THE GRADED SCHOOL! SUMMER TERM

HAS BEEN HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL.
Many Pupils Enabled To Advance To Higher Grades.

The summer term at the graded school closed today at eleven o'clock. There were enrolled during the session one hundred and fifty pupils. Four teachers were employed, viz: Miss Rebecca Knight for the third grade, Miss Lillian Gray for the fourth and fifth, Miss Lucille Sheridan for the sixth, and Miss Eula Cox for the pupils in the advanced grades.

In addition to the work done by the graded school teachers, the Training school has maintained a school of thirty children from the primary grades for observation purposes in connection with the summer term of the Training school. This class has been in charge of Miss Margaret Blow. Miss Blow's part of the school continues one week longer.

This summer term has enabled a number of children to remove conditions, and they will go into the next higher grades much better prepared than they could by home study. Several have attended who had no conditions of any kind. These children will go into the grades next fall well prepared and their work will be much more satisfactory to them, to their parents and to their teachers than it could otherwise have been.

Superintendent Smith thinks the experiment of a summer term has proved entirely successful, that it has served a good purpose, and likely it will be the policy hereafter to hold a summer term in the graded school each summer.

Are You?

Are you a good pinch hitter? In other words are you good enough to meet emergency and, in the language of the baseball writer, "clout the horse-hide with a thud," or "park the ball"? There is a word of inspiration in the thought that you want to be a pinch hitter; there is much satisfaction to be drawn from the fact that you are a pinch hitter. Of course, every baseball player can't be a pinch hitter, and neither can every player in the game of life, but odds are greatly in favor of the latter. The training is not so hard, though the desire must be greater, and the will power one hundred times of more force. But you can be a pinch hitter in life if you will only try. Keep your nerves steady your mind free from pretty worry and your eyes on the ball, and you will win. Many a man loses out in life because he is not a pinch hitter. Unexpected opportunity often calls him to the plate. Reluctantly, fearfully he goes to the plate and strikes out, or knocks an easy one to an infielder. Then he sneaks to the bench, with spirit crushed. But there's no necessity for it. When you are sent to the plate in the game of life to save the day, go forward with determination in your mind, and with nerves steady. Because you are determined is not going to give the other fellow a handicap, but is going to help you. Stand up to the plate with keen eyes and with firm legs. Wield the bat like you are going to knock the cover off the ball. You are just as capable of hitting the ball as the chap in the box is capable of tossing one you can't hit. You are just as human as he is, and you have an even chance with him for victory. You CAN do it. All it requires in the "pinches" is will power and coolness. Even if you happen to miss the mark you will get another chance. The managers in the game of life can tell what you are capable of doing. "If you go forward with quaking limbs, feeble arms and timid mind you not only will strike out, but you won't get another chance. Go forward resolutely and if you don't swat the ball, you will get another chance. You can be a pinch hitter, and when the golden opportunity comes around is when the pinch hitter is called on."—Wilmington Dispatch.

Proof Of The Pudding.

We saw a man beg a match to light his pipe. After striking it and getting the desired "light" he handed the stub back to the donor, saying, "Give that to the next fellow who asks you for a match. Tell him I tried it and can vouch for it being a good one."

State N. and I. College.

Attention is called to the advertisement of the State Normal and Industrial College which appears in this issue. Every year shows a steady growth in this institution devoted to the higher education of the women of North Carolina.

The college last year had a total enrollment of 909 students. Eighty-seven of the ninety-eight counties of the state had representatives in the student body. Nine-tenths of all the graduates of this institution have taught or are now teaching in the schools of North Carolina.

The dormitories are furnished by the state and board is provided at actual cost. Two hundred appointments with free tuition, apportioned among the several counties according to school population, will be awarded to applicants about the middle of July. Students who wish to attend this institution next year should make application as early as possible, as the capacity of the dormitories is limited.

It's a wonder that more men are not round shouldered from carrying such big opinions of themselves.

BANK OF TARBORO HAD TO CLOSE

SHORTAGE WILL REACH $100,000.

Is The Report of State Examiner Doughton.

Tarboro, N. C., June 15.—State Examiner Doughton reported today after a cursory examination, that the shortage of Cashier Hart, who suicided yesterday, and Assistant Cashier Hussey, who is in jail in default of bond, will certainly reach $100,000 and may run considerably in excess of this sum. The bank is practically wrecked and the depositors will be losers to a considerable amount. The true conditions will not be known until Saturday.

The funeral of the self slain cashier occurred today and was conducted by the Elks.

Developments show that Hart premeditated suicide. He told his wife some time ago that men whom he had accommodated by permitting them to overdraw their accounts were leaving him to bear the brunt. She urged him to take her property and square himself with the bank, but this he refused to do, saying he would take his medicine when caught. The letter to his wife which was found on the body was typewritten at the bank at least a day prior to the suicide. Hussey is in jail, unable to furnish the required bail.

Spilling Good Farmers.

Vocational training is enlisting, as never before, the interest and effort of business men and educators in several Western States. For two years certain bankers in Minnesota have promoted it very actively, their commercial interest in farm properties and people leading them to do so. They have found that of 435,000 school children educated at a cost of $14,000,000 annually, less than 1,800 attended agricultural schools. In the state which has only one-third of the tillable land within its 84,000 square miles under civilization, over ninety per cent. of the children are being trained to be consumers and only four-tenths of one per cent. to be producers. The present school system, even in the country, was thus found to be educating children away from the farms, spoiling good farmers and not making good city men.

The bankers offered prizes for the best answer to the question, Why I am going to leave the farm. The boy who won first prize laid stress on the fact that "most of the school 'marms' are town girls, or girls from town schools, and don't like country life. Their attitude helps to sow dissatisfaction among the pupils." He complained that farm labor is too hard, farm machinery too expensive, hired help too scarce, the grind too steady; that social pleasures and educational advantages are too sparse, and days off too few.

A girl who took a prize felt the isolation to be too great owing to the large size of the farms. "I have read somewhere," she wrote, "that people are social beings and develop better, mentally and socially, where they live in close contact." Better and more accessible high schools were among the attractions she suggested to hold young people to farm life.—The Survey.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16, 1911.

A WORD TO BUSINESS MEN.

In the past twelve months The Reflector has spent much money in enlarging and better equipping its plant, and today it has a printery that will compare favorably with any in Eastern North Carolina. Of course in making this large expenditure it was not merely to be spending or with the idea of losing money on it, yet the main motive that prompted it was to be in a position to better serve Greenville and Pitt county. We wanted to make a better and more useful paper, and have a printing plant that the people could look to with pride and feel that they could get any class of work done right here at home.

That the paper has greatly improved and that we have a creditable plant, are things that speak for themselves. At the same time it is not out of place to say that it takes a large amount of work to maintain the plant, and there are only those whom the paper and plant serves to look to for this work. It is the patronage given us that makes it possible for the community to have such a paper and such a printing plant, and without patronage the plant would not be worth the floor space it occupies nor worth anything to the community. Do you think the paper and plant worth anything to Greenville and Pitt county? Do you think that they are doing anything to upbuild and advance this section? Then do you not feel that they are entitled to your patronage instead of letting it go elsewhere? You not only get value received for every dollar you spend with The Reflector, but you at the same time help to build up your community, and the more patronage you give it the better its opportunity for advancing the interest of the town and county.

Come in any time you wish to look the plant over, and see if you do not think it merits what you have in the way of advertising and printing.

FARMERS READ THE ADS.

Those business men who think farmers do not read advertisements in the newspapers (and we have heard some of them say as much), are directed to the letter below written by a farmer to the Red Springs Citizen. Every merchant in Greenville should read this, as it is equally as applicable to Greenville as it is to Red Springs. The farmer in his letter says:

"I live out in the country and don't go to town much, but I read the Citizen all over, advertisements and all, and I don't see many advertisements. I like to read the advertisements and see who to trade with when I go to town. I like to know who sells the cheapest for cash, and on time, too, as I don't have the money every time. If all of the Red Springs merchants would advertise and tell the country folks what they have to sell, we folks in the country would go to Red Springs to trade more if they were as cheap as other places.

"When we go to Red Springs to trade we go to the man's store that advertises in The Citizen, for we know he will do us nearer right than any one else. A man that is too stingy to advertise what he has to sell is too close to give me a bargain. I love to read news from the merchants just as well as from the other folks. I tell you right now a man that don't advertise will not get any of my trade, because I don't know what he has got to sell. I go just as straight to the store that advertises as a martin does to his gourd. Advertising don't only help the man that does it, but it helps the town also."

You men folks of Greenville bear in mind that the Men's Prayer League meeting in the Christian church, next Sunday afternoon, will be on whether the "open Sunday" is in conformity to God's law. The tendency of the times is to overlook the holiness of the Sabbath and desecrate it by doing things on that day which should not be done. Six days of the week are given for labor, and the command is to keep the seventh holy.

Another railroad is heading toward Southport; but we would advise our friends in that good town to stand by Capt. Harper and his steamer Wilmington until they see the headlight of the train.—Charity and Children.

And then keep on standing by him will be the advice of every North Carolina editor who knows the genial captain. And they nearly all do.

Pass up one to the credit of the corset. A New Jersey woman fired a bullet at her husband but her aim was not good, and the ball struck a woman standing across the street. The steel in the latter's corset stopped the bullet and perhaps saved her life.

A Troy, N. Y., judge has come out against the high heeled shoes which the women persist in wearing. He says "they are barbarous and torturing and as destructive to health as the Chinese wooden shoes."

Keep cheerful, even if it does not rain as much as you think it ought to. Crops are not going to be a failure and there will be bread to eat.

When King George gets his new crown on, his head will not feel much better than some of we fellows' red top knot. Eh, Cowan?

Motors And Farmers.

The farmers have joined hands with the automobile owners in the campaign for good roads, for the old horse that formerly frightened at the auto is either dead or too slow, and the farmers are the fellows that now have the cash with which to buy automobiles.

The motor vehicle and the tractor are coming into general use among the farmers. They are useful on the farm, and the diversity of utilization is their principal recommendation. The automobile is just as good for hauling hay as for taking the family to church. Neither is particularly worth while unless the roads to be used are good.—Beaumont Journal.

A Charming Woman

Is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion, and perfect health. Try them. 50c at all druggists.

Sweet Scotch; or The Lost Art.

Looking from the car window the other day, we saw a sign on the side of a country store that called to mind a once popular article of traffic, but now an almost forgotten commodity. It was: "Gail and Ax's Sweet Scotch Snuff." How many stores in Charlotte sell snuff? Time was when snuff was the grocer's staple article. He might be out of salt or sugar, flour or tobacco, but always he had a supply of snuff on hand. It was made in two varieties—salt and sweet—and was packed in bladders of various sizes. Snuff-dipping was a common evil in the days of and after the war. Every negro woman had her brush, and the habit was not uncommon among the whites of the past generation. The brush was a twig, one end of which was chewed into a mop. The sweet gum made the favorite brush. Usually the snuff would be carried in a round tin box. Into this the moistened brush would be dipped, collecting a wad of the pungent brown powder, which would be transferred to the mouth. Expert dippers could close their lips manipulating the brush from one side of the mouth to the other making one dip last until forced to ejection by the necessity of speaking a word. Other dippers would put a wad between the lower lip and teeth and carry it here until it was gradually lost by what might be called a process of erosion. It was common to see a woman going about with a brush in her mouth and the corners of her lips coated with a dry brown scum. The acme of sociability in a gathering of dippers was the passing around of the snuff box. Conversation was carried on with difficulty and naturally lagged, as the sister who talked most had to lose the most snuff. The habit once acquired had as strong a hold on the victim as tobacco on its victim. The snuff boxes would be carried even to the country churches and the dinner between sermons would be followed by many a surreptitious dip. So completely, however, has snuff disappeared that but few young people know what it is. Few have heard about it and still fewer have seen it. Snuff dipping belongs to the lost arts. How the revolting habit was ever countenanced is one of the unsolved mysteries. But after all, was it a filthier habit than is that of chewing tobacco? An unbashed judge would probably say no. It was repugnant, however, more because it was a woman who was so befouling her mouth. Many things are all right for men which they would not countenance in women.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, our Grand Master has called from labor to rest our beloved brother, J. K. McGowan, therefore, be it resolved:

1st. That we take this means of expressing our sorrow in the loss of one of our true and loyal brothers, one who has always been "true and faithful among us," and that our county and state has lost a most excellent citizen.

2nd. That our knowledge of his exemplary and blameless life makes us mourn his loss, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of our Supreme Grand Master who doeth all things well.

3rd. That we extend to his bereaved family our sincere sympathy and point them to the Great Master above who always hears the cries of widows and orphans.

4th. That a page of our records be set apart and a copy of these resolutions be inscribed thereon, and a copy be sent to the family of our brother, and a copy sent to the Orphan's Friend for publication, also the Eastern Reflector.

Social and Personal.

Life—Two Points of View.
 A little while to worry,
 A little while to sleep,
 A little while to hurry,
 And then lasting sleep.

To learn to have endurance,
 With many ills to cope,
 To hope without endurance
 Of any right to hope.

A little while to blunder
 Where many dangers lie;
 To question and wonder,
 Receiving no reply.

Each day of fondly treasure
 Possessions that are dear;
 Each day to win new pleasure
 By giving others cheer.

Each day to trust more surely,
 To serve as best we may;
 Each day to wait securely
 Where Hope has marked the way.

Each day to see the beauty
 In all things that are fair;
 Each day to find in duty
 The gladness that is there.

Morning Garden Party.
 Thursday forenoon Miss Helen Forbes entertained a number of lady friends at a garden party in honor of Miss Mary Hazel, of Millington, Md., who is the guest of Mrs. F. J. Forbes. The occasion was without formality which made it all the more enjoyable. Several of the guests took their embroidery along, and after a time spent in sewing and chatting, as only ladies know how to do both, an interesting game of Nations was played. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the game.

With Mrs. Best.
 Thursday evening at her home on Evans street, Mrs. W. L. Best entertained a number of friends in honor of Miss Hazel. The guests were met at the door by the hostess, and punch was served in the hall by Miss Helen Forbes and Mr. S. T. White. A delightful game of Nations was played at the conclusion of which refreshments were served.

With Mrs. Forbes.
 This morning Mrs. F. J. Forbes also entertained in honor of Miss Hazel who is her guest. The game was bridge whist with sixteen players. The guests were served with tea and sandwiches on arrival, and cream and cake at the conclusion of the game.

STILL GOING HIGHER.

Court House Tower Is Up And Then Some.

There is always room at the top, and the new court house tower is going on up looking for the room. Sheriff Dudley says he got fifteen feet "higher up" in the world Thursday than he did the day before, but he threatened us with a cell in the jail if we told what he was looking to see.

Reflections of a Motorist.
 A motor by any other name would smell as sweet. Keep your eye on the road, lest you get the road in your eye. A spark plug that can spark and won't spark ought to be plugged. Never judge the modesty of a chauffeur by his failure to blow his horn. Be careful of your lights. Many an unlighted car has lit finally in a ditch. One may scold a horse for balking, but only a foolish motorist would blow up his car for the same reason. In the matter of carbon deposits even the most extravagant motorist finds it difficult to overdraw his account. In that fabled race between the hare and tortoise there is reason to suspect that the winner was a motor that had turned turtle. It is a strong tire that, with the example set it by joy riders, can resist all temptation to indulge in a little "blow out" on its own hook now and then. In speeding over the country roads greet courtesy always with courtesy. Many a chauffeur who has ignored the simple thank-you-marms of the rural districts has ended by going up in the air.
 —Harper's Weekly.

Pull Together.
 The Asheboro Courier, Solicitor Hammer's paper, says: "Men and brethren, let us dwell together in unity. This town needs above all else loyalty to the town, to the whole town, not to any one part of the town. It needs good will and good fellowship. He who arrays one section against another, rich against poor, makes a mistake. Mankind is much alike. There is more good than bad in all of us, even in the worst of us. Most people are doing the best they can or at least, they so think." It is painfully evident that there is a division of opinion among the citizens over some city improvement, such as is found in almost every town. The advice of The Courier is good. No town or city can go forward as it should unless the citizens pull together. Because an enterprise or improvement does not materially benefit every citizen of a town, either directly or indirectly, it does not follow that it should not be fostered or encouraged. The trouble has been with Salisbury the citizens have not worked together for the common good. A selfish spirit prevails among the people. There are citizens right here who if the dollar is not coming back to them doubled or tripled, they will not endorse the enterprise, much less put any money in it. Then there is the man who will knock the town, declare there is nothing doing, and if he could get out of it he would do so and steer clear of it. Shame upon such a man. We wonder if it ever occurred to him that the town would be better without him and that he would do it a favor to get out. There is only one thing to do, talk the town on all occasions. If you have anything good, tell it. If bad, keep it. Work together for the good of the entire town and keep working, never doubting, and your town will soon rank along with the best cities in the country.—Salisbury Post.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
 by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (cannot be cured) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

READING THE FLASHES.

Lighthouses Are Open Books to the Experienced Mariner.
 Passengers are generally astonished when on a dark night they hear the ship's officer remark to another, "There's Egg rock," or "Crabtree ledge," or "Beaver Tail," as the case may be, naming some headland or shoal along the coast. The landlubber strains his eyes, and far away there appears from time to time a flash of light, red or white. As these flashes seem to the passenger exactly like those from hundreds of other lighthouses, he is astonished at the officer's assurance.

It is really a very easy matter to distinguish the American lighthouses and lightships, of which there are about 1300 along the Atlantic and gulf coasts if one is possessed of a copy of the code issued by the lighthouse board. Every light is known by the fixed light, the duration of flash, the length of the eclipse or the number of flashes shown in groups. No lighthouses within a hundred miles of each other are ever similar in these particulars. For instance, one guildest of the sea may flash a white light every fifteen seconds, never varying, while the next flashes a red light every five seconds. The third may be an alternate red and white flash, with intervals of ten seconds between the flashes, and so on. The audible fog signals are identified by the time between the blasts of the siren and the continuance of the blast. Flashing lights are preferred to fixed lights for the reason that a fixed light might be confused with some other light on shore. Only white and red lights are considered desirable in lighthouses, since it has been found that the rays from lights of other colors cannot be seen at so great a distance. There is but one green light—a fixed one—on the Atlantic coast.—Harper's Weekly.

Seeing Around Corners.
 There are many insects which have a very much larger field of vision than we have. This is due to the greater concavity of their eyes, enabling them to see around the corner, so to speak, behind and at the sides. This development in man would have its objectionable points, but also its good ones, not the least of which might be the detection of pickpockets.—Chambers' Journal.

Time and Patience.
 No road is too long for him who advances slowly and does not hurry, and no attainment is beyond his reach who equips himself with patience to achieve it.—La Bruyere.

Politician Drops Dead.

By Wire to The Reflector.
Newark, Del., June 16.—Postmaster Clark, the best known Delaware politician, dropped dead today.

Corporation Law Practice.

A corporation has no right to practice law. The courts have repeatedly so decided, and in New York the legislature has iterated the decision of the courts. Nevertheless, the growth of corporations practicing law has been one of the features of the last decade. New York law firms some of them, never die. They are simply corporations, owned by the heirs of the distinguished lawyers who formed them, hiring lawyers to do the work, but collecting all fees. Some of these corporations have offices in different cities all over the country and are engaged in a positive effort, so it would seem, to monopolize all law business.

The corporation that practices law has no fear of disbarment. Its hired men may be disbarred, but not it. It is easy enough to get others in their places. In fact, in many ways the corporation practicing law is a lawyers are officers of the courts, and much is dependent on their inherent honesty. Notably a corporation has no soul. It may be mentioned that the Brooklyn Bar Association considers the situation to take so dangerous that it has decided to take action in the matter, which it will probably do by insisting that lawyers working for such corporations be disbarred and that the officers of the corporations themselves be punished.—Charleston News and Courier.

A La Tartuñe.

President Joseph F. Smith, of the Mormon church, has addressed an open letter to the British people, among whom he is making converts, in which he says:

For myself—and it may sound strangely to you—that means that I believe in being true to five wives, who are loving, loyal, contented and happy mothers. They have been my wives for from over twenty-seven years to more than forty years. They have looked up to and been true to me through all these years, and I have held my love and duty to them above all things else; my love for them, my conscience and my manhood would not allow it to be otherwise.

True to five wives! Joseph is certainly a daisy! Come to think of it, a group photographed of those five ladies would be a liberal education in itself. It is horrible to reflect on the fact that, in spite of Smith's ghastly statement, over 500 British women went to Utah last year.

The Oklahoma tells us that Mormonism is allowed to perpetuate its sway in this country because Utah sends Republicans to the United States Senate and House of Representatives who always support the special privilege interests that control the Republican party and the governmental system of this country. Thus the Mormons appear to be as loyal to "the interests" as they are to their wives.—Virginia Pilot.

Trophies of the Chase.

Sportsman (to admiring friends)—This bullet hit me while I was hunting in the Adirondacks; I was taken for a deer. This one I got in the Canadian Rockies; I was taken for a mountain goat. This one up in Maine; hunter thought I was a wildcat. I've got three others, but of those occasions I never found out what I was taken for.—Puck.

It was a long and bloody battle for life that was waged by James B. Mershon, of Newark, N. J., of which he writes: "I had lost much blood from lung hemorrhages, and was ever weak and rundown. Bonnyclabber.

New drinks have sometimes a glorious and brief popularity. Lord Stratford, writing to Lord Cottingham in 1635, extols "bonnyclabber," which he says "is the bravest, freshest drink you ever tasted. Your Spanish don would, on the heats of Madrid, hang his nose and shake his beard an hour over every sop he took of it and take it to be the drink of the gods all the while."

No one, however, seems to know the exact composition of the seductive "bonnyclabber," although from an allusion to it by Ben Jonson it would seem to have been a mixture of beer and buttermilk.—London Chronicle.

A Spider With a Lasso.

Spiders have a number of ingenious ways of alluring and catching their prey. A writer in Popular Science describes an American spider which haunts evergreen trees and snares its dinner by means of a kind of lasso. The web of the spider is triangular in form. Two corners of the triangle are attached to twigs, but the other corner, which ends in a single thread, is held by the spider, perched on a neighboring twig. When a fly strikes the web the spider loosens his hold and the elastic threads instantly entangle the victim.

The Word "Gent."

At one time the word "gent" was a reputable term for general use. A respectable writer in 1564 tells of "a supper to divers gentlemen of the Gray's time for the great amitie between them and the Middle Temple gents." The diarist Evelyn speaks of the "noise and tumult occasioned by three or four wild gents in drink." Soon after Queen Victoria's accession "gents" became vulgar. Thackeray speaks of it in 1842 as an "affectionate diminutive at present much in use among commercial persons."
