

PITT COUNTY FAIR ASSOCIATION

WILL HOLD COUNTY FAIR NEXT FALL

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING WAS HELD

Officers of the Association Elected and Another Meeting for Perfecting Plans Will be Held Friday, May 12th.

A representative meeting of citizens of all sections of the county was held here today, in response to the recent call sent out, to consider the matter of organizing a county fair association and hold a county fair next fall. A. J. Moyer called the meeting to order and was elected chairman, and D. J. Whichard secretary.

After some discussion of the benefits of holding a county fair and plans for inaugurating it, the chairman on motion, appointed a committee consisting of R. L. Little, J. F. Evans, B. M. Lewis, A. G. Cox, O. L. Joyner, and J. B. Tucker, to retire and formulate some plan for organizing, and report back to the meeting.

While this committee was out there were several other talks about the fair in which pledges of hearty support were given. Upon returning the committee submitted the following, which was adopted:

We, your committee, recommend the following:

1st. That we organize a Pitt county Fair Association, with a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and a board of governors, consisting of one from each township and division of townships in the county, and that the mayor of each incorporated town be requested to appoint one additional man from his respective town to act as one of the board of governors.

That the secretary of the association ask the mayors of the different towns to make his appointment at once, and notify the secretary of said appointment.

We further recommend the assembling of the officers and board of governors in the city hall on May the 12th, at 10 o'clock, a. m., for the purpose of advising ways and means of promoting a successful exhibit of agricultural and live stock products of Pitt county in Greenville in the fall of 1911. Time and place to be arranged by the officers and board of governors of the association.

In order to facilitate the work of the association, we suggest the immediate appointment by the president of a committee of three to petition the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, to suspend the tobacco sales during two days—Thursday and Friday—and ask them to co-operate with the association to assist in bringing about a successful exhibit.

In compliance with the report of the committee the following officers were elected:

President, J. L. Wooten.
Vice-President, A. J. Moyer.
Secretary, D. J. Whichard.
Treasurer, J. B. Tucker.

Board of Governors for Townships, J. H. Cobb, W. W. Bullock, C. J. Whitehurst, C. G. Little, J. C. Galaway, J. M. Dixon, H. G. Mumford, W. H. Moore, B. M. Lewis, R. L. Little, S. I. Fleming, H. A. White, M. T. Spear and J. P. Quinerly. The members of the board to be appointed from the towns by the mayors will be announced as soon as they are sent in.

The meeting was a very enthusiastic one for the fair, and it means that great good to Pitt county will come out of it.

The officers and board of governors will meet here on the 12th of May, as above suggested, to suggest the date and location for holding the fair and make other arrangements for starting off the enterprise. Every citizen of the county should give his co-operation to this movement.

MEN NEEDED ON THE FARMS

Plenty of Work for the Park Sleepers Says F. R. Stevens.

According to F. R. Stevens, agriculturist for the Lehigh Valley railroad, the hundreds of men on the park benches of the city lamenting that they can not get work are sadly needed on farms right around this city.

"It makes me sick," Mr. Stevens said, "to see all over this and other large cities such husky looking men as fill the park benches, loafing about while there are farms in this state, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, where plowing is about to begin, crying out for just such men as many of these men are. Thousands of these men could get good jobs for the summer at least, if they would only take them."

"Work, health, money and food await them in the country. I am always hearing about the bad condition of the poor in crowded New York. Why don't some of these men who are having a hard time, fill the gaps in the farming force? Among the Lehigh Valley road, alone, there are many fields lying comparatively idle for lack of help. Cows are kept down to the lowest possible number because reliable milkers can not be found, and there is the same dearth of labor in all departments of farm life.

"Many a young farmer is operating an 80 or 100 acre farm alone except for a little uncertain, highly paid day labor at harvesting time. I can not understand why this condition exists while farmers will pay an able worker from $25 to $35 a month, in addition to giving him a comfortable home and good food, and plenty of it. To us in the rural section of the country that sort of a job seems much better than what thousands of men put up with in the city. And it is certainly better than remaining in the city with no job at all. Besides farm life is not nearly as unattractive as it used to be, the telephone and trolley lines and the modern labor-saving devices having greatly relieved the drudgery of earlier years."—New York Times.

WOULD RETURN LOST BIBLE

Father of Dr. Boone, of Durham, Owner of Book.

Adjutant-General Leinster, of the North Carolina National guard, received an appeal yesterday from Charles E. LaGrand, of Salem, Mass., asking his aid in locating the owner of a pocket Bible that is now in his possession and was picked up on the Civil war battlefield near New Bern at that time and bears the inscription of Lieut. Boone. Lieutenant Boone is still living at Elon College, being a retired Christian minister. A son, Dr. W. H. Boone, is a well-known physician of this city. Lieut. Boone was quite a young man in the army and is a native of Chatham county. There will doubtless be speedy steps taken to place the lost Bible in the hands of this veteran and the story of its loss will be awaited with interest.

On the flyleaf of the Bible was written the name of Lieut. C. A. Boone, of Company D, of the 35th North Carolina regiment, Camp Morgan, December 18th. It was presented to him by Mrs. C. K. Caldwell. On several pages of the Bible was written the name of "Frances McKinley" which leads to the suggestion of a possible romance.

The records show that Lieut. Charles A. Boone entered the Confederate service in 1861, as second lieutenant of Company D, 35th N. C., from Chatham county. He served under Capt. Hardy J. Lassiter, who was killed in the battle of Malvern Hill. The next captain was Capt. Robert E. Petty, who in 1864 was promoted to major. In 1863 Lieut. Boone became first lieutenant of his company.

Adjutant-General Leinster says he will be glad for any one knowing anything about Lieut. Boone or his relatives to communicate with either him or Mr. LeGrand, in Salem, Mass.—Durham Sun.

Asheville, April 27.—The Rev. A. C. Dixon, pastor of Moody church, Chicago, and former pastor of the First Baptist church, this city, has accepted a call recently extended to him in London, England, to take the pulpit of the Metropolitan Tabernacle in that city. The board of Moody church accepted Mr. Dixon's resignation today to become effective June 1st. The Rev. A. C. Dixon is a brother of Thomas Dixon, Jr., the North Carolina author and former Baptist minister.

CLEAN NEWSPAPER BEST.

Put Your Advertisement in Those That go Into the Home.

"Put your advertisement in newspapers that are fit to go into the home," was the advice of W. F. Lipman, of the firm of Lipman, Wolfe & Co., in talking to 100 ad men and members of the Portland Ad Club at the weekly luncheon recently. The speaker was acting as chairman of the day and before proceeding with the addresses on the programme he took occasion to digress sufficiently to give his views upon the "ad" question. He said:

"Today 90 per cent. of the advertising is accomplished through newspapers. It is the most successful and the only correct medium when results are to be obtained. Today, no matter what the business, the first question to be determined is the advertising. Second comes the medium, and it is of the medium which I wish to talk. Marshal Field, I believe, was said to have laid down the rule: 'First show me that the paper is the paper of the home and I will take up the question of the size of my advertising.'"

"In other words, Mr. Field held to the theory that the newspaper must be a home paper, and to be a home paper you must first print the news that is fit to print. He always said that he never cared to advertise in a paper whose circulation was on the street and in the byways. 'Fake' advertising, even in the papers of the home, in the end will bring failure."—Portland Oregonian.

KEEPING MONEY AT HOME.

The Dollar Sent Away Does Home No Good.

Every dollar that is sent away from the state, the county, or the community, means the separation from just so much energy and creative substance. Purchases made at home, and all possible purchases should be made at home, leaves the money in the community and as the blood circulates in the human body, so the money of the community, its commercial life blood, moves into every part of the commercial body, injecting life and activity. As every physician will tell you, the depletion of the blood of the human body emaciates and saps vitality until the body, unable to exert the ordinary and necessary functions, wastes away and death results. And so it is with the commercial body. Dollars sent away for clothing, or implements, or food or anything whatsoever withdraws just so much vitalizing financial fluid, which constitutes a working capital, which industry must have in order to operate. The farmer who makes his living at home (for he is the only kind that has money), and lends it to his neighbor or to an industry or places it in a bank so the bank can do the same thing, is sending to some part of the commercial body the vitalizing fluid so necessary to its life and development, and the good housewife who makes it a point to buy what she needs from the home merchant does the same thing.

Now just think of the matter one moment and see how your business would be affected if all should follow the policy of ordering everything needed, to say nothing of the loss to the community of the money so necessary to keep it going and to build a greater city, a more prosperous and a happier people. Suppose the farmers should club in and order their fertilizers, their meat, hay and flour and agricultural implements from other cities, where would the time and the local merchant come in, and how could the merchant accumulate sufficient capital with which to handle his business, and purchase the farmers cotton and tobacco and his eggs, butter and chickens?

Suppose the manufacturers should decide to turn off all of his help and send away from Wilson to secure others, because they have had a little more experience in some other mill, wouldn't you think it a little hard? And yet when you send your money away to make purchases that can be secured at home you are taking from the community money that should remain, and business from the merchant that rightly belongs to him by all the relationship of environment, friendship, and mutual dependence, for the ties that bind a people together should be those of a kindred and a helpful nature for it has been demonstrated since the dawn of creation that man cannot live alone.—Wilson Times.

SERIOUS STATE OF AFFAIRS IN CANTON, CHINA

STEAMERS FORBIDDEN TO COAL

More Trouble For Uncle Sam to Look After For Protection.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, April 28.—Advice received by the state department today from Minister Calhoun at Peking, describes the rebellion at Canton, where a serious condition of affairs exists. Orders having been issued by British authorities at Hong Kong forbidding British steamers to coal at Canton they have fled to Hong Kong. It was learned that Secretary of State Knox will confer with Secretary of navy after today over advisability of ordering ships of Asiatic Squadron, some of which are in the Philippine waters, to Hong Kong to watch developments and take steps for protection of American lives and property in affected districts.

TRADE REPORT.

Not Much Change In Conditions—Collections Fair.

Richmond, Va., April 28.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say for Richmond and vicinity: Trade conditions vary little from report of last week. Provisions and food stuffs are moving in larger quantities, sales being stimulated by lower prices than have prevailed at any recent period. Shipment of early spring vegetables to northern markets are noted, but continued cool weather has retarded vegetables as well as growing staple crops, and for the same reason comparatively little cotton or corn has been planted. The cool weather has also retarded trade in seasonable commodities; especially in light wearing apparel. Produce is fairly plentiful and demands good prices. The majority of the 1910 crop of tobacco has been marketed and the market will soon close for the season. Manufacturers of tobacco report an active demand for this season. Retail trade is quiet. Collections are not better than fair.

GREAT MASS MEETING.

Endorses Taft's Proposal for Treaty Between U. S. and Great Britain

By Cable to The Reflector.

London, April 28.—The greatest appeal ever made for world's peace was sounded today in Guild hall. A mass meeting was called to endorse President Taft's proposal for arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain. Premier Asquith and ex-Premier Balfour both spoke warmly for the treaty, as did Lord Wager Strong, of London. A vast multitude flocked to the hall and cheered peace sentiments.

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND FARMING

Some Reasons Why Agriculture Should be Taught in Public School

In an admirable paper entitled "Bring Up the Child in the Way He Should Go," in the May Lippincott's Colonel Willard French makes a strong plea for including at least the rudiments of agriculture in public school training. He points out how at present education leads the youth of the land away from farming, even in rural communities.

"As a nation, we fully appreciate the value of science in farming," says Colonel French. "We expend millions of dollars, annually, through the bureaus of our National Agricultural department of the benefit of the farms and farmers of America. Every body knows the infinite value of the work which has been accomplished, and when the boy with brains and energy does resist those first temptations and turns investigative attention to farming, he soon finds vast stores of information gathered for him. He studies by himself the mysteries of the art, as he studied in school his geography and history, and presently he is one of the monarchs of America, making his farm a gold mine."

"Now, the point is this: when we have all the information and scientific knowledge gathered at fabulous expense (free to every farmer who will send for it), all the whys and wherefores making farming an intensely interesting and profitable art, hidden away where only those get at it why by some accident are forced to resort to farming, and who have the brains and energy and inclination to investigate the wonderful discoveries and new and helpful ideas which have cost the country so much, in an earnest effort to improve the farms and farmers, why in the name of common sense should not the elements of it all be put into text-books for our public schools, to help boys to become farmers? Why should not the science of agriculture be at least an important fact in the common-school curriculum? Would it hurt even the city boy and girl to know a little about how things grow, and why and where, and the art of making the best of Nature? Would not some knowledge of the science of nature make any boy or girl happier for life, even if he or she never saw a farm? It would at least make it possible for the boy when he graduates to turn to farming as he now turns to business, with something of a practical foundation, and a new sense that farming is not, in reality, the same old limited grind and drudgery of his father and grand-father."

Possibilities of Youth.

The pride of life looms large among the motives that determine aspirations. This is the golden season of opportunity. We should make much of it while it lasts. When old age creeps on and our youthful vigor becomes trophied it is too late to think of what we might have done.

It amounts to something to walk down the street and have people point you out as a man who has accomplished some great mission, whether it is to accumulate wealth or to carve a great name in the world of men and women.

The chosen youth gets what he goes after. The chance is open to all. The youth who thinks that he has only to idly wait and fate will thrust greatness upon him is sadly mistaken. He must work out his own salvation. The purse of fortunates may smooth the way, but real work must be done by the boy himself if he expects to be successful.

Most of our great men have started life with but little before them. One of our presidents was a tailor and his old-fashioned shop still stands as a monument to him; another was a carpenter, another chopped wood for an existence. At the time none of them ever thought the day would come when they would occupy the presidential chair.

Fate sometimes makes it easier for some than for others, but fate is usually just in the distribution of her gifts.

Great men are made. They are not born to greatness. They come into this world with the possibilities of being celebrated.

Take advantage of youth while the chance lasts. It can never be renewed. The wonderful foundation of perpetual youth is a myth. It has caused the death of more than one adventure who sought to find it. There is but one youth to every life and it is all too brief. If the opportunity is not accepted in youth it can never be accepted at all.—Memphis Appeal.

NEEDLESS CUSTOMS.

The Honey Bee and Its Intelligence.

It is surprising how many things pertaining to man and his progress springs up seedless. In the advance these seedless things take hold and ever and anon without clamor are in place. Apparently the mushroom asserts fecundity and stays a while. It may be earth in its chemical analysis holds place and gives us God's bounty to His creatures.

In the animate world bees are the curious denizens of earth. Their intelligence has not courted the wisdom of man, but the folklore of their colonies is a marvel to those who challenge their ways. The honey bee is eminently the friend of man. The legends of those countries cherishing the love of these bees are, as a matter of curiosity, very engaging.

Cornwall is in the highest degree the home of this lore. There betwixt owner and hive was intimate knowledge. Christmas morning the bees receive the compliment of the season just like other members of the household. Easter day they were told Christ was risen, and a death occurring in the family, the ill news was whispered softly into the hive. Nobody inquired closely into the origin of these beliefs. They were accepted as seedless. It is said the best beliefs are found in Cornwall. There these are archaic, and are adorned by wealth of details. It used to be the rule to whisper to the bees all the principal events which happened in the family, so they would not think themselves neglected or roused to anger. Honey was taken from the hive on St. Bartholomew's day.

In the East lovers extolled the eyes of their mistresses as like brown bees. Bees were not sold. They should always be bartered; the traditional price being a bushel of corn. I may come back to the bee, holy Scripture having given him connection with events that transcend the common themes of this stumpy life.—Judge R. T. Bennett, in Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer.

DRUNKENNESS ON TRAINS.

"Easter Monday," reports The Oxford Public Ledger, "the railroad cars between Oxford and Raleigh were crowded with people who left their homes to go to various places for amusements. A part of their pleasure was marred by drunken renegades who did not respect age or sex. In the cars were not enough seats for all the passengers, and some were compelled to stand in the aisles. Some of the intoxicated passengers were in a maudlin condition and seemed to take delight in annoying the sober passengers. If some of these ruffians were put behind bars their punishment would have a very salutary effect."

The nuisance The Ledger describes is by no means confined to holidays, although it is possibly more aggravated upon such occasions than at other times. That portion of the public which rather enjoys being intoxicated seems very partial to a railroad train as the scene of enjoyment. Practically every train that carries passengers carries women and children who are looking to the native courtesy of the traveling stranger to protect them from annoyance. Too often this courtesy is in a very dormant condition.

As The Ledger contends, it is unjust to lay the blame upon the conductors. These officials have a thousand and one details to attend to. It is only in gross instances that the woman offended feels justified in making complaint, and a well-filled man can do innumerable little things and still remain upon the safe side of gross discourtesy. When these acts are committed under the eye of the trainman in charge, he should interfere. When they are committed when he is several cars away, it is hard to expect him to know anything about them.

The Ledger argues for increased police authority for the conductors; and this would help matters. Still more advantageous would be the growth of a healthy public sentiment which visits with heavy disapproval the practice of using railroad trains for bar-rooms. The men who insist upon making beasts of themselves should be shown that cars in which ladies travel are not fit places so to do—at least not in North Carolina.—Charlotte Observer.

If our memory serves us correctly, the recent legislature took cognizance of this kind of conduct by passing a law making it a misdemeanor for a person to appear in any public place in an intoxicated condition. We are not sure that the law applied to the whole state, or only to certain counties asking for it, but it seems we recall some such bill passing. Perhaps the Raleigh papers might look into this and see if such a law was passed. If so, it will fit these Oxford drunks all right.

Now, won't you just look at this. One E. L. Andrews, of New York, counsel for foreign bondholders, has written to the New York Stock Exchange protesting against proposed issues of bonds of the states of North

It strikes us the name of this same Andrews was not long ago figuring with the name of Marion Butler in a certain advertisement trying to collect some fraudulent bonds out of North Carolina. We should fill Greenville as full of teachers as possible this summer, and show the people everywhere what a great school we have here.

Press Comments.

The Greenville Reflector has installed a new and improved printing press. While congratulating our contemporary, we cannot repress a shudder at the thought of what its particular crony The Wilmington Dispatch may think fit to perpetuate touching the event.—Charlotte Observer.

Editor Whichard, of The Greenville Reflector has treated himself to a new press. "The subscription list of the paper has grown to such proportions in the last year that it was necessary to get a much faster press than the one already in use in order to print the large edition and catch the mells properly." It is always a good sign when editors are forced to put in faster presses. We are glad The Reflector has felt the pressure.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The Greenville Daily Reflector has been greatly improved in its print and typography, but we hardly think Editor D. J. Whichard could improve on himself. That would be a hard task, for he is always doing his best according to his opportunity to do, and we know he does even better than his opportunity warrants. Dave is always ahead of the game. The improved appearance of the Reflector is because Editor Whichard has installed a new Miehle power press and naturally that will enable him to get out a better paper. Better facilities always mean a better paper, and by increasing his facilities and bettering his paper he is doing splendid work for Greenville. He is one of Greenville's valuable assets, and that is the way the business men of his town ought to look upon him. Editor Whichard has invested more money to get out a better paper, and the people of his town and county should invest more money in their "sorrel top" editor. When a newspaper maker is doing his best to make good, stand by him and see it well done.—Wilmington Star.

A Hero of Yesterday.

"Not for himself, but for another" is the proud device which is emblazoned on the armorial device of a great southern institution of learning. Whether he ever heard of this phrase or not, H. Guy Brown, of Norfolk, died illustrating its truth.

Guy Brown was a sewerage engineer in Charleston, South Carolina, sent there on contract work. On Tuesday he ordered a negro workman to go down in a sewer excavation to do certain work. Later he noticed that the man did not come up. Brown looked for him, and saw him stretched out at the bottom of the deep pit. Careless of the danger which he unquestionably knew to exist in the sewer, the young engineer jumped into the hole to save the negro's life. It was too late. The negro was dead. Brown himself was overcome with noxious gases, and he lived but a few hours after he was removed from the pit of death.

Nothing would have happened if Brown had not gone to the rescue of the stricken negro. Yet he felt that it was not too much to risk his life for the workman, and he lost the hazzard. He wore right nobly the "red badge of courage," and gave his life not for himself, but for another.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Sparing the Rod.

The announcement that birching has been dispensed with in the upper schools by the headmaster of Eton has elicited a number of impassioned protests and regrets from old Etonians and public school boys.

If the boys of Eton today would rather write out 500 lines than take a birching, they must, indeed, have altered extrao. 40, or even 10, years ago. We can not believe that the reform will be popular with those whom it will most affect. And has anybody ever met a sensible man who deplored the fact that he had been birched at school or who did not admit that such birchings as he had received had done him a great deal of good? Our own view for what it is worth, is entirely on the side of the birchers. We have vivid recollections of certain melting moments rich in anguish, with the air darkened by the headmaster's flying gown, and trembling to the swish and the smacks of his well-plied implement. The experience was less pleasant than picturesque at the moment, but—well, truth will out sooner or later, and we have been nothing but grateful for it ever since.—Pall Mall Gazette.

CATARRH DOCTOR.

Cures Catarrh, Acute or Chronic, or Money Back.

Would you pay one dollar to rid yourself of disgusting catarrh?

Then go to Coward & Wooten today and ask them for a Hyomei outfit and you will not only engage, but you will own outright a little catarrh doctor that has cured more cases of catarrh than all the catarrh specialists on earth.

In the $1 box which contains the Hyomei outfit, you will find a little hard rubber vest pocket inhaler.

Into this inhaler you pour a few drops of Hyomei. Then all you have to do is breathe through the little inhaler, either through the nose or mouth, according to where the catarrh is located.

When you breathe HYOMEI you breathe a powerful, yet soothing, antiseptic air, which as it passes over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane penetrates every fold and crevice, and destroys germs completely.

Stomach dosing never cured catarrh, sprays and douches always fail; and why? because they don't get where the germs are, and as catarrh is a germ disease you must kill the germs, before you can cure catarrh. HYOMEI is guaranteed by Coward & Wooten, and by druggists everywhere to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, croup and sore throat. 417,28-58

For a long time I was troubled by my kidneys and I suffered intensely from backache and pains in my shoulders. Headache and dizzy spells bothered me and I rested so poorly that when I got up in the morning, I was in no fit condition to begin my work. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, I immediately got a supply from the John L. Wooten Drug Co., and to my delight, they did me a world of good. I can now rest much better at night and my back and kidneys do not bother me."

The Southern Girl.

A few days ago a southern girl, whose company is very delightful, said in a very good-natured way: "I believe that when Gabriel blows his last trumpet, I will be found making biscuits." The subject of conversation was one of domestic economy, and the talk seemed to indicate that each member of the company did more or less housework, and some of them did all of their own housework by various influences the old conditions of southern life are completely changed. Formerly the southern girl was pleased to be a dilettante, who could do nothing. The existence of surrounding circumstances and the influence of her northern sisters, who have come in numbers to this section, has brought about a total change. In every southern household at the present time there is no longer absolute dependence upon the colored servants. Somebody in the household can make things go, whether her majesty, the colored cook, turns up or not. From a dilettante, the southern girl has become a most capable housekeeper, and vies with her northern sister in efficiency in these matters. As a matter of fact she did not have much to learn, but she learned it with great grace. The girl brought up on the old plantation, while knowing very little about cooking generally, had many practical traits, and sometimes could do things her northern sister was not accustomed to do. She could catch a horse and saddle it for herself and ride it with no effort, but with pleasure. She always could hitch a horse to a buggy and could make it ready to drive. It was the plantation situation that made her neglect cooking, just as the average northern girl now neglects horseback riding. Meanwhile, she has lost nothing of her early grace and charm. The southern girl is still southern in the quality of her hospitalities, and the grace of her household duties.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Two New American Operas.

It is not often that one stone hits as many as three birds, yet that is what has happened in the case of Victor Herbert's grand opera, "Natoma," which on February 23 and 28 respectively, was ushered into the musical world by the Chicago Opera Company by way of the Philadelphia and New York opera houses.

In the course of American struggle to become a world power in musical art, three hotly contested questions have successively served as the crux of progress, namely, that of the American composer, on Indian music and other so-called "American folk-songs," and of opera in the English language. None of these matters has yet come to final settlement, although each has had its quota of influence upon the general situation. Thus the American composer, who can now not infrequently gain a hearing for his large orchestral works, and not in vain has knocked at the erstwhile closed doors of the opera houses, has made a place for himself in the musical world, though Uncle Sam has not wit enough to see precisely what place. Then certain of the critics heathenishly rage against the adoption of Indian melodies and the Indian musical idiom by American composers, protesting and proving that there is nothing in it, while the composers, in increasing numbers and with increasing popular success, go on drawing upon this rich vein for one source of musical inspiration and color. At present the American musical world is shaken by the appearance of a strange monster with two heads, "opera in England" and "English opera," certain authorities holding that at best it is a visionary beast such as might have been beheld by St. John upon Patmos, and others stoutly maintaining that a little cultivation would make it a valuable domestic animal.

Victor Herbert's opera "Natoma" assumes the burden of all three of these questions at a stroke. Mr. Herbert is not of American origin, it is true, but he has for so long identified himself with America, and has so sympathetically considered American requirements in the nature of his appeal, that he stands today nowhere else than with American composers. His opera is thus a touchstone, having at once the triple power to clarify in some measure the three questions that have caused so much confusion in national musical affairs. Following immediately upon the heels of "Natoma" came also "The Sacrifice," an opera with text and music by Fredrick S. Converse, an American, and which had its premiere at the Boston Opera House on March 3. It presents a striking parallelism with "Natoma" in respect of scenes and characters.—American Review of Reviews.

Saved His Mother's Life.

"Four doctors had given me up," writes Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., "and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. I did so, and they have done me a world of good. I will always praise them." Electric Bitters is a priceless blessing to women troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, backache, headache, weakness, debility, constipation or kidney disorders. Use them and gain new health strength and vigor. They're guaranteed to satisfy or money refunded. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

Social and Personal.

A Big Truth.

The world believes and is going to continue to believe that in every man, some time, somewhere, under some circumstances, there is something of good. Therefore, a man weakens his own position before his fellows when he blankly and persistently refuses to give his opponent or his enemy credit for anything worthy. The world knows that no one man is likely to be found on the wrong side of every question, of whatever nature, that may arise during an entire life-time.—Fayetteville Index.

Both Pessimistic and Optimistic Notes

Dr. A. C. Dixon, who has been preaching in Spurgeon's church, has returned to his home in Chicago and made a remarkable speech to the Union Bible Class in that town, in which he took a very pessimistic view of the way the world is going in his opinion, things are worse now than ever before in the history of the human race. He believes that "there are depths of iniquity in Chicago and San Francisco and New York and Paris and London and modern Rome that would startle the Pompeians who lived just before the fall;" that "the world is deeper in iniquity than ever, and the universities and colleges that are rejecting Christ are not making it any better. Neither are the printing press, the steam engine, electricity, the automobile and the flying machine. The devil was happy indeed when the automobile came."

It is really worse than we thought; but not nearly so bad, apparently, as this preacher declared it to be; for in the next breath, after making the world utterly lost to sense and shame, he said that in spite of the devil in the world at present, the Church was better and stronger than ever. In the circumstances, therefore, it would appear that the world is still on fairly safe ground, as with the Church steadily growing better and stronger there is still some hope for the race. We believe that things are working out just about right. It is certain that they will not be permitted to work out wrong.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Stocks.
New York, April 28.—Canadian Pacific was easily feature at the opening of the stock market today, showing almost sensational strength, opening at 225 or 11 1/4 points over yesterday's close it advanced another 1-4 upon brisk buying. Otherwise the list was almost featureless. Reading was strong upon report of March earnings which were well up to expectations. It was 3-8 up. Pennsylvania was up 1-8 and Amalgamated copper 1-8. Missouri Pacific was off 1-4 and Atchison was unchanged.

Grain.
Chicago, April 28.—Wheat was higher up 3-8 to 1-2 to 5-8 cent higher. Corn was strong and trade fairly good. Oats firmer. Provisions easier.

Bale-to-the-acre Crops.
For large yield I find this rotation to give best results: First year wheat followed by corn, peas sown after wheat harvest, at the rate of 2 bushels per acre, or 1 bushel per acre and 12 pounds crimson clover. Second year, corn, with cowpeas at last plowing, either alone or with 10 pounds crimson clover. We get best results when sown with clover as we are able to have one nitrogenous crop to decay on the soil, also one to turn for green manure in the spring. Third year, cotton/ with crimson clover at last plowing, or rye in the fall.

By this rotation we have brought up an old upland farm from 600 to 1,800 or more pounds seed cotton per acre. In preparing cotton land I break the land and harrow until I get an ideal seed-bed. It is generally argued by farmers that cotton will make just as much per acre, where the land is merely rodged and cotton planted just any old way. From experimenting, I find no crop will pay any better returns for the time spent in preparing the soil for its reception, than cotton.

After many experiments I found I was able to get larger yields when the cotton was planted in drills 3 1-2 feet apart and thinned to one stalk every 15 to 18 inches.

My cotton is ready for thinning in three weeks from the time it is up. I use the weeder several times before thinning. In fact, I almost thin it with the weeder. I find cotton grows off more rapidly after the weeder and side harrow than it does after the scraper. After thinning, it is cultivated once a week, if no rain to turn crust, and always cultivated as soon as the land will permit after a rain. I find a hard-baked crust means a great loss of forms and young bolls. I have found shallow, level cultivation give the largest yield.—Progressive Farmer.

The Change.

The Chinese Loan.

An Associated Press dispatched from Tokio, under date of April 18, says: "Dispatches published here quote the financiers who have been responsible for the successful conclusion of the $50,000,000 loan to China at Peking as saying that the finances of Manchuria and Mongolia have been pledged as security for the new loan, thus indicating that the four powers, the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany, have combined in opposition to Japan and Russia. This has caused an outcry by the anti-government newspapers. The Peking reports, it is believed, are intended to create the impression that the United States' determination to secure the loan was purely a political movement against Russia and Japan, intended as a means to secure the neutralization of Manchuria. Japanese officials and financial circles, however, discredit the Peking reports."

Compared with being nice to some people even the gout is fun.

Midnight in the Ozarks.

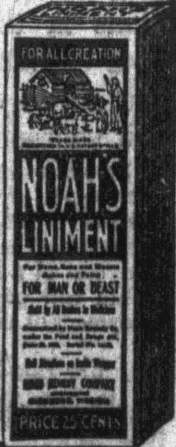

And yet sleepless Hiram Scranton, of Clay City, Ill., coughed and coughed. He was in the mountains on the advice of five doctors, who said he had consumption, but found no help in the climate, and started home, hearing of Dr. King's New Discovery, he began to use it. "I believe it saved my life," he writes, "for it made a new man of me, so that I can now do good work again." The Eureka Mattress & Cleaning Company

Manufacturers of all kinds of Sanitary Bedding. Feather Beds and Pillows washed and medicated and Feather Beds made into Mattresses—All kinds of old Mattresses made over.

This Company did over 700 beds in Greenville between 3 and 4 years ago. Ask your neighbor about us. We did the work in the East Carolina Teachers Training school. A card will bring our representative, who will quote you prices, show you samples, etc. Over 500,000 beds cleaned and made over in N. C. and not a single complaint. What better recommendations can we give you. Drop a card to E. W. C. Claffin, city. It costs nothing for information concerning our work.
