IT KEEPS GROWING.

Good Roads Sentiment and What It Means.

It is indeed remarkable how the sentiment in favor of good roads has developed during the last five years. Even remote townships in our leading counties are offering to tax themselves in order that they may enjoy the benefits of improved highways. Counties heretofore indifferent are beginning to move in the matter. All this indicates that rapid progress of intelligence and is one of the most encouraging signs of the times. Along with this comes the determination to have better schools, better churches and more efficient and regular church services. With it comes also the desire for more comfortable and attractive homes, and best of all, a spirit of contentment. Henceforth we shall see less tendency to move from the country to the town, and society in general will be the better because of this. The pastor of the country church has a fine opportunity by showing his sympathy and giving helpful co-operation, to prove a great factor in this social and material renaissance. The time will doubtless come and that before many decades, when the strongest and best men in the pulpit will be glad to serve the country charge.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

CRAP SHOOTERS NABBED.

Policeman Clark Catches Three and Locks Them Up.

Policeman G. A. Clark rounded up a bunch of crap shooters, Wednesday afternoon, and landed a trio in the guard house. The players were real accommodating in the place they had selected for the game, going in a stable not far from the guard house, so the officer had to escort them only a few steps to turn the prison keys on them.

THE SOUTHERN FARMER.

Four Essentials To Agricultural Prosperity.

If the farmers of the South produced all the mules, corn hogs, and hay that are used in the South, what would be the effect on our agriculture? It would simply mean a revolution. There are few counties in the whole South that have a railroad station or a steam boat landing that do not buy large quantities of two or more of these staple products. There is no way of estimating accurately the money spent each year for these farm products, but it is simply enormous. All this would be retained in the South to circulate and increase all lines of business; but this is only one of the many benefits which would accrue. Not until we breed our own mules can we hope to have enough of them to do our own farm work well and economically. There are no greater weakness is in our present system of doing farm work than those resulting from a lack of mule power—the use of small, ineffective implements and of man labor which should have its place taken by machines and mules.

As long as corn and hay are purchased to feed live stock, we can never hope to keep that necessary to build up our worn lands and consume the forage which must be grown when a proper crop rotation is adopted.

Hogs offer one opportunity for getting into live stock husbandry at a small cost for breeding stock and there is abundant proof that they can be produced on cheap Southern-grown feeds at a large profit over present prices. Here, indeed, is a "money crop" equal to King Cotton, if cultivated with the same interest and moderate intelligence.

Many of the suggestions offered for the betterment of Southern agriculture are rejected by Southern farmers, as impracticable under existing conditions. This is generally not true, the impracticability of their adoption resting entirely in the disinclination of our farmers; but who will dare state that every individual farmer in the South can not raise his hay, corn and hogs, and a little more for the town people of his section, if he really wants to. Moreover the farmers of the South, as a whole, can raise all the mules used by the South, just as soon as they want, or try, to do so.—Progressive Farmer.

Mr. Small Embarrassed.

Congressman Small has sustained some embarrassments of late. The congressman says that in some way, to him unknown, an impression has gone abroad that the government has printed Bibles for distribution, and that he is the chosen agent in their distribution. Mr. Small has received 50 letters from constituents telling him how glad they would be to receive one of the Bibles. In some instances the writers ask for maps of our country, and then for a Bible, and while Mr. Small was pleased to observe how religion triumphs over patriotism in these requests, the writers desiring the Bibles, if they cannot have both, still it is all a mistake, the report that the government has printed Bibles for distribution, and the congressman has found it necessary to apprise his friends of the fact.—Greensboro Daily News.

It Is Good to be A Southerner.

We people in America are indeed the favored of the gods—and none more so than those of us who live in the South. There is indeed much to suggest that idea that here in the South, with our rich natural resources, kindly climate, democratic ideas, the absence from us of a fashion-mad, idle-rich class of degenerates, our old-fashioned ideas of morality, and our growing freedom from the enervating effects of intemperance and idleness, we shall grow leaders who will not only make the South great, but win leadership in the nation at large. And in bringing about this result, upon no class does so much depend as upon those next to the soil.—Clarence Foe, in Progressive Farmer.

A Little Lay Sermon.

Could anything be more appropriate than the proposed law to require the teaching of kindness, mercy to dumb brutes, and other forms of humanity in the public schools? It may be readily admitted that the public schools have a very definite educational province, and that province does not necessarily include humane instruction, but the inculcation of the principles of kindness and of sympathy for the brute creation may well occupy more of the curriculum than it does at the present time.

The present season is said to have been a "poor hunting season," and there are plenty of persons who are glad it has proved so. It is a curious commentary on human nature that men will spend long, cold hours in trudging through the snow and rain, lie in icy coverts in ambush for ducks and geese, or in other ways endure the greatest hardships, all for the sake of killing some wild thing that is forced by hunger or thirst to come within the reach of the deadly gun.

A Kansas City man not long ago boasted that he was one of a party of eight men who had killed 4,000 pigeons—a gory cruel average of 500 to the man. The time will come when the proposed "law of kindness" will be the unwritten law of universal conduct, when the land red with the blood of wild creature slain from mere wanton lust of killing will not be taken in friendship by the average human being.—Kansas City Journal.

FORECAST OF PROSPERITY.

The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Orders New Equipment.

A bright forecast of prosperity for this portion of the South looms up in a big order which the Atlantic Coast Line has given out for new equipment that will cost a mint of money. It is announced from the general offices of the system in Wilmington that the order includes 15 Pacific type passenger engines, 20 monster freight engines, 25 passenger coaches, four combination mail and express cars, 1,400 box cars, 50 phosphate cars, 50 ballast cars, 20 caboose cars, etc.

This indicates the faith of this progressive railway in the future prosperity of the splendid portion of the South traversed by its lines. In fact, it points to the existing prosperous conditions that demand this increased equipment and enlarged facilities. This large order for new equipment is only one of the signs, for the system is doing extensive double-tracking and installing the most modern bridges at various points throughout its mileage. It shows that the Coast Line has confidence in the future, while the portion of the South which it serves is to be congratulated upon the fact that the A. C. L. is determined to be in the front rank of the enterprising railways of the South.

The equipment which the Coast Line has ordered will be delivered this summer, so that when the fall business opens, the system will be in excellent condition for meeting the demands of the traveling and shipping public. The system is spending millions of dollars to equip itself for the needs of the South, and for years to come it will require an enormous outlay for double-tracking and adding further to its equipment to furnish service to the growing South.

The fact that the Coast Line is double-tracking shows that Eastern North Carolina is no longer a one-track country. The Coast Line is not doing the Pizarro act of burning its bridges behind it, but is erecting permanent bridges ahead of it, well knowing what the future is for the territory it is serving and developing.

THE TOWN HAS RIGHT

TO WIDEN STREETS

WINS SUIT IN JEFFRIES CASE.

Supreme Court Hands Down Decision in Favor of Town.

In the improvement being made by the town on Fifth street, to make portions of the street the proper width brought the necessity of removing certain shade trees. Mr. R. O. Jeffries enjoined the town from removing the trees in front of his property. The suit was tried in the lower court and went on appeal to the Supreme court. We take the following report of the case from the Raleigh News and Observer:

In an exhaustive and able opinion by Judge Walker the Supreme court decides several questions affecting the rights of towns over their streets in the case of Jeffries v. Town of Greenville. The suit was brought to enjoin the town from cutting down a row of shade trees on the outer edge of the sidewalk in widening the street.

The first question raised was that the town did not own the easement in or title to the sidewalk. Judge Walker states that there was ample evidence that the street embracing the sidewalk had been dedicated to public use, the sidewalk having been paved by order of the town, etc. The second question raised that the town had not instituted condemnation proceedings, and the attempted removal of the trees was without due process of law. Judge Walker states, "It may be regarded as settled law that the power to take private property for public uses belongs to every independent government exercising sovereign power, for it is a necessary incident to its sovereignty and requires no constitutional recognition." The charter of the town expressly authorizes the town to widen streets and enter upon the work and afterwards to appraise the damages. The law of the state does not require compensation to be first made and it is useless to require that appraisal be first made if the compensation is not required to be paid. It is only necessary that there be certainty that compensation will be paid. It was not, therefore, necessary that a hearing be allowed the plaintiff prior to the order of the board of commissioners.

The next question was that public interest did not demand the widening of the street. The Supreme court states that the power having been given the town, its exercise must rest in the sound discretion of the governing body when their action is bona fide.

They Could Not Follow.

Two capricious young ladies not a thousand miles from Winston-Salem planned to have some fun when a certain young man called to spend the evening. They thought it would be great sport to imitate everything he did. When the young man entered the parlor he blew his nose, which each of the girls promptly imitated. Thinking it a peculiar incident the young man proceeded to stroke his hair. Both girls followed. Then he straightened his collar. They did the same, and a few dimples and miles began to appear in spite of them. Now it was the young man's turn. He was positive of his ground and calmly stooped and turned up his trousers.—Winston Tobacco Journal.

Guilty of Something.

In certain sections of West Virginia there is no liking for automobiles, as was evidenced in the case of a Washingtonian, who was motoring in a sparsely settled region of the state.

This gentleman was hailed before a local magistrate upon the complaint of a constable. The magistrate, a good natured man, was not, however, absolutely certain that the Washingtonian's car had been driven too fast, and the owner stoutly insisted that he had been progressing at the rate of only six miles an hour.

"Why, your honor," he said, "my engine was out of order, and I was going very slowly because I was afraid it would break down completely. I give you my word, sir, you could have walked as fast as I was running."

"Well," said the magistrate, after due reflection, "you don't appear to have been exceeding the speed limit, but at the same time you must have been guilty of something, or you wouldn't be here. I fine you ten dollars for loitering."—Lippincott's

GATHERED FROM EXCHANGES.

And Briefly Stated for Our Busy Readers.

Kinston, April 5.—Fire at noon today destroyed five houses in a negro settlement in Northeast Kinston on Thompson street, entailing a loss of approximately $3,000, with very little insurance. The buildings were in a cluster and a heavy gale blowing caused the flames to quickly accumulate from one to another until all five were burning at one time. The firemen worked hard, but were handicapped by low pressure because the water main from which they worked was so far out from the pumping station and only one hydrant was in the vicinity to attach the hose to. It was necessary to lay between 800 and 1,000 feet of hose, and then use Siamese connections, which also dissipated the force of the stream.

Elizabeth City, April 5.—Della Shannon, a negro woman, lies at her home, 311 Lane St., with a terrible wound on the side of her head, inflicted yesterday afternoon about 1:15 o'clock by a gun in the hands of Charles Henry Grandy, her one time intimate friend. Grandy, who is well known in police circles and was unknown to work, left immediately following the shooting for parts unknown.

Kinston, April 5.—Walter Field's store was robbed of several hundred dollars worth of goods last night in a manner unique for its boldness and conception of the plan. The robber or robbers broke locks to gates and went to a stable at the rear of Mr. Felds' store, secured a horse and dray and carted the stolen stuff away, taking over half of his entire stock.

Minute Animal Life.

"The microscope teaches us," says a scientist, "that there are animals so wonderfully minute that if a thousand of them were ranked abreast they could easily swim, without being thrown out of order, through the eye of the finest cambric needle ever made. Yet each of the minute creatures is a highly organized number of particles, capable of moving about, of finding and devouring food and of behaving in all respects as becomes an animal as distinguished from a fragment of unorganized matter." The human mind is utterly incapable of realizing the structure of these little creatures and of fully appreciating their marvelous adaptation to the life they are destined to lead.

For Defective Children.

As a development of the past ten years, one hundred and ten such special classes are now maintained in connection with the public schools of New York City. Not only in the number of children thus cared for, but in the methods by which these abnormal cases are diagnosed, prescribed for, and classified, New York is very much ahead of any other American city. Miss Elizabeth Farrell, a woman of wide experience, is at the head of the entire department of ungraded classes. Miss Farrell and her associate, Dr. Isabella Smart, who admits that the equipment at their disposal is the best in the country, personally examine and test every child who is suggested by the teachers of the regular classes. Of course very many puzzling cases resolve themselves into a matter of eyes—defective vision—or adenoids.

Obscured physical difficulties are treated by experienced physicians without any cost to the child. Cases where there are no physician complications are turned over to an ungraded class—an experience that in three months is pretty sure to transform them.

It should be understood that these classes do not usually include merely backward children. On the other hand, absolutely hopeless cases are not admitted. But the idea is that every child who is to any degree educable, should to that degree be educated. Rooms are chosen for these classes in the public school buildings in order that the pupils who are set apart may not suffer from too marked a sense of difference and isolation, a certain amount of contact with normal children being considered desirable. The department is growing so rapidly and the need of specially equipped teachers has become so imperative that the board of Education has decided to send thirty young women teachers to take a course at the New Jersey Training School at Vineland, the leading institution in the country for the study of abnormal psychology. It also expects to open this spring a special training school in Brooklyn. So far, the teachers of defective classes have been recruited—and with no little difficulty, for it is obvious that the world demands peculiar gifts, as well as special training—Review of Reviews.

AT LAST

The Tide Has Changed in Wake County.

There have been more miscarriages of justice in trying blind tiger criminals in Wake county than in any county in North Carolina, except in New Hanover. Last fall it was so noted that juries would not convict that Judge Cook instructed the sheriff to go out and bring in a better type of jurors, and the result was some convictions and more submissions. Nearly every blind tiger who had the money to fight appealed from the police justice, and as they generally escaped justice in the Superior court, these violations grew more and more bold, and regarded the Superior court as a haven of refuge.

The action of the jury, the judge and the solicitor at the recent term of Wake Superior court shows that the tide has changed; a higher sentiment and love of justice prevails, and Wake will not tolerate those violations which have too long disgraced the county. Solicitor Norris prosecuted and secured the conviction of one white man and one colored blind tiger the jury refused to be misled by testimony and the attempt of lawyers, and the judge not only sent the convicted men to the roads, but commended the jury. After rebuking the attorney, who wished to have the righteous verdict set aside, Judge Whedbee said to the jury:

"Gentlemen of the jury, I commend you for the manly course you have pursued in this matter, and the court desires to thank you in its behalf and on behalf of the public for the verdict you have rendered in this case. The court desires to say further that it affords it great pleasure to say that you have rendered faithful and honest service as jurors at this term and that the people of Wake county are indebted to you. In my experience on the bench I have not always seen juries that deserve commendation, but you do, and I am very glad to express it."

No matter how vigilant the solicitor or able the judge or fearless the jury, the only hope of stamping out the blind tiger lawlessness is for all three to be zealous, honest and determined that no guilty man shall escape punishment. And after that, there must be a sentence to the roads in most cases. Judge Whedbee believes in making the punishment fit the crime, neither inflicting long sentences nor virtually defeating convictions by fines. In ninety-nine cases out of one hundred a fine for a blind tiger man is license executed for carrying on the business.

Judge Whedbee, in this and in other ways, has shown that he is a fearless and just judge, and the people of Wake have been greatly pleased with him.—Raleigh News and Observer.

The Consumer's Dollar.

Various wise men undertake to tell us what is the matter with farming I thought the drought was what had come near putting us out of business this year, but the gentlemen who want to think for us and handle our goods—at a price—are bound to have their argument. They do not get down to the heart of it. The trouble with farming is the uneven manner in which the consumer's dollar has been distributed. By the consumer's dollar I mean the dollar which a man gives his wife in town to buy food or clothing—the things which originally came out of the soil. Out of that dollar the farmer averages 35 cents. Some get more and some less, but the average is 35 cents between handlers divide the 65 cents between them.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Cynics are people who are happy only when they are saying something mean.

The Drug Exposure.

From the chorus of approval which has greeted its efforts, we take it that The New York World scored heavily to its credit when it came out with its "drug exposure." Perhaps there are few lines of business which offer a larger field for quackery and substitution than the drug business, yet outside of the big metropolitan centers, one seldom hears of rascals being in the business. New York is a fertile field for every form of graft and trickery, and it is not surprising that an investigation conducted by an enterprising newspaper should bring to light the fact that in addition to all their other ills, the people of Gotham are victimized with shoddy drugs. Commenting upon the World's campaign against the drug sharks The Providence News says:

"The New York World has just done another of those well-worth-while things which certainly cause to sink into significance the shortcomings of the great modern newspapers. It has, after a most careful investigation, exposed the frauds practiced upon persons who have physicians' prescriptions filled at certain drug stores. The chemist employed by The World clearly showed that a low grade of goods and things different from what the doctors prescribed were used in many places in filling these orders for the sick. So sharp was the testimony published that drug associations and medical men promptly declared that no time must be lost in improving the tone of the pharmacies or so-called apothecary shops.—Asheville Citizen.

VALUE OF READING.

Shannonhouse's Valuable Advice to Farmers.

The Charleston News and Courier discourses interestingly on the value of reading to the farmer. It speaks of the papers which treat of agricultural subjects as "the farmer's best tools." We quote: "By this time the readers of the News and Courier are well acquainted with the Rev. R. G. Shannonhouse, of Edgefield. His articles on gardening and the cultivation of various kinds of vegetables have commanded widespread attention. His knowledge of such matters is based on study and actual experience, and what he has to say is of value to the farmer. Mr. Shannonhouse is a close observer and the experience of others are turned to good account by him in the article appearing to-day. Mr. Shannonhouse departs from his usual line of writing, and by illustration, points out a moral. It is an excellent complementary article to that of Dr. Dreher, it urges the farmer to mix brains scientifically. And Mr. Shannonhouse points out that a good farm journal is a valuable 'tool' to the farmer. It is the means by which he may acquire a knowledge of improved farm methods and apply to his daily labors."

Very striking is the illustration of the farmer who took three trips to Florida to study farm methods from the car windows, but who was unable to subscribe to a magazine that treated scientifically the very subject in which he was interested.

Writing for the News and Courier, Mr. Shannonhouse gives several instances of remarkable success in developing small farms and of the help obtained from reading good publications on the subjects of the special agricultural or horticultural work undertaken. Mr. Shannonhouse shows that anyone, living in town or country may develop enough of a farm or garden to be both profitable and interesting. One case he speaks of is that of a busy little school marm, who takes several papers and magazines dealing with outdoor life. Two or three years ago she built a home on the top of the reddest, hardest clay knoll to be found in the village. The land was so hard it seemed she would have to use dynamite to get into it. But in two years she had beautiful calinas, spruce, cape jasmine and shade trees started all right. And this year she has a very pretty and substantial pergola with vines beginning to show on it, and more fine flowers than anyone in town. In the vegetable garden she raised both celery and lettuce successively last year, and this year she is getting asparagus bedded. The ordinary vegetables are an old story with her. She has the reputation in the village of being a good talker and having information at her fingers' ends, but it is a woeful fact that some people look upon her as a sort of curiosity, because she is both industrious and well informed. Such people, that is, those who read, really seem to speak a different language from the rest of the humdrum crowd, while the results they get from their endeavors are likewise different.

Mr. Shannonhouse says that the object of this article is to urge the prosperous farmers to be a little more generous toward the papers that are working for their interests, with all the trained experts, accurate scientific information and every sort of help possible to get. A dollar, or five dollars invested in good literature, pertaining particularly to his work will give him in the course of a year information and directions as to opportunities that will be worth more than he can estimate in money and time, too.

"The merchant, manufacturer, mill man or professional man would not have much standing; in fact, he would in a short while not have much of anything, without his trade papers. Now then can the man who is in business with the soil expect to get along without his?—Charlotte Chronicle.

OTHERS' BURDENS.

The secret of happiness, at least of the most assured and tranquil happiness that is possible in this life, is to be absorbed in the affairs of others and particularly in their troubles. The man who can be so absorbed is sure not to be miserable, because he will never be aware of his own misfortunes. For them he will substitute the misfortunes of others.

Why Not a Fair in Your County?

The should be an agricultural fair in your county this fall. If there is not a fair association, you will be doing a public service to set about organizing one. If there is a fair, you should be preparing to make an exhibit at it. The men who go to fairs, exhibit their products there, meet other farmers and compare notes, are usually pretty good farmers, and are almost certain to find that the time and money spent in preparing for and attending the fair is a good investment. It does not take a lot of money to start a fair and it is quite possible to have a good display of agricultural products and much interest, and to gain valuable information, without having side-shows, gambling machines, or even horse races. We believe in horse races, but we do not believe that they are essential to a good county fair. As for the gambling devices, which have disgraced many of our so-called agricultural fairs, the farmers who at home give due regard to the training of their children and to the company they keep, should insist that these things be abolished. Much as we believe in the value of local fairs, we believe it will be better for the farmers to stay away from the one made up chiefly of fakirs, side-shows and games of chance, and to let the people who are interested in these questionable "amusements" support that fair.

First of all, however, it is the duty of the farmer to insist that the fair be made reasonably clean and to do all he can to prove that it can be made so, and at the same time be made a success. We attended a fair last fall at which there were four or five thousand people and not a fakir or show was allowed on the grounds. It is useless to say that a live, progressive community can not have a fair without these doubtful "attractions." And 500 people at a gathering which has real educational value means more for the development of the farming interest of a county than will as many thousands at an aggregation of these so-called amusements which would not be allowed, in many cases, to stay in the town at other seasons.—Progressive Farmer.

Give some men a mere convention badge and they will strut like a peacock.

NEWSPAPER PRESS FOR SALE.

Having placed an order for a new fast newspaper and book press, to be installed the middle of April, we have a newspaper press that will be sold at a bargain for delivery May 1st.

It is a Monona Leverless Press, large enough to print four 6-column pages, or two 9-column pages and has steam fixtures so that it can be run either by hand or power. Been in use six years.

It is a splendid press for a weekly paper and is in good condition to do many years good service. We used a press from the same factory for 17 years before installing this one, printing a daily paper with small circulation about 10 years of that time. Its speed, 800 an hour, is too slow for a daily paper with the present circulation of The Reflector, and for that reason we are having to displace it with a faster press.

Any one interested and wanting a good press for a weekly newspaper, can see this press at work every day in the Reflector building, before our new press is installed. Any one who cannot come to see it at work and examine it, can get particulars by addressing

The Reflector Company, Greenville, N. C.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

MISS F. A. ROSS, Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

Protect Family by Destroying Flies.

The above advice is given in a bulletin issued by the health department of Asheville, N. C. It is more than mere advice it is a public declaration, for it names the fly as "death's messenger," and calls for its citizens to destroy the insect before it can get into its full dangerous state.

The following are some of the emphatic "don't's" to be read in the bulletin, and are equally applicable to New Bern and every other city:

Don't allow flies in your home—screen and poison.

Don't permit them near your food—especially milk.

Don't buy food from a merchant who tolerates flies.

Don't allow breeding place for flies on your premises. This means uncared for manure piles, horse stables, garbage, barrels and privies. Keep your own garbage cans screened and disinfected. Your stable manure in fly-tight receptacles, and if necessary apply to police for protection from your neighbors carelessness.

It is at this season of the year that the public health calls for serious consideration on the part of the authorities. Flies are not just an annoyance, they are a menace to the community and with the mosquito health of the community and with the mosquito work destruction to both health and lives. The fly pest cannot be lessened or eliminated by the local health authorities, by themselves. It is a work that must be entered into by every property owner, and kept up. It is a co-operative work, and the longer it is persevered in, the lighter it becomes. Why cannot the people of this community begin this work, right now, and so enter the warm months with the fly nuisance adopted and a greater degree of general public health. It is not just "shoo fly" to your neighbor but the destruction of all material matter upon the premises in which the fly may breed.—New Bern Journal.

Notice.

To the Property Owners of Greenville:

Your attention is hereby called to chapter 12, section 6, of the ordinances of the town of Greenville. Every owner or occupant of a lot is hereby notified to clean up their back lots, stables and privies within the next 10 days. All such persons failing to comply with this ordinance will subject themselves to a fine of $5, and $1 for each day such garbage shall remain after the expiration of this notice.

This March 31, 1911.

Chief of Police.
