FIRE IN HOBOKEN BOX FACTORY

Three Hundred Girls Saved by Heroic Companion.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Hoboken, N. J., April 11.—Three hundred girls were trapped by fire today in the four-story paper box factory of Owens & Troyer. The flames blocked the single fire escape and the girls became panic stricken, but were finally led by one of their number to an enclosed stairway and all escaped safely. They fought their way to the stairway through stifling clouds of smoke and many were knocked down and injured.
One girl was overcome on the fourth floor, but was rescued by the firemen.

DOGS ARE TAXED.

People in Pitt County Must Pay on Them.

The last legislature passed a law, applying to five or six counties, Pitt being one of them, placing a tax on dogs. The rate is $1 for each male dog and $2 for each female, the fund derived from this tax to apply to the public school fund of the county. So when the people of Pitt county go to list taxes this year they must not overlook to give in their dogs also. It is a misdemeanor not to do so.

Five Hints for Corn Growers.

You want to make a paying corn crop this year, of course. Here, then, are a few of the things to do: (1) Plant only on land which will make at least a fair crop; you can't afford to try to grow corn in a field which you know will not make more than 10 or 15 bushels to the acre. (2) Prepare the land well before planting; don't get in a hurry and plant the corn among clods, or on a hard-baked soil. (3) Use good seed even if it costs you a little extra. (4) Cultivate often and to a depth of not more than three inches; keep the turning plow out of your corn field. (5) Don't pull fodder and so waste labor and reduce your yield of corn; get the full feeding value of the crop.—Raleigh Progressive Farmer.

They are James Deaton and Luke Bagley, who died today from wounds. Both were shot by "Devil" Anse White, who was himself badly wounded. Deaton and Bagley went to White's cabin yesterday "looking for trouble" and found it. White is barricaded in his home and a posse has gone to try to arrest him. In the meantime friends of the two families are gathering and further bloodshed is feared.

CONTENTNEA TOWNSHIP HAS A PROLIFIC FAMILY

SOME NAMES TO THINK ABOUT.
Interesting Notes and Happenings Around Ayden.

Ayden, N. C., April 11.—Mrs. John J. May, R. F. D. No. 1, is visiting relatives in Ayden.

Mr. Stancell Hodges received a message Monday from Washington that his father, Mr. James Hodges, was very low. He left on the five o'clock train for his bedside.

Today is the election for school bonds. A white ball elects and a black ball rejects.

Mr. D. G. Berry returned Saturday from the Belhaven Odd Fellows district convention. He gave a hilarious account of the deliberations and made us regret not being able to attend, as we had married a woman, and bought land.

Contentnea township, or we should as well say Ayden, has a remarkable family for names. It is the family of Mr. Biggs Cox, Jr., down in Fork Swamp. Mr. Cox is the son of Biggs Cox, Sr., who married Miss Jennie Harrington, daughter of Mr. Joel Harrington, who fought like a trojan in the Revolutionary war and raised a large family to enjoy the spoils of his victory. Biggs Cox, Jr., is his great-grand son and he married Miss Jutry Jennie Hart, daughter of Mr. Barrom and Jennie Hart, and to this union has been born the following children, to-wit: Zylphia Farena Cox, Zula Jimema Cox, Zadye Cox, Zaddock Cox, Zeber Titus Cox, Zenoby Cox, Zerony Geo. Duly Cox, Zesley Beriah Thadlus Cox, Zeola Leader Cox, Zara Deserman Cox, Zelbert Gaston Cox. This wonderful family are the descendants of the old Plymorth Rook stock that are noted for their inflexible fidelity and the community in which they live is fertile, in fact, it is one of the most independent localities in Pitt county.

Living Without Paying.

Some of the young men most businesslike in not paying their debts find that summer is the best time for their purpose in New York. They get references and apply to the large real estate offices, offering to act as caretaker in fine houses, the owners of which may be in the country. Real estate men and the regular occupants of many fine residences are only too glad to have a stalwart young man with good references take up his quarters in a house and so guard it, especially at night, from the ubiquitous burglar on the search for just such deserted and plunderable places.

The young men who live well, and they think honestly, without paying for anything, exact no fee for this service, but act as watchman for free sleeping quarters. Comfortably established, they bring themselves to the attention of tradesmen, and with a haughty and condescending air order clothes, shoes, shirts, hats, whatever they may need—even meals from caterers—in their own names, to the fashionable address and fine-looking mansions where they dwell temporarily.—Roy L. McCardell, in Hampton's

BUILDING BALL PARK ON THE WHITE PROPERTY

INTEREST FOR FANS AND FANNIES

Greenville Can Have Good Ball If The People do Their Part.

Have you been out on the White property, just south of the Training School to see what is being done? To those of you who haven't it is this: Our people are awake and realize that we must have some sort of amusement during the hot summer months. Several lovers of the national game have subscribed stock and under the management of Mr. Simon Moye are erecting an up-to-date ball park. You have to admit that sounds good. The proposed scheme with Ayden, Grafton, Kingston and Greenville in a friendly contest, they say, must be carried out. and Greenville must be the winner.

As only home boys are allowed to play, the interest will be increased and expenses decreased.
Now, if those men are liberal enough to build a park, our people should do their part and assist in equipping the team.
A meeting will be held at an early date and all interested should attend. Go out and elect men to pilot the team on to victory.
A committee will be appointed to canvass the town to raise sufficient money to purchase uniform and material. If you don't care about the sport and don't intend to go out, even when the fever gets to white heat, then so inform the committee and they will pass you by. But if you like the game, expect to see the fun, and want to see your team win, be generous and help them. Let's get in the game early and stick there. We can have good ball at home, and why not have it?

CINCHING SETTLERS.

What Every Section Wanting Them Should be Doing.

The Star has several times emphasized the fact that in order to attract settlers or industries 'definite propositions' must be made. A friend inquires what we mean by definite propositions. We mean a proposition which has something in it—which has a tangible business offer in it to be accepted or rejected, so its practicability or attractiveness may strike those to whom the definite proposition is made.

To illustrate. We are inviting settlers and industrial promoters to come to Wilmington. In the abstract, we are inviting them, but we haven't taken the steps to send out the invitations where they can be read and accepted. To get down to the concrete, we must actually publish our invitations and give publicity to the advantages and possibilities for settlers and industrial promoters.

That would still be indefinite, but if we were to extend the invitation, accompanied by the facts and information that naturally is desired, and would at the same time offer settlers the choice of a farm in the midst of 100,000 acres of land divided into farm tracts, our proposition would be definite if we should state the price, the terms and the aid and the co-operation that would be given to settlers. When we offer manufacturing sites free, or at nominal prices, and have the goods to show when a promoter comes to look them over, and when we state what we can do for his industry, how much stock we will take in it, and give him full information about raw material, transportation, etc., we will be getting down to a definite industrial proposition.

A good illustration of a definite proposition to settlers comes from Florida. Three weeks ago 3,500 men, women and children, composing a party of homeseekers, visited the southern portion of Florida to look in to a "definite" land proposition. They came from dozens of States, even from the Dakotas, Oklahoma and other Western States, and they were attracted to Florida through advertising propositions and following-up circulars concerning the drawing of ten acre tracts of land which they could contract to buy at $240 for each tract. The land was ready to be shown, the price was known before the homeseekers left their states and they knew definitely what they were going to Florida after—ten acre farms for $240. That is $24 per acre, and the lands were in the great Everglades fertile lands were valueless till they were drained.

After these Florida lands were ready for settlement on definite plans, a real estate developing company conducted an advertising and selling campaign for a syndicated farms company and the result was the disposal of 12,000 lots of land to thousands of purchasers. When the date for the sale arrived, special trains brought the purchasers to the lands, many of

What is Electricity?

Many persons, young and old, often wonder how the modern electric cars, trains, and locomotives are operated, and what electricity is. No one knows what electricity is. We know some of the things that it will do; we have to a certain extent learned how to control it, and, for want of a better name, we call it a fluid. We have discovered, too, that it is one of the most important forces, if not the most important force, of which we have any knowledge. We are almost as ignorant of many other great forces of nature, as, for example, the attraction of gravitation. For the present we must be content to observe such forces in action and to devise the best method to control them. In the knowledge mankind has progressed wonderfully within a few years.—St. Nicholas.

Men and women are the real assets of a country and it is they who make the farms, build the cities and do the business. Acts of the Apostles.

The weight of testimony is in favor of St. Luke as the author of the Acts of the Apostles, though some respectable critics claim that the authorship is quite unknown. There are no sure data for determining the date of the Acts. Various dates have been ascribed. Some think that it was written about the year 80, while others hold that it could not have been written before the second century, about A. D. 125.—New York American.

They are very pleasant to take; they soothe the irritable stomach, strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, promote a healthy and natural bowel action, almost immediately relieve nausea and stomach irritation, produce healthy digestion and assimilation, and promote nutrition. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at—The Rexall Store.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well known properties of Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.

Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is prepared by a process which develops its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid, and without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This perfect combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

A Duel in Undress.
Dueling, though not dead, was dying out even in Rogers' time and was not taken very seriously. The poet's biographer tells the quaint story of how Mr. Humphrey Howarth, a surgeon, when called out made his appearance in the field stark naked. The astonished challenger asked him what he meant. "I know," said Howarth, "that if any part of the clothing is carried into the body by a gunshot wound festering ensues, and therefore I have met you thus." His antagonist declared that fighting a man in puris naturalibus would be quite ridiculous, and accordingly they parted without further discussion.

SUPREME COURT WORK.

How the Justices Prepare Decisions and Dissenting Opinions.

On Saturday evening each justice receives from the chief justice an envelope containing the names of the cases the chief justice has decided to allow the justice to write the opinions on, and the chief justice also notifies the justices of the hour of the conference on Monday morning. The conferences are usually held in the conference room under locked doors. The chief justice presides, and cases are taken up or postponed according to the wishes of the justices or their readiness to consider them. Each justice is furnished with a lock book, in which he may enter the details of a case, the record of the vote on conference and the final disposition. On a case being assigned by the chief justice to a justice to write the opinion of the court the opinion when written must be agreeable to the justices. If not the dissatisfied justice will promptly write a dissenting opinion. In some instances four of the justices have each written a dissenting opinion, but the usual custom is for one to write it and announce that the others concur.

Before a case is reached for argument the justices familiarize themselves with its records and briefs, and when one is directed to write the opinion he makes a study of the case, long or short, as its gravity demands. This may take a few days or months. The opinion is dictated, and after being typewritten it is corrected, boiled down and revised; another copy is then made, further revised and sent to the printer. In order that the compositors who set the type may not know the decision of the case the foreman sets up the last few lines of the opinion, locks them in a safe, and after the opinion is set up he adds them to it, takes two proofs and forwards them under lock and key to the justice. It is again read and revised and sometimes completely altered and returned to the printer, corrected by the latter and nine revised sent to the justice.

If the opinion is now satisfactory to the justice a copy is mailed to each member of the court. These are returned to the justice with the notations of the justices, and the opinion is revised or changed, if need be, to conform to their views. If there be a dissenting opinion the justice writing the majority opinion holds it until the dissent is completed.

Then on some Monday, the court being in session, the justice announces an opinion in the case, giving its number and title, and then proceeds to read it at length to the dozen people who may be present. If there be a dissenting opinion the justice writing the dissent reads it and announces the names of the justices who concur with him. Afterward the official reporter of the court sends a verified copy of the opinion to the publishers of the United States supreme court reports, and the case finally becomes one of thousands in the law libraries to be read and reread if of moment or to be forgotten if mere detail.—Independent.

The Secluded Duchess.

The Duchesse du Maine, who held her court at Seceaux during the reign of the regent, was an imperious old lady. One day, according to "A Princess of Strategy," when she was ill she complained to the doctor that he was not curing her quickly enough. What was the good, she wanted to know, of compelling her to go without so many things and making her live in seclusion? "But," replied the doctor, "your most serene highness has at present forty people at the chateau!" "Forty or fifty people?" said the duchesse. "Well, for a princess that is practically seclusion."

Not a Chance!

A man told another man a few days ago how he had been buttoning his wife's dress for five years and finally, in order to even the account, he had a shirt made to order with sixty-five buttons down the back.
"Did you make her button it?" eagerly inquired the second party, with a glad smile.

"I tried to and fell down like slipping on a banana skin," replied the first party. "She promptly told me to button the top button and let the others slide, explaining that they would not show when I had put on my coat."—Chicago Tribune.

Mehemet's Parliament.

When Disraeli was in Egypt—the story is told in Mr. Monahan's biography—he met Mehemet Ali, who desired to introduce parliamentary institutions into his country. "I will have a parliament," he said, "and I will have as many parliaments as the king of England himself." So saying, his highness produced two lists of names. "See here," he said, "these are my parliaments. But I have made up my mind, to prevent inconvenience, to elect them myself."

WOMEN IN PORTUGAL.

Dig in the Fields and Do Laboring Work in the Cities.

A good part of the farm work is performed by the women, who see no reason why they should regard digging, hoeing and plowing as the work of men alone. The man who owns a few acres of land will often leave its cultivation to his wife and daughters, while he labors as carpenter, stonemason or cooper, for casmaking is one of their important industries. He also likes to get a job as a waiter in one of the numerous hotels at seaside resorts, for the country has thousands of continental and English visitors.

Women share in the heavy work of the cities as well. There are female porters, laborers on the docks, market tenders and even women coal heavers, fishermen, or, rather, fisherwomen, and sailors. They are as strong and hardy as their husbands and brothers and seem to stand long hours and hard labor as well.

Of course it rather takes away the glamour of romance when one sees a young woman with finely chiseled features and beautiful black eyes digging with spade and mattock or heaving a basket of coal into a ship's hold with as much ease as the American girl plays tennis and golf. Women seem happy under what we would consider hard conditions, so the reformer would probably have his labor for his pains if he suggested a change in this department of Portuguese national existence.—Christian Herald.

KILL THEM YOUNG.

Do Not Tolerate Weeds in the Garden of the Soul.

An old man was once walking with a little boy. They came across four shrubs. The old man said to the youthful companion:

"Pull up the last one."

He obeyed with ease.

"Now the next."

He obeyed, but it did not come so easily.

"And the third."

It took all his strength to move its roots.

"Now the fourth."

In vain the lad put forth all his strength. He only made the leaves tremble. He could not move the roots. They had gone strongly into the earth, and no effort could dislodge them.

Then the wise old man said to the ardent youth:

"This, my son, is just what happens with our passions. When they are young and weak one may by a little watchfulness over self and the help of a little self denial easily tear them up, but if we let them cast their roots deep into our souls there is no human power can uproot them. The almighty hand of the Creator alone can pluck them out. For this reason, my child, watch well over the first movement of your soul and study by acts of virtue to keep your passions well in check."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Something in the Eye.

Small substances, like cinders, dust or small chips of stone or metal, can often be removed from the eye by very simple means. Sometimes catching the upper lid by the lashes and pulling it away from the eyeball and down over the lower lid, then letting it go, so that as it recedes its under surface is swept by the edge of the lower lid, will clear it out. If this does not prove successful a loop made of a horsehair or of a long human hair can be passed under the lid and swept from the outer side toward the nose and drawn down. Better than this, however, is the washing of the eye or flushing with the eye dropper. Every person should carry one in his traveling bag, for they are invaluable. Catch hold of the lower and upper lid, draw them away from the eye and then fill the dropper, which is like a small syringe, with water and flush the eye two or three times. This will always remove the cinder at once.—Family Doctor.

Not a Born Forger.

The indorsement of checks is a very simple thing; but, as the following story will show, it, too, has its difficulties:

A woman went into a bank where she had several times presented checks drawn to Mrs. Lucy B. Smith. This time the check was made to the order of Mrs. M. J. Smith. M. J. were her husband's initials. She explained this to the paying teller and asked what she should do.

"Oh, that is all right," he said. "Just indorse it as it is written there."

She took the check and after much hesitation said, "I don't think I can make an M like that."

Prepared For Emergency.

"What makes you keep giving me fish for dinner day after day?" he inquired. "Are you particularly fond of it?"

"No," she replied. "I was wholly unselfish. I read a lovely recipe about how to remove a fishbone when it sticks in your throat, and I wanted to try it."—Washington Star.

Not That Kind of Woman.

"Do you believe in making a genuflection before you enter your pew?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Mercy, no!" replied her hostess as she flicked a bit of dust from the $2,000 grand piano. "If I have genuflections to make about people I always do it outside of church."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"FORT BLUNDER."

It Was Erected by Our Government on Canadian Soil.

It is not generally known that our government once undertook to erect a fort on British soil. The site of this fort, afterward called Fort Montgomery, was about half a mile northeast of Rouse's Point, N. Y., not far from the foot of Lake Champlain. Popularly it was known as "Fort Blunder." It appears that after the war of 1812 our government felt the necessity of guarding the entrance to Lake Champlain. Accordingly in 1815 was begun the erection of Fort Montgomery. The original notion was to construct a great fort. In those days that meant a fort with three tiers of guns.

When the work had been in hand for some time it was discovered that, owing to an error of early surveyors, the actual boundary between New York and Canada, the forty-fifth parallel of north latitude, passed south of the fort. Work on the fort was suspended for about twenty-five years, and not until the year 1842 was the territory restored to the United States. The agreement known as the Webster-Ashburton treaty, establishing the northeastern boundary, made the line between New York and Canada conform to the old and incorrect early survey. Thus "Fort Blunder" was again on United States territory. The people of Maine, it is said, never quite forgave Daniel Webster for giving up, as they claimed he did, a great slice of territory to which they thought themselves entitled in order to save Rouse's Point.

After the boundary question was settled the fort was finished, but it was never manned by more than sufficient men to keep it in order, and it was never armed.—Harper's Weekly.

PIANO HARDWARE.

Men Who Buy Parts and Repair Their Instruments at Home.

One's notion of piano hardware is likely to be that it is material of various sorts used in the manufacture and repair of pianos, an idea that would be in the main correct, but at the same time there is more or less of such material sold at retail to private owners of pianos who may be skilled in the use of tools and who undertake to do their own repairing to save expense, and such purchasers may include men who have no knowledge of music, though they may have the mechanical expertness required for the job.

Obviously no great skill is required in replacing a broken caster. A man can buy a single caster and put it on himself if he wants to, or he could in like manner replace a broken hinge or a screw, and he can buy any of these things. But the home repairer does more ambitious work still—as, for instance, he may replace a broken wire. He can buy piano wire of precisely the right gauge, and he may undertake this job and get away with it, or he may replace one or more broken keys or hammers. Not long since a man who had bought a pretty well worn secondhand piano for $15 bought for it a complete new set of hammers, which he put on himself.

Only men of real skill can do such jobs as this, but in a town of this size there are enough men who do their own piano repairing to make it pay to keep piano hardware on sale at retail.—New York Sun.

Two Freaks of Nature.

Two contrasting freaks of nature are the Island of Fire and the Lake of Snow. The Island of Fire is called the Home of Hot Devils. It is situated in the midst of a large lake of boiling mud in the Island of Java. The steam and gases which arise from the sticky mud form themselves into bubbles attaining a diameter of five or six feet and sailing high up in the air like balloons, carried hither and thither by the wind and finally exploding with a loud crash.

The biggest snow lake is seen from the summit of Hispar pass, in the Karakoran range. It is more than 300 square miles in area. In Switzerland the sea of ice might better be called the sea of snow, as the surface is broken up by solar heat, which makes a minute fissuring in the ice, giving it the appearance of snow.

A Shrewd Answer.

Among the advertisements in an English paper there recently appeared the following: "The gentleman who found a purse with money in Burford street is requested to forward it to the address of the loser, as he was recognized."

A few days later this reply was inserted: "The recognized gentleman who picked up a purse in Burford street requests the loser to call at his house."

Her Blunder.

"What makes you think she's uncultured?"
"She thinks Ibsen's plays are stupid."
"Well, a lot of people think so."
"Yes, but she says so."—Cleveland Leader.

Repatee.

"We need brains in this business, young man."
"You needn't tell me that, sir. Your business shows it."—Baltimore American.

Always Waiting.

Dashaway—You have splendid looking clothes, old man. Who is your tailor? Chaveron—He's the best man you see as you go out.—Life.

A FIERCE ANATHEMA.

The Pious Wish a Woman Flung at Jean Paul Richter.

Jean Paul Richter once observed that if a lady officer wanted to give the word "Halt!" she would do it in the following strain: "You soldiers, all of you, now mind what I say. I order you as soon as I have done speaking to stand still, every one of you, on the spot where you happen to be. Don't you hear me? Halt, I say, all of you!" Upon this a strong minded woman made the following comment: "Now, M. Jean, it was an unlucky day on which you wrote that sentence. May you never hear anything but that little, concise word 'No' from every rosy pair of lips you meet. May you butt wifeless through life. May your buttons be snappish, your strings knotty and your stockings full of holes. May your bootjack be missing, your feet corny and your shaving water cold. your razor dull, your hair stand up, your collar lie down. May your beard be porcupine, your whiskers thinly settled and your mustache curl the wrong way. May your coffee be muddy, your toast smoky and your tea water bewitched, and, with a never dying desire for affection, may you crawl through creation a meek, miserable, nasty, forlorn, fidgety, fussy, ridiculous, ruined, dejected old bachelor."

High Sounding Names.

Writing in his Paris paper on the growing custom on the part of parents to give their children "high sounding" names, Clement Vautel says: "When the boy is old enough to understand he rebels at being compelled to carry through life a name like Anacron or Hipparchus. But he has company. I know a deputy whose parents named him Franklin. The name in itself is not so bad, but he has two brothers, Voltaire and Socrates respectively. Fancy this scene in the nursery: Franklin howling because Voltaire has broken his toy, while Socrates laughs at both. The mother as peacemaker shouts, 'Stop, Socrates, or you'll be punished!' In a narrow street in Marselles one broiling hot day I saw a woman spanking a child, shouting in anger, 'You naughty Epaminondas; I'll teach you, Epaminondas! I could never think of the Theban general after that without laughing.'

To Say and to Do.

"Do you wish to go to church this evening? Father is going to preach, you know," the minister's fair daughter asked. The young man considered. "Um! The last time I went he rather fell on some of my small failings. Do you know what his text will be tonight?" "Yes: 'Love one another.'" He regarded the round pink cheek approvingly. "Suppose," he suggested softly, "that we let the old gentleman go preach, while we sit here and practice?"—Lippincott's.

Not Perfect.

A horse dealer was showing a horse to a prospective buyer. After running him back and forward for a few minutes he stopped and said to the buyer: "What do you think of his coat? Isn't he a dandy?" The buyer, noticing that the horse had the heaves, replied, "Yes, I like his coat all right, but I don't like his pants."—London Tit-Bits.

Shop Talk.

"If we didn't have to give back any change think of the money we merchants would make." "We all have our troubles," said the magazine publisher. "Sometimes it frets me to have to print any reading matter, but I suppose it must be done."—Kansas City Journal.

The Age of Competition.

"How high is his temperature, doctor?" "Well, he's closely crowding the record." "Fine!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

STEALING A BATH DELINQUENT TAX LIST

Adventure of a Trio of English Tourists in Germany.

A PRINCE AND A PRIVATE TUB

His Autocratic Highness Was Shamefully Ignored and Enraged, and His Luxurious Bath Was Shamefully Appropriated and Abused.

Parker, Wilks and I had been "doing" Germany on the cheap, and I don't know which of us enjoyed it least. Parker grumbled the most, but then he always did, and, though Wilks and I tried to look on the humorous side of things, we lost flesh over it. We had happened upon a heat wave and swallowed a tremendous lot of dust and flies thrown in gratis, cheap though our tariff was. But we couldn't swallow the foreign titles that cropped up around us. We had too much British pride for that. And, as luck would have it, at the last town of our tour we were quartered on the top floor of a hotel where a German prince

THE COUNTRY'S LOSS.

Passing of Great Agricultural Statesman

There are big men and big men. Perhaps the biggest men of all are not the men who make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, but the man who shows millions of people how to increase production, to destroy pests of agriculture, and open new doors to farmers. Judged by that standard, Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, Chief of the Farm Co-operative Demonstration work of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who died last week, deserves to rank among the greatest men of his day and generation in what he did to open new avenues to farmers that have largely revolutionized farming, but necessarily he was a man of great ability, because men do not impress themselves and their ideas greatly upon other people unless they have brains and leadership.

A few years ago a notable meeting of educators was held at Pinehurst, and at that meeting a score of the most distinguished men in America made addresses. Early, the greatest address delivered there was by Dr. Knapp. It was on the practical subject of agriculture, and in its treatment he brought a statesmanship as comprehensive as Daniel Webster ever brought to bear on the discussion of "the Constitution of the Union." He discussed commonplace things in so interesting and as thrilling as if he was discussing some new and wonderful discovery. It was so remarkable a speech that the editor of this paper requested it for publication, and printed it in this paper the day following.

Dr. Knapp was a native of Vermont and lived in Iowa and in Louisiana before coming to the position as Chief of the Demonstration work for the Federal Government. He, therefore, understood the farming conditions of every section of America. The first work he did in the south that brought him into national prominence and made the people of Louisiana and Texas rich, was in reference to rice culture. He enabled the people of Texas to open large areas to the profitable cultivation of rice that had never before been available for agriculture purposes. From that success and the pointing out of the need of drainage and the practical way of drainage it was his statesmanship that conceived the remarkable work that the Department of Agriculture has done in the line of demonstration. He preached diversification. Many other men have done that, but he organized and put behind this preaching the power of the Federal Government, and he so impressed his views upon the secretary of Agriculture and others that congress voted larger and larger appropriations to enable Dr. Knapp to employ practical farmers to go into every county in the country and show farmers how to improve their methods; how to diversify their crops raising more crops on the acre of land, and to change agriculture from a thing of unremunerative drudgery to a business where hard work would bring good returns.

It was Dr. Knapp who pointed the way to escape and relief to Texas farmers, when the boll weevil threatened destruction of its cotton crop, and the Texas people did not hesitate to say that the farmers of that state owe more to him than to any man who has lived in this generation. It was true of Dr. Knapp, as it has been true of a few other wonderful men, that his great work was done in his old age. He was over seventy before he undertook this nation-wide work of farm demonstration and went to Washington as its head, and, although old in years, he was young in strength and in spirit. He was much in the saddle. He traveled much, went on the farms and practically showed farmers how to try new methods, and he may be said to be truly the father of the new agricultural methods that are doing so much for agriculture in the south. It is a great credit to Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who has held that position so many years that he has been quick to recognize farmer-statesmen such as Dr. Knapp—that is, men who have wisdom about farming, and whose spirit of progress give a new value to the Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Knapp had an impressive way about him. He spoke with such clearness and logic and force, that he convicted those to whom he talked. His knowledge was so complete and large, both scientific and practical that upon the subjects he discussed, he left nothing to say when he had finished. Secretary Wilson was convinced that his plan was the only one that could put his department in direct touch with every farmer. He warmly approved it, and adopted it, and made it the Government's plan, so that, although Dr. Knapp has passed away his statesmanship provision is to remain, and other men will carry on this work of demonstration until agriculture shall everywhere feel the value of his life and of his demonstration work—Raleigh News and Observer.

Asia's Greatest Lesson for the South.

"The prosperity of every man depends upon the prosperity (and therefore upon the efficiency) of the average man."
So I have argued for years, and in season and out of season, in the Progressive Farmer and in public addresses in five or six Southern States; and the most impressive fact I have discovered in all my travel through the Orient is the fundamental, world-wide importance of this too little accepted economic doctrine. It is the biggest lesson the old world has for the new—the biggest and the most important. Will you follow me then, Gentle Reader, a little more seriously and thoughtfully than usual, while we consider together what I believe to be the most notable message I shall carry back to my people at home?

In part it is my old message—the one with which you have perhaps grown familiar in my speeches and published articles. It is that you prosper just in proportion to the prosperity of the masses of the people with whom you deal. That if the masses of the people are poor and ignorant, every individual, every interest, every industry, in the community will feel and register the pulling-down power of their backwardness as inevitably and as accurately as the thermometer records the temperature of the air—the merchant will have poorer trade, the doctor and lawyer smaller fees, the railroad diminished traffic, the bank smaller deposits, the preacher and teacher smaller salaries, and so ad infinitum. Every man who through ignorance, lack of training, or by reason of any other hindering cause, is producing or earning only half as much as he ought; his inefficiency is making everybody else in the community poorer. In short, your prosperity, no matter in what business you are engaged, depends upon the prosperity of the average man; the prosperity of the average man depends upon his efficiency; his efficiency depends upon intelligence of a practical sort.—Clarence Poe, in Progressive Farmer.

Character of Popular Education.

Dr. D. B. Johnson, president of Winthrop College, at Rock Hill, S. C., uses the following language, that cannot be denied, is of the greatest importance in our day, and deserves to be reiterated until the people by an overwhelmingly majority come to resolve at last with unflinching courage that our schools shall possess the character it clearly and forcibly unfolds: "If the schools should do successfully everything else demanded of them and still fail to produce upright, honest, law-abiding, public spirited, moral, responsible, dependable citizens, they would fail miserably and could not justify their existence." John Knox, John Calvin's most illustrious pupil, laid it down as one of the fundamentals in founding and fostering schools for the education of the masses that the children of the state should be taught to know and do the things the state expected of them as citizens in order to prompt and perpetuate a great and prosperous Commonwealth.—Presbyterian Standard.

NEW YORK AND CHICAGO MARKETS

Cotton.

New York, April 11.—Cotton opened steady, four points lower to nine points higher. Liverpool market was firm and steady.

Opening—

May..... 14.63
July..... 14.59
August..... 14.15

Stocks.

New York, April 11.—Missouri Pacific was the single exception to dull and featureless trading in the stock market. An entire advance of 1-4 was shown in this stock which moved up gradually until it rose 5-8. Despite this gain the sentiment remained bearish. St. Paul, which had moved up in London, opened practically unchanged here. Reading was up 1-4; Lehigh Valley 1-2.

Reduction in Tungsten Lamps.

The Water and Light Commission are pleased to announce that the manufacturers have reduced the price of Mayda Tungsten lamps so that from now until further notice we can sell them at the following prices:

40 watt, (32 c. p.) small base, .70
40 watt, (32 c. p.) large base, .80
60 watt, (45 c. p.)..... .90
100 watt, (80 c. p.)..... 1.10
150 watt, (120 c. p.)..... 1.60

AMUZU

A BIOGRAPH

1st Reel "WINNING BACK HIS LOVE."
Drama.

A Biograph film is conceded to be the very best in the art of motion pictures.

2nd Reel PRESSED ROSES—Comedy.

You laugh from start to finish. This one is an "Imp" film, which is equally as good as an A. B., or Biograph. Go where you please, and you can't see better pictures than we have right here in Greenville. Of course there are large and beautifully equipped houses, but the pictures in the majority of instances are not as expensive nor as good as we have.

ORCHESTRA MUSIC

Miss Bagwell, Pianist. No music during intermission. This is a new and practical departure.

P. S.—The sewing machine contest will begin next week, and will be governed by and according to the usual rules and regulations.

Cranks have the greatest contempt for other people's crankiness. A man will spend more time selecting a cigar to smoke than a house to live in.
