

E. C. T. T. S. COMMENCEMENT

The Graduating Class Exercises Monday Evening.

MUSICAL EXERCISES MON. NIGHT

Annual Address of Mr. Josephus Daniels—Presenting Diplomas and Bibles to Graduates—Donation to Student Loan Fund—Resolution by Literary Societies—The Entire Commencement a Brilliant One.

A scene unusual in Greenville's history, and as beautiful as it was novel, was that presented by the graduating class of East Carolina Teachers' Training school in their exercises that were held on the campus Monday evening. A large crowd had assembled in the grove on the east end of the campus, and it seemed as if nature had selected the spot for this special occasion. A more beautiful and fitting selection could not have been made.

At 6 o'clock the entire school filed out of the administration building and to the music of the Washington band, marching in double column down the widening walk through the lawn, then around by the park into which they circled to the place selected for the exercises. Every girl was dressed in spotless white, and they made a beautiful picture as they marched in perfect step to the music. The school was divided in classes, the freshmen leading, each class bearing a banner with the year in which it would graduate. The class of 1911 came in the rear, enclosed in a rope of bamboos entwined with white roses, the class flower.

Reaching the place wired off for the class exercises, the column halted and opened ranks for the seniors to pass, then filed through in reverse column forming a semi-circle behind the class.

The seniors entwined the garland they carried around the class tree and sang the class song. Then Miss Lillie Tucker, the president, stepped to the front and delivered the address of welcome, which was as follows:

President Wright: Members of the faculty, fellow students, ladies and gentlemen:

In behalf of the class of 1911, the first graduating class of our beloved institution, I extend to you a cordial welcome to our class exercises.

We have gathered around our tree to hold our last class meeting as seniors for the purpose of burying our records and inaugurating a custom which we trust will continue to exist long after we are gone; and also for the purpose of setting a precedent which we hope will be followed by all future classes.

In looking back over the past two years during which we have striven together, we see that many improvements might have been made, but whatever have been our faults, our hearts have been true.

In making the record of our deeds a part of our school soil, we at the same time promise that the deeds themselves will form a part of, and help to nourish the institution which has so greatly befriended us. No one can ever know what it has meant for us to be here; to be with these uplifting influences, to be one in purpose and desire.

Few people can realize what it means, has meant, or will mean to hundreds of girls to have such as this school open to them and within their reach. We would not let this opportunity pass to thank the noble hearted men who saw the need of such an institution and who helped to land it. Especially do we thank the county of Pitt and the town of Greenville for the great part they played in making our school just what it is.

In giving expression of our gratitude we, at the same time, offer in return for all our school has done for us, our hearts, our hopes, our lives in the great work of training the children under care into a higher life.

We hope to see our alma mater prosperous and grow and we pledge ourselves to be ever loyal and true to its interests.

To you, fellow students, we entrust the keeping of this spirit. May you always be united in the highest aims and purposes, and may you reach higher goals than we have attained.

Miss Vada Highsmith followed with the class history, as follows:

History of Class of 1911.

The history of our class is so closely connected with the history of the school that I shall ask you to review with me a few of the experiences we have shared together, and then tell you some of our very own.

When the news was spread abroad that the new E. C. T. T. S. would be ready for the reception of students October 5, 1909, about 150 responded to the call, anxious to take the training to become teachers. They came from many parts of the state, and one from Virginia, although the majority was from Eastern Carolina.

Long will the memory of our arrival here, and of the trials and joys of the first few days and weeks remain with us! The merry times we had fixing up our new rooms, selecting closet curtains, getting acquainted etc. We were all green together, so of course, the greatest harmony prevailed.

On October 5, the first student body of the E. C. T. T. S. assembled in the auditorium for general directions from our president, with reference to registration and classification. After registering, or giving a history of ourselves in to the office, we went the rounds of the faculty to be classified. Not a few there who remembered nothing about the texts they had studied, except the color of the book.

But in a remarkably short time the teachers had sized up the situation and we were set off as A, B, and C classes, with work assigned. Real work it was, too, from the very first, for despite the fact that we had no desks except benches borrowed from the churches, no lights, except small oil lamps, no maps, and no blackboards, the work went "straight ahead," like Mr. Frazier and his mules.

Among the things discussed at our chapel exercises at that time was the absence of rules and regulations. Our president said we would begin with a clean sheet, and rules would come only as needed. Alas! they did come, all too soon. In those days till December 6, we had no lights to give us the wink, and it was found that some girls did not know when to go to bed. They also did not know when to visit. So of course, as we were here to develop every side of our brains, we had to learn. Then, by sad experience, we learned that it was best not to leave the campus, not to be late to meals, and that study hour must be strictly kept if we were to do good work.

Among the first organizations to be formed in our new school was a Y. W. C. A. One of our members, Pattie Dowell, was elected president. Nearly all the girls in school became members, and so successfully was it managed that it has since been an influential factor in the school.

Our first holiday came on November 12, when our president was inaugurated. It was the first time that many of us had witnessed so important an event as inauguration ceremonies, so excitement ran high. We had with us men from many sister institutions, who helped to make the occasion a great one.

After this occasion the school, now organized, settled down to real work. Soon class spirit began to manifest itself, so we decided to follow the example of the school, and organize ourselves. The class of 1911, numbering 36, was then formed.

It was my special privilege as the first president of the class to act as a guide, or leader. But for the wise and helpful counsel of our advisor, Miss McKinney, I fear I should never have survived the pleasant task of leading this wonderful class through its first year.

We struggled bravely with the mysteries of chemistry—formulae that resembled Egyptian hieroglyphics, gases that reminded us of our studies of the wonderful Delphic Oracle, and acids that caused mysterious holes to appear in our laboratory aprons. We wrote descriptions of the campus, exposed our ignorance in expositions on how to make bread, build tobacco barns, and other experiences common to every day life. When those reigns of terror otherwise known as examination week came, we would have given up in despair but for our motto: "Ad astra per aspera. To the stars three difficulties."

After a delightful three months' vacation, we found ourselves back at the Training school. When we organized there were twenty of us, two being new ones. The course of work outlined for us was a delightful one, especially the brand new subjects—primary methods, public school music, school management and cooking.

The first distinction we won for ourselves as a brilliant class was of a theatrical nature. At Thanksgiving time we gave to the public "The Superior Sex." So pleased were they and we that in the spring we added further laurels to our fame by presenting "The Kleptomaniac" and "Proposal Under Difficulties."

To prove that we were not leaving the domestic side of our education undeveloped, we gave a luncheon to the faculty and Governor and Mrs. Jarvis on April 30th. They were so delighted with our cooking that they agreed to recommend us, not only as teachers, but as cooks as well.

When we have become bright and shining lights in the teaching profession, the memory of how we tried to apply the theories of psychology, pedagogy and primary methods to actual teaching will ever be with us.

Senior privileges and senior functions are two chief attractions to all graduates. No class ever enjoyed them more than we. One of the much needed lessons we learned from having privileges is that with them come always additional responsibilities. The reception that were given us, one by President and Mrs. Wright in the winter, the other by Mrs. Beckwith later in the spring, were occasions that will linger long as most delightful memories of our senior year.

The thousand and one little things that have made us happy need not be mentioned here, but now that they are almost things of the past, we realize that we, the class of 1911, have much to live for to remain the true, faithful daughters of the East Carolina Teachers' Training school.

VADA HIGHSMITH.

Then with marked solemnity the class records were consigned to an open grave near the tree, each member of the class in turn helping to fill the grave. The spade used for this purpose was then presented by the president of the seniors to the juniors, and was accepted by Miss Margaret Davis, president of the latter class.

Last Will, Class 1911.

Miss Margaret Blow then read the last will and testament of the class, as follows:

We, the members of the class of 1911, of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School, in the county of Pitt, and the state of North Carolina, revoking all former wills, declare this to be our last will and testament.

Item I. To the entire faculty we leave our worthy example, to be held up as a moral to all succeeding seniors.

To a few of the faculty we have individual gifts to make, so we hereby give and bequeath;

1. To Mr. Leon R. Meadows this little box of our "respect," which we were often told we failed to show. This is to be distributed by him as he thinks best among his classes where he thinks the need is most felt.

2. To Mr. Herbert E. Austin our most valuable treasures.

(a) We do give and bequeath to the above named, all our best worded and most comprehensive aims and problems in chemistry, pedagogy, science, agriculture and hygiene, as worked out by our most brilliant minds.

(b) All the specimens of mosquitoes and disease germs known to this section, may they be of very great service to him in his career next year with the seniors.

3. To Mr. W. H. Ragsdale, this book of new jokes, selected from the "Ladies Home Journal," on the condition that they are not to be used longer than 5 years.

4. This tennis ball to Miss May Bishop, with the wish that her success may continue, and that she may be able to count among her victories at least one "love" game.

4. To Miss McKinney, our class advisor, we leave our hearts devotion, in evidence of our appreciation of her wise counsel and helpful admonitions during the past year.

5. Fearing that there might come a time when she may not possess copies of "Chubb" and "Arnold," we leave to Miss Dabney this note book, in which she may take notes from these two books during the summer vacation.

6. To Miss Kate Lewis, who finally convinced us that we really possessed great talent for training, we leave our best works of art. We believe that when she places them on exhibition, they will be a great inspiration to her future classes, to do as nearly as possible such good work as the class of 1911.

Item II. As an evidence of our good will and esteem, we also wish to bequeath:

1. To the class of 1912 our studious habits, noble ambitions and heroic characteristics of overcoming difficulties.

2. The senior privileges which they have so long envied.

3. Our love and best wishes that their senior year will be filled with many joys, that their every effort by crowned with success, and all the honors which they so richly deserve may follow them through a noble career.

Item III. To the class of 1913, all our interests in tennis and basketball. In doing so we appeal to you to build up a strong athletic spirit in our school.

Item IV. To the class of 1914, we leave this lantern, to guide them from the sea of darkness into the land of light.

Item V. To that industrious and well known as "The one year class," we bequeath this box of talents, which we hope they will not hesitate to use as the occasion demands. May they prove very helpful to them in their future fields of labor.

Item VI. There being a few possessions which we wish to donate to the individual members of our class, we do hereby give and bequeath:

1. To Ida Bullock this book of love lyrics, may she continue to enjoy all the delusive sentences of "Love's Young Dreams."

2. To Grace Bishop, this chain on which to wear her class pin, as it has a decided tendency to wander.

5. To Pattie Dowell this check with which to make the first payment on the Encyclopedia Britannica and the Century Dictionary. These volumes may render some addition to her already voluminous vocabulary.

4. To Essie Ellington this small hand mirror, so she will no longer have to ask "Is there any powder on my face?"

5. To Louise Fleming this "fountain" pen, to be used in writing to her class mates.

6. This package of "magic hair curlers," on which to twist her locks into those attractive beau catchers, to Vada Highsmith. May they bring the desired results in the future.

7. To Nell Pender this book of carefully collected suggestions on "How to learn to sing," with the request that she carry out the directions in her own room.

8. Knowing that Sallie Pierce suffers with severe headaches, we give her this bottle of capudine, "Hicks" best known medicine.

9. To Mattie Ruffin for whom it often seems hard to find a congenial companion, we leave this imp—He will always keep Mattie company.

10. This book "Mrs. Beckwith's rules and regulations for managing a school," to Lillie Tucker, as it will be impossible for her to remember them all after leaving.

11. To Jennie Williams, who has horrors of a lonely spinsterhood, this bow. May it be a comfort to her to know that as long as a girl has a bow (beau) she has "prospects."

12. As we know her future bliss will depend upon her visits to Lillie and Louise, we do hereby give and bequeath to Mary Woodburn this mileage book.

Item VII. To our Alma Mater our love and loyal support with the promise that we shall ever be devoted to her interests.

We hereby appoint Mr. Alexander Harper and Mr. William Ross, executors of this, our will.

In witness whereof, we, the said members of the senior class, of the East Carolina Teachers' Training school, have here under set our hand, this the twenty-second day of May, 1911.

SENIOR CLASS.

At the conclusion of the will the executors named therein distributed the bequests, much to the amusement of the beneficiaries and the audience.

Next came another amusing feature in the class prophecy by miss Nellie Pender, which was as follows:

Class Prophecy.

When my class elected me prophet I accepted the honor, feeling sure that it would be a delightful task to foretell the future of my class mates when once the prophetic mantle was thrown around me. But no prophetic mantle appeared and no inspiration came, despite the fact that I sought it continually. I even went out of my way to sit and dream in every place where it seemed possible for such inspiration to lurk. This was all in vain and I was reduced to a condition of despair. I tore my hair in anguish; I watched my class mates like a hawk to get an idea of their future intentions. All my friends were asked for a likely source of inspiration, until I saw they were avoiding me; if I approached a merry group, excuses were made and I was soon left alone.

At last one day when a friend had just skillfully avoided me, I resolved to seek our class tree with the hope of finding here some measure of solace. Accordingly I wended my way towards the little oak and seating myself at its foot I was soon lost in thought. Absently I pushed aside some leaves and to my amazement a black object was revealed. Upon further investigation it proved to be a book about the size of a large dictionary, bound in dull black and fastened with a heavy brass clasp. I pressed the clasp and the book fell open before me. In it was a green jumble of marks which looked more like Chinese characters than anything else. I rubbed my eyes in order to see the characters better and took another look. What was my surprise to find that the writing was now as legible to me as English.

The book was dated

and these were the words I read:

Chronicle of the class of 1911.

Fearful lest this be too good to be true, I hastily turned the page and saw in that curious writing

Part I

Under that was the following: Margaret Blow, teacher, book agent; housekeeper. Only one year was spent in the school room! A splendid salary induced her to become a book agent. By her slick arguments and much talking she sold more books than her company was able to deliver. Highly successful tho' she was there were moments when the dread of spinsterhood overpowered her. At one of these times she consented to wed a soldier whose affection she had long held.

On the opposite page was the name, Ida Bullock (Something, which I could not quite make out). I regret that the last part of the name as well as most of the writing was blurred. But I was able to make out enough to learn that sometime in the year 1912 she acquired a "Will" of her own and still resides in Bethel. Sallie Pierce, successful writer; happy wife. Immediately after leaving school Sallie edited a book of love lyrics dedicated to her favorite flower, "Sweet Williams." This book on account of the sentiment and depth of feeling expressed is a literary gem and is now included in the English course at the East Carolina Teachers' Training school. To the regret of the world this is her only literary contribution, so she soon embarked upon the sea of matrimony.

Louise Fleming, accomplished and practical demonstrator of domestic science in her own home. At school Louise was the fortunate possessor of a "Jemlarkie." She laughed for a while, but unable to resist the entreaties of this same "Jemlarkie" she resigned her position and is now enjoying love in a cottage.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

(From noon today to noon tomorrow.) Sun sets 7:13, rises 4:31; moon rises 2:26 a. m.; planet Mercury visible rising before the sun.

I turned the pages eager to know whose name and fate was mentioned next. Pshaw! It was blank. I looked at one after another with the same result. Just as I was about to give up I saw a second division.

Part II.

Covering the next two pages was a picture. It represented a large new hall, evidently the chapel of some school as it was filled with students, listening intently. On the stage stood a tall lady with red hair operating a graphophone. What could this picture mean? I wondered. Suddenly I caught sight of a sign at one side of the stage with these words "Graphophone recital. All the famous songs from grand operas as sung by Miss Jennie Williams, a former student and alumna of this school."

More writing was on the next pages. The first name was that of the Hon. P. S. Dowell, politician, congressman. For a while she endeavored to put into practice the methods learned at her alma mater. This, however, was not her life work. She had a natural love for the stage, but sacrificing her own personal desires and prompted by patriotic reasons, she entered politics. She is now congressman from her district, and is being suggested by her party as candidate for governor.

Vada Highsmith, educator; woman's rights agitator; editor. Feeling that women were down-trodden and deprived of all rights to which they were entitled she unselfishly gave up her position as teacher to become editor of the "News and Observer." Here it proved that her influence was wide felt. In connection with her co-laborer, the Hon. P. S. Dowell, she created such enthusiasm for woman's suffrage that a measure dealing with the question has passed the general assembly.

Lillie Tucker, agriculturist. Having resisted all the wiles of Cupid, she is now the leading farmer in North Carolina, and is recognized as an authority on agricultural questions. Once a month when she is not too busy she gives lectures in the science department of the East Carolina Teachers' Training school.

Mary Woodburne, teacher. Her affection for her room mates has increased rather than diminished. She finds herself still unable to be separated from Lillie. Her vocation is teaching; her avocation talking to Lillie. Were it not for this unfortunate attachment she would have mounted high on her educational ladder.

In times like school commencements Greenville's lack of hotel accommodations are sorely felt.

The advertisement Greenville gets from a commencement occasion like this is worth much to the town.

Wonder if Mayor Gaynor, of New York, has any more children to elope. Three have skipped the fraternal roof so far.

The Reflector feels that the occasion justifies the full report given today of the class exercises in connection with the commencement of East Carolina Teachers' Training School, hence makes no apology for giving most of our space to it today to the exclusion of much other matter.

Mixing in Brains.

The man who achieves notable success is usually the man who does not accept the customary way of doing things without thinking for himself. He finds a better way if he can. Such a man is Mr. Duke Bowers, of Memphis, who has lately been the subject of considerable comment, with a four-page advertisement inserted by him in a Memphis newspaper as the occasion therefor. Mr. Bowers started in the grocery business with the conviction that the idea of liberal advertising not being profitable to grocers was all wrong. He acted upon this belief in thorough and consistent fashion. As the result he is now one of Memphis' wealthiest citizens, owning no fewer than 35 grocery stores there. Live advertising has been the distinctive feature of his business from first to last.

Every conspicuously successful merchant's career tells a story more or less like this. Effectiveness of method is bound up inextricably with advertising and originality and courage there count for more than anywhere else.—Charlotte Observer.

DON'T GIVE UP THE PREPARED TOBACCO LAND

MR. O. L. JOYNER SUGGESTS

A Word To The Tobacco Farmers of Eastern North Carolina.

Although at this time, many farmers may feel disposed to plant the land prepared for tobacco in other crops, on account of the prolonged drouth and great scarcity of plants, yet I would urge you not to do this, at least for several days. This has been an unusually peculiar spring. We have had very little rainfall, comparatively speaking, and it has been the coldest, on an average, of any year in a number of years, yet nature always corrects her own errors, and it is reasonably certain that tobacco planted any time during this month on a season, will have ample time for development, and under proper care and cultivation, there is no reason why a good tobacco crop cannot be made, even if planted at this, to many of us, very late.

The tendency of our tobacco growers for the last few years has been to get out their crops at the very earliest possible date, and as a consequence of this diligent effort on their part, the transplanting season has been moved earlier, and earlier each year, until the last few years we have planted the crop of tobacco three or four weeks earlier than it was planted ten or twelve years ago. I believe farmers will find it to their interest to plant the land they intended for tobacco, in tobacco, if it can be done any time up to the first few days of June, this year, especially. The season is from three to four weeks later than usual, and there will very probably be compensation for this unusual condition in a late season, which will give tobacco ample time for perfect development under normal conditions.

My position for the last few years has been for a reduced tobacco acreage, because I believed a reduction in acreage was necessary for profitable prices. The acreage has been reduced, and seasons have still further reduced the production, and I now believe farmers will find it to their interest to plant tobacco.

O. L. JOYNER.

Graded School Notice.

The part of the summer school for children in the primary grades will begin tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock. This part of the summer term is under the direction of the Training school, and the tuition is free. None but children who were registered prior to this week can be admitted. No places will be kept open for pupils who may be absent tomorrow, unless special request is made of me.

Floral, Ark.—"I must speak a good word for Cardui," writes Mrs. Viola Baker, of this place.
"About a month ago I was in very bad health. I was so weak and nervous that I was not able to do my housework.
"My husband bought me one bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic. I took it according to directions and now I am in good health.
"I think Cardui is a fine tonic for weak women."

And you are not the only lady who thinks so, Mrs. Baker.
Thousands, like you, have written to tell of the wonderful benefit Cardui has been to them.

Cardui contains no minerals, or other powerful drugs. It contains no glycerin or other mawkish-tasting ingredients. It is just a pure, natural extract, of natural vegetable herbs, that have been found to regulate the womanly functions and strengthen the female system.
All druggists sell Cardui. See yours about it.

TRAINING SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

woman in America. While a student at the East Carolina Teachers' Training school she became enthusiastic over the essays of Emerson and jotted down all her thoughts. After graduating she taught in a remote community in order to work out her theory of non-conformity. Suddenly the world sat up in astonishment. A great book had appeared, the like of which had never been seen. Eager inquiries were made for the unknown author. She now occupies the chair of English at Harvard.

Essie Ellington, short story writer. Grace Bishop, illustrator.

For some years after leaving school, Essie did not seem to find the work for which she was best fitted. At last by accident she discovered a talent little suspected either by herself or her class mates. She is now the leading short story writer in this country. Her publishers engaged Grace Bishop, who has steadily advanced to the front as an artist, to illustrate all her stories. These two women have become wealthy as a result of their combined effort.

When I read this, I leaned back and closed my eyes to meditate upon what I had just read. In thinking of each girl, I suddenly remembered that I had not found out what the book contained concerning my own fate. I opened my eyes and eagerly bent over to see. To my astonishment the book had vanished as mysteriously, as it came.

NELL PENDER, (Class Prophet.)
The farewell song brought to a close these splendid exercises that reflected highest credit upon the class and school and were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

Concert Monday Night.

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock another immense audience filled the auditorium for the annual concert by the music pupils under the direction of Misses Bishop and Muffy. This was truly excellent, every number being rendered with such perfectness as to show the thorough training the pupils had received. The program was as follows:

- Military March (for Piano) . Schubert
- Misses F. and A. Smith.
- "A Dream of May" Hadley
- Miss Gardner, Soprano.
- Humoresque (for Piano) . . . Dvorak
- Miss Morrill.
- "Past and Present" DeKoven
- "Baby Clover" Willeby
- Miss Davis, Contralto.
- Spring-Song (for Piano) Mendelssohn
- Miss Agnes Smith.
- "Serenade" (arranged)—Semi-Chorus Ahlstrom
- Misses Ruffin, Williams, Gardner, Brown, Carter, E. Knight
- Dowell, Wynne, Guthrie, F. Knight and Davis.
- The Merry Wives of Windsor (for Piano) Nicolai
- Misses Brown, Dail, Wooten and Morrill.
- "A May Morning" Denza
- Miss Williams, Soprano
- Witches Dance (for Piano) . McDowell
- Miss Purvis
- "Out on the Deep" Male Chorus.
- Overture from "Tannhauser" (for Piano) Wagner
- Misses Brown and Bunting.
- "All Thro' the Night"—Chorus.

Just before the concluding number President Wright expressed his appreciation of the large attendance at the commencement, and thanked the business houses of the town for closing during the hours of the exercises. He also invited the audience to examine specimens of work done by the pupils, that were on exhibition in the library. These showed the skill of the pupils in various fancy work.

Concluding Exercises.

The last of the commencement exercises of the school took place this morning.

The students, faculty and trustees and those to take part in the exercises occupied the large stage, leaving the auditorium for the audience which was filled.

The exercises began with prayer by Rev. R. L. Davis, followed with singing "Thou Shall Love the Lord," by the school.
President Wright welcomed the people to the commencement, and said that the school turns out its first graduating class with the lucky number, thirteen. The school is having strictly a North Carolina commencement, every one taking part in it being from this state. He then introduced Mr. Josephus Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, who delivered the literary address.

Mr. Daniels' Speech.
Mr. Daniels said it was not only his good fortune to be born in North Carolina, but in Eastern North Carolina, and he first saw the light on the banks of the same river that flows by Greenville. He was glad to be neighbor to such a people who Social and Personal.

Let us learn to be content with what we have. Let us get rid of our false estimates, set up all the higher ideals—a quite home; vines of our own planting; a few books full of inspiration of a genius; a few friends worthy of being loved and able to love us in return; a hundred innocent pleasures that bring no pain nor remorse; a devotion to the right that will never swerve; a simple religion of all bigotry, full of trust and hope and love—and to such a philosophy this world will give up all the empty joy it has.

Mr. Horace Rawls, of Wilson, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Griffin, and attending the E. C. T. S. commencement.

Mrs. J. G. Moye and Mrs. W. H. Dail, Jr., left Monday evening for Washington.

Mr. F. R. Stretch returned Monday evening from Philadelphia.

Mrs. Fannie Joyner and Miss Hohn, of Farmville, who have been visiting Miss Hattie Smith, returned home this morning.

Mr. Louis Johnston came in Monday evening from Darlington, S. C., to spend a few days.

Mr. Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, came in Monday evening to deliver the commencement address of the E. C. T. S.

Mr. Frank Wilson returned from Baltimore today.

Miss Winnie Skinner returned from Norfolk today.

Subscription Dance.

The young men of Greenville will give a subscription dance on the night of Thursday, June 1st, in Perkins' hall, complimentary to the visiting young ladies and the Greenville girls who are returning from college. The music will be furnished by Forbes' orchestra, of Washington, the same that played at the Pythian banquet. A very pleasant evening is promised all the young men who make engagements for the occasion.

The dance will begin promptly at nine o'clock and will be led by Mr. and Mrs. Albion Dunn.

All the German clubs of other towns are invited.

Recital by Greenville Lady.

The recital of Miss Carrie Bowen and Agnes Spain at the College last evening delighted the large audience present. Miss Bowen, who has a splendid voice, received several encores and was heartily applauded. Miss Spain, though a junior music pupil, is a talented young lady and her numbers were also well rendered and heartily applauded.

A social period followed, much to the gratification of the young men of the city.—Wilson Times.

had put as much money in establishing an institution of learning as had been done here—more than any community in North Carolina had ever done before.

Mr. Daniels spoke on the "Rule of the People" and pointed out the obstacles thrown in the way of popular government from the time that the electoral college was devised to give the selection of president to a small class rather than to the popular vote down to this time when the will of the people is thwarted by the alliance between the Boss in politics and the Captain of Industry who is ready to pay for special privilege and immunity from punishment for the violation of the law. He traced the slow process by which the people wrested the selection of a president from electors chosen by legislatures, thereby overturning this piece of constitution finessing invented to prevent the election of the chief executive by the popular vote. It was only by the invention of the National Convention that electors were made mere messengers to carry out the decree of the people instead of the real rulers. In like manner he pointed out the steps taken to try to make our senate a virtual house of lords and how the agitation for direct election has resulted in primaries in many states and the Oregon plan in others which have practically taken out of the hands of legislators the selection of the senators and committed it to the people. These two methods of indirect election, invented by those who denied the right of the people to govern themselves, were declared to be only the two most glaring of several measures and methods devised by the school of Hamilton to make popular government almost impossible in the new republic, but before leaving the advocacy of electing senators by the people, Mr. Daniels touched upon the scandal of the election of Lorimer and other like legislative crimes and the disgrace which the senate has brought upon itself by voting to keep a man in his seat when bribery was notorious in the body that gave Lorimer the certificate of election.

In showing the mistake of the life tenure of judges and their claiming the right to annual legislative acts, the speaker touched upon the Supreme court decisions in the Standard Oil case and approved the declaration of Justice Harlan that such an interpretation of the law was "dangerous."

Mr. Daniels thought that not since the time the Federal Constitution was in the making had the American people been so keenly alive to the questions that looked to restoring representative government and giving effect to the will of the people as now. He showed how alliances between political bosses and trust magnates had so destroyed popular government that there is a widespread and determined purpose in all parties to rid their party from the control of these unholy conspiracies and government from the selfish policies dictated by "the interests." In the belief by many people that they could make their wishes felt in the resolve to end competition has come about even measures looking to bettering conditions as so to restore popular government. They were enumerated as follows: 1. The Australian Ballot; 2. The Legalized Primary; 3. Corrupt Practice Acts; 4. Publicity of campaign contributions; 5. Referendum and Initiative; 6. The Recall; 7. Commission form of Municipal Government.

He pointed out that all these measures had been born out of a desire to restore the right of the people to rule and to find agencies by which their will should be ascertained and made effective. There is no popular government in true sense unless the people rule. They have not ruled in many states and in the senate their will has been flouted and scorned. As to those several measures of reform devised to end the evils in party government and in legislation, Mr. Daniels said they should be carefully studied and applied only when people were sufficiently informed and alive to make their valued agencies of reform. He believed there had been less agitation in North Carolina for these agencies than elsewhere because the evils of government were less here and because so many people had not studied their operation, and debated the measures that have found so much favor elsewhere. He gave the story of Oregon's forward step and told how these new measures had worked in that state. He believed that most of them should be put into operation in North Carolina as a preventive of bad conditions on the theory that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. But he did not advocate any of them as a panacea for all the evils. Reforms come slowly and may not be imposed from without. They must be adopted because conditions demand them and the new and better methods were most popular where there was least illiteracy. The standard of general education and information could be gauged by the interest taken in great new questions and adoption of such progressive measures as would better enable the people to be the final arbiters of government.

If North Carolina is behind in some things—as was admitted—it was due to the failure in the past to educate all the people. Universal education is the condition precedent to general progress and uplift. The chief need is universal education but that halts for the lack of well trained teachers. The leader in the better conditions in North Carolina is the teacher—and generally this leader is a woman who inspires a thirst for knowledge and leads the youths into light. The wisdom of the state in providing for the education and training of teachers, too long neglected, was emphasized and the good work of the East Carolina Teachers' Training school was highly commended.

ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR MAYOR.

To The Voters of Greenville.

I respectfully announce myself a candidate for the office of mayor of Greenville, subject to the will of the Democratic primary. I have retired from the drug business that I may live more in the open air and purpose, if elected, to devote myself to the detailed discharge of the duties of the office.

My past record as an officer is known to you. I have used my best efforts to enforce the laws, and if elected, shall continue to do so.

Gratefully,
5 15—tfd FRANK M. WOODEN.

To The Voters of Greenville.

I take this method of announcing myself a candidate for mayor, subject to the action of the Democratic voters of the town. As has been the custom heretofore, and as there is more than one candidate for the nomination, I suggest the holding of a voting primary to decide upon the nominee. In announcing my candidacy, I wish to state that I have no special interests to serve, and am no particular person's candidate, and if nominated and elected, will do all that I can for a more economical administration of the town's affairs, and to serve all the people to the best of my ability.

5 15—tfd W. F. EVANS.

To The Voters of Greenville.

At the solicitation of several prominent business men and many personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for mayor, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, and take this means of announcing my candidacy and soliciting your support.

5 15—tfd J. B. JAMES.

TRAINING SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

which delighted the audience and was generally applauded, the school sang "Spring Time," and then came the presentation of diplomas to the graduating class, composed of the following: Margaret Sheppard Blow, Ida Lydia Bullock, Essie Ellington, Vada Elizabeth Highsmith, Nellie Pender, Lillie Roberta Tucker, Grace McGuire Bishop, Pattie Simmons Dowell, Mary Louise Fleming, Eallie Faison Pierce, Mattie Ruffin, Mary Edna Woodburn, Jennie Crichton Williams.

The speech in presentation of the diplomas and Bibles to the class was made by ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis. He said he did not want to minimize the work of any other school. It was not his privilege to attend the University, yet he loved it as well as any citizen of the state. He loved Wake Forest, Trinity, Davidson, Meredith, the Normal, the Agricultural and Mechanical, and every other school for what they were doing for the people. But this school here comes nearer being the people's school than any other in the state. At least 75 per cent of our population are rural. The child of the man in the country has as much right to good teachers as the city child. Fully 75 per cent of the children are dependent upon the public schools. The country schools have been the weak spot in our educational system. This school is to strengthen these country schools by sending them well prepared teachers.

Governor Jarvis said six times he had stood upon the rostrum of the University to deliver diplomas to students going out of that institution. Some who had received these diplomas have become governors, some judges, some teachers, some superintendents. "The best superintendent of schools that North Carolina ever had (pointing to Supt. Joyner) received his diploma at my hands." But no class before which he had ever stood gave him more pride than this first class going out from this school. The roll of the class was called, Miss Pattie Dowell being mentioned first as she was the first student to register at the opening of the school, and their diplomas and Bibles were handed to them by State Superintendent Joyner, followed with his congratulations and a charge couched in most beautiful words to put forth their best efforts as they go out in the service of their state.

Miss Dowell, for the graduates, stated that the class of 1911, in keeping with the motto, "To Serve," wished to leave some concrete testimonial of appreciation of what had been done for them, by contributing $112.50 to the school to be used as a student's fund. This was greeted with great applause, and President Wright said it came as a surprise to all except the class themselves.

President Wright gave some statistics concerning the school. He said the man entitled to the credit more than any other for paving the way to establishing this school, was County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale. The work he had done in advance showed the need for it. True his efforts could not have amounted to much but for the help of others, and one other especially mentioned was ex-Governor Jarvis. As a testimonial to them the literary societies of the school had prepared resolutions which met the approval of the faculty, and which he had been asked to read. The resolutions were as follows:

Resolutions.

The following joint resolution was adopted by the Lanier Literary Society and the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society of the East Carolina Teachers' Training school, Saturday evening, May 20th, 1911, and approved by the faculty May 22, 1911:

As a testimonial of the deep debt of gratitude we owe to, and the sincere love and appreciation we have for Mr. W. H. Ragsdale, in whose brain the East Carolina Teachers' Training school first had its inception, and whose enthusiastic efforts, untiring zeal and rare professional spirit created the desire in the minds and the hearts of others, and as a testimonial of the debt of gratitude and sincere love and appreciation we have for Governor Jarvis whose mind at once caught the significance and worth of such an institution to the people and children of the "Old North State," which he loves so dearly, whose rare gifts or organization and leadership made it possible to bring this school to this splendid reality.

Be It Resolved, That the Lanier Literary Society and the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society think and believe that the feeling of love and appreciation which the school has for its founders, Mr. W. H. Ragsdale and Governor T. J. Jarvis, should find expression in some fitting concrete form that would have a permanent place upon the walls of our school to serve as a constant reminder of the debt of gratitude we owe these men to be a constant inspiration to all to be of service to his fellow man;

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Be It Resolved, That no more fitting testimonial could we have than portraits of these men in oil, painted by a good portrait artist.

Be It Resolved, That the Lanier Literary Society in conjunction with the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society put forth every effort to carry out the provisions of these resolutions;

Be It Resolved, That the ways and means for carrying out the provisions of these resolutions be left to a committee consisting of two members from the Lanier Literary Society, two members from the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society and two members from the faculty.

Be It Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the permanent records of the Lanier and Edgar Allen Poe Literary Societies.
