious to Accept Prof. Craven's Challenge.

We admire the nerve of our friend, Prof. Bruce Craven, principal of the public schools of Kinston, in challenging us to a spelling match. Not "us" individually—he knows better than that, for we were built up on the blue-back foundation—but a match between his moderny-taught school and one that uses the blue-back. The challenge is hedged around with difficulties, but if it comes to pass that we could get a strictly-raised blue-back team to oppose his up-to-date spellers, we would certainly be glad of the chance. Prof. R. B. Hunter teaches the blue-back in his school near Charlotte. If he will furnish us a team we will back it against Prof. Craven's spellers and on his own terms. Dr. Craven asks us if we know the Webster spelling book. Does he? Then, he can spell "by the book" and spell more correctly than anybody barring the Webster proof-reader. Obsolete words there are in the blue-back, but Webster tells the principle of spelling. Learning that principle, one will know how to spell any word; obsolete or newly coined. We take issue with Prof. Craven on the proposition that "spelling changes with the times." The only correct way to spell a word is to spell it correctly. We take it that he is a disciple of the new method of spelling, tho we fear that if such is the case, he would be hard thru it from participashun in enny intelligent civilized spellen match that might be propost. But all the same, if we can get Dick Hunter, or any other old-field blue-back teacher to furnish us a team, we will invite Prof. Craven to come along to sure defeat.

As a matter of course, we use the latest edition of Webster's dictionary. It has all the new words in it and we observe that the old words tally with the standard spelling in the blue-back. We resent Prof. Craven's abuse of the old blue-back. He calls it sorry and good-for-nothing. But when you find a man who knows more about spelling than the man who "writ" the blue-back, what is the use of arguing with him? Webster teaches the principle of spelling and that is where the blue-back has the grip on all of them.—Charlotte Chronicle.

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1911.

Winter came back all right.

Do not call it spring yet, it is anything else.

Chickens did not follow eggs in the downward price.

Greenville just will lead. Even our mud is up with any of them.

The man with a good job indoors ought to appreciate it this kind of weather.

The legislature had about the usual ending with merriment, songs and speech making.

March may keep monkeying with these snow skirts until it gives us a sure enough snow.

With congress and the legislature both quiet now folks might get down to work and make things count.

Joe King's editorial squib column in the Durham Herald reminds us of "Of again, on again, gone again, Finnegan."

Good roads, the Torrens land title system, and the commission form of municipal government are three things that must come.

The ground hog may have it all his way now if he wants to. There will be some weather that will knock him out along about July.

Wonder if there will be something to recall what happened to the Maine and subsequent events in this mobilizing of troops on the Mexican border.

Old man Cannon was game to the finish. He will be back in congress if not in the speaker's chair. He may get the chance to take some of his own medicine and see how it tastes.

Congress and the Editors
How little is the special rate permitted congressmen by the telegraph companies and for which the congressmen are not slow to avail themselves? Perhaps just enough to keep this privilege from being knocked out by their Inter-State Commerce laws. Congressmen do not use passes on the railroads, but they buy tickets at 2 cents a mile and draw 10 cents from the government for every mile they travel. Why should congressmen want passes? Yet these congressmen so favored and so favoring themselves, have not only denied publishers the right of passes outside the State they live in, but have denied them the right to exchange advertising space for transportation. Furthermore, they have taken the telegraph frank away from the publishers. The telegraph frank is a little book of stamps, similar to the stamp book sold at the postoffice. One of these stamps attached to a message would carry the message to any point in the United States reached by wire of the telegraph company. Of course, holders of these stamps found them a great convenience, though of not much financial value in the course of a year, unless the privilege was abused. This curtailment of editorial privileges is blamed on the Inter-State Commerce Commission, but congress passed the laws under which the commission acted. It looks to us like selfish inconsistency.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Age Limit for Judges.

It was lately explained in the English Parliament that no statutory age limit for judges had been fixed, because it was believed in the main that a sense of public duty would lead judges to retire when they considered themselves unable to properly discharge their duties. Experience shows that in many cases judges appear to be unaware of or indifferent to the hinderances of approaching infirmities. They stay when they ought to go. As a consequence it is proposed to apply to the bench the rules which are operative in the army, the navy and the civil service. It is urged that, unlike other civil servants, "judges can not be dismissed; they can not be criticised without the critic running serious risk of imprisonment or fine; they are remote from the ordinary world and the ordinary checks; they can say what they like and do very much what they like. And all this irresponsible authority is bestowed lightly, as often as not a reward for political services which have no relation to judicial competence."

But the English system has worked so well, as a whole, that no change of a more radical character is proposed than to fix a time of compulsory retirement, with provision, however, for suspension of the rule in the case of judges of approval competence and character whose further service would be of manifest public advantage.—Philadelphia Record.

Early Tomatoes.
In the fall before it freezes I bring in some garden soil and put in the cellar. Early in February I put some in the oven and let stand till I can scarcely bear my hand in it, then leave till I am ready to use. About the middle of the month I sprinkle with water, stir and sprinkle until it is just as I would like to have it in the garden. Then I take boxes 4 inches deep and fill full of earth. I make rows an inch apart, pour in water to make them wet, and drop the seeds a quarter of an inch apart. Then I sprinkle once more, cover with a folded paper and put in the window. When the plants begin to come through the ground I take the paper off, and if the ground seems dry I pour warm water carefully between the rows. As they grow I fill in with warm earth until the box is level full. When they are large enough to set out don't wait on account of frost. Cut papers a little wider than the plant is tall and wrap loosely around the plant from the roots up. Press closely around the stem just above the root and put in the ground, letting earth come up well around the paper to hold it fast. The paper serves a twofold purpose. The cut-worms cannot get to the plant, and the frost cannot affect it. Almost before you know it your tomatoes will be above the paper and full of blossoms. I use Chalk's Early Jewel, and have plenty of ripe tomatoes by the Fourth of July.—Mrs. J. H. Fortenbaugh, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Naming The Unnamable.
The new name which, by a pestidigitation of trade, has replaced the old one is an inspiration. As the "trousers skirt"—or should we properly say "the?"—would not go. It makes no difference that in French it is called "jupe culotte," which means leads them to a revolution or to a truthful name for a new fashion they are a logical race, and whether logic about the same thing. The French follow it unshrinkingly. The matrimonial triangle exists; why not write fiction about it? The new fashion is a skirt and a bifurcated garment; why not call it a "jupe culotte?" So the French. But Anglo-Saxondom shrinks back, whether it be from revolutions, "triangles," or "trouser skirts." But call it "harem skirt" and if it ever had a chance to gain the day it had then!—New York Tribune.

Notaries Public.
Notaries public are said to have been first appointed by the leaders of primitive Christians for the purpose of collecting data for the lives of the first century martyrs. It was a long time before the office had to do with legal employments, such as attesting deeds, wills, etc., and establishing their authenticity in any other country. There was much irregularity in the law concerning notaries until the year 1801, when statutes were passed in England and other countries fixing their duties. —New York American.

NEWSPAPER PRESS FOR SALE.

Having placed an order for a new fast newspaper and book press, to be installed the middle of April, we have a newspaper press that will be sold at a bargain for delivery May 1st.

It is a Monona Leverless Press, large enough to print four 6-column pages, or two 9-column pages and has steam fixtures so that it can be run either by hand or power. Been in use six years.

It is a splendid press for a weekly paper and is in good condition to do many years good service. We used a press from the same factory for 17 years before installing this one, printing a daily paper with small circulation about 10 years of that time. Its speed, 800 an hour, is too slow for a daily paper with the present circulation of The Reflector, and for that reason we are having to displace it with a faster press.

Any one interested and wanting a good press for a weekly newspaper, can see this press at work every day in the Reflector building, before our new press is installed. Any one who cannot come to see it at work and examine it, can get particulars by addressing

FARMER'S WIFE HAD HEAP TO DO

Mrs. Shepherd was in Bad Shape When She Could Not Stand on Her Feet.

Durham, N. C.—"I am a farmer's wife," writes Mrs. J. M. Shepherd, of this city, "and have a heap to do."
"Four months ago I could not stand on my feet, to do anything much, but at this time I do the most of my work. I took Cardui and it did me more good than all the doctors."
"You don't know half how I thank you for the Cardui Home Treatment. I wish that all women who suffer from womanly trouble would treat themselves as I have."
Ladies can easily treat themselves at home, with Cardui, the woman's tonic. It is easy to take, and so gentle in its action, that it cannot do anything but good.
Being composed exclusively of vegetable ingredients, Cardui cannot lay up trouble in your system, as mineral drugs often do. Its ingredients having no harsh, medicinal effects, and being non-poisonous and perfectly harmless, Cardui is absolutely safe for young and old.
Ask your druggist. He will tell you to try Cardui.

The First Cigarette.

Did you ever wonder as to who rolled the first tobacco? A correspondent asks the Southern Tobacco Journal for information on the subject but our contemporary, who ought to know if anybody does, does not give a conclusive reply. It says that so far as it can learn the origin of the "tack" is involved in mystery; that the first known of it was when Samoan Islanders were found to roll a few twigs of dried tobacco leaf in a green leaf from a tree, and the people of Cuba smoked tobacco rolled in a dried maize leaf, according to one authority. The name cigarette is of a comparatively recent origin, and thought to be derived from cigarras, which is in turn derived from cigarah which name was given by the early smokers owing to its generally taking place in a garden under the waving trees, and among the chirping grasshoppers.
The extent of the information as to the origin of cigarettes evidently is far more limited than showing what they will do for you if you smoke 'em.
The Tobacco Journal, by the way, takes a shot at the member of the North Carolina legislature, who has introduced a bill to prohibit the sale of cigarettes in that State. "Think of that for a state that produces more cigarette leaf tobacco than all the other states combined," exclaims the Journal.
And then it asks whether, if the bill should become a law, an act will be passed, permitting the growing of the weed from which the tobacco is made?
An expression of opinion on this subject from the tobacco growers of Virginia and North Carolina would be interesting—Petersburg Index-Appeal.

He Was Suspicious.
There's a Lakewood man who is jealous of his young wife. We were out at a bridge party with him the other night and he got foolish.
"Jones is in love with my wife," he confided, gloomily.
"Nonsense," said we. "He hardly ever notices her, and when he happens to be thrown into her society, he has little or nothing to say to her."
"I understand all that," said our friend, "but I've seen that fellow play cards with my wife. Any man might happen to play with her once, but that man has actually played with her on three different occasions!"
It was only our well-known tact that we were able to stall off a serious quarrel.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PARALYSIS TO AID BEAUTY

Surgeons Perform Unusual Operation on Philadelphia Society Girl.

Physicians and society are awaiting with much interest the outcome of an unusual operation performed to preserve the attractiveness of a young woman, a member of one of the old families in this part of the state. The patient is Esther Heacock, daughter of a wealthy florist in Wynnton, an alumna of Mount Holyoke College and an expert in voice culture. She submitted to an operation which caused paralysis of the trifacial nerve, controlling all the muscles on the left side of the face, and this paralysis will remain for several months. The purpose is to give the nerve a complete rest so that when it resumes its function again it will twitch normally and no longer cause twitching of the eye that not only has annoyed Miss Heacock greatly but has caused many wrinkles on one side of her face.

The voluntary twitching of the eye went on constantly. Miss Heacock was helpless against it, though she realized it annoyed her friends and tended finally to distort her face. Exercise of will power was futile to prevent it, and she finally consented to an operation by which the ganglion of the trifacial nerve behind the left ear was exposed and soaked in alcohol, thus paralyzing the function of the motor part of the nerve. The left trifacial nerve has ramifications over the entire face, controlling the actions of the left eye, one side of the mouth, the muscles of the cheek, and the muscles of mastication on the left side.

While the function of the nerve is held in abeyance the left side of Miss Heacock's face remains immobile, even to the eyelid, and she daily suffers much discomfort and must continue to do so until the nerve is restored to activity again. Such a course, however, was deemed necessary by the surgeons as the only means of enabling the nerve to overcome its trick of forcing the muscles about the eye to twitch.

Many persons suffer from similar trouble. Twitching of the muscles in many cases is due to a derangement of certain nerves or to the fact that nerve centers or ganglions become accustomed to ordering the twitches without any direction from the brain. The nerve cells, like substations of a telegraph system, become deranged and without any suggestion from the brain permit the muscles to act. In many instances such subconscious acts are of great value, but when the nerve cells become deranged to such an extent that they cause twitches and similar involuntary movements of the muscles they do great harm.

It will be three months more before the surgeons will know whether the operation is successful.

The striking thing is that the eye remains open unless closed by hand. Dr. Deaver and Dr. Gordon both refused to discuss the case. Surgeons, however, look on it as unusual--Ex.

SONS OF THEIR FATHERS.

Congressmen's Children Learn the Debates in Early Life.

Debates of the "red hot" variety among the youthful sons of congressmen promise to rival the violence of the arguments on the floor of the house. Of course the doings and sayings of these remarkable sons of their fathers are the pride of the members of the house. Congressman Bartlett, of Nevada, has a precocious son named after Donald Mitchell, the author of "Dream Life," though the congressman admits that he went through the struggle of his life to have his first born--so called. The young man reciprocates the most unqualified admiration of his father.

The discussion was getting warm. "Huh! Think your father knows more than my father, ha?"

"Yup."
"Think he knows more'n any man in congress."

"Yup."
"S'pose he even knows more'n the president?" scornfully.

"Yessiree!"
"Does he know more'n any man in the United States?"

"Yes."
His antagonist was almost at the end of his resources when a brilliant thought inspired him. "Well, does he know more than God?"

Young Donald scratched his head a moment, and finally decided upon a way to get out of it with filial loyalty and due reverence. "Oh, well," he deprecated, "God isn't in this you know."--National Magazine.

NAPOLEON IN LONDON.

John Burns Corrects Lord Roseberry and Furnishes Data of Visit.

The question whether Napoleon Bonaparte ever visited London was raised by Mr. Lanfer Lucas and Lord Roseberry, who was consulted on the point; replied that he had never heard of the rumor and could not conceive any one giving the slightest credit to it. Lord Roseberry is now put right by John Burns, who declares that Napoleon's presence in London has gone beyond mere rumor, and quotes "The Story of Charing Cross and Its Neighborhood," by J. Holden Macmichael.

"It is not generally known that the great Napoleon Bonaparte lodged in a house in George street, a thoroughfare which extends from Duke street to the embankment.

"Old Mr. Matthews, the bookseller of the Strand, used to relate that he remembered the Corsican organ residing here for five weeks in 1791 or 1792, and that he occasionally took his cup of chocolate at the Northumberland coffee house, opposite Northumberland house; that he there read much, and preserved a provoking factuality toward the frequenters of the coffee house.

"Though his manner was stern, his deportment was that of a gentleman.--London Express.

The Turning of the Wheel.

The turning of the wheel of fortune in human affairs has been an immemorial subject for philosophic reflection. "Count no man happy until his death," was the advice given the Lydian king, and those unfortunates whose prosperity is succeeded by dire adversity most frequently elicit the application of the proverb. It is pleasant to reflect occasionally that his succession is not infrequently reversed. A little less than sixteen years ago an American mining engineer of distinguished ability lay under the sentence of death in South Africa. He had participated in the abortive Jameson raid into the Transvaal and his friends in this country were seriously apprehensive lest the sentence might be carried out. President Kruger decided that it was better policy to avoid unnecessary bloodshed and commuted the sentence. Had a less conservative ruler been at the head of affairs, not all the influence of the Cleverness is an Art.

A wealthy New York broker claims that while he was on his way to deposit $1,000,000 in securities, a man ran into him and knocked him down. A young man hurried up and set him upon his feet and handed him what he supposed was his bunch of valuables. However, it proved to be a substitute package containing three old newspapers. If this was a genuine robbery it was clever. If that is a fairy tale to cover up a shortage of valuable stocks and bonds, it is also clever. It is the clever people who deceive us most sometimes and the more clever they are the worse we are shocked when the revelation comes. It was clever in the young bystander to pick-up the fallen plutocrat. Some time people "pick us up" by a smile and "take us in" by their cleverness. The man who can pull the wool over everybody's eyes is the fellow who seems to get there. That broker may never have lost those securities in the manner described, but his friends will go right on believing that he would be incapable of deception and thievery on such a huge scale. Nevertheless, that $1,000,000 worth of bonds and stocks are out of pocket by reason of a clever deal on the part of the get-rich-quick schemes "beaten to a frazzle." Cleverness is an art anyway we take it--Wilmington Star

It's queer how nearly all a man's friends go broke just when he wants to make a touch.

But it's all right to judge a tailor by his clothes.
