DEBT PAYING.

Preach The Gospel of Honesty—War On The Deadbeats.

Go to any merchant who has been in business a few years and you will find numerous accounts that will never be paid. Some days ago a Salisbury merchant showed The Post a book of old bills, that he has transferred from his credit book which he classes as accounts that cannot be collected. These bills range from a few dollars to $30 and it would astonish the man who pays his bills to see the names on this book. Men are there whom the world supposes to pay their bills promptly. The laws of North Carolina are wrong. They make men dishonest. As the law exists now, the man who, for one cause or another, refuses to pay his bills, it is impossible to collect. There is a demand for a statute for collecting debts.

It is against the evil of creditors not paying bills the newspapers of the country should train their mauls, and they ought to continue firing until good sentiment is created. As they wage the battle for honesty they might turn a rapid-firing gun on the ministers and urge them to land red hot shot into their congregations about debt-paying. It is as much their duty to preach this as it is repentance and forgiveness—it is more, for payment of debts come first according to our understanding of the Scriptures.—Salisbury Post.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS MEET.

Largest Delegated Body in The World in Session.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 18.—The general convention of the Southern Baptist church, which is the largest delegated body in the world, is in its annual meeting in this city, and will continue in session until Tuesday, next. Several thousand visitors are in attendance, among them being the most prominent divines, educators, missionaries and lay members of the denomination.

The reports of the missionary organization this year are especially gratifying. The home missionary society successfully executed its task to raise $400,000 during the fiscal year, while the foreign mission board also had a year of almost unprecedented prosperity. At the beginning of the convention the most important matter appears to be the election of a new president to succeed Joshua Levering, of Baltimore, who is completing his third term. Among those mentioned for the honor are President Brooks, of Baylor University; Dr. William E. Hatcher, of Virginia; Dr. W. W. Landrum, of Louisville; and Dr. Lansing Burrows, who has been secretary of the convention for nearly 30 years.

COLORED GRADED SCHOOL OF GREENVILLE

ACCOMPLISHING MUCH GOOD.

The Faculty of the School Seem Much Pleased With Progress Made.

The commencement of the Industrial graded school, of which C. M. Epps is principal, has been pronounced a success.

The cooking, sewing and basket departments were visited by over two hundred visitors within the last three or four days. The officials of the school seem much pleased with the progress made by the pupils and assert that with the meagre financial help the principal has done well.

However, all are encouraged by the progress made and hope to make a greater showing in the future. The school is slowly accomplishing the purpose in this community for which it was established in teaching the people that "work is the only royal road."

This school is eight years old, and has been gradually growing in popular favor because of healthful signs shown in the demeanor and work of the pupils.

The primal forces behind the school represent the foremost people in the community.

At this commencement Governor Jarvis struck a chord that all good people applaud. The presence of Mayor Wooten, Lawyer Harding, with a large number of our leading white citizens, is an evidence of the high standing of the school in the community.

The faculty is grateful for the aid and encouragement given them by friends of negro uplift.

HOMES FOR OLD FOLKS.

The Real Benefactor That is Coming To Aid Humanity.

Some day some man or woman is going to devote millions to establishing homes for old folks, places of refuge for fallen women, playgrounds for the children, and is going to aid the poor in different ways, and his or her name will be lovingly enshrined in the heart of every mortal who loves humanity. There will be no medal inscribed with stirring phrases, no loving cup bearing on its golden side engraved words of exhortation, but he will know that he has the love of the people of this world. He will realize that some weary old heart, from which the pulsation is about to go, feels tenderly for him; that some head in a body racked with pain is grateful to him for making the last hours comfortable and peaceful; that a woman whose sins were scarlet is praying for him, as he furnished a place of refuge when the world have kicked her back into the depths; and in shouts of glee of the youngsters, who romp around playgrounds, there will come sweet appreciation of his noble human nature deeds. Yes, some day some real man or woman is going to rise above the fixed, cold policy of alleged benefaction, is going to go without the glare of the worldly glitter of the limelight, upon which scene those in silken gowns and broadcloth suits look, and aid humanity where humanity most needs help. Then loving hearts, grateful souls are going to send forth a glad acclaim. Indeed this man or woman will be called blessed.—Wilmington Dispatch.

ANNUAL SERMON LAST NIGHT.

Quite a number from a distance have already come and every train today will add to the number. Tonight at 8 o'clock the exercises by the graduating class will be held. There is a treat in store for those who attend. All are cordially invited to be present.

HINTS FOR DR. DUTTERA.

The Right and Wrong Use of The Automobiles.

Dr. W. B. Duttera, president of the Rowan Automobile Association, authorizes the Salisbury Post to announce that the association will give a reward of $5 for any one who reports persons throwing glass, crockery, or tin on the streets of Salisbury, that may puncture the tires of automobiles.

All of which is proper.—Automobiles have rights on the streets and highways and folks who try to damage the machines or annoy the drivers should be punished. Dr. Duttera is a preacher and of course believes in the golden rule. That being so The Landmark makes bold to suggest that he, as president of the Rowan Automobile Association, lay down some rules and regulations respecting the rights of that portion of the people who travel in the old way—on foot or by horse-propelled vehicles. First, that any member of the Rowan Automobile Association who exceeds the speed limit provided by law shall be suspended from membership and prosecuted in the courts by the president of the association. Second, any member of the association who has a horn on his machine of unusual sound shall be excluded from the association and members shall refuse him recognition. Many of the automobile people put on horns that sound like the scream of a wild cat or the wail of a lost soul. The horns are not only not necessary, but they are calculated, if not intended, to frighten horses and thus add to the terror which the machine inspires. Those who have these horns usually blow them constantly, seemingly to attract attention to themselves and to create as much disturbance as possible, utterly regardless of the rights of other people, and seemingly with a desire to put on something that will frighten a horse which has become used to the ordinary machine. Third, any member who blows his horn more than is necessary to give a simple signal when approaching a curve in the track or as a warning when approaching a party from the rear, shall be suspended from membership and fined. Some of the auto people, as soon as they sight a party, begin and keep up a constant toot-toot. This will sometimes frighten a horse that would not otherwise take fright. In addition it has the appearance of ordering the party to get out of the way or be run over, which creates a feeling of resentment, and not only makes one feel like throwing something in the road to puncture tires, but it makes him feel like throwing rocks or using a gun. A signal to warn of the approach of the machine is proper but it is not necessary to keep up the blowing so as to terrorize the horse and irritate the driver. Fourth, any member who runs by a party or rounds a curve at high speed shall be excluded from membership. Some auto drivers dash by people with a recklessness that creates resentment not unnatural. One who drives a team by another team at an unusual rate of speed many frighten or otherwise gentle horses and a chauffeur who runs by as if he did not care if he ran over whatever is in the way, does not inspire kindly feeling; and he who dashes around a curve at high speed is criminally reckless, for there is always great danger of an unavoidable collision. Fifth, preach the golden rule to the members of the association in season and out of season. Impress upon them that he who disregards the rights of others, is not considerate toward his fellows, has no right to complain if he is not popular or if he finds himself the subject of annoyance. The man who does not consider the rights of others has no right to demand special consideration for himself.

This is all for the present. If these suggestions are acted on they will remove any cause for antagonism between the auto and the non-auto public. The auto folks are largely responsible for whatever antagonism there is and when they show a disposition to do the right thing the unreasonable and prejudiced folks who hate autos simply because they the autos, will be considerably reduced in numbers.—Statesville Landmark.

Goldboro, May 17.—A serious accident occurred this afternoon, which may prove fatal, the victim being the little girl of Mr. and Mrs. McKee. M. W. B. Hobbs was driving in the northern part of the city, when his horse became unruly and ran away, throwing him from the vehicle and running over the little girl on the street with her nurse, seriously injuring her about the head. It is thought the wounds will prove fatal. Mr. Hobbs escaped with a few light bruises.

THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1911.

The candidates are right down behind you.

It is much easier to tell what Greenville needs than what it don't need.

You have three to select a mayor from, and all to the good. But only one can have it.

The Standard Oil Company is showing good sense in obedience, whether it is cheerful or not.

With the cessation of trouble in Mexico, the news gatherers will have to seek some other source.

No, not a single one of the candidates for mayor is promising anybody forty acres and a mule to vote for him.

John D. need have no special worry over it. He has plenty to get along on even if the oil business stopped entirely.

He was a long time getting to it, but Diaz did the proper thing in agreeing to resign. Now let him stick to the bargain.

Raleigh could have another squabble if the city had to decide the location for the new state building. That was one time the legislature got ahead.

With so much discussion on both sides and so much division of opinion, one hardly knows whether the decision to dissolve the Standard Oil Company was a good thing or not.

Greenville does not want to take any backward step in the matter of stopping the sale of liquor. There is some of it going on yet, and the work of the citizens last fall might be a good thing to repeat.

You could help relieve the stringency of dull seasons by at least trying to pay a part of what you owe, and thus give the other fellow a chance to pay something he owes. Do not keep waiting if it can be avoided.

There are two things many people do without taking into consideration how much annoyance it gives their neighbors. One is borrowing their newspaper and the other is borrowing the use of their telephone. People subscribe to newspapers and rent telephones for the benefit of themselves and their families, and not as a convenience to the neighborhood.

Elsewhere in this paper is given a program of the commencement of East Carolina Teachers' Training School, 21st to 23rd, and an invitation from President Wright to all the people of Pitt county to be present. The people of the county should show their pride in the institution by attending this commencement. Large crowds should be here on both Monday and Tuesday, and we believe they will come. The exercises will be on a high order in keeping with such an occasion.

The people of the state are interested in a letter published in the state papers, written by Chief Justice Walter Clark, announcing himself a candidate for the United States senate, to succeed Senator F. M. Simmons. It is generally understood throughout the state that ex-Governor Aycock will become a candidate for the senate if sufficiently urged; that Governor Kitchin will be a candidate, and that Senator Simmons is a candidate for re-election, and now Chief Justice Clark comes into the race. The chief justice is certainly another strong man in the race. As chief justice he has demonstrated the fact that he is a strong and progressive man, fearless and honest. His record on the Supreme court bench and on the Superior court bench has excited admiration of which he should feel proud.

For Cheaper Postage.

It is hardly probable that any very strenuous opposition will develop against the efforts of the National One Cent Letter Postage association. This association has its headquarters in Cincinnati and has undertaken a campaign in behalf of one-cent letter postage which it proposes to wage vigorously with a view to having congress at the next regular session reduce the postage on first-class matter.

It is stated by the association that some large business concerns of this country pay as much as $40,000 to $50,000 a year for first-class postage. The contention is that last year the postoffice department realized a profit of about $50,000,000 from the carrying of first-class mail matter, most of which consisted of letters.

At the existing rate, it is claimed business houses pay $1,680 a ton to the government for carrying letters. On an average there are 42 letters to a pound, which makes the rate about 84 cents, and this for short hauls and city delivery as well as for long distance service. The first batch of letters carried to Circle City, Alaska, is said to have cost the government $450 apiece, though carried by the 2-cent stamp, but only a few letters of this sort are carried and the actual cost is said to be something less than 1 cent. The business men who pay so large a part of the total cost of first-class postage are behind the movement for a reduction in letter postage, but the expectation is that 1-cent postage will become a popular demand and so engage the attention of congress.

Nothing is said in the literature of the Cleveland association about the postal charge for other than first-class matter. It is known quite generally that some other classes of matter at a very much lower rate per ounce is carried at a loss and that if it were not for the profit made in letter postage the deficit in the postal revenues would be far greater than it now is and has been for years. If it were possible to do away with the abuse of the franking privilege which so heavily taxes the service, perhaps it might be possible to reduce letter postage without increasing the rate on other classes of matter, but in the meantime it can hardly be claimed that the great masses of the people who write comparatively few letters are seriously taxed by 2-cent letter postage. Newspapers and Jingoism.

Huntington Wilson, assistant secretary of state, in his address before the National Peace Congress the other day scolded the sensational newspaper that misled the public by manufacturing war scares. He had in mind "isolated instances only;" but if he had cared to deal broadly with the question of jingoism he would have wasted little time on the press.

American newspaper jingoes are few in number and of comparatively little influence. In this country the business of jingoism is largely in the hands of professional politicians. Some of them are in the house of representatives, some of them are in the senate. Even a president has been known to play the game.

No newspaper in the United States ever talked so much about war and preparedness for war as Mr. Roosevelt. No newspaper ever showed a greater lack of responsibility toward a friendly power than Mr. Hobson has shown in his attacks upon Japan. It was no newspaper that mobilized the United States army in Texas.

When Mr. Taft told the Peace Congress that "there is not in the whole length and breadth of the United States among its people any desire for territorial aggrandizement and that its people as a whole will not permit its government, if it would, to take steps in respect to foreign peoples looking to a forcible extension of our political power," he was not quieting misgivings created by irresponsible journalism. He was laying fears that had grown out of official action.

No new papers, so far as we are aware, have been clamoring for intervention in Mexico; but the Administration's own conduct has been such idea was not wholly foreign to its mind. This suspicion was naturally strengthened in Latin-American countries by the action of Mr. Roosevelt in "taking" Panama, to say nothing of the achievements of Mr. Knox's dollar diplomacy in Central America.

Bismark once said that soon or later every country had to pay for windows broken by its newspapers; but the American press breaks few windows. That announcement is reserved for the reaction of statesmen. Our own experience has been that when a newspaper publishes the kind of jingo story that the assistant secretary of state deploras, investigation would usually prove that an eminent politician was behind it and furnished the alleged information to the correspondent.—New York World.

Good Roads and Good Schools.

There has been a very noticeable increase in sentiment during the past year or two, and especially during the past few months for better and longer term schools and better roads in this section, and for the matter of state. The people have begun to realize something of the real value of good roads and good schools.

Good roads easily double the value of farming lands. This has been demonstrated in every place in which modern highways have been built. And not only do the good roads double the market price of lands, but they greatly increase the value of the products of the soil. In remote sections the transportation of the product to market is quite a considerable expense. In fact, many farm products for which there is a market never reach market for the simple reason that the cost of transportation is so great that they are not marketed at all.

Schools stand for an intelligent citizenship, progressiveness and happy homes. Good schools linked with good roads and improved and intelligent farming methods will stop the immigration of the boys and girls of the rural sections to the cities and nothing else will stop them.—Concord

Nobody can have such a clear conscience that he doesn't look scared when his wife begins to tell him he talked in his sleep.

Why He Wore His Hat to Church.

To illustrate the "offishness" of some churches, Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, speaking at the First Presbyterian church the other night, told a story of a man who sat through the service one Sunday morning wearing his hat.

When requested to do so by an usher, he removed the hat smilingly. The usher afterward asked him if he had worn the hat purposely or if it was merely absent-minded negligence.

"No," said the man, "I have been attending this church regularly for nearly two years and no one has ever spoken to me in all that time. I just thought I would leave my hat on my head this morning to see if it would serve as an introduction to some one. I am glad to meet you."

Excessive Assessments.

It is said that sheep and lambs in Watauga are being listed for taxes at a higher price than they can be sold for on the markets, and that any ordinary good sheep is listed at $10 and everything else at proportionately high figures. If these reports are true and the assessors are not abusing the power vested in them by the state, the law is, to say the least, oppressive.—Watauga Democrat.

He who guesses right is a prophet, but he who guesses wrong is a fool for guessing.

Social and Personal.

"My Garden."

The sweetest spot I know on earth, Is in my garden fair; Where blossoms the red and lily-white rose,

And other blossoms rare; There are beds of pansies and tulips, Giant hollyhocks and violets, too; And heliotrope, with a wealth of odor, And poppies of many a hue.

There are sweet peas, a hundred colors, And dahlias red and white; Looking sweet and refreshed in the morning,

After dews of the night; There are nasturtiums of color and fragrance, And everlastings that never fade; And China asters that are well laden With blossoms of many a shade.

There are plants of the Irish shamrock, And cactus from Western shores; And pretty palms from the sunny South, And bluebells from Scotland's moors.

I find each day in my garden, A wealth of pleasures untold, Peace and contentment among the flowers, More precious than glittering gold.—E. Ellsworth Claspoy.

Mr. F. R. Stretch left Wednesday evening for Baltimore.

Mr. O. C. Gregory left this morning for Raleigh.

Misses Viola Keeter, Clyde Stancill and May Hampton left this morning to Greensboro to attend the commencement of the State Normal.

Miss Ann Myra Fleming, of Hassell, who has been visiting Miss Josephine Little, returned home today.

Miss Lucy Forbes, who has for some weeks been in the hospital in Richmond, returned home today.

Mr. R. L. Humber went to Hobbard Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Chesson, of Plymouth, and Mrs. Jones, of St. Louis, who have been visiting Mrs. J. L. Hassell, went to Stantonsburg Wednesday evening.

DANDELIONS.

Taken from Sunshine into the House It Changes from Gold to Silver.

The dandelions are everywhere. They glorify the lawns. If they weren't so common they would be as pretty as a daisy, which belongs to the same Aster family that lives on another street. They are called dandelions, not because there is anything leonine about the flower, but because the leaf is dented like the teeth of the lion. Dent tooth; de, or; and leo, lion.—dent-de-lion, or dandelion. By the way, about the most strenuous dentistry is pulling the teeth of the lion. Almost every household is bothered with it these days, and the youngest members of the family are the ones most troubled.

Another name for dandelion is atraxium, but that suggests the drug feature of the dandelion, which abstracts the poetry from the lovely flower. The finest transmutation of metals there is known is when you take a dandelion from the sunshine into the house, when it changes from gold to silver. But the most beautiful transformation is from the yellow petals to globes of down, that "happens when the night comes on." The downy radiance. This is the dandelion's reward for being so modest and unassuming—it becomes almost a beautiful spirit when the day is gone.—Ohio State Journal.

Marriage No Joke.

Every sport has its hazard, as the Anne Arundel philosopher truly observes, but the joke marriage carries with it an element of risk sufficient to appal all but the temporarily imbecile.

Instances in point crop out in the news of almost every day. There is the Arkansas lawyer, who, on being twitted on being single, wagered $100 that he would marry a girl; he did not know, but had caught his fancy at a public entertainment. He did, and is now touring Europe to give the lady a chance to divorce him for desertion. In the news of the same day is the account of an aged woman who married her nephew, twenty-three years old, while she was on her deathbed, to save herself the trouble of making a will in his favor. But the worst of all is the unctuous divine—a misnomer, if ever there was one—who holds himself out as willing to unite boy and girl elopers, and then square his conscience by a sizable fee and a doubtful Scriptural text.

Of course, the divine courts are crowded. But they won't be when men exercise the same degree of care in picking out a partner for life that the customarily devote to buying a house and lot.—Baltimore Sun.

Cause of Appendicitis.

The "last straw" has fallen. Nearly everything that goes into the mouths of human being has been blamed, at one time or another, for causing appendicitis, from toothbrush bristles to strawberry seeds. The theory of a London doctor, lately propounded, is that "American made flour" is the chief culprit. He claims to have studied the process by which flour is made in this country. It is ground by steel rollers that in time wear away and have to be renewed. He reasons profoundly—what becomes of the minute steel particles that wear away. Of course, they go into the flour. We eat the steel dust with the flour and it disagrees violently with the appendix.

The New York Press wonders why the gritty particles from the old stone mills originally used in grinding were not as potent in causing appendicitis as steel dust. Possibly the reason is that the appendix hasn't had time yet to adjust itself to the change of diet. It may be that appendices, like glaciers, move slowly. Anyhow, we wish that London doctor would abstain from reflecting on the American roller mills.—Greensboro News.

Underfed School Children.

That large numbers of school children are undernourished is a statement which no longer admits dispute. The fact has long been recognized and dealt with in Europe, and now we of the United States are waking up to conditions that cry aloud for action. At a moderate estimate probably 2,000,000 of our children between the ages of five and fourteen years (nearly 12 per cent. of the total number of that age) are underfed. A recent investigation in New York City warranted the assumption that, at a low estimate, 10 per cent. of our school children suffer from malnutrition.

Do we, I wonder, grasp the full significance of this fact. The pity of it is obvious; but, unfortunately, the suffering of the individual child is only one aspect of a many-sided evil that threatens the community at more than one valuable point. Food, one expert tells us, is at the base of most of the evils of child degeneracy. Poor and inappropriate food, says another, is responsible for more ill health, classroom stupidity, and backwardness than any other one injurious influence of modern city life. And again, one of the most striking things about undernourished children is their vulnerability. They "take" everything, and offer very little resistance to any acute infectious disease which they may contract.

It is not difficult to count the ultimate cost to society of these underfed children—in other words, the degenerate, the mentally defective, the tubercular, who form so large a percentage of the total child population of our modern city. The degenerate child, beginning as a moral canker among its playmates, ends by taking the city's money for its support in reformatories and prisons. The children who catch every disease spread these diseases broadcast before they themselves are gathered into hospitals—at the expense of the community. The tubercular, the anemic, the mentally deficient, take two years to do one year's work, or are taught in special classes; all of which means extra expenditure of city money. In every case we are confronted with the expense to the community—expense in health, in money—of the undernourished child.—Mary Osephine Mayer, in American Review of Reviews.

ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR MAYOR.

To The Voters of Greenville.

At the solicitation of several prominent business men and many personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for mayor, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, and take this means of announcing my candidacy and soliciting your support.

5 15—tfd J. B. JAMES.

To The Voters of Greenville.

I take this method of announcing myself a candidate for mayor, subject to the action of the Democratic voters of the town. As has been the custom heretofore, and as there is more than one candidate for the nomination, I suggest the holding of a voting primary to decide upon the nominee. In announcing my candidacy, I wish to state that I have no special interests to serve, and am no particular person's candidate, and if nominated and elected, will do all that I can for a more economical administration of the town's affairs, and to serve all the people to the best of my ability.

5 15—tfd W. F. EVANS.

To The Voters of Greenville.

I respectfully announce myself a candidate for the office of mayor of Greenville, subject to the will of the Democratic primary. I have retired from the drug business, that I may live more in the open air and purpose, if elected, to devote myself to the detailed discharge of the duties of the office.

My past record as an officer is known to you. I have used my best efforts to enforce the laws, and if elected, shall continue to do so.

Gratefully,

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and flexible. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for the bottles of it.
MISS B. A. BOSS,

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

THE COTTON SITUATION.

The Future Prospects as Observed by The New Orleans Picayune.

The New Orleans Picayune, a good authority on cotton, is disposed to take an optimistic view of future prospects. In discussing the cotton situation it says despite the fact that the cotton crop of the past season has been in the neighborhood of 12,000,000 bales, and the further fact that American spinners have not taken anything like their proper share of the supply, the season promises to end with general stocks more depleted than they have been in many years. Europe has taken 1,592,000 bales more than last year, or practically the entire excess in yield, compared with the crop of the preceding season. As American stocks are now 177,000 bales less than the country has exported more cotton than is good for American spinners, and that consequently, there will be a scarcity of spinnable cotton until the new crop comes to market freely. Even European spinners, although they have larger stocks than last season, have not enough cotton to carry them to the new crop, and will, therefore, have to compete with American mills for the remnant of the supply. The statistical situation is, therefore, uncommonly strong, and no matter how favorable new crop prospects may become during the summer, the actual scarcity of available cotton promises to remain so acute as to keep prices high, and even give a sympathetic value to the new crop, on the theory that no matter how large it may be, it will be needed to supply requirements, as well as to replenish the absolutely exhausted reserve stocks. While manipulation, made easy by the small stock of cotton, may, and doubtless will, advance prices during the summer, there is more logic in the strength of the market than there has been in any recent season when the summer months have been practically connered. Such being the prevailing conditions, it is no wonder that the cotton farmers are increasing their acreage and doing all in their power to produce a full crop for the coming season. Another short crop would be a calamity, and would so cripple the manufactured goods industry as to react unfavorably on the whole cotton trade. On the other hand a full crop, even were it as large as 15,000,000 bales, would all be needed, and will, if available, be sold at good prices. It is reasonable to suppose that, owing to the high prices for cotton goods, consumption of such goods has been on a hand-to-mouth basis, and that stocks of dry goods everywhere are reduced to the lowest possible minimum. When the process of replenishment commences there is sure to be such an enormous demand as to keep all mills busy and cause a consumption of raw cotton that will break all records by a big margin. The cotton trade could hardly face a stronger and promising outlook.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Dr. White is a graduate and registered optometrist, and is perhaps the only colored man that holds a certificate of registration from the state board of examiners in optometry. He has other valuable accomplishments, which makes him capable of rendering much service to his race. His wife is an accomplished trained nurse, graduated seamstress and graduated cook. Dr. White has had two years of successful practice during which term he has won the friendship and confidence of a large number of the most prominent of his race. 5 18

The value of a dollar depends not upon what you can get for it, but upon what you paid for it.

Physical and Psychical.

Dr. Farrill, lecturing before a social service class in Chicago, said the character of the man as a citizen often was dependent on the physical training he received. Yes, but his character was more dependent upon the moral training he had received. His environment, his studies, his associations, his methods of thought, the books he reads, the things he likes to tell about have more effect on his character than all the physical exercises he can pursue. Because sound muscles, nerves and organs are to be desired, they should not monopolize one's interest entirely. The vanity of the flesh very often leads to the understanding of one's life.

Building up the physical at the expense of the psychical is a disturbance of, that equilibrium which means health. The tendency of the age is to disturb that equilibrium—to make the legs of a man the test of his mightiness, which is not the Lord's way, as the Psalmist remark. The right way, in the determination of those important relations, is to keep the soul just a little ahead of the body on its upward march.—Ohio State Journal.

Unless a man gets married he'll probably go to his grave believing that he knew it all.

A common mistake in the kitchen is thinking that a bad temper makes a good cook.
