

SUMMER TERM AT TRAINING SCHOOL

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED, SPLENDID FACULTY SECURED

LEADING EDUCATORS OF COUNTRY

Dr. George D. Strayer, of Columbia University, to Give Special Lectures—School Offers Unsurpassed Opportunities in Teacher Training.

Arrangements have about been completed for the summer term of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School. It will begin on the 6th of June and continue for two months.

The attendance last year was very large, reaching about three hundred for this one term. More applications are already in for the coming term than had been received up to this time last year. So satisfactory was the work done before that a considerable number of those who took this course will return for the coming term.

President Wright is alert at all times to get the very best for the school. The truth of this statement will be clearly seen in the selection of the faculty for this summer term. Each and every member was selected with a view to special fitness for the work assigned.

The following persons constitute the faculty for the term beginning June 6th:

School Administration and Supervision: Dr. Geo. D. Strayer, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York City.

Pedagogy: Prof. Harold Barnes, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York City.

Latin: Prof. H. P. Harding, City Schools, Charlotte, N. C.

Mathematics: Miss Estelle Davis, City Schools, Washington, N. C.

Primary Methods: Miss Miffiam McFadyen, Clarkton Schools, Clarkton, N. C.

The following are members of the regular faculty of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School and will be in charge of the department indicated:

History: Miss Sallie Joyner Davis.

English: Prof. L. R. Meadows.

Science: Prof. H. E. Austin.

Household Economics: Miss Elizabeth Pugh.

Drawing: Miss Kate W. Lewis.

Public School Music: Miss May R. B. Muffy.

School Management: Prof. W. H. Ragsdale.

Bursar: Prof. C. W. Wilson.

Lady Principal: Mrs. Kate R. Beckwith.

President Wright will also be present during the entire term and will have direct personal supervision of the entire school.

Dr. Geo. D. Strayer, who will give the course on school administration and supervision for superintendents and high school principals, comes to the institution from Teachers College, New York. He is a teacher of national reputation and has no superior in this field of work. Besides his work in Teachers College, he has had considerable experience in giving this course in a number of summer terms at our best institutions. Many North Carolinians who have taken the course under him in Teachers College, will bear testimony to the fact that he is a great teacher with a fine personality.

Prof. Barnes in charge of the course of pedagogy, who comes from the same college, has had a wide experience in the work. He has been a member of the faculty of some of our most noted summer schools, in addition to the great work he has done in Teachers College.

Misses Davis and McFadyen, in the departments of mathematics and primary methods, come to us with the highest recommendations as specially prepared, both by training and practice, for this work. Miss Davis has had successful experience in mathematics in high school work, and Miss McFadyen has done considerable institute work in addition to her regular work in the school room.

The other members of the faculty are all teachers in the regular work of this school, this fact, itself, being the highest testimony of their unqualified and absolute fitness for their respective positions.

The teachers who are planning to take this summer term of this splendid school, are to be congratulated

SKETCHES OF PITT COUNTY

Opinion By An Observer of History Writing.

Greenville, N. C., March 28, 1911. I have examined Mr. King's "Sketches of Pitt County," and I am pleased to commend the book to the citizens of the county and to the public generally.

The author has collected much historical data, a great deal of which is not now in the possession of any other person. He has transformed these data into a well-written and a well-connected story of the history of Pitt county.

So far as I am able to determine, Mr. King has discriminated well between tradition and facts. The book seems to be written with an honest desire to be fair and just, and I think the author has succeeded well in this particular.

I trust the book will have a liberal sale. Pitt county is rich in history, but so far as I know, this is the first attempt to rescue it by putting it in book form.

"Sketches of Pitt County" is well worth the price. I hope the author will be well rewarded for his effort, and that much interest will be aroused from a wide reading of the book. Our people, and Southern people generally, are not as much interested in their rich and glorious history as they should be.

Where The Old-Fashioned Mother Is.

"Where is the old-fashioned mother?" inquires the New York World. Apt as not she's at home washing the dishes so her daughter can go down town and show off her hobble skirt and new spring hat. She does not want the girl to begin training to be an "old-fashioned mother" before she has her day.—Wilmington Star.

Damage for Personal Injury.

In the case tried in the Superior court Friday of Stokes against King, the jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for $300 damages. The suit grew out of an assault made on Mr. J. F. Stokes by Mr. J. F. King some months ago, and was for personal injury.

upon the opportunities that are offered them. In our judgment the work that is being done by this school for the teachers who are really and actually engaged in the work of teaching now in the public schools, will tell more in the uplift of the individual schools in the various counties than any other work which is now being undertaken. If North Carolina is to advance educationally in the near future, something must be done in offering opportunities for better preparation to the teachers who now have charge of her schools. This institution is giving these opportunities, and we desire to see a large number of our teachers avail themselves of the privilege of better and more thorough preparation for their work.

Huntington, W. Va., March 31.—When the home of Ware Marcum, a farmer, living in Mingo county, was burned today $100,000 in currency the hoard of years, was destroyed. Marcum led the life of a miser and when he sold valuable timber and coal land always demanded payment in greenbacks of large denominations. This cash he always kept in the house fearing to intrust it to the banks.

Mr. J. A. Tyson, who lives on Greenville R. F. D. No. 6 brought The Reflector the largest hen egg we have ever seen. It weighs 4 1-8 ounces is 3 3-8 inches long and large in proportion. On the small end of the egg is a well formed letter "C." Mr. Tyson says the hen has laid three eggs, all of them about the same size.

Albany, March 31.—Workmen excavating among the ruins of the capitol this morning found the body of Samuel Abbott on the fourth floor. Abbott was night watchman in the building, and had been missing since the fire. His face and head had been protected by a mass of papers and books and was not even marked.

MILLINERY OPENINGS WERE IN BLOOM TODAY

HAPPY OCCASION FOR LADIES.

Stores of Mrs. L. F. Lee & Co., Pulley & Bowen, Mrs. Griffin and C. T. Munford Centers of Attraction.

This has been a great day for the ladies of Greenville and community, it marking the spring openings of the millinery establishments. This opening day, when they can see and select their hats, is second in importance only to Easter Sunday, the day on which they first wear them. Of course, all want to know just what the styles are to be, and the opening day always brings them to find out. Today throngs of them were going from one establishment to the other to see the new artistic creations of shapes, flowers, feathers, plumes, laces and what-not that goes into the making of a stylish hat.

Every season must bring out its distinct style, in shapes, colors and effects, for something must vary from former seasons to create demand. This season the hats are not so large as some of the "has-beens," yet they are large a plenty. Flowers are profuse in trimmings, and flowers are always beautiful, for a pretty face under a covering of roses—oh, well, we'll tell her about that. As this is the age of flying things, butterflies and wings are the principal ornaments this season, and while coral is the predominating color there are very popular shades of pink and green.

The Reflector man went out and looked, for he likes pretty things, and they were in evidence (both the women and the hats). And he is glad, to note also that Greenville dealers are fully up with those everywhere in styles and quality. The stores having openings today were Mrs. L. F. Lee & Company, Pulley & Bowen, Mrs. Griffin and C. T. Munford.

Each of these in addition to the beautiful display of new hats and general millinery goods, had their stores artistically decorated, and each received many compliments.

Hydrophobia was suspected and the cat's head Thursday was sent to the state laboratory of hygiene where evidences of the dread disease were found, and so Friday morning all of the above left for Raleigh to take the Pasteur treatment.—Snow Hill Standard-Laconic.

GOVERNMENTAL EXTRAVAGANCE

The Expenditures Are In Excess of The Receipts.

After the familiar but amazing fact that the annual income of the United States government from all sources is about nine hundred and thirty million dollars, while the appropriations of congress for the next fiscal year are considerably in excess of a billion dollars, the Baltimore Sun aptly remarks:

This condition cannot continue indefinitely. That the government in a time of profound peace when there is no reason for a vast expenditure except on account of the Panama canal cannot keep within its income can be explained only on the score of reckless extravagance. . . . Champ Clark and the Democrats contend that this state of affairs calls for a thorough investigation, and they propose that the various committees of the house shall make an inquiry into every department to find where and how the money is spent.

The Democratic party could render the country no service of more practical and far-reaching importance. Nor is there any cause to which a congressman could devote his attention with greater profit to the people. There is little outward brilliancy to this task of governmental economy and efficiency. It offers no chance for eloquent speeches or grandstand plays, but it lies at the very base of our national good.

The United States government today has four hundred and eleven thousand, three hundred and twenty-two employees. In 1896, this number was only one hundred and seventy-eight thousand, seven hundred and seventeen, while Washington's administration managed the public's business with one hundred and thirty six employees.

The significant point is that while the number of federal employes has thus tremendously increased, methods of administration have remained virtually as they were over a hundred years ago. Comparatively speaking, indeed, these methods are far cruder than those of the nation's earliest and simplest days.

Americans are known the world over as a people of business competence, as masters of affairs. In their private enterprises, they have carried business efficiency toward perfection. So deeply rooted in the public mind is the importance of this idea, that when great systems of railroads recently sought to increase their freight rates, they were told by the inter state commerce commission that instead of advancing their rates, they should increase their efficiency and economy of administration and thereby make their income sufficient to their needs.

Whenever the methods insisted upon in private business are insisted upon in the public's and the nation's business, we shall have a government that lives within its means and is truly representative of the American people.

The purpose of the Democrats to investigate the methods of federal departments from a business point of view and to establish system in the existing carelessness is timely and patriotic.—Atlanta Journal.

WHERE FARMERS FALL SHORT.

They Send Too Much Money To Other States.

Agronomist Burgess has submitted to commissioner of agriculture, a report of his investigation into the amounts of the different food and feed products annually shipped into North Carolina from outside sources. It is seen that this state falls short of raising all of its own supplies. For instance, it is shown that there were shipped into this state during 1910, mill feeds to the amount of $0,500 tons, valued at $1,368,000. We imported 565,764 barrels of flour, valued at $3,990,984, and 205,828 bushels of wheat valued at $236,702.20 By way of comment, Agronomist Burgess says that North Carolina has 31,091,200 acres of land surface, the largest portion of which is arable.

We grew wheat on 570,000 acres in 1909 which produced in the aggregate 5,415,000 bushels. Careful statisticians have estimated that each man, woman and child in the United States consumes an average of about 51-2 bushels of wheat a year. If these statistics be true for North Carolina we consume in a year, basing our calculation on a population of 2,200,000, about 12,100,000 bushels of wheat. This forces us to import 6,685,000 bushels to supply the demand of home consumption.

The state also falls short in raising its meat supply. Last year, 7,721,935 pounds of cured meat, valued at nearly two million dollars, were shipped into the state. In addition were 195,965 barrels of pork and 170,425 pounds of beef. On the whole, the state's imports of meat in a single year, were $6,877,148,660.

With thousands of tons of hay going to waste in our fields and meadows, we last year imported 22,187,5 tons and paid out for it $221,875, every cent of which could have been kept at home.

It is bad enough that our farmers do not harvest their own hay, but think of them buying butter! Last year, there were shipped into this state from northern and western creameries 248,625 pounds of butter, which at the low average of 20 cents a pound, took out of the state $49,653.

"We feel outraged," says Mr. Burgess, "to think of having 75 per cent of our yearly food supply grown in other states. But if it costs thirty cents a day for the average person to live, basing the cost on the market value of the food he consumes, and but one-third of this amount is shipped in from without the state, we are annually sending out of the state $80,300,000 for food supplies." Summing up, he finds that we are sending away to other states annually $4,990,874.70 more than the entire value of the cotton crop of the state in 1909, which was, rating the lint at 15 cents a pound and the seed at 40 cents a bushel, $54,325,000.

This is not a very creditable showing. Evidently, the farmers of the state are as yet by no means doing their best.—Charlotte Chronicle.

FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 1911.

The greatest folly of this age is talking about a lack of fire escapes on a building after it burns down and people are burned to death.—Durham Sun.

It just marks the way of people in this day and time. They wait for some great calamity to come and then raise a great cry as to what ought to have been done. The disaster is soon forgotten and the talk stops until another comes, and then there is some more talk that ends the same way.

A man just put it up to The Reflector this way: You are trying to get people to come here and build factories, but they are not coming. So much vacant land has been taken into the corporate limits—more than the town will build on in centuries—that if a factory prospector should come this way he would find that his site would have to be located inside the town, and the thought of town taxes would send him somewhere else.

Answering our interrogation as to when his head was caught under a feminine hat, the Durham Sun up and says boastfully: "This morning, before we left home; and a pretty black-eyed girl tripped off to school. Can you say as much? Humph! We can treble that every morning, and then some."

Candidates for mayor in Charlotte are using whole page advertisements in the papers to get their claims before the people. The Charlotte brethren are in luck and getting somewhat they are entitled to.

Editor Kohlsaatt, of Chicago, said he was informed that a fund of $100,000 was used to secure Senator Lorimer's election, but the court could not make him tell where he got his information.

The Charlotte News says the High Point Enterprise's baby contest is "a screaming success." It is a spanking good thing.—Durham Sun.

That is enough to raise a howl as bad as cutting teeth.

There seems to be a contest on between Charlotte and Wilmington as to which can have the most murders. Both towns are big enough to behave themselves.

Wonder if that decision of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia that the bucket shop law is unconstitutional, means a resumption of bucket shops.

watch. Guess he wants to have a time.

If the president's message is short as predicted, it may help the extra session of congress to get through that much sooner.

The "Big Policeman" of the Continent

By becoming the Big Policeman of the American continent, the United States increases its responsibilities, but at the same time it secures an influence for a greater good. When the people of all the American countries learn that the assurance given by Secretary Root at the Rio conference was made in good faith, our protection will be largely sought, instead of sullenly or passively accepted. When they realize that the United States seeks no territory of any country on the American continent, and that, even when in control of a country's finances, nothing but the welfare of that country is sought, it is almost certain that the inclination will be for our neighbors to look to us more and more for support and protection. When they see that prosperity follows peace; that there is more profit in tranquility than revolution; that a government supported by the United States must be honestly conducted, there will be a general acquiescence in the desirability of having the United States police and protect the people of this hemisphere.—Arthur Wallace Dunn, in American Review of Reviews.

Two Different Propositions.

The gentlemanly newspaper correspondents must have something about which to write—something the people will read—and they know how to get it—or, if not to be had, to make it. They are now engaged in trotting out a "progressive" candidate for the United States senate, this element being dissatisfied with both Simmons and Kitchin. The story evolved is that led by Mr. Joseph Daniels, of the Raleigh News and Observer, either former Governor Aycock, Judge Clark or Mr. E. J. Justice will be entered. Aycock has frequently said that he would not run; what Clark or Justice will do is not known, but it is our best judgment that neither will be willing to try it, unless the outlook is better than at present. A "progressive," in the sense it is used, would have made a poor showing with the last legislature. That body was noted for staying in the middle of the road, neither turning to the right nor to the left. It was free from all species of wild cat legislation. However, the last and the next legislature are two different propositions.—Greensboro Record.

CROUP CONQUERED.

Every Mother Should Read and Remember This.

In any home where a child has a tendency to croup, a bottle of HYOMEI (pronounce it High-ome) should be kept constantly on hand. A sudden attack of croup with difficult breathing and extreme distress is apt to come on at any time. The course to be pursued is plain. Send for your doctor at once, and in the meantime drop 30 drops of HYOMEI into a bowl of boiling water, and hold the child's head over it, cover with a towel or cloth, so that only the air filled with Hyomei vapor is breathed. This method of treatment has saved many a child's life, and mothers of croupy children should see to it that HYOMEI is always on hand. Full instructions for prompt relief of croup is in each package. A 50c bottle of HYOMEI is all you need in treating croup. This is known in all drug stores as Extra Bottle Hyomei Inhalant. Coward & Wooten and druggists everywhere sell it. Breathe HYOMEI. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, croup, sore throat, bronchitis, coughs and colds, or money back. 3 20, 31—410

TELEPHONES IN GERMANY.

Operators Protected by Civil Service Rules.

Usually the German telephone girl gets her job through a civil service examination and hangs on to it for life. Her average age on entering the occupation must be near thirty. As she can stay until she is seventy (but no longer) one sees many operators, says the Telephone Review, whose age it would be ungentlemanly to guess.

Novices go to a training school, but are paid while there, and the drill in practical operation is complicated with a good many technicalities of construction. On entering an exchange an operator is paid about sixty cents a day. An increase of four cents a day each year is made until the eighth or ninth, when she is established and can not be discharged without considerable red tape. When she has worked up to $450 a year, and $450 additional for house rent, she stays at that pay until retired on pension.

On the back of each operator's chair are two bags, a black one to hold head set and service property, and a brown one for her lunch and personal belongings. Operators freely talk back to a hostile subscriber and pleasantly pass the time of day with a friendly one. They apparently talk to one another with little restraint while at the board.

Working hours are about ten a day. Girls work the board from six o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock at night. Night operation is by men, paid double wages, and they repair cords and work about the board as well as answer calls, for the night traffic is very light.

Supervisors are not so numerous as with us, and handle fifteen to twenty-five operators upon lines that do not tend to produce the quick service our public is accustomed to. The cardinal virtue of the German service is its cheapness, and the cardinal defect its leisureliness.

Berlin calls average two and a half cents apiece, and it is possible to talk nearly four hundred miles for twenty-five cents. But the German exchequer, of course, bears the burden of a deficit, on the same plan as Uncle Sam's post office.

One excellent practice universal in Germany Americans might well adopt. Telephone managers here are now trying to bring subscribers to identify themselves when answering the telephone. Every German does it, for instead of saying "Hello," the form of answering is invariably "Hier Karl Schmidt," or "This is Karl Schmidt." Long distance operators identify themselves by their towns, so that when Frankfurt-on-the-Main is rung up from Berlin, the operator says, "This is Miss Frankfurt" or "Hier Fraulen Frankfurt." The "Fraulein" is never left off.

While long distance is cheap, it is also crowded through the day, and considerable time is needed to get a message through as a rule. The Berlin operators of long distances speak several languages, as they are working with French, Italian, Russian, Swedish, Dutch and other operators. The Ober-Inspektor at Berlin gave one amusing fact on this point. While all his operators handling traffic to Paris speak French, learned in the thorough German fashion, only one or two long distance operators at Paris condescend to speak German.

Some of the exchanges have comfortable lunchrooms, where coffee is served to the operators and all will have them in time, it was said. The telephone service in Germany is like most business there in that the employees have two hours for a hearty meal in the middle of the day and go home to take a nap.—New York Herald.

A Shoplifter in a Harem Skirt.

Mlle. Louise Chauvel, who dwells in the Avenue des Mairies, must have been ill-advised regarding the harem skirt before she entered a large store department on Tuesday. She evidently forgot that the detectives there like everybody else, could not but watch her neat and easy steps. They did so to some purpose, for the various articles she slipped into the capacious "bags" she was wearing betrayed her by their bulging.

Mlle. Louise slept last night at the Depot as the consequence, for when arrested her "pockets" were found to contain thirty-seven objects which she is alleged to have obtained without payment.—Paris Journal.

Questions for Newspaper Publishers' Association.

The average reader of course does not know how the publisher of a newspaper is bedeviled and worried in his advertising department by the more or less expert in this line. He wants "top of column next to reading matter," and sometimes he is willing to pay for it, in which case he generally gets it, provided the paper has the position.

Major Hemphill, of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, always has his eyes open and has found something in this line that needs attention. Hear him:

When the American Newspaper Publishers' Association meets in New York next month, it is hoped that it will "get together" on the question of what are called "position ads." that is, advertisements that are contracted for on the condition that they must be printed "next to reading matter," or "surrounded by reading matter," or "first place in either above or below reading matter" on this, that or the other page. Of course, there is a "business" reason for it; but we submit that advertisers and publishers and readers all suffer at times rather sore embarrassment on this account. For example, only a day or two ago, one of our contemporaries, which devotes a good deal of space to "Society" news—telling about how our best people are going here and there in this country and abroad, are entertained at charming receptions of the finest description, with afternoon teas here and pretty weddings there and luncheons all about—printed along with all this delightful intelligence and almost immediately under the name of a very modest man a double column advertisement filling four inches of a marvelous remedy under this head-line in big black type: Constipated All His Life; Now Cured," etc., etc.

We submit that here is a special inappropriateness in such a conjunction, and that both the "Society" news and the advertisement would have looked better had the separation between them been wider. We really do not know anything about the conditions in the home of the person living in Harrisburg or in that of the gentleman residing in Cuba, Illinois, and are willing to accept their statement that they and theirs have invariably found the prescription all that is claimed for it; but we must insist that the people who read "Society" news in other communities far removed from the places in which the medicine has been used with such gratifying results should not be expected or forced to take the stuff even if it can be obtained "of any druggist at 50 cents or $1 a bottle." There is a time and place for all things, and "Society" should not be mixed with physic.

The great American Newspaper Publishers' Association is supposed to be the conservator of the advertising morals of the country, and here is a very practical question with which it should deal promptly and effectively even, if by combining against such incongruities, it might render itself liable to prosecution under the Sherman Anti-Trust law, for doing a thing in restraint of trade."

It is hoped the Newspaper Publishers' Association will handle the matter in such a way as to settle the disturbance, for Society must be protected.—Greensboro Record.

The Phrenologist and the Grocer.

The phrenologist—here is a man out of his proper sphere. His head betokens high intellectual and spiritual qualities, yet he is spending his time behind a grocer's counter. Sir (to the grocer), I wish to ask you a question. Have you any aspirations?

Grocer (calling to clerk)—John, have we any aspirations?
Clerk—All out, sir; have some in the last of the week.

A Fierce Night Alarm.

Is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, O., (R. R. No. 2.) for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Sometimes in severe attacks" he wrote, "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. Asthma, hay fever, lagrippe, whooping cough, hemorrhages fly before it. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Sold by all druggists.

A bank account not only gives you a safe place to keep your money, but it is also a great convenience. Besides every check you draw is a legal receipt for the debt you pay.

Record of Postal Banks.
It is difficult to say from Postmaster-General Hitchcock's postal bank figures for January and February just how large a financial success the banks would have if they were opened in all the postoffices of the country instead of being confined to 48 offices—one in each state and Territory. But it is plain enough that, even after allowances are made for any reasonable falling off in public interest, the experiment is promising so far as the mere gathering in of the public's money goes. In two months the 48 banks have collected a net sum of $133,869, or at the rate of more than $300,000 a year. The Postoffice department figures that as there are fewer than 400,000 people in the towns that contain the banks, and more than 90,000,000 of us all told, in the country, a full year of operation by the postal bank system as eventually to be applied would, if the present proportions were maintained, result in the accumulation of the immense sum of two hundred million dollars.—Providence Journal

PROF. OSLER IS RIGHT

YOUTH ALWAYS SUCCEEDS AGE.

Osler isn't the only man who turns down old age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc.; and the old man is passed by in the race.
One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs.
When you see them, act promptly.
Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct this sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.
The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.
This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle and is recommended and sold by

The Tuscaroras Again.

The recent visit of Chief Mount Pleasant of the Tuscarora Indians to the office of Secretary of State J.
Bryan Grimes in Raleigh serves to bring vividly to mind certain very stirring episodes of early North Carolina history. The second and third generations of white settlers in this region had a very intimate, not to say bloody, knowledge of these Tuscaroras. About 1711 the Indians decided to attempt the extermination of the white, and a gallant effort they made. It was only with the help of their South Carolina neighbors that the North Carolinians were able to overwhelm their savage enemies. The defeat, however, when once accomplished, was of characteristic colonial thoroughness. The Tuscaroras were so broken that the larger part left North Carolina to join the Iroquois confederacy in the Mohawk Valley of New York. Their presence gave great strength to that band, which thereby became increased from five tribes to the six which composed the "Long House" during the revolutionary times.

A part of the remnant of the Tuscaroras emigrated to New York in the early part of the nineteenth century, and their lands—lying mainly in Bertie county—were put under control of North Carolina by means of a hundred-year lease. This arrangement is to expire in 1916 and the present visitor's purpose is to look after the tribal interests in the newly so careful about legal documents a hundred years ago as they are now and the matter seems to be in no little confusion. It is stated that the Indians, by a further deed, surrendered to this state all right to the lands in question. Besides calling up historic recollections, the chief's visit is likely to give rise to some very intricate title-tracing among the legal fraternity.—Charlotte Observer.

NEW YORK AND CHICAGO MARKET

Stocks.

New York, March 31.—The stock market was heavy at the opening and prices were generally fractionally lower. Steel was one of the leaders in the initial decline, opening off 1-8; Amalgamated was off 3/8; Union Pacific 1-4; Reading 1-8 and Canadian Pacific 3-8; St. Paul and Southern Pacific were both unchanged; Atchison was up 1-4; Erie stocks declined; Standard Industrial noting fractional losses.

Cotton.

New York, March 31.—Cotton opened steady with prices ranging from unchanged to two points up. The opening was immediately followed by a renewal of July selling, which caused prices to ease off several points. Prospects for bullish showing for weeks seemed to be the chief factor. Liverpool spot was active, futures steady.

Causes of Mexican Unrest.

Judged by American ideals and standards, which are the ideals and standards of the cooler-blooded Anglo-Saxon race, nourished from its earliest infancy on free, representative institutions, there is undoubtedly much to be desired in modern Mexico. The modified system of feudalism still obtains in that republic, with peonage and industrial serfdom, for a large portion of the people. Indeed, as pointed out last month, it has been the popular revolt, particularly in the northern states of Chihuahua and Sonora, against the monopoly of commercial and economic opportunities by the old families and the owners of the larger estates, that precipitated the present serious condition of affairs. Undoubtedly the main cause of the uprising lies in the fact that the upper and middle classes have both outgrown the system of government that has been in operation for more than a quarter of a century. The people of Mexico may be roughly divided into two classes, a small upper class composed mainly of people of wealth, land owners who measure their estates by square miles and a vast body of poorly paid laborers, with practically no middle class such as that which forms the great bulk of the population of the United States and the nations of Europe. In recent years an effort has been made through the opening of public lands to create a class of small land owners, but without success. A Mexican may acquire public land by settlement and cultivation and the payment of a tax, but only a comparatively few have been able to comply with the conditions. Millions of Mexican peons take no interest whatever in politics, but there are thousands of men of higher intelligence who believe that an autocratic system is employed to drive them of their privileges as citizens. Elections, both state and national, are admittedly a farce and have been so for years.—American Review of Reviews.

An Accidental Discovery.

Blotting paper was discovered purely by accident. Some ordinary paper was being made one day at a mill in Berkshire, England, when a careless workman forgot to put in the sizing material. The whole of the paper made was regarded as being useless. The proprietor of the mill desired to write a note shortly afterward and he took a piece of waste paper, thinking it was good enough for the purpose. To his intense annoyance the ink spread all over the paper. Suddenly there flashed over his mind the thought that this paper would do instead of sand for drying ink, and he once advertised his waste paper as "blottings." There was such a big demand that the mill ceased to make ordinary paper and was soon occupied in making blotting paper only, the use of which soon spread to all countries.—Christian Herald.

Oil Mills in Palestine.

Although the old style olive mills are fast being replaced by the modern French machines, serig, or sesame-seed oil, is made in this district by the old and primitive methods, except in one mill. The seeds are first soaked in water and then shelled by pounding in a large stone mortar with a huge wooden mallet. They are next roasted in an oven and then ground in a stone mill, turned by a camel, the result being a thin grayish paste. This is then poured into a circular vat with a concave bottom. When the vat is full, the fluid being about three feet deep, a man gets into the vat and treads the paste with his bare feet, which brings the oil cake to the bottom, and as the oil comes to the top he skims it off with a brass bowl.—Consular Reports.

Misapplied Diminutive.

The late Bishop William N. McVickar, of Rhode Island, harbored a large soul in a body to match. He was a bachelor whose sisters kept house for him.

On one occasion he telephoned to his tailor that he wished to have a pair of trousers pressed, and the tailor sent a boy to his residence to get them.

The bishop's sister admitted the messenger and called upstairs, "Willie the boy has come for your trousers!"

When the brother appeared the youth's astonished gaze traversed the prelate's impressive "corporosity," then he murmured:

"Gee! Is that Willie?"
