

CAROLINA REJOICING OVER HER VICTORY

WON 2 OUT OF 3 FROM VIRGINIA.

Revived The Athletic Spirit at The University.

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 25.—For the first time in a number of years, the student body of the University of North Carolina are tasting the wholesome joy of a decisive victory over the University of Virginia. In Charlottesville on Friday, after losing to the players from the Old Dominion in Greensboro and winning in Charlotte, the boys from "home" waded in to their time-honored enemies on their own diamond, with 1000 men cheering for a Virginia victory, intent on repairing the discouragement that had come to the Carolina men during the barren years that have gone by since unquestioned victory was theirs. The game was won by Carolina 1 to 0 in the fiercest fought and fastest fielded contest seen between two colleges during the baseball season of 1911.

The unconditioned winning of these two games is an important event in the athletic history of the University. Great battles, whether on the athletic field or elsewhere, are fought when two forces of equal strength meet and are decided finally on the high level of courage. The supporters of the white and blue have realized this and more than once during the last five or six years, seeing a team just as good as Virginia's going down in defeat, Carolina men had begun to falter in his confidence in that high traditioned Carolina spirit. This victory will go a long way to cleanse college spirit from this strain of disloyalty. It will give a brighter confidence to every team of athletes that represents Carolina. It means that Carolina has safely weathered a critical period in her athletic history.

The men who fought out the way to this victory are: Hasty, Edwards, Calmes, Lindsey, Pember, Hackney, Hanes, Witherington and Lee who pitched both of the games that Carolina won. The man to whom goes more credit than to any one of the players is Chas. A. Clacy, the coach, the man who by his fine ability to teach science of baseball and by his own fighting courage which he infused into every player was able to put out the best team Carolina has had in the last eight years from a bunch of material that included only one old man, Captain Hackney.

The past week has been a pleasant break in the spring's hard work. Three dances which brought the largest crowd of beautiful girls to the Hill that has ever attended an Easter dance; the state intercollegiate tennis tournament, which was won by Carolina by heavy odds; and the class stunt of the graduating class, which was by all means the most successful thing of the kind ever pulled off in Chapel Hill, all combined to make a good time for Carolina students, and to cap it all came the victory over Virginia Friday, the telegraphic report of which was heard by about three hundred people in Gerrard hall. The students now have to settle down for a steady pull until commencement brings final release from the toils of the college year, 910-11.

BASE BALL MONDAY.

Greenville Takes The Game From Bethel.

In an interesting game of ball played here Monday evening, Greenville won over Bethel by the score of 8 to 2. Both teams went into the field with the determination to win and were encouraged by a large crowd of rooters. The most striking features of the game were Bowling's catching, Murphy's several safe hits and Burch's long drive to center for two bases.

TREE TO MARK HANGING.

Germans Will Plant Oak in Memory of Colonial Governor.

Near the statue of Nathan Hale, in City Hall Park, there will be planted next Sunday an oak tree that has been sent from Frankfort, Germany, to commemorate the death of Jacob Leisler, a German, who declared himself Lieutenant governor of New Amsterdam under William and Mary, and who was hanged as a traitor in 1691 by Governor Sloughter, the Englishman bearing orders to take control of colonial New York. The exercises will be conducted by the United German Societies of this city, which have obtained permission from the city authorities to plant the tree.

Jacob Leisler has been lauded as a martyr and condemned as a tyrant by those who have made exhaustive studies of colonial history. He came to this country from Frankfort in 1660 as a soldier in the service of the Dutch West India Company. He early took a leading part in the dissensions of the time and was conspicuous in the rebellion against the rule of Lieutenant Governor Nicholson. He took a prominent part in the seizure of the government in the name of William and Mary in 1689 and was appointed captain of the fort here by the leading committee of safety. This was followed almost immediately by his appointment as commander-in-chief, and within the year he declared himself lieutenant governor.

He and his son-in-law, Jacob Milbourne, were tried for high treason and were found guilty by Governor Sloughter. They were hanged on May 16, 1691, at what is now the intersection of Park Row and Frankfort street.—New York Herald.

INVESTIGATION RENEWED.

Those Will Be Cited to Appear For Contempt of Court.

By Wire to The Reflector. Springfield, Ill., April 25.—The state senate investigating committee suddenly resumed its hearing of the Lorimer scandal in executive session this morning. The meeting had not been expected until the afternoon. Edward Tilden, head of the beef trust has again defied the committee and has failed to appear in answer to subpoena, according to members of the committee. It is said the committee was called to cite him for contempt of court and probably order him sent to jail.

ANOTHER MINE DISASTER.

Fifteen Bodies Recovered and Others Believed Dead.

By Wire to The Reflector. Elk Garden, W. Va., April 25.—Fourteen bodies were taken out of the Ott mine this morning and one last night. There is no hope now that any of the 23 men who were entombed are alive. The bodies recovered were terribly mangled and dug from under tons of fallen debris.

THE RESULTS ARE ASTONISHING

Prepare The Land Well Before Planting.

Sometimes we become impatient to get the seed in the ground and fancy we can not afford to take the time to more thoroughly prepare the land, but this is a mistake. It is not best to plant the crops too early, before the soil is warm, although as a general rule, the earlier crops are planted after the soil and weather are fit, the better; but a crop planted on a well-prepared soil will soon catch up with one planted much earlier on a soil not properly prepared. We can much better afford to be a little late in planting than to plant before the soil is in first class condition. When the plants come up they are in the way of large implements and cultivation is expensive; therefore, as much cultivation as possible should be done before the plants come up and get in the way. It is astonishing how much cultivation of the crop can be saved by the thorough preparation of the land before planting.—Raleigh Progressive Farmer.

WILL HOLD PEACE

CONFERENCE IN FEW DAYS

DR. GOMEZ LEAVES WASHINGTON Called to Juarez For Consultation With General Madero.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, April 25.—Dr. Vasquez Gomez, head of the revolutionary junta here, will leave Washington tonight to go to Juarez for the purpose of furthering peace negotiations. Dr. Gomez has received plenary powers from Francisco I. Madero, the rebel leader, to ratify the armistice entered into by letter with General Navarro, commander of the federal forces at Juarez. He has been summoned by General Madero to Juarez to take part in the peace negotiations. As he cannot reach that point before the five day period has ended, he will request an extension of time. Dr. Gomez thinks it likely peace commissions will meet at some neutral point, probably Laredo or El Paso. It is reported here today from El Paso that a hitch may occur because Madero wants the federal government to name commissioners of peace who will be able to act in a binding manner for the federal government. The federal government is not disposed to do this.

How Hungry China Is.

Rev. E. E. Lobenstine, writing to the Christian Herald from the Chinese famine district, says: "Saddest of all has been the sale of women and children. Even in China it is generally considered disgraceful for a man to sell his wife, and the sale cannot take place openly. This year not only does the sale take place quite openly, but the purchaser is even regarded as a benevolent man, no matter how nefarious his object in the purchase may be. Those most in demand are girls from the ages of 12 to 16; most of these are bought as slaves for lives of degradation. One is constantly seeing children offered for sale on the streets. A child under 10 can be bought for anywhere from a dime to a quarter, and, of course many are given away, if the parents can find someone who will promise to support them"

McNamara, who is being spirited from Indianapolis to Los Angeles, on charges of dynamiting, is asked in a resolution introduced in the house today by Congressman Berger, the Socialist member from Wisconsin. The resolution asked for a special committee composed of members of both the house and the senate.

Every enterprise in a community that improves or prospers helps every other enterprise in the community. And if an enterprise in a community fails, every other enterprise is more or less affected by it. Hence the importance of standing by and supporting home industries.

In his charge to the grand jury Monday, Judge Ferguson gave an opinion on dealing in cotton futures that should make people who enter into contracts for fall delivery of cotton careful how they go into court, when the contract price is against them, and plead the gambling act. Judge Ferguson said that if two men enter into agreement for cotton at a certain price, one to pay the other margins in accordance with the variation of the price, it is gambling and indictable as such. Therefore the man who goes into court and pleads the gambling act on a cotton contract puts himself in position for the grand jury to find a bill against him and has already convicted himself by his confession.

uring interests and enters the market in a variety of substantial food products. In commerce, as well as in agriculture, its importance is rapidly increasing.

This subject, which is of particular interest to Georgia and other southern states has recently attracted the attention of the United States bureau of plant industry. Mr. William A. Taylor, who has distinguished himself in that department of the government has prepared a special bulletin in which he points out the varied values of the peanut and the profits that lie in its cultivation.

Among the values he notes are the enrichment of the pea vines to the soil where they grow, their numerous by-products, used in making feeds for farm and dairy and the nutriment of peanut oil.

The recent invention of a machine for harvesting peanuts has made it possible to retain in the soil a great portion of the nitrogen they accumulate, thus increasing their value as a fertilizer. This one element, of which the plant is such a famous treasury, has a fertilizing value ranging from three to eight dollars an acre.

When mixed with broken peas, the hulls of the peanut make an exceptionally good feed for stock. Even the waste products may thus be utilized to advantage.

The popularity of peanut butter is well known. It is in speaking of the oil, however, that Mr. Taylor's comment is most interesting. This he classes commercially with olive and cotton seed oils:

The greater portion of the peanut oil, he says, is now manufactured at Marseilles, France, from peanuts that are bought very cheaply along the coast regions of Africa and transported by ships as return cargo. With a coming shortage of cotton seed from which to manufacture oil in this country, there is a great possibility of building up a peanut oil industry throughout the cotton belt of the southern states. There are thousands of acres of land now lying idle that will produce fairly good crops of cotton seed and peanuts for the production of oil, it would be possible to keep the existing oil mills of the south running at a profit to both the farmer and mill owners.

In these last remarks there is a wealth of practical suggestion that southern planters may well consider. From a virtual nonentity, the peanut has become a product of real importance to industry and agriculture. The value of the crop in this country last year reached far into the millions. Its cultivation is well worth the farmer's while.—Atlanta Journal

Some Will Be Bad.
An observant citizen, reading what this paper said yesterday about some of the boys of this town going to the bad, volunteers the information that motion picture shows and other attractions at night are partly responsible, in that the boys use these things as a pretext for getting away from home. If a boy can't get one excuse for leaving at night, he will make another. Really the thing to do is to keep him at home, but how are you going to do it? The truth is some boys are bad and will be bad. Sometimes they are cured, sometimes not. We have known boys who were carefully guarded and kept within home limits who went to the bad after all.—Greensboro Record.

SOME FIGURES ON BAD ROADS.

Showing What is Lost and What Could be Gained.

Lecturing in Nashville recently, M. O. Eldridge, of the United States department of agriculture, gave the Tennesseans some surprising figures as to the cost of bad roads. He said: "On a macadam road one horse can draw three times as much as on what is considered a good earthen road. It is estimated an average sized horse will exert a pressure against his collar all day long amounting to 125 pounds. On the above basis he will draw on a good clay road 1 ton, gravel road 1 2-3 tons, macadam 2 3-4, and brick 5 tons. Thus one horse on a good brick road may haul five times as much as on a good clay road. It is estimated by the department that the total cost of hauling the crops of Tennessee during 1910 was, $7,830,941, based on the average cost of hauling on ordinary roads of from 23 to 25 cents per ton per mile. The average cost of hauling in good road sections is from 10 to 12 cents per mile. Thus, if good roads had predominated $3,915,500 might have been saved.

"It is further estimated that 15 to 20 per cent of the roads in each county carry from 80 to 90 per cent of the traffic. Twenty per cent of the roads in Tennessee amounts to 9,000 miles. Of this number 5,353 miles are already improved, leaving 3,647 miles yet to be worked on. This number at $4,000 per mile would make an expenditure of $14,588,000 and give the entire state excellent roads. Since it has been shown in one year $3,000,000 would have been saved by good roads, a period of five years—$15,000,000—would be sufficient to bring the mileage of improved roads up to 20 per cent.

"The increased value of farm lands due to improved roads is estimated at from $2 to $10 per acre. It is estimated by the department that there are 20,342,058 acres of farm lands in this state, and the estimated increased value at $5 per acre would make $100,000,000.

"The census returns show that thirty-five counties in Tennessee decreased in population 29,657. Nineteen of these counties decreased 14,025, and nineteen other counties increased 150,842. It is interesting to note that in the counties which showed a decrease the percentage of roads improved was 1.3 per cent and in the counties which increased the percentage of improved roads was 18 per cent. Twenty-seven counties in the state have no improved roads and thirty-five counties have less than 10 per cent improved highways.

These figures should be studied. The people should realize how millions of dollars are being lost every year by bad roads.

The weak, timorous beings who are frightened out of their wits at the cost of good roads should quietly study the figures given by Mr. Eldridge. The statements made by Mr. Eldridge are as applicable to North Carolina as to Tennessee.—Asheboro Courier.
